WHY EXHIBITORS STEAL

THIS DEPARTMENT has no desire to defend, or to sympathize in any way with, men who take the law into their own hands and attempt to settle inequities by picking pockets, by using a gun, or by cheating their "partner" in a percentage deal by under-reporting a gross. To so defend or sympathize would be to contribute to a major breakdown in the law and order on which our country and our industry are founded. But every now and then we must recognize and understand the frustration, and the bitterness, that forces a small businessman to accept jungle methods as a last resort. Personal bankruptcy, and the loss of a means of livelihood and support for a wife and children, can be pretty unattractive too.

A case in point is the lessor of a single theatre in a small town whom we chided recently for underreporting activities. He is his own manager seven days a week, and he is even his own projectionist on the regular man's day off. He works hard. He drives an old small car. And for the last six or seven years he has been barely managing to keep his business head above water. He got caught cheating several years ago and we helped him to get a settlement; but now he has been caught again. "And I'll keep right on doing it!" he told us. "I'm a free American, and I am entitled to run a business, and to make a living as profit! Every last dime I own is invested in this theatre, and it is only useable for showing saleable films. The owners of those saleable films have benefited by numerous drive-in theatres that cropped up all around me; but they continue to increase demands for a share of my declining grosses, to the place where I can't live and pay them. The owners of those saleable films dictate how much I must charge, how many days and which days I must play their films, and then they demand that I pay them prices and scales that are as much as 80 per cent to 150 per cent of my gross income, or they won't sell me. Of course I cheat and under-report! And I'll do it again, and again, and again! Distributor confiscation of my business started the jungle methods. I'm only defending myself!"

Turning sadly away from such a situation we bump squarely into some current sales demands that are guaranteed to turn even much bigger operators into cheats and thieves.

Percentage-of-the-gross deals rule better than 90 per cent of all important film transactions today. And percentage demands have risen to 40, 50, 60, and 90 per cent-over-actual-audited-house-overhead-plus-advertising costs. No one can object to paying such percentage terms if a given picture does a correspondingly high gross. But the recently introduced "floors," or guarantees, demanded under percentage terms, have turned them into instruments of confiscation that are guaranteed to breed the strife and "cheating" of the future. "Floors" turn percentage "partnerships" into one-way holdups! And scarcities load the gun!

Again, a case in point is a soon to be released important cartoon feature, the terms for which are being quoted at "90-10, with a 60 per cent floor." Another way to say this would be: "We want 90 per cent over actual audited house overhead plus advertising costs, BUT in no case will we take less than 60 per cent of the gross, even if you do not get back your actual audited house overhead plus advertising costs."

Let's figure it out. Let's suppose that a given theatre has a $3,000 overhead and that on a given picture it spends $500 over and above its regular advertising, for a total of $3,500 out of its pocket. On this picture it grosses $12,000. So it gets back the $3,500 it has laid out, plus 10 per cent of the $8,500 remainder, or a total of $4,350 (36¼ per cent); while the distributor gets $7,650 (63¾ per cent). But what if, in this tricky market, a fairy-tale cartoon does not do $12,000, but even at the demanded admission price increases does only $8,000?

At an $8,000 gross, on the same quoted "90-10 with a 60 per cent floor," the distributor is always going to get a minimum of $4,800 (60 per cent). That leaves exactly $3,200. Where is the exhibitor to go for the $3,500 he laid out, or for his 10 per cent of the profit on the engagement "partnership"?

So the gimmicks and "floors" that strive for "the edge" only make bad customers out of good ones, and reflect on the avarice and amoral thinking of the seller. Maybe two wrongs never made a right; but one wrong has certainly made another. Another, and possibly more evil one!

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING

APROPOS OF COMMENTS on this page (Dec. 3, 1958) about the "spontaneity" and "unanimity" of that Catholic Central High School (Springfield, O.) boycott of all motion picture theatres, it now develops that the Chakeres Circuit, which was its intended victim, did not make it a policy to play "C" (Legion of Deeney "Condemned") pictures. It also developed, according to Walley Allen, the circuit booker, that no attendance decline was noted other than that caused by sub-zero weather. Also that: "There was no point to the boycott, and the students were not in sympathy with it. They had been told to vote for it."

So no one was very surprised when a delegation from the 600 pupil school called on Mike Chakeres to announce that the boycott had been lifted. The announcement, it seems, was accompanied by a request that no "C" pictures would be shown, and that the teen-age price concessions that have always been extended to teen-agers should be continued.

Mike could just as readily have promised not to beat his mother, and not to shoot himself with a 19 calibre pistol.

Do you think the newspapers that praised and publicized this "spontaneous and unanimous" boycott will be equally generous in debunking it?

You know damned well they won't!

They never do.

UNSOLICITED • The letters from readers which appear on this page are not solicited. MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR does not suggest questions to readers in order to provide a flow of letters.

From BROOKLYN, N. Y.

I really don't think that any theatre manager or owner could find any criticism of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR. None! I've been a reader for 25 years, and each year it gets better. Just don't stop. Here is three more years of it, so good luck! And keep up the fine work.

IRVING MICHAELS, Manager
Plaza Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Michaels was one of the first to register his 40th ANNIVERSARY TRIBUTE with a three year renewal.

From ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

Frank Boyle of Fitchburg, Mass., (Nov. 26 issue) certainly expresses my opinion of the creative advertising departments of quite a few of our national distributors. They seem to be searching, but their finished products are certainly not selling the pictures to the public.

So we have time-worn ad mats and time-worn exploitation ideas. And they don't seem to welcome criticism or suggestions. Not too long ago I wrote to one of the New York distributors and made a few suggestions. As of today, I haven't received the courtesy of acknowledgment, let alone any comment on the worthiness or unworthiness of my submissions. Cooperation between distributor and exhibitor seems to have broken down, at least with some companies.

There are several of the majors that have injected new blood into their departments, and it certainly shows to advantage. I'm probably going to become very unpopular because of these comments, but since there is no "Mr. America" contest on, who cares?

GEORGE KILPATRICK, Manager
Beach Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: Don't blame the departments so much as top management. Many of the advertising and publicity men are working so under-staffed and short-budgeted that it is amazing they do as well as they do.

From MEMPHIS, TENN.

In my opinion, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR is about half right and half wrong on the stand you take in "HARD TICKETS AND OVER PRICING" (issue of Nov. 26).

It is true, as you state, that better pictures should get higher admission prices. But the producer is deciding which are the better pictures, and he is a little prejudiced. For example, "GIGI" and "THE OLD MAN AND THE SEA" are good pictures, but they can't even do normal business at regular prices, so how can you justify raised admissions? They are just not boxoffice! On the other hand, when pictures like "BRIDGE ON THE RIVER KWAI" and "CAT ON A HOT TIN ROOF" prove to be boxoffice, the exhibitor will gladly raise prices, knowing he won't offend his patrons. So the exhibitor should be consulted, and not just told.

You are right that there are always certain buyers who will buy the best (Cadillacs, Minks, and Black Angus beef). But in New York, Philadelphia, or Chicago you have thousands of such buyers, while in smaller towns like Memphis, or Oshkosh, or Podunk even the same percentage will only produce hundreds. The same potential just doesn't exist, and big price jumps will get you nothing but small grosses.

Along the same line, in the big cities you normally charge $1.50 to $2.50 for a first-run movie. The same first-run movie in Memphis normally costs 75 to 90 cents. When we raise prices from 75 cents to $1.25, it is an increase of 66⅔ per cent and is like saying to our people, "Stay away!" When it comes to the neighborhoods it is even worse. Big cities may get 90 cents, so going up to $1.25 on Paramount's "THE TEN COMMANDMENTS" is only up about 40 per cent; but when we must go from our regular admission of 50 cents to that same $1.25, that's up 150 per cent. Wouldn't Paramount be a little more sensible and reasonable to ask us to go the same 40 per cent, to 75 cents, or even up to 90 cents?

Contrary to your comparisons, the same shirt sells for $5.00 all over the country, and the same model Cadillac sells for $5,000 or $6,000 whether in New York or Frisco; but the same movie can be seen for admissions that range from 10 cents to $2.50, depending on what town, what theatre, what run, and a dozen other whats. So picture prices shouldn't be frozen to any level, based on what the market will bear in some distant metropolis.

I don't blame the actor, the producer, the distributor, or the exhibitor for trying to get as much money as possible. But each one in turn must use common sense, and not price himself and all the rest of us out of the public's price acceptance.

NATHAN S. REISS

Airways and Rosewood Theatres

EDITOR'S NOTE: We feel that Mr. Reiss has added to our editorial views, rather than contradicted them. Regarding "GIGI," however, we can't agree with him. It is doing good, solid business wherever reported. "OLD MAN" is admittedly doing badly in the high admission runs, but it is our feeling that it would do even worse at regular admissions. The only chance it had was at two-a-day.

From NEW PRAGUE, MINN.

I used to like the way in which Showmen's Trade Review ran its Feature Booking Guide, but now that I have gotten used to yours, I like it too. So all you need to do is to add a rating, i.e. for whom a particular picture is recommended such as "adults," "family (all ages)," "young people," "children's programs," etc. I really enjoy the service of your yellow and pink sections.

G. P. JONCKOWSKI
Prague Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: Any such ratings would be only one reviewer's opinion. Aren't the Legion of Decency classifications (alphabetical index in the yellow section), or the story line and X-ray analysis in the REVIEWS, sufficient data for each theatreman to reach his own conclusions?

From IMLAY CITY, MICH.

I could never let MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR down. It's the best trade paper there is.

TO OUR INDUSTRY FRIENDS:

We ARE sorry . . . but our supply of 1959 BOOKING CALENDARS is completely exhausted.

We did our best! About 14,000 copies were directed to Subscribers . . . right in the mailing jacket with each Dec. 3 Issue. Other copies were sent to all Film Exchanges, Supply Dealers, etc. And, on top of all that, we had 1000 copies on hand for additional requests.

But this was not enough! They are all gone! Requests deluged in here during the past month, so there just aren't any more!

Next year we'll order more . . . but this year we are helpless to do more than we have. Sorry!

NEWS CAPSULES

Pa. Town Kills Tax

POTTSVILLE, PA.—The Pottsville City Council last week repealed a five per cent amusement tax and two downtown theatres, the Capitol and the Hollywood, which closed two weeks ago, immediately reopened.

At the same time, Mayor Michael A. Close proposed an increase in downtown parking meter fees from five to 10 cents an hour to make up the lost revenue.

The amusement tax was dropped after a petition was received from 10,000 teen-agers in reaction to the theatres being closed during the Christmas season.

Meanwhile, in Reading, Pa., the Park, a William Goldman theatre, recently closed after City Council refused to repeal a 10 per cent tickets tax, reopened for the holiday season only. Another Goldman house, the Strand, is operating on week-ends only.

Those favoring elimination of the amusement tax are urging that the theatre management do what the Pottsville houses did, shutter the houses until the tax is rescinded. Communities deprived of theatre entertainment have felt the loss in other commercial and recreational endeavors as well.

BROADWAY GROSSES

Holiday Boom Continues

NEW YORK—With all holdover product, the Broadway first runs reported grosses for the week-end which indicated that the holiday boom was continuing. Loew's State, now closed, claimed to have broken the house record with a combo rock 'n' roll stage show plus 20th-Fox's "Villa" on an upped admission basis. According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"THE INN OF THE SIXTH HAPPINESS" (20th-Fox). Paramount ($33,403)*—The fourth week was sure to top $45,000.

"AUNTIE MAME" (Warners). Radio City Music Hall ($142,115)—Thursday through Sunday accounted for $127,000, with the fifth week bound to top $180,000. Stage show.

"THE 7TH VOYAGE OF SINBAD" (Columbia). Roxy, with stage show, reported $133,831 for Wednesday through Sunday, with the third week heading toward $145,000.

"THE BUCCANEER" (Paramount). Capitol ($41,926)—The second session was claimed at $70,000.

"THE GEISHA BOY" (Paramount). Mayfair announced the third week would tally $38,000.

"I WANT TO LIVE" (UA). Victoria ($19,292)—The seventh week was reported as $27,000.

"SEPARATE TABLES" (UA). Astor ($19,115)—The third week garnered $42,000.

"BELL, BOOK AND CANDLE" (Columbia). Odeon expected the second session to hit $27,500.

"A NIGHT TO REMEMBER" (Rank). Criterion, which went off the reserved seat policy this week, announced the third week as $26,000.

Penna. Supreme Court Hears Obscenity Cases

PHILADELPHIA—With the Pennsylvania Supreme Court opening its January sessions here this week with all seven Justices occupying their seats on the tribunal together for the first time in a long while, several important cases including an interpretation of Pennsylvania's obscenity statute and its application to motion pictures were expected to be heard.

One of the cases involves the right of District Attorney Victor H. Blanc to seize the film, "And God Created Woman," starring Brigitte Bardot, at the Studio.

A ruling on this film at this late date after it has already made the rounds of area houses is purely academic. The high court postponed coming to grips with the obscenity case until it could muster its full seven members. The postponements began last April 19 when Justice Chidsey died, and the situation was aggravated when Justice John C. Arnold was injured in a fall at his home last Sept. 23. Later, Justice Curtis Bok, who was sworn in on November 8, suffered a heart attack, and Justice Arnold died on Nov. 9.

However, appointment of Attorney General Thomas D. McBride on Dec. 11 has brought the court again to full strength, and Justice Bok has been reported in good condition and is expected to rejoin his colleagues. A seven-man court eliminates the possibility of a three-three split.

Tied in with the "And God Created Woman" case is one involving the application of the state's 1939 obscenity law to a firm of a burlesque show. The State Superior Court previously ruled that the obscenity law was constitutionally applied to the burlesque firm.

Meanwhile, two other cases, both involving the censorship issue, but in night clubs, have come before the court.

Decisions in these cases will have a powerful impact on the subject of obscenity and censorship in Pennsylvania, which for several years now has been operating without a censorship statute as such.

Rube Jackter, Columbia vice-president and general sales manager, is seen addressing a recent merchandising session for New York executives on "The 7th Voyage Of Sinbad."

FILM FAMILY ALBUM

Arrivals

Dick Fox, Sinking Springs Drive-In, Reading, Pa., is handing out cigars on the recent birth of a daughter. The family now has two boys and a girl.

Charles and Harriet Franke became the parents of a baby girl weighing in at six pounds, six ounces, in New York. She has been named Janet Lesley. Dad is Paramount Trade paper contact.

Gold Band

Brenda Rae Gins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gins, was married to Arthur Greenfeld, Brooklyn, N. Y., at the Essex House. The bride's father is general sales manager for NTA Pictures.

Obituaries

John N. Brichetto, 74, retired theatre owner in Knoxville, Tenn., who operated a downtown theatre for almost half a century, died at his home.

Mrs. Mary Dowdell, widow of Leslie Dowdell, well-known booker for United Artists and Warners, died in Cleveland. She is survived by two sons.

Edward E. Kirchner, 77, veteran manager, Family, Detroit, who retired several years ago, died in Harper Hospital.

Dave Miller, 65, former Universal district manager in Buffalo, who had been retired for the past five years and moved to Cleveland recently, died in Mount Sinai Hospital last fortnight. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, and two grandchildren. He founded the Buffalo Variety Club and was a long time member of the Cleveland Variety Tent.

Edward J. Noble, 76, chairman of the finance committee and a director of American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, died last fortnight at his Greenwich, Conn., home.

Emmett Passmore, 30 year veteran employe of the Video Theatre, who had been managing the Ritz and Broncho, Wellington, Tex., died at his home recently.

Benn Rosenwald, 58, MGM branch manager in Boston, dropped dead in his office last weekend.

George Williams, veteran in exhibition, who managed several theatres in Buffalo, N. Y., as well as in other cities, including the Victoria, Buffalo, died recently.

R. E. Zisbell, theatre owner in Norcross, Ga., died of a heart attack while on a pleasure trip to Mexico.

Exhib Wins Appeal

ST. PAUL, MINN.—A theatre operator does not have to pay unemployment insurance to projectionists "bumped off" the job in a union maneuver, the Minnesota State Supreme Court ruled here.

The high court ruling was made in a suit brought by Sol Fisher, owner, Campus, Minneapolis neighborhood house, which followed the pulling of an operator by the projectionists' union and the replacement at the house with another of higher seniority.

Industry Execs Fight "Filth" Charges

Einfeld, Seadler, Pickman And Lazarus Testify At N. Y. Hearings; Support Self Regulation, Hit Censorship

NEW YORK—Charles Einfeld, 20th-Fox vice president; Silas F. Seadler, Loew's Inc. ad manager; Jerome Pickman, Paramount vice president; and Paul N. Lazarus, Jr., Columbia vice-president, were the executives who last fortnight defended the industry against charges of filth in its films and advertising and affirmed their faith in its self-policing through the Production and Advertising Codes at public hearings held by the New York State Joint Committee on Offensive and Obscene Material.

Louis Peace, director, New York State Motion Picture Division, which licenses motion picture exhibition, attacked "objectionable" film content during his testimony, asserting that as a result of court decisions the Division was "constrained to license more and more films containing content we consider morally harmful, especially to youngsters." He referred, particularly, to "horror films, a recent cycle."

He advocated legislation to extend control over ad placement and to increase the exhibitor's responsibility for ad material he originates.

Einfeld, defending the efficacy and value of industry self-control, invited "suggestions" from the committee.

Pickman declared that censorship "is not the answer" to curb the "irresponsible fringe." "If there is anything wrong with it," he said, "we will be the first to correct the Code."

Seadler, admitting to a relaxation in certain areas of the MPAA Codes, pointed out they were the result of a general relaxation, by the public, in other areas as well. He noted a recent decision to use an MPAA Code insignia together with a statement that the material in press books had been approved as a continuing effort towards self-regulation.

Lazarus cautioned that "there will be an over-emphasis coming out of these hearings on the deleterious content of pictures and their advertising" and little mention of the industry's achievements.

Witnesses adding charges of misrepresentation in film ads and of objectionable ad and film material, included Frank J. Mealy, state chairman of the V.F.W. committee investigating indecency; Emmett Burke, Knights of Columbus; Hugh Doyle, State Youth Commission; Benjamin Chuckrow, Jewish War Veterans; Daniel J. O'Connor, American Legion; and Rabbi Chaim Lipschitz, director, Brooklyn Community Service Bureau.

The Committee according to Assemblyman Joseph R. Younglove, its chairman, "is desirous of assisting the film industry."

James A. Fitzpatrick, Committee counsel, said the Committee was not desirous of introducing new pre-censorship legislation. Rather, he said, it advocated more effective and rigid enforcement of existing laws and increased self-regulation by the film industry.

Fitzpatrick declared that the Codes seem to be, in content and public acceptance, "excellent"; but, he continued, "in the opinion of some people, for what it is worth, there is room for considerable improvement."

It is the committee's duty, Fitzpatrick said, to explore legislation that will adhere to the State's police powers, yet afford the film in-

Merlin Lewis Joins ACE As Administrative Sec'y

NEW YORK—Merlin Lewis has resigned as executive secretary and treasurer of Theatre Equipment and Supply Manufacturers Association to accept a new position as administrative secretary of the newly formed American Congress of Exhibitors.

Lewis' new assignment took effect Jan. 1 with temporary headquarters in Room 411, the Paramount Building, 1501 Broadway, New York 36, N.Y.

Miss Beverly Friedland, Lewis' secretary for the past four years, also will start with ACE.

Cummings Group Buys Loew's Stock Block

NEW YORK—Nathan Cummings, prominent industrialist, announced last week on behalf of himself, his brother, Maxwell Cummings, Montreal real estate operator and developer, and Paul Nathanson, Canada's largest film distributor, now a resident of New York, the acquisition of in excess of 235,000 shares of the capital stock of Loew's, Inc., of which Nathan Cummings will retain the largest amount. The stock was acquired from a group of some of the largest stockholders.

"Our group is joining Loew's," Nathan Cummings said, "as a friend of management and we will work closely with Mr. Joseph R. Vogel, president of Loew's. We see enormous potentials in the future of Loew's and its many activities. My philosophy is to operate a business successfully and not to liquidate it, as evidenced by the policies which have built Consolidated Foods Corporation to its prominent place in the food industry, with its finances in their strongest position in the company's history."

Nathan Cummings will be invited to join the board of directors of Loew's at the next meeting, scheduled for early in January.

N. J. Allied Backs ACE

NEW YORK—Allied Theatre Owners of New Jersey last fortnight approved the program outlined by The American Congress of Exhibitors, and support of ACE "in every way possible to help it achieve its announced purposes" was recommended to National Allied.

Industry Dividends Dip

WASHINGTON—The Department of Commerce reported last fortnight that motion picture companies have listed dividend payments in 1958 through November totaling $20,488,000, compared to $24,401,000 in the corresponding period of 1957.

Industry the opportunity to operate effectively.

He said the Bill banning the use of material deleted from films in advertising, which was vetoed, might be redrafted and resubmitted next year.

The committee, according to Fitzpatrick, will review the material collected over the past six months and may hold further hearings here next year.

Court Approves NT Acquisition Of NTA

NEW YORK—Federal Court Judge Edmund L. Palmieri last fortnight signed an order asking approval of a plan under which National Theatres proposes to acquire National Telefilm Associates.

The deal was sanctioned after guarantees that title to NTA Film Network will pass "absolutely and without reservation" to NTA were written into the order.

The order provides for 20th-Fox's transfer to NTA of "all rights and interests" in NTA Film Network and its stocks and securities.

At present 20th-Fox and NTA each holds a half interest in NTA Film Network. The signed order was submitted after provision was made for the disposal of 20th-Fox's interest in the NTA Film Network, a subsidiary of NTA, to the latter.

The guarantees became necessary when the Department of Justice and Judge Palmieri voiced fears that the proposed deal might tend to re-establish a link between 20th-Fox and its former theatre affiliate, NT, as a result of the 50-50 ownership of the NTA Film Network by the film company and NTA; and that NT's acquisition of NTA would give it the latter's half interest in the network. This, the Department of Justice stated, was in spite of its view that the consent decrees are not applicable to the distribution of pictures in the television field or any other field that is not theatrical.

Court Dismisses Tax Suit

PHILADELPHIA—Common Pleas Court Judge Charles L. Guerin last fortnight dismissed an equity suit seeking to void the city amusement tax as unconstitutional because the ordinance was amended to exempt motion picture theatres.

The suit was brought by Boulevard Ice Rink, Inc., which also operates a swimming pool and a dance hall, charging that exemption of movies was contrary to the State Constitution, which requires that "all taxes shall be uniform." Therefore, the suit said, the whole city amusement tax law was unconstitutional.

The court ruled that an equity action was not technically proper until the plaintiffs have taken their objections before the Tax Review Board.

City Solicitor David Berger, in a formal opinion, held that the tax exemption for motion picture theatres was a "valid exercise" of City Council's legislative authority.

N.B.R. Names Year's Best

NEW YORK—The National Board of Review of Motion Pictures' Committee on Exceptional Films last fortnight announced it had selected Warners' "The Old Man and The Sea" the best picture of 1958, and the Indian-made "Pathar Panchali," distributed by Edward Harrison, the best foreign film shown in the U.S. in 1958.

List Declares Dividend

NEW YORK—At a meeting of the board of directors of List Industries Corporation, a dividend of 25 cents a share was declared payable on Jan. 13, 1959, to holders of record at the close of business on Dec. 31, 1958.

Distributors Win Round In Underreporting Suit

COLUMBIA, S. C.—Damages aggregating $93,577.81 for percentage underreporting at some nine theatres operated by H. B. Ram of Aiken and various members of his family during the period 1941-1954 were found to be due to eight distributing companies in a report filed in Federal Court here by E. W. Mullins, Special Master appointed by that court for trial of the matters.

The eight actions, which were consolidated for trial, were begun in 1949 by Paramount, Loew's, Warner Bros., RKO Radio, Twentieth Century-Fox, Universal, United Artists, and Columbia. Defendants were H. B. Ram, Esther Ram, Jake Bogo, Sam Bogo, and Max Bogo, former owners and operators of various theatres in the Aiken-Augusta area.

Highlights of the Special Master's report included findings that defendant-exhibitors had destroyed or falsified their records to conceal relevant facts; that daily admission receipts could be and were reasonably reconstructed from various other sources; that one among many indications of false reporting by defendants was the fact that the exhibitors sent in identical box office reports of admissions for different days to different distributors, often with identical breakdowns of admissions by price class; and that interest should be awarded on each item of underreporting from the last playdate of each underreported picture to the date of final judgment.

The case now goes to U. S. District Judge C. C. Wyche for action on the Special Master's trial findings. Representing the distributors were attorneys C. T. Graydon and Augustus T. Graydon of Columbia, S. C., William R. Glendon of Royall, Koegel, Harris & Caskey, New York, and John F. Whicher of Sargoy & Stein, New York.

NTA Promotes Gang

NEW YORK—Samuel Gang has been named foreign sales manager for National Telefilm Associates, Inc., Oliver A. Unger, NTA president, announced. Gang joined NTA as a foreign sales representative more than two years ago.

He has been active in selling NTA product in the Latin, South American, Australian, Japanese, Philippine Island, and Hong Kong markets. Gang recently returned from a seven week business trip of the Far East.

Prior to joining NTA, Gang was active in theatrical distribution in the Philippine Islands for a period of five years.

Cincinnati Cuts Tax

CINCINNATI—Local theatre owners got a welcome Christmas gift when City Council approved a cut of $80,000 in city's admission tax. New schedule exempts first 55 cents when admissions are $1.05 or more, effective Jan. 1. In 1960, city will exempt $1.05 of all admissions from three per cent tax. Theatre owners feel that local tax relief and revised federal tax exemption law will considerably ease pressure of operating costs.

Mich. Exhibitors Meet

DETROIT—Michigan exhibitors were summoned to a meeting yesterday in the screening room of the Fox Theatre to hear firsthand reports from some of the men who helped organize the American Congress of Exhibitors.

The call was issued on stationery of Allied Theatres of Michigan, Inc., signed by president Milton H. London.

Commerce Dept. Predicts Production Cut, Attendance Increase For 1959

Sherrill Corwin, Los Angeles, head of Metropolitan Theatres, is seen, center, as he recently received a plaque in appreciation of the contribution the circuit has made in a campaign for the entertainment of Los Angeles County's senior citizens—those over 65. The presentation was made by Carlton Browning, left, a vice-president of the Senior Citizens Association of Los Angeles County, while Bill Welch, KTTV announcer, right, looked on.

Para. Acquires Stock, Cuts Long-Term Debt

NEW YORK—Barney Balaban, president, Paramount Pictures, revealed last fortnight that the company in 1958 continued its program of acquiring its own shares on the open market and that it has reduced its long-term debt by over $5,000,000.

The company in 1958 purchased in excess of 176,000 shares of its stock at a total cost of $6,944,000, or an average per share cost of $39.43. About 1,764,000 shares are now outstanding.

Liquidation of debt includes full payment of the $1,200,000 note of 1501 Broadway Corporation, and accelerated payments of more than $3,300,000 on the principal of the Dec. 1, 1965 note.

Outstanding debt by the end of 1958 will be reduced to $12,000,000 notes payable to Prudential Insurance Company and $5,074,000 mortgage on the Paramount Sunset Studio property.

Balaban said it was questionable whether the $2.80 per share operating earnings of 1957 will be matched in 1958. Earnings in the first nine months of 1957 were $8.04 per share, including $5.93 per share from special income and $2.11 per share from ordinary operations.

Evidon Heads Col. Branch

LOS ANGELES—William Evidon, sales manager at the Columbia Pictures branch here, has been promoted to the post of branch manager, it has been announced by Rube Jackter, vice-president and general sales manager.

Evidon succeeds Norman Jackter, who recently was named southern California and Rocky Mountain division manager.

With Columbia since 1934, Evidon joined the company as a poster clerk in the Minneapolis exchange. He served there successively as a booker, head booker-office manager and a salesman, before being transferred to Los Angeles in 1947.

He also served as office manager and branch sales manager of Los Angeles before his promotion.

WASHINGTON—In a forecast of 1959 business the Department of Commerce indicated an increase in receipts and attendance at motion picture theatres but a probable cut in the production of features for 1959. Foreign made films were seen as having a better chance of playing time in U.S. theatres than ever before, the report stated.

The bureau stated that "the average weekly attendance at motion picture theatres during the past three years has been estimated at from 45 to 46 millions. . . . It is expected that attendance in 1959 will not increase greatly, but it should maintain its present level.

"Boxoffice receipts in 1958 will approximate $1,200,000,000 with statistics showing that admission prices have risen about 13 per cent since 1954. The estimated average admission price at motion picture theatres in 1957 was 50.5 cents compared to 44.7 cents in 1954. Average admission prices at conventional theatres are considerably higher than the averages shown for the years 1954 through 1957. However, lower admission prices at drive-ins bring the overall average down.

"Another factor which should aid the industry in 1959 is a revision of the admission tax, which is effective Jan. 1. This change in the tax exempts from taxation tickets costing less than $1, and provides for a 10 per cent tax on only that portion of the ticket exceeding $1.

"Another bright factor in the exhibition field has been the steady growth in the number of drive-ins, which at the beginning of 1958 counted for about 24 per cent of the gross receipts of the industry.

"It is beginning to appear that attendance at motion picture theatres is becoming stabilized . . . and it is expected that 1959 attendance will remain at the 1958 level. . . .

"It is becoming more evident that producers and exhibitors must work together; and it is expected that a good number of epic-type films will again be available for exhibition throughout the year, probably at advanced prices. This should be a factor in keeping box office receipts at a high level. Though it is not considered likely that a much larger number of feature films will be produced in 1959, the production of high-budgeted, spectacular type features should continue.

"The foreign market for U.S. films should remain good in 1959, and remittances of film earnings from abroad should remain at a high level."

Bingo Ballot Sought

COLUMBUS, O.—Drive to obtain 328,413 signatures of Ohio voters for the placement of a constitutional amendment on the November, 1959 ballot to legalize charity bingo and lotteries is expected to begin shortly after Jan. 1.

The proposed amendment would delete from the constitutional prohibition against lotteries and the sale of lottery tickets the words "for any purpose whatever" and substitute a ban against them when they are "for personal profit only."

The proponents must obtain at least 10 per cent of the vote for governor in the last election in order to have the amendment placed on the ballot. Committee sponsoring the proposal is headed by Elmer Coy, Toledo insurance agent. Members include Richard H. Conn and John J. Neenan Jr.

Columbia Stresses Blockbusters Through Independent Producers

WASHINGTON — Columbia Pictures launched the first of a series of four regional sales meetings here this week at the Statler Hotel with Rube Jackter, vice-president and general sales manager, presiding.

The sessions here were attended by home office executives Milton Goodman; Joseph Freidberg, manager, sales accounting and contract department; H. C. Kaufman, exchange operations manager; Saul Trauner, New York branch manager; and Robert S. Ferguson, director of advertising, publicity and exploitation, as well as field sales executives from the Eastern divisions and Canada.

Harvey Harnick, sales manager of Columbia Pictures of Canada, was present from Canada, and division managers present included I. Harry Rogovin, from Boston; Harry Weiner, from Philadelphia; and Samuel Galanty, who makes his headquarters here.

Branch managers were present from Albany, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Cleveland, New Haven, New York, Pittsburgh, and Washington.

Jackter said that "the new Columbia is geared to handle 30-36 entertainment packages a year, which will be made by independent producers at a cost of $58 to $70 million dollars."

He said that "president Abe Schneider and the other members of the management team have decided that there was still a world of opportunity in the motion picture industry for a company willing to meet the challenge and they have decided to fight it out with a reorganized and reoriented distribution system and a program consisting mainly of big 'blockbuster' type films from independent producers under the Columbia formula."

The sales executives were told of more than 25 leading producers who had made releasing deals with Columbia in the last few months to give it "the fastest growing list of independents in the industry."

"But," he added, "there will always be room for a few pictures made at lower budgets which still have the elements which will enable Columbia to merchandise them in the same style as the blockbusters."

"From now on," Jackter continued, "it will be imperative that each of our entertainment packages receives complete individual attention. We are convinced that we are on the right track to not only solvent but highly profitable operations. We will have the kind of motion pictures that will give the theatres the best chance for success in today's market."

Ferguson told the meeting that "every Columbia release would receive the full treatment of advertising, publicity and exploitation, from the cradle right through subsequent dates."

Subsequent meetings will be held on Jan. 12-13 in New Orleans for the southern divisions, and in Chicago on Jan. 19-20 for the far western divisions and on Jan. 21-22 for the mid-western divisions.

Golding Joins Preminger

HOLLYWOOD—David Golding resigned last fortnight as vice-president of Seven Arts Productions to join Otto Preminger as his executive assistant and director of advertising and publicity of Carlyle Productions, whose next production will be "Anatomy Of A Murder." Golding will headquarter in New York.

Conn. Exhibs Study Means To Better Children's Shows

NEW LONDON, CONN. — Russel E. Newton, American Theatre Corporation's Capitol, and John E. Petroski, Stanley Warner's Garde, New London, and Palace, Norwich, meeting with the juvenile protection committee of the New London district, Parent-Teachers' Association, and St. Bernard's Guild, have agreed on a three-point program to assure showing of "suitable" motion pictures for teen-agers and children on weekends and during school vacations.

Both Newton and Petroski said, however, that since their theatres are part of circuits, decisions on specific films, booking dates, and advertising quality are not always theirs, and stressed, particularly, that advertising material from New York does not always include a choice of pictures and copy by individual theatre managers.

Three-point program includes consultation by managers with school calendar to facilitate arranging suitable films to be shown when youngsters are most likely to attend film showings.

Para. Seeks Return Of Ohio Censor Fees

COLUMBUS, O.—Paramount Film Distributing Corp., of New York, filed suit in Franklin County Common Pleas Court here to force the state to pay back $55,846 which the firm paid under "unconstitutional censorship statutes."

Named defendants were Roger W. Tracy, state treasurer; James A. Rhodes, state auditor; Joseph T. Ferguson, former state auditor; Edward E. Holt, state superintendent of education; and Clyde Hisson, former superintendent of education.

The suit alleges Paramount paid the state the money during 1952, 1953, and 1954. It contends the money was paid involuntarily and under duress of a threat that the penalty section of the law would be fulfilled. The suit points out that the Ohio censor law required all films to be publicly exhibited "shall be examined and censored by the Ohio Department of Education for approval. . ."

The fee was $3 for each reel not to exceed 1000 linear feet and $3 for each additional 1000 feet or fraction thereof. The suit claims this was in violation of the First and the 14th Amendments and that the state ceased making collections at the end of 1954.

Rank In U.S. Record Field

NEW YORK—John Davis, managing director of the Rank Organization, London, England, announced that it has formed a new American organization which will be a joint venture with Bob Shad, who has also been appointed its president.

Shad will be responsible for the establishment of record labels in the United States for world wide distribution in conjunction with Rank Records, Ltd., London. Intention is to coordinate the American record company, Rank Record Company of America, Inc., with Rank Records of London, to mutual advantage.

Ohio Group Favors Censorship Revival

JACKSON, O.—Judge Tom Mitchell, of the Jackson County Common Pleas court, and the county board of education have both made public protests against "a growing tendency toward public displays of obscenity and immorality in movies, movie posters, and news stand publications."

By formal resolution, the board of education has urged the revival of movie censorship in Ohio. The board has made arrangements for wide distribution in the county of a report of movie poster "obscenity," published by the Greenfield, Ohio, board of education, which urges censorship of movies.

Judge Mitchell says he feels this to be a "moral issue to which we should give some attention for the sake of our children." He added: "Some of the lurid movie posters on display and the content of some of the filthy magazines on public news stands should be of serious concern to all parents." The jurist said he was recommending study of the Greenfield report by the Jackson Parent-Teacher Association.

Robert Oda, manager of the Markay, only theatre in Jackson, said he had not been contacted by Judge Mitchell or the county board of education on any phase of the matter. The Markay is owned by Chakeres Theatres, with home offices in Springfield, Ohio.

Guinness, Taylor Top Poll

NEW YORK—According to results of the 1958 Film Daily poll last fortnight the best performance by a male star was Alec Guinness in Columbia's "The Bridge On The River Kwai"; the best performance by an actress was Elizabeth Taylor in MGM's "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof"; the best performance by a supporting actor was Red Buttons in Warners' "Sayonara"; and the best performance by a supporting actress was Hope Lange in 20th-Fox's "Peyton Place."

Other winners were David Ladd for the best performance by a juvenile actor in Buena Vista's "The Proud Rebel," and Patty McCormack for the best performance as a juvenile actress in Universal's "Kathy O'."

"Finds Of The Year" were Maria Schell in Continental Distributing's "Gervaise"; Diane Varsi in 20th-Fox's "Peyton Place"; John Gavin in Universal's "A Time To Love and A Time To Die"; Gwen Verdon in Warners' "Damn Yankees"; and Hope Lange in 20th-Fox's "Peyton Place."

Phila. ACE To Meet

PHILADELPHIA—The local committee of American Congress of Exhibitors, William Goldman, chairman, has called a meeting of area exhibitors for Jan. 12 in the Pennsylvania Room of the Sheraton Hotel at 2:30 P.M.

Every exhibitor in the territory is invited and expected to attend as matters of paramount importance will be discussed and acted upon.

Des Moines Variety Elects

DES MOINES—The local Variety Club, Tent 15, elected Woodrow Praught, vice-president, Tri-States Theatre Corporation, chief barker. Other officers are Larry Day, first assistant chief; Ralph Olsen, second assistant chief; Lou Levy, dough guy; and Dave Gold, property master.

The Crew for 1959 includes Max Rosenblatt, Richard Frank, Cato Mann, Bill Luftman, and Ralph Olsen.

UA To Celebrate 40th Anniversary Via Gala World-Wide Celebrations

NEW YORK—United Artists will mark its Fortieth Anniversary during 1959 with world-wide, year-long celebrations.

Starting Jan. 1, UA's 164 American, Canadian, Latin American, and overseas offices and branches and 2200 employees will participate in a series of public and film industry fetes now being planned to observe the founding of the company on April 17, 1919, it was announced by Robert S. Benjamin, chairman of the board. Also taking part in the global celebrations will be United Artists family of more than 60 independent producers.

Benjamin declared that this four-decade milestone will be celebrated with the greatest selection of top quality motion picture features ever released during a 12-month period in UA history. He pointed out that these productions, representing an investment of more than $65,000,000, star approximately 100 of the most popular boxoffice personalities of Hollywood and Europe.

The Fortieth Anniversary also will mark UA's expansion as an entertainment company with major interests in television and the music fields, where the highly successful UA policy of working with independent artists and producers is being adapted for the first time to disks and video programming.

Operating since February, 1951, under the guidance of a new management team headed by president Arthur B. Krim and board chairman Benjamin, the company has shown a consistent profit every year since 1951 following a long period of heavy losses and acute product shortage. As 1958 draws to a close United Artists' world-wide gross for the past 12 months has exceeded $80,000,000, an all time high for the 40-year-old organization.

SAG-AFTRA Merger Mulled

HOLLYWOOD—The SAG last fortnight placed the question of merger with AFTRA up to the national membership and urged every member to be sure to vote for ratification of the resolution approved at the Hollywood meeting on Nov. 25 to empower the guild to "employ an impartial research organization to make a thorough study of the feasibility of merger with AFTRA" and "in-AFTRA to join with the Guild in the proposed survey."

Svigals Heads T-L Sales

NEW YORK—Edward R. Svigals has been elected vice-president in charge of sales of the Trans-Lux Distributing Corporation, according to an announcement made last week by Richard P. Brandt, company president.

Svigals, who joined Trans-Lux in 1956 as circuit sales manager and rose to the rank of general sales manager last year, is a veteran sales executive in independent motion picture distribution.

Detroit Uses Radio Spots

DETROIT—The Metropolitan Exhibitors of Detroit has bulletined its membership concerning current activities which are centered on radio spots. For the period Dec. 25 through Jan. 17 MED has contracted with stations WCAR, WJBK, WKMH, WWJ, and WXYZ for a total of 333 one minute and 200 10 second spots plus a bonus of five from Mondays through Fridays, 7:00 P.M. to midnight. Regular spots are rotated 9:15 A.M. to 7:15 P.M.

N. Y. Expects 20,000 Bingo Applications

ALBANY—New York State will have "upwards of 20,000" non-profit organizations licensed to sponsor bingo "when we get rolling." So Richard W. Hannah, chairman of the State Lottery Control Commission, predicted in an interview over the Stanley Warner owned television station, WAST.

Judge Hannah, who promised to return after that outlet shifted from UHF Channel 35 to VHF Channel 13, and to speak to its "larger audience," based his estimate on "new Jersey statistics," and the fact New York State has three times its population.

Hannah's prophecy gave an idea of the formidable opposition bingo may eventually present to motion picture theatres.

Many communities had enacted the necessary local bingo ordinances or resolutions at the November elections, Judge Hannah said. Applications from non-profit organizations in these localities would continue to be received.

Hannah told interviewer Forrest L. Willis that any established or "recognized" church, veterans, or volunteer fire organization would have "no trouble" obtaining a "registration number" from the Commission. Local papers had printed reports of "delays" and "red tape." It was different with other "similarly organized" groups, to which the 1958 legislative act refers, the interviewee declared.

The Commission, charged with preventing "commercialization" of bingo, and with keeping professional gamblers out, makes an investigation of the "similarly organized." Judge Hannah pointed out that New York City, in its local enactment, had stricken out the provision for licenses to the "similarly organized."

The Lottery Control Commission head stressed that communities, in adopting local ordinances, could make them as "broad" as the state law, or could "narrow" them.

In answer to a question by Willis who said he had seen "bingo" played at virtually every carnival the telecaster visited Judge Hannah replied, "The law is specific on this point. Only authorized organizations may run bingo. It can not be run commercially. The only way that bingo can be run at a carnival would be for an organization to sponsor it."

Hannah underlined that "Nobody can be paid for assisting in the running of a bingo

Schenck, Koch Return To UA Production Fold

NEW YORK—A multi-million dollar deal covering films for theatrical and television distribution was signed by United Artists Corp. with the production team of Aubrey Schenck and Howard W. Koch, it was announced last week by Robert S. Benjamin, chairman of the board of United Artists.

Schenck and Koch, previously associated with UA under the banner of their Bel-Air Productions, rejoined the UA fold on Jan. 1 as Olympia Productions, Inc.

The new organization will produce exclusively for United Artists, concentrating on quality productions and important properties. Under previous agreements, Schenck and Koch made 28 films for UA release.

"The Day the Children Vanished," based on a This Week magazine serial by Hugh Pentecost, will be the first theatrical motion picture project undertaken by the new company. Other films in work include "First Train to Babylon," from a novel and screenplay by Max Ehrlich, and "Line of Duty," based on a story by Rod Serling and screenplay by John C. Higgins.

Their contract with UA encompasses movies for television, specifically in the series format favored by United Artists Television, Inc., which is engaged in the financing and distribution of filmed half-hour series by independent producers. Schenck and Koch expect to make their bow as TV producers early next year with an adventure series titled "Miami Undercover," pegged to the exploits and tribulations of a private detective employed by a resort hotel association.

RKO Quits MPAA, MPEA

NEW YORK—It was learned last fortnight that RKO Radio Pictures resigned from both the MPAA and the MPEA as of Jan. 1, 1959.

The company virtually withdrew from domestic production and distribution some time ago when it turned over its unreleased and current production to Universal and shut down its exchanges and sold its studios to Desilu. It also largely transferred foreign distribution to the Rank Organization and has been engaged for months in the liquidation of its overseas operations.

game. The person in charge and others who assist may serve only on a gratuity basis. Only the bookkeepers may be paid." The Commission had allowed "up to $15" per case for them; also had allowed "other expenses, such as for janitorial services, of a reasonable amount."

By and large, these are the only persons who may be paid for their services, Hannah added.

$10 fee per game is divided between the state and the locality, Judge Hannah said. The State had received some $23,000 to date from this source.

"We will have a staff of approximately 50, as it is built up," Hannah reported. He observed that the Commission maintains offices at 39 Columbia St. in Albany and at 270 Broadway in New York City. The Commission's decisions are appealable to the courts, Judge Hannah underlined.

It was reported at the time of the interview with Judge Hannah that the State Lottery Control Commission had thus far granted 560 permits to organizations for the playing of bingo, with more planned for the group's January meeting.

Exhibs Hope For End To Ban On Children

TORONTO—Hints and hopes are wrapped together that the Province of Quebec's ban on children under 16 being admitted to movie theatres will be dropped. The hint was dropped during the recent annual meeting of the Quebec Allied Theatrical Industries, Inc. Paul Vermet, executive secretary, said in his bulletin to the membership that some big moves were afoot after Doris Robert, president, had made some comment on the subject. The moppets were banned from theatres in 1927 after a tragic Montreal theatre fire.

Dr. Paul LaCoursiere, of Three Rivers, president of the Quebec section of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, suggested, "Would it not be more opportune and advisable to let the youngsters in the cinemas and let them see pictures that the Censor Board would have previously approved for their age? A poster with For Adults Only or For the Entire Family, placed from time to time somewhere under the marquee would be in our opinion, one of the happy solutions."

Dr. LaCoursiere, who praised the Provincial Government for reducing the amusement tax, said that movies would do much to keep Quebec youth out of places without supervision, of a type injurious to the formation of character.

Canadian Comment

Wonderment has been expressed by a prominent theatre executive that the Canadian motion picture industry has ignored "Bingo" in its recent deliberations. Nathan A. Taylor, Twinex Theatres head and film distributor, writing in his capacity as president of the company which publishes The Canadian Film Weekly, expressed his chagrin. Taylor wrote how Bingo has flourished in Canada, describing it as "an outright form of gambling and one which has many, many thousands within its grasp—mostly women." He said he didn't think Bingo addicts would necessarily go to the movies if deprived of the excitement and pleasures "of this numbers game." But, "the point is that it should not be continued under such a flimsy cloak of legality. Either it should be outlawed completely or permitted without strings attached."

Newest sweepstakes being played in Canada is the guess on whether and who is going to purchase the majority holding in Famous Players Canadian Corp. from Paramount. Plenty of names are being mentioned in the trade, and it is no secret within the trade that the stock owned by Paramount was offered to a large brokerage firm to be sold at the market in one block. There were no takers. Meanwhile, the name of one of the company's executives is being mentioned as one who is eager to organize funds for control of the company. Another name is that of a financier still active in control of a segment of the industry. Still another name associated with the purchase offers is that of a man whose family was once associated with the company. There are a couple of others known to be interested but just who they may be fronting for is the big question. It is known that Paramount would like to sell the Famous Players Control so that it might purchase the offering of General Aniline and Film Corp., now held by the United States Government.

NOTED IN THE NEW YEAR: Ed Hyman, vice-president, American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, came through with something exhibitors can use in 1959, a special edition release schedule compiled again in the interest of orderly distribution of product. It supplements the schedule issued last September and reflects some changes that have been made in releases the end of 1958 and confirms dates for the first quarter of 1959. He thought its release would help maintain as accurate a picture as possible of availabilities in the immediate future. The next complete release schedule is due next March.

RECEIVED AND NOTED: More holiday greetings in from United Artists Associated, Jack Silverman, Ralph Donnelly, Bob Rothafel, Patti Alicoate, John Bergen, Jr., Les Dinoff, Marathon Newsreel, Carl Foreman, Harry Mandel, John Cassidy, Lynn Farnol, Harry Goldberg, Mike Hutner, Phil Gerard, Charlie Simonelli, Mort Nathanson, Harvey Matofsky, Charlie Levy, Steve Edwards, Jack Levin, Lars McSorley, Ed Gollin, Dan Terrell, Marvin Levy, the Gene Pleshettes, Charley Franke, Bernard Lewis, Alan Bader, Al Picoult, Monroe Goodman, Leon Roth, Bill Gorman, Charles Okun, Marc and Edith Absinthe, Jeff Livingston, Hortense Schorr, Si Seadler, Fortunat Baronat, Ralph Meyer, Paul Street from Turkey, and others. . . . Newsweek picked as its 10 best "A Night To Remember," "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof," "Gigi," "Me And The Colonel," "My Uncle," "Separate Tables," "The Defiant Ones," "The Horse's Mouth," "The Old Man And The Sea," and "Witness For The Prosecution."

SHORT NOTE: Todd-OA is out with a short entitled "The March of Todd-AO" calculated to be a curtain raiser to regular showings of "South Pacific." The flexibility of the camera shows in interesting fashion activities of the Sixth Fleet at sea and in the air; the Brussels Fair; and scenes from the Coronation of Pope John XXIII. It's 15 minutes in length.

COLUMN COVERAGE NOTE: Bob Perilla has volunteered to serve as eastern column liaison for the Academy Awards telecast and he will service them with special material. This phase was particularly effective last year.

NEWSPAPER STRIKE NOTES: Varying claims have been made as to what effect the recent newspaper strike had on Broadway business, but actually we think it had little effect. The good pictures were sought out, the others fell behind, especially in a period that was normally dull. Premieres and openings were affected in that celebrities who normally make it a practice to show up for the publicity value stayed away, figuring it was a waste of time to come. What they have done in the past in some cases is to go into the theatre, and when the film has gotten under way, they duck out an exit door. And they get in for free, too.

As a service to movie-page editors, Warners delivered a round-up of film news to the dailies when they reopened. Some of the companies took to posting one sheets around in the city, in subway cars, etc. Some theatre chains had newsy looking heralds distributed on a city-wide basis which naturally plugged pictures.

The import of the printed word was felt by public and press agent alike.

PARTY NOTE: The annual holiday luncheon of Associated Motion Picture Advertisers was held as usual at the Hotel Picadilly, and we wound up with no door prize, which is also as usual. Horace McMahon and Harry Hershfield supplied the talent, with the latter coming through quite well with some amusing gags. Prexy Bob Montgomery was in fine form as usual. Hans Barnstyn, ditto.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Meantime, profits of the company for the first nine months are up 19 per cent over the same period last year. According to a statement from J. J. Fitzgibbons, president, net profits are $1.20 a share or $2,084,174. For the same period last year they were $1,752,264 or $1.01 a share. Fitzgibbons said the improvement over 1957 and 1956 reflects the better quality of pictures released this year and more efficient operation as a result of eliminating unprofitable theatres. Results for the first few weeks of the fourth quarter also compare favorably with a year ago. Famous Players now has a third installation of the Todd-AO equipment, the latest being in Vancouver's Stanley Theatre where "South Pacific" recently opened with great success.

Work of the motion picture industry to infuse glamor into the business has worked to its own disadvantage, the Canadian Motion Picture Distributors say. In a brief presented to the Special Advisory Board set up by the Province of Alberta to study suggested changes to its amusement act, the CMPDA said the industry has attracted the attention of some taxing branches of government. As a result, "tax burdens" were placed that were thought by the taxing officials as "without serious damage to its financial structure." The

"Defiant Ones" Tops Critic Poll

NEW YORK—United Artists' "The Defiant Ones" last fortnight won the sixth annual award of the New York Film Critics as the best film of 1958.

United Artists' releases also won two other top awards: David Niven was voted best actor for his role in "Separate Tables," and Susan Hayward best actress for her role in "I Want To Live."

Jacques Tati's "My Uncle," French-made film released by Continental Distributing, was voted the best foreign language import.

The 24th annual balloting of the film critics was held at the New York Newspaper Guild Press Club, and awards will be presented at the group's annual reception on Jan. 24 at Sardi's Restaurant.

distributors said the original purpose of the censorship fee, that of paying only the cost, has been lost, and its use as a means of producing tax revenues for the general fund of the Province will "be regarded as unfair and discriminatory" when brought to the formal notice of the government. Reduction of expenditures is essential and one of the distributors' major expenses is the provincial censorship fee.

Exhibitors Look To '59 With Hope That ACE Can Solve Some Problems

Boston Leaders Enthusiastic Over Role Of ACE In New Year

BOSTON—The two representatives of the American Congress of Exhibitors from New England, Samuel Pinanski, president of American Theatres Corp., and Edward W. Lider, president of Independent Exhibitors, Inc., of New England and treasurer of National Allied, returned from the first ACE meetings in New York and were highly enthusiastic about the work accomplished there.

Pinanski, this city's leading national representative, said, "Exhibitors are now being unified for the first time since the tax campaign which we worked so hard to put across, and this unity is for their own battle for survival. My hope is that the industry can carry on the constructive work now on the ACE agenda which the serious and energetic members are compiling all over the nation. This agenda includes problems plaguing the industry as a whole, so far as possible. These problems were brought into view by Spyros Skouras and are now being focussed sharply by the serious minds in exhibition. It is my earnest hope that the new year will bring strength and sincere endeavor to carry out the all-important agenda at hand."

Lider, general manager of Yamins Theatres, said, "These exhibitor meetings held in New York on behalf of ACE and its goals have been notably sincere and cooperative. A great deal of preliminary work has been accomplished out of which a plan will evolve. This working plan will take time but the progress has been greater than we could realize or anticipate. It looks to me that the success of the work and the plan will depend largely on the ability to maintain active leadership and interest in ACE until the industry problems are solved."

Showmanship Stressed As Cleveland Exhibs Look to '59

CLEVELAND—Marshall Fine, Associated Theatres Circuit, a member of the board of National Allied and local chairman of American Congress of Exhibitors, sees a ray of hope for the future if exhibitors are provided in 1959 with a fairly steady stream of pictures like "Peyton Place," "Sayonara," "The Bridge On The River Kwai"—all of which brought people to theatres in great number.

Every exhibitor interviewed on the coming year expressed hope in the new ACE. "For a long time we have needed a single organization to speak for the industry," said Ted Vermes of the Mercury and Yorktown, deluxe neighborhood theatres. "We all have the same problems. The only difference is in degree. And that problem is to get people into our theatres."

Big city and small town exhibitors alike are groping for an answer to the situation. Stan Robertson, Mumac Theatre, Middlefield, O., says, "I honestly don't know what the public wants to see. Sure, they want top pictures. But when we play them they do not support them as they should. In our situation even 'Ten Commandments' didn't do big business."

What have the exhibitors here learned from their 1958 experience? "We did everything we know to do," Marshall Fine stated. "We had promotions. We advertised. We keep our theatres in first class condition. Our managers are part of the community in which their

"White Paper" Continues In Wisc. Allied Resolution

MILWAUKEE—At a recent meeting of the board of directors of Allied Theatre Owners of Wisconsin, a resolution was passed reaffirming the Wisconsin Allied "White Paper" campaign.

The resolution specified that the campaign would be continued despite formation of the American Congress of Exhibitors.

Lewis Back From Europe

NEW YORK—Roger H. Lewis, United Artists national director of advertising, publicity and exploitation, returned this week from a one-month European tour during which he conferred with company personnel on the new program of expanded global promotion and with producers preparing films for UA release.

Major stops on Lewis's itinerary included Paris, Milan, Berlin, Frankfurt, Naples, Madrid, London, and Ireland.

Lewis met with United Artists overseas representatives to map out comprehensive campaigns for the company's slate of upcoming blockbuster releases. He also reviewed the coordination and development of campaigns for the purpose of achieving a closer liaison between the New York home office and European promotion and production centers.

In his meetings with UA promotion executives, Lewis placed greater emphasis on overseas promotional activities for United Artists Records and Music company. The conferences outlined long-range campaigns promoting the company's overseas music operations.

theatres are located. We did everything. We learned only one thing, and that is that the public grows ever more selective, that we have to fight harder and harder for our share of the amusement dollar, and that everybody has to work and try to exploit each picture on its merits. This isn't anything new. It means just more of the same sort of stuff of which showmanship is made."

Cecil B. DeMille recently received a film-making achievement award from the American Society of Dramatic Arts at the invitational premiere of Paramount's "The Buccaneer" at New York's Capitol. Frances Fuller, president of the Academy, presents the award, as Claire Bloom, star of the film, looks on.

Dallas Production Firm Plans '59 Upsurge

DALLAS—A motion picture production schedule under which four feature length films will be shot in the local studios of United National Film Corporation during the first quarter of 1959 was announced by Robert L. Madden, United National's board chairman and president.

Shooting will begin in January on two of the films by the newly organized Hollywood Pictures Corporation. Gordon McLendon, who operates a chain of radio stations and motion picture theatres, is president of the new group.

"Our corporation will finance the two pictures 100 per cent," McLendon announced. "There will be no sale of stock and we are paying to bring into Dallas the best Hollywood talent available."

Ken Curtis, son-in-law of veteran Hollywood director John Ford, will be co-producer with McLendon for both features. Curtis is a newcomer to production, but is a veteran actor, his latest feature role being in "The Horse Soldiers" with John Wayne and William Holden.

Ray Kellogg, for the last 20 years a director and special events chief with 20th Century-Fox, will direct the picture. Production manager will be Ben Chapman, who is just completing work on Samuel Goldwyn's "Porgy and Bess." Chief cameraman will be Will Kline, who has just completed work on Jerry Wald's "Mardi Gras."

The first of the two McLendon features, "The Attack of the Killer Shrews," is budgeted at $300,000. The second feature will be "The Gila Monster."

Madden said, "It is a solid start toward establishment of a full scale movie industry operating all year around in Dallas." Madden also announced that "Bronco Fury," full color featurette recently completed by United National Film Corporation under a contract with Bob Hornberger Productions, Ltd., will be released early in 1959. Hornberger Productions is a partnership of Dallas investors headed by Robert E. Hornberger.

The second pair of feature pictures to be made at United National's studios will be produced by Pacific International Pictures, of which John Miller is president. This organization has attracted recent industry attention by pioneering use of the techniques of subliminal communication for entertainment purposes.

"Jimmy" Fund Nets $515,251

BOSTON—William S. Koster, executive director, Children's Cancer Research Foundation, Inc., co-sponsored by the "Jimmy" Fund of Variety Club of New England and the Boston Red Sox, announced recently that $515,251 had been raised for this charity in 1958.

Michael Redstone, chief barker, variety Club; chairmen James Mahoney, Ted Williams, and Joe Cronin; Doctor Farber and the trustees all join with Koster in expressing thanks to all who made this possible.

A total of 2,379 children have been cared for since the start of the Jimmy Fund. At the present time, 348 youngsters are undergoing treatment at the Jimmy Fund Building.

Butterfield Names Wardwell

LANSING, MICH.—Warren O. Wardwell has been named city manager of the Butterfield Theatres in Lansing and East Lansing succeeding Bern Sicotte, who resigned to enter a business outside of the industry.

U. S. Films Popular Behind Iron Curtain

NEW YORK—Over in Hungary and Rumania the crowds practically batter down theatre doors to get in to see American motion pictures.

This is the gist of U. S. Government reports on reactions to films in the two Iron Curtain countries. Product from America has only recently been imported again into the two satellite nations.

The report on Hungary says:

"So far only a small number of American films have been shown in Hungary, and these have included 'Trapeze,' 'Roman Holiday,' 'Knock On Wood,' and 'Telephone Call From A Stranger.' It is certainly clear that American motion pictures are highly popular in Hungary, primarily, we believe, because they show a segment of life in America and something of how Americans live.

"There was a recent cartoon in the weekly humor magazine Ludas Matyi, which showed a wife with two children tearfully waving goodbye to her husband who was departing by train. To a sympathetic stranger's question as to whether her husband was going far, the wife answered: 'Of course. He's going off to see 'Knock On Wood.' This illustrates something of the tremendous difficulty there has been in getting tickets to see this motion picture.

"All of the American films have played to overflow audiences and it is certainly fair to say that it is obvious that the Hungarians crowd in to view some replica of American life on the screens."

As for Rumania, where "Marty" and "Trapeze" have been shown, the government report says that both "attracted sellout and enthusiastic crowds in Bucharest." It then went on:

"People were standing in line from 3 in the morning until the box office opened at 8 a.m. in order to obtain tickets to see 'Trapeze.' The theatre was constantly filled and pavement was crowded with people trying to get in."

The U. S. Government, based on such reports as these from many countries over the years, has always regarded the Hollywood motion picture as one of the country's most important ambassadors of good will and understanding to the peoples of the world.

Goldman To Be Honored

PHILADELPHIA—William Goldman, president of the Pennsylvania Association of Amusement Industries, is to be honored at a luncheon to be held in the ballroom of the Sheraton Hotel on Jan. 29.

David E. Milgram is chairman of the event which will mark the accomplishments of the Association during Goldman's tenure as president during the past three years, which have helped all phases of the amusement industries in the state. A big turn out of those connected with the entertainment and sports fields is anticipated.

Fox Promotes Conn

NEW YORK—Adhering to a policy of promoting from the ranks, general sales manager Alex Harrison announced the elevation of Robert L. Conn to the managerial post at the 20th Century-Fox branch in Chicago.

Conn started with the company as an assistant shipper at the Kansas City office on April 29, 1936. He succeeds Tom R. Gilliam as Chicago manager, the latter retiring after holding that post for more than 16 years.

LONDON Observations

by Jock MacGregor

THROUGH BEING HONORED as the first trade paperman ever to serve along with the presidents of the trade associations on Lord Radcliffe's committee for the Royal Film Performance, I missed much of the Christmas junketing. Regrettable as it was being unable to attend Harry Norris' and Jimmy Pattinson's ever enjoyable get-togethers, I would not for the world have foregone the pleasure of the viewing chore.

It was no sinecure. We spent many hours viewing the submitted features and shorts and nearly three hours in debate before reaching our final decision. In view of the amount of criticism that usually attends the selection of the royal film, I wish I could go into detail as to what happened, but this is a privileged occasion. I can say that every picture is most carefully considered and discussed by every member of the committee. No punches are pulled.

Each member is most deeply conscious of the importance of the occasion and their great personal responsibility in choosing the most suitable program. Some years ago when the selection was severely criticised, I suggested that it would be an idea to have two critics on the committee to alleviate the unjust charges that business considerations came into the selection. The suggestion was adopted.

Now I put forward a further one. Currently, only the selected films are named. I think the three or four final choices should also be named together with committee's reasons for its findings. I believe this would clear the air even further. Certain subjects have not been submitted because of their length—features have to be under two hours and shorts under 22 minutes.

So far the selection committee has been patted on the back. We chose the feature most hotly tipped by those who did not know what we were to see, or for that matter, did see! We chose "Horse's Mouth," and "Ten Men in a Boat," a British documentary, and the French "Lovers of the Seine" as the shorts.

FILM VIEWING in the general line of duty has also been enjoyable of late. Publicist Euan Lloyd has made a really delightful feature called "Invitation to Monte Carlo," which is just the tonic for these dull, misty days. It is the story of an orphan's trip to Monaco and has many delightful shots of Princess Grace with her daughter and husband. Warm, ingratiating, and colorful, it is a joy to the eye and ear and provides for a really relaxing and entertaining hour. . . . Do not underestimate Rank's "Bachelor of Hearts." This gay and endearing frolic about Cambridge University is graced by Hardie Kruger, who has already proved himself at the box office, and some young actresses who are so decorative that one is surprised to find them in a British picture. Another Rank turn up is "La Parisienne" which is probably the most delightful Brigitte Bardot yet. Completely inconsequential, it is great fun in the best French manner. . . . Two big Variety Lunches have been held. Currently there are two mobile cinemas which tour children's homes, hospitals, etc., and this year it has been on the advice of the projectionists that the gifts collected at the Christmas lunch have been distributed. Through their scouting, 12 establishments were found where the kids have never had a present. This year there were two gifts each, a cake and a tree. The second lunch was for the press, and a record number of national newspaper and magazine editors attended in person. . . . Sir Michael Balcon hosted a Dorchester reception for the press to meet Aldo Ray, who has been making the "The Siege" on location in Australia. Interiors are to be shot at Associated British, Borehamwood. Release will be through AB Pathe.

The suspense is really killing!

"HOUSE ON HAUNTED HILL"

Bigger than "MACABRE" — from ALLIED ARTISTS!

ATLANTA

Marie Pinkston, former Capital Releasing booker, joined Universal in the same capacity. . . . Grant L. Howard closed the Sunset Drive-In, Knoxville, Tenn., for the winter. . . . Georgia Theatres closed the Ritz, Gainesville, Ga., one of the oldest theatres in the state. The circuit opened its new East Point, Ga., theatre which replaces the house destroyed by fire.

BOSTON

Lloyd Clark and Winthrop Knox, Jr., have taken over the operation of the Fenway on a managerial basis. The lease on this 1365-seater was relinquished by New England Theatres, Inc., as of today (Jan. 7). In mid-January, the new group will assume the reins and although the policy is not established, it is expected to be on a sub-run basis with an occasional first-run feature. Under the NET banner, the Fenway had been a first run house on a day and date policy with the Paramount. Clark and Knox also operate the Medford Twin Drive-In. . . . Richard Boone, manager, Sky High Drive-In, Boscawen, N.H., won first prize in the managerial contest conducted by Lockwood and Gordon Enterprises, it was announced by Douglass Amos, general manager. Second and third prizes went to Robert Duffy, Norwalk, Conn., Drive-In, and Wilfred Howard, Danbury, Conn., Drive-In. . . . The Suffolk Theatre Building, Holyoke, Mass., owned by the Majestic Realty Company of Boston, Herman Rifkin, president, has been sold to a New York firm. Rifkin Theatres formerly operated the Suffolk, which is now under the management of the Bing Circuit, Sam Goldstein, president.

John A. Glazier and Thomas F. Fermoye joined forces with Arthur Howard to operate Affiliated Theatres Corporation, an independent film buying and booking organization. Arthur Howard remains as president; Tom Fermoye is vice-president and Johnny Glazier is treasurer, with headquarters remaining at 1103 Park Square Building. Seth H. Field, former vice-president of Affiliated has resigned as officer and director to devote his full time to the management of the University, Cambridge. . . . George Markell has given up the lease on the Hudson, Hudson, Mass., after many years of management, and the owners are now operating it. Affiliated Theatres is handling the buying and booking.

BUFFALO

Variety chief barker Francis Maxwell announced that the annual installation dinner will be held in the Statler-Hilton Hotel on Jan. 11. Myron Gross is arranging the program. . . . Basil Enterprises, Inc., marked its 35th anniversary with ceremonies in the Strand. The first house in the circuit, the Strand was opened in December, 1923. . . . William Brereton, for many years director of advertising and publicity at Basil's Lafayette, has retired. . . . Variety Club's annual fund drive for the Rehabilitation Center and the Crippled Children's Guild netted upwards of $46,000. Campaign chairman Marvin Jacobs said contributions placed the drive "well within reach of our $50,000 goal." . . . Harold Bennett, National Screen Service branch manager, will retire Jan. 15, when the NSS front office will be closed at 505 Pearl Street.

CHICAGO

Mrs. Jack Kirsch, wife of the Allied Theatres of Illinois president, will be installed as president of the Variety Womens Auxiliary at a luncheon on Jan. 13 in the Ambassador East Hotel. . . . The suit of the Villa against Azteca Films was dismissed by Judge Walter LaBuy in Federal Court. He entered a judgment of $6,066 against Abraham Gomez, Villa owner. . . . Mike Todd, Jr., held open house ceremonies in the Harris to mark the changing of its name to the Michael Todd, in honor of his late father. . . . Balaban and Katz paid a 75-cent last quarter dividend, bringing total dividends for 1958 to $2.50 per share. . . . Howard Lambert took over management of the Adelphi. . . . Variety chief barker Bill Margolis named Irving Mack to head a large local delegation to the Las Vegas convention in the spring. Mack also is chairman of arrangements. . . . A testimonial dinner was accorded retiring 20th-Fox branch manager Tom Gilliam, a veteran of 45 years in the industry. Jack Kirsch was general chairman and toastmaster. Gilliam is moving with his family to California.

CINCINNATI

The Sunset, in suburban Price Hill, has been sold by H. A. Ackerman to Mother Seton Council, Knights of Columbus, for its new home. . . . Inger Stevens was here to promote Paramount's "Buccaneer" for Christmas screening in the Grand. . . . The Capitol announced seven extra screenings of Cinema's "South Seas Adventure" for the holidays. . . . Started for the first time, all Chakeres houses were screening "Kiddies New Year's Eve Matinees." Chakeres officials feel that children often are deprived of participation in New Years Eve celebrations, and that having their own program would be a welcome activity.

COLUMBUS, O. NEWS—Samuel T. Wilson, theatre editor, Columbus Dispatch, was recuperating at home following an operation at University Hospital. . . . Ed McGlone, RKO city manager for the past three years, was named "Mainstemmer-of-the-Week" by the Columbus Star. . . . Charles Dillon, veteran Loew's Ohio stagehand who celebrated his 75th birthday last month, was seriously ill. . . . C. G. Littler has been named manager of RKO Grand, succeeding Don Hooten, resigned. Littler, native of Athens, Ohio, has managed theatres for the Academy circuit, J. Real Neth, Schine, and Mid-States. He was the last manager of the Majestic, downtown house, before it was razed in 1949.

CLEVELAND

Retiring chief barker Danny Rosenthal announced Feb. 21 as the date of the installation dinner for new officers, including James Levitt, chief barker; Irwin Shenker, first assistant; Ted Levy, second assistant; Irving Marcus, property master; and Lewis Horwitz, dough guy. . . . Jules Livingston has succeeded Sam Weiss as Columbia branch manager. . . . John Matthey, operator of the Amherst, Amherst, Ohio, is building a new 400-seat theatre there, the first to go up in the Greater Cleveland area since 1952. Reason for the venture is that Matthey's lease on his present theatre expires next year and it is understood that the owners plan to convert the property to other uses. . . . The benefit premiere of "South Seas Adventure" in the Palace netted about $4,500 for the YMCA World Service Program. . . . Ronald Sturgess, Mount Vernon, Ohio, exhibitor, has circulated petitions as a candidate for Mayor of that city on the Democratic ticket in the May primaries.

DALLAS

The Ministerial Alliance in a nearby East Texas city brought up the subject of showing a film biography of Dr. Albert Schweitzer the other day but ran into unexpected objection. Two members said Dr. Schweitzer wasn't a Christian, but another was more curt. "Never heard of him," he said. . . . The Maple has been closed and will present a series of stage productions in mid-January. Edmund G. Peterson, owner, will serve as executive producer. . . . The Texas Film Carriers Association has asked Texas COMPO to initiate negotiations with the exhibitors for an increase in film transportation rates. Kyle Rorex, executive director of Texas COMPO, reported the proposed new rate schedule is being studied by the COMPO transportation committee. . . . Raymond Willie, assistant general manager of the Interstate Theatre Circuit, was featured as "Man of the Week" on KLIF recently. . . . The Hoblitzelle Foundation, headed by Karl Hoblitzelle, president of the Interstate Theatre Circuit, has given a $20,000 grant to Dallas' proposed educational television station, KERA-TV. . . . Theatre owners attending the Texas Drive-In Theatre Owners Association convention, Feb. 16-18, will select an "Exchange Manager of the Year," according to Tim Ferguson, general convention chairman. At the time of registration, each member will cast a vote. The contest has become a convention tradition, each year honoring a different group of industry workers.

DES MOINES

Kenneth Claypool, Warners salesman, has been transferred to Omaha and is serving as office manager there. . . . Mort Ives has joined the Columbia exchange as a salesman. He formerly was with United Artists at Omaha. . . . Retiring chief barker Lloyd Hirstine presided at the Variety Club meeting which elected new officers. To be installed at a Jan. 17 event in the Standard Club are W. R. Praught, chief barker; Larry Day, first assistant; Ralph Olson, second assistant; Lou Levy, dough guy; and Dave Gold, property master.

DETROIT

Last August, Film Truck Service filed with the Michigan Public Service Commission to increase rates, initiating a progressive rise in minimum from $1.68 to $3.56. This would have ultimately constituted an increase amounting to 20 per cent. President Milton H. London of Michigan Allied has informed members that Allied protested and the Commission suspended the increase until Nov. 17, when hearings were held in Lansing and attended by London and public utility attorney Harold Goodman, representing Allied. Subsequent to the hearings Mrs. Gladys Pike, president of Film Truck, agreed to withdraw the requested increase substituting a flat minimum of $1 per shipment. London states the new minimum will be virtually meaningless to most theatre operators, but suggests if it does become anything of a factor that trailers and advertising material be delivered only with regular film shipment. HOUSTON

Bob Lewis has been elected chief barker of Variety Club. Other officers named were J. C. Kirby, first assistant; Harry Martin, second assistant; Richard McGarr, dough guy; and Jack Bryant, property master. . . . George Lee Marks, manager of the Avalon, has become personal manager of Sherry Riley, a model. Marks utilized Miss Riley in conjunction with the showing of "Girl in the Bikini," starring Brigitte Bardot. . . . A jury of five men and one woman deliberated less than five minutes before finding Jesse Allen Dodson, manager of the Galena, Galena Park, Tex., innocent of charges that he displayed a lewd film there last Aug. 16. Dodson was charged with the misdemeanor offense after a posse of Galena Park police and Justice of the Peace Dave Thompson raided the Galena and confiscated the film, "Street Corner."

MEMPHIS

Variety Club officers for 1959 are Edward P. Doherty, chief barker; George W. Simpson, first assistant; Fordyce J. Kaiser, second assistant; Joe Kiefer, dough guy; and Howard Nicholson, property master. . . . Colonel W. F. Walton, Fla., previously operated by Tom Barrow. Ralph Reid will handle buying and booking. . . . Joel Bluestone, who recently acquired the Gretna Green Drive-In, Gretna, La., has closed it for repairs and improvements. . . . The Harlem, Leland, Miss., is closed indefinitely. . . . Mat Guidry of the Pat, Lafayette, La., was elected president of Exhibitors Cooperative Service. . . . Twentieth-Fox salesman Tom Neely, Jr., resigned to enter another industry.

PHILADELPHIA

The holiday season was marred by a small fire at the SW Stanton and smoke damage to the Comerford, Scranton, Pa., which was near a big fire. . . . A cool cashier who told him "Go away, I don't have any money," thwarted a bandit at SW Grand, Wilmington, Del. . . . Myrna, daughter of Nelson Wax, Globe, was married on Dec. 21st. to Marvin Katz at Har-Zion Temple. . . . Anti-trust actions of County Theatre, Doylestown, Pa., vs Paramount, et al; and Atlantic Theatres, Inc., vs Columbia Pictures, et al, moved on a-pace in Federal Court.

ST. LOUIS

In the anti-trust suit of Esquire Theatre Company, Richmond Heights, Mo., versus Loew's, Inc., et al, pending the United States District Court here, the plaintiffs have filed notice of their plans for taking the deposition of witness, Spyros P. Skouras, president of defendant, 20th Century-Fox Film Corporation in New York City on Jan. 9. . . . Early response to the Golden Age Movie Club to be operated for the Fox by Arthur Enterprises, Inc., is very favorable. The plan is open to persons 60 years and older, giving them the privilege of special admission prices to shows at the theatre. . . . Officers and directors of Missouri-Illinois Theatre Owners discussed plans for the joint meeting with the United Theatre Owners of The Heart of America in Kansas City, tentatively scheduled for March 24, 25, and 26 in the Muehlebach Hotel. Arrangements will be made for special cars to carry the St. Louis delegation to the joint meeting.

Robert Hyland was elected chief barker of Variety Club at a meeting of the 1959 crew. He succeeds Dion Peluso, manager of the Fox, who had served as head of the Club for the past two years. Other officers are John Meinardi, first assistant; William C. Gehring, second assistant; Michael J. Riordan, property master; and Joseph C. Ansell, dough guy. . . . The final official tally did not change the margin of five votes by which Frank X. Reller, Democrat, and owner of the American Theatre, Wentzville, Mo., defeated C. W. Toedtmann, Republican, Hermann, Mo., for State Senator from the 20th District on Nov. 4. The final official tabulation is 20,793 for Reller and 20,788 for Toedtmann. . . . Commonwealth Theatres, Inc., rejected all bids received on its proposed shopping center in Columbia, Mo. The plans will be revised before new bids are sought. Low bid on the general contract was $422,900.

SALT LAKE CITY

The Southeast, Gem, and the Murray, closed for redecoration, were reopened over the holidays. . . . Ted Politz is the new assistant to Centre manager Paul Hendry. . . . Fox Intermountain entertained some 700 handicapped children at a party in the Capitol, hosted by house manager Lou Sorenson. . . . Arnold Startin has replaced the late Frank Smith as Paramount branch manager.

SAN ANTONIO

After being closed for about a year, the Empire has reopened under lease to the Big D Film Center. The Empire was formerly operated by the Interstate Theatre Circuit and then taken over by the Trans-Texas Theatre Circuit and operated as a Spanish language film theatre. . . . Oscar Navarez, formerly with the Aztec exchange here, is now south Texas representative for DCA. . . . L. D. Sipe and George Stephenson, have purchased the Rancho, King's and Brahma Drive-Ins, Kingsville, Tex., from Chester W. Kyle. . . . Several bills affecting drive-in theatres will come before the state legislature at its next session, according to Rubin Frels, head of Frels Theatres at Victoria, Tex., and chairman of the membership committee of the Texas Drive-In Theatre Owners Association. It is vital to the industry that drive-in owners present a united front in regard to the proposed laws, Frels says. . . . Two indictments charging D. A. Brandon with theatre bombings have been quashed, ending four years of efforts to bring the union leader to trial in Corpus Christi, Tex. The action by Judge Cullen Briggs brought to an end two days of hearings in 117th district court and completely removed Brandon and his codefendant, Leon Wilson Malone, from further prosecution in the two cases. Judge Briggs said that the main factor he considered in reaching his decision was that the location of the Avalon and Bellaire, named in the indictments, were not specifically identified. Both theatres were totally or partially destroyed October 9, 1954, during a dispute between union men and theatre managers. Brandon is business agent for the local projectionists union. Carl R. Cude, indicted with Brandon and Malone in the two cases, pleaded guilty to both counts more than two years ago, has served his sentence, and was released about nine months ago.

Wayne Mahoney has been named manager of the Twin Pines Drive-In at Longview, Tex., which was recently purchased by Cliff Turner and B. L. Hagle. . . . The Twin City Drive In, Perrin, Tex., originated the Red River Valley Sports Car Rally, an event that is attracting more and more interest. . . . Charles W. Weisenberg, owner of the circuit bearing his name, announced plans for a 32-lane bowling alley on property adjoining his Seymour Road Drive-In, Wichita Falls, Tex. . . . D. J. McCarthy has closed a deal with Noble Holt to take over the Aztec, Citrus, and Juarez in Edinburg, Tex. McCarthy, with a circuit of eight theatres, headquarters at San Marcos, Tex. . . . Herb Boehm sold his interest in the El Rancho Drive-In and the Mission and La Rita, Dalhart, Tex., to Don Gilbert. R. C. Enlow retains his share in the theatres. . . . The Frels and Long circuits have exchanged theatres, the former taking over Floyds, El Campo, Tex., and the latter getting the State, Bay Town, Tex. . . . Jerry Ebeier purchased the Karnes, Karnes City, Tex., from Dave Samson.

WASHINGTON

Raymond Branch, veteran of nearly 25 years with Stanley Warner, is the new manager of the Metropolitan. His previous assignments included the Tivoli, Seco, Colony, Kennedy, and the Calvert. . . . The Star, South Hill, Va., closed for repairs.

UA SWEEPS THE "BESTS"

WHILE MOST INDUSTRYITES freely admit that Messrs. Krim Benjamin, Youngstein, Heineman, et al., have done a tremendous job of "lifting by their own bootstraps," and of "merchandising to the limit," since taking over the management of United Artists in 1951, the accomplishments of U. A. pictures and of U. A. production personnel in the current poll of N. Y. film critics brings into scale the entertainment quality that has also been achieved through their judgment and financing.

The 1958 N. Y. Film Critics Awards named: "THE DEFIANT ONES" the best picture of the year; David Niven the best actor for his part in "SEPARATE TABLES"; Susan Hayward the best actress for her part in "I WANT TO LIVE"; Stanley Kramer the best director for "THE DEFIANT ONES"; and Nathan E. Douglas and Harold Jacob Smith writers of the best scenario for "THE DEFIANT ONES." So, while one U.A. picture was the winner, two other pictures from the same company shared the spotlight for the acting achievements. Memory doesn't seem to produce an equal. We are pretty sure it is some kind of a "first."

In any event, industry applause must go to the young management group. They have proved they can be artists, as well as financiers and merchants.

ANNOUNCING . . . 50 ISSUES IN 1959

EARLY IN January, 1958, we said: "During our (40) years of industry publishing experience, we have always found the week immediately preceding Labor Day, and the week between Christmas and New Year's, to have many industry distractions. In most situations, theatremen are literally up to their armpits in theatre work, serving holiday crowds with the biggest and most important pictures of the season on their screens, and trying to cope with the usual family holiday distractions at home, so they had little or no trade paper reading time. In many other situations, producers, distributors, and theatre circuit executives choose these same weeks for short holidays, and aren't home when their trade paper arrives."

We then announced that in 1958 MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR would "pioneer" by dropping the two "distraction" weekly issues, and by restricting our 1958 total to only 50 issues.

At this start of 1959, we are happy to state that our 1958 policy was successful and in no way lessened either reader interest or reader service. That it was successful is no doubt proven by the quick decision of a contemporary weekly trade paper to emulate our example during the recent holiday season.

From the experience gained in 1958, and from the vantage point of leadership, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR now announces that there will be no issue published on Wednesday, Sept. 2, 1959, or on Wednesday, Dec. 30, 1959. As in 1958, the issue of Sept. 9, 1959, will be a combined and enlarged NEW SEASON ISSUE; and the issue of Jan. 6, 1960, will be a combined and enlarged NEW YEAR ISSUE.

This will enable us to give increased vacation periods to our hard working staff, and, while reducing our annual issues to 50, will materially increase our already great reader-interest-per-issue.

MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR will continue to be "the bright new trade paper leader" throughout 1959!

MORE COLOR IN OUR FUTURE

LOYAL AND CONSTANT to the worthiness of their Orderly Distribution ideal, Leonard Goldenson and Ed Hyman, of ABC-Paramount Theatres, have just released a compilation of the confirmed releases from 10 distributors from the start of December, 1958, through April, 1959. Without available contrasts for the similar five month period of the preceding year, there seem to be several interesting facts.

Here are the actual breakdowns:

COMPANY	NEW	REISSUE	TOTAL	COLOR	WIDE SCREEN
ALLIED ARTISTS	11	2	13	2	1
BUENA VISTA	3	0	3	3	1
COLUMBIA	17	0	17	9	2

MGM	10	0	10	8	3
PARAMOUNT	8	0	8	4	1
RANK (Eng.)	6	0	6	2	1
20th-FOX	13	0	13	8	13
U.A.	13	0	13	2	1
U-I	11	2	13	8	9
WARNERS	4	2	6	5	3
Totals	96	6	102	51	35

It is particularly encouraging to note the increased use of color. This is another department where movies have it all over TV, and we should make the most of it.

And let's remember to advertise it!

A NEW GOAL FOR SARGOY AND STEIN

APROPOS OUR REMARKS on the under-reporting of grosses ("WHY EXHIBITORS STEAL"—Jan. 7 issue) a theatre circuit executive has directed to our attention an AP wire story as carried in The New York Times (Jan. 3), relating to a total refund of $9,908,000 that General Motors has paid to Uncle Samuel for claimed "accounting errors and cost misstatements by the company . . ." on a controversial jet plane contract.

So "errors and misstatements" aren't indigenous to film transactions alone, and "Big Motors" has certainly dwarfed into insignificance any theatre deals we have ever heard of. But here is a new goal for Sargoy and Stein!

20th is with it in 1959! Get with 20th!

From BURNSIDE, CONN.

Attached is an interesting tearsheet from The Hartford Times, showing that CBS had an operating loss of $350,000 before closing WHCT-TV (Channel 18). These losses are exclusive of their Sept. 1956 purchase price of $650,000. The irony of it is that a year or so ago their advertising blasts on "Million Dollar Movies" helped put us into our slump. So the sale of our old movies didn't do us any good, but didn't do this network affiliate any good either.

WHCT-TV is now off the air. But WNHC-TV (ABC) is now exploiting "World's Best Movies" as you can see from the attached. Need any more evidence why our grosses aren't what they should be?

BARNEY TARANTUL
Burnside Theatre, Inc.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The best thing to be said for the public's acceptance of most old movies that are now on TV is: "The price is right!"

From UNION CITY, IND.

Can't something be done about unfavorable press stories like the enclosed from the Indianapolis News? This one is so far from being true that it is ridiculous to us in the business; but the general public will read it and believe it!

No other business has such an unfavorable press as ours. Wouldn't it have been just as easy for this UPI writer to have said that "Ben Hur" will be a wonderful picture, instead of suggesting that it might be "a dud." It would be just as logical to say that if the new model cars don't sell, all the manufacturers and agencies will go broke. If each company would have a good press agent, and would do away with all of the elaborate direct mail stuff they send to exhibitors, how much better off we all might be.

Tell the public all those interesting things about location, the human interest happenings during filming, etc., and send them to the home town papers. There is nothing that impresses the public like news stories.

(Mrs.) K. H. SINK
Sink Theatres (3)

EDITOR'S NOTE: The clipping enclosed was a by-lined UPI story credited to a Vernon Scott and headed: "MOVIE PRODUCTION HITS ALLTIME LOW." Mrs. Sink's letter and the clipping were forwarded to COMPO, currently conducting an ad series in Editor and Publisher in order to better our "press." What about it, COMPO?

From HELLERTOWN, PA.

I think MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR was a much newsier magazine before it combined with Showmen's Trade Review. But, so you will know that my subscription check is good, I'm sending the cash.

NORMAN KAPLAN, Owner-Manager

EDITOR'S NOTE: Now there is a true "Goldwynism!" Like every other trade paper we would like to be newsier, but with business the way it is we're lucky that we haven't had to retrench further.

From KARACHI, PAKISTAN

I sincerely appreciate the wonderful Citation that the editors of EXPLOITATION awarded me for my promotional campaign on UA's "PARIS HOLIDAY" when it played our Palace Theatre.

I am genuinely excited over my nomination, which I feel is no less rewarding than the cash prizes that will eventually be awarded to the five winners of your international judging next January.

I am certainly proud of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR and of myself for being sort of connected with it. Must be, because I was a Charter Subscriber way back when. Every bit of praise is certainly deserved. Let me wish this fine trade paper 40 more years of success.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Thanks, Bill! And we are just as proud of our old time friends!

Tent 13 Installs Beresin

PHILADELPHIA—Variety Club Tent 13 completed arrangements for the annual installation of new officers and dinner in honor of outgoing chief barker Sam Diamond and in-coming chief barker Leo B. Beresin to be held at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel on January 19. A prominent guest speaker and visiting film stars are to attend.

BROADWAY GROSSES

Broadway Houses Back To Normal

NEW YORK—Post holiday business in the Broadway first runs finally got back to average over the weekend with Radio City Music Hall, however, continuing at a merry pace. A lack of new product was evidently a factor. According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"THE INN OF THE SIXTH HAPPINESS" (20th-Fox). Paramount ($33,403)*—The fifth week was reported as $30,000.

"AUNTIE MAME" (Warners). Radio City Music Hall ($142,115)—Thursday through Sunday accounted for $98,000, with the sixth week sure of $150,000. Stage show.

"THE 7TH VOYAGE OF SINBAD" (Columbia). Roxy, with stage show, claimed $45,000 for Wednesday through Sunday, with the fourth week expected to tally $52,000.

"THE BUCCANEER" (Paramount). Capitol ($41,926)—The third session was claimed as $32,000.

"THE GEISHA BOY" (Paramount). Mayfair anticipated the fourth week at $25,000.

"I WANT TO LIVE" (UA). Victoria ($19,292)—The eighth and last week was said to be $14,000.

"SEPARATE TABLES" (UA). Astor ($19,115)—The fourth week was reported as $28,000.

"BELL, BOOK AND CANDLE" (Columbia). Odeon expected the third session to hit $16,000.

"A NIGHT TO REMEMBER" (Rank). Criterion announced the fourth week as $22,000.

"RALLY 'ROUND THE FLAG BOYS" (20th-Fox). RKO Palace anticipated the third week at $18,000.

NT Acquisition Of NTA Approved By Holders

LOS ANGELES—Shareholders of National Theatres, Inc., at a special meeting last week at the company's headquarters voted overwhelmingly in favor of a proposal that National Theatres make an offer to acquire a controlling interest in National Telefilm Associates.

The vote of the shareholders authorizes National Theatres to make an offer to the stockholders of National Telefilm Associates to acquire their common stock on the basis of exchanging $11 principal amount of National Theatres' 5½ per cent sinking fund subordinated debentures due March 1, 1974, plus a warrant for the purchase of one-quarter share of National's common stock for each share of National Telefilm stock exchanged. Included in the proposal is National Theatres' offer to exchange warrants expiring in 1962 for outstanding warrants of National Telefilm also expiring in that year.

National Theatres' president John B. Bertero pointed out that "since National Telefilm owns and operates two television stations and a radio station, the approval of the Federal Communications Commission must be obtained prior to the acquisition of control of National Telefilm by National Theatres. An application seeking the Commission's approval of the transfer of control is now on file. We view the vote as a firm endorsement of the management's proposal," said Bertero.

At a meeting of the board of directors of National Theatres a quarterly dividend of 12½ cents per share on the outstanding common stock of the corporation was declared. The dividend is payable February 5 to stockholders or record at the close of business on January 22.

Tomlinson Quits Loew's Board

NEW YORK—Joseph Tomlinson, leading dissenter, last week resigned from Loew's Inc. board of directors; and the way was thus paved for "peace and harmony" in the company. He was succeeded by Nathan Cummings.

The Board was reduced from 19 to 15 members; and cumulative voting for directors was dropped. Stockholders must now approve the latter action at a meeting set for Feb. 26. Removed were two other dissidents in the Tomlinson camp—Louis A. Green and Jerome A. Newman.

Francis W. Hatch and Charles Braunstein voluntarily withdrew from re-election to bring the management's slate down to 15 members.

List Acquires Leather Firm

NEW YORK—Albert A. List, president and chairman of the board of List Industries Corporation, announced that Gera Corporation, a subsidiary of List, has acquired all of the outstanding common stock of E. Hubschman and Sons, Inc., of Philadelphia, primarily for cash with a portion of the aggregate price payable out of future earnings.

The Hubschman Company holds a preeminent position in the field of manufacture of fine calf leather used in the production of the highest quality shoes and ladies handbags.

Drive-In Convention Set

PITTSBURGH—Preparations for Allied's sixth national drive-in theatre convention on Jan. 26-27, at the Penn-Sheraton Hotel, were rapidly nearing completion last week. Approximately 70 exhibits have been contracted for, and a record number of registrations have been received.

Foremost on the agenda are a business building workshop, film clinics, equipment forums, sales of films to TV and panel discussions of interest to every owner.

FILM FAMILY ALBUM

Obituaries

Norbert Stern, 66, president, Drive-In Theatre Association and the Associated Theatres, a drive-in theatre circuit, died Dec. 31 in Montefiore Hospital, Pittsburgh, Pa. He built the first drive-in in the Pittsburgh district.

Herman Wile, 94, pioneer Buffalo, N. Y., exhibitor, who opened the first movie there in 1894, and who in recent years was a clothing manufacturer, died.

Samuel C. Mack, 62, brother of Irving Mack, president, Filmack Trailer Company, Chicago, died in Weiss Memorial Hospital. He is survived by his widow and a daughter, two grandchildren, two brothers and three sisters.

Matthew M. Konczakowski, 69, veteran Buffalo exhibitor, died at the Millard Fillmore Hospital, Buffalo, of a heart attack. He was owner of the Circle, Marlowe and Senate. At one time he owned a chain of six or seven theatres, including the Regent. He was a member of Tent Seven, Variety Club. Surviving are his wife, three sons and eight grandchildren.

World Showmen Mark Variety Week

10,000 Barkers Active As "Heart" Of Industry Highlights Humane Work, Seeks Public Awareness

NEW YORK—Variety Clubs International, the "heart" of show business, is currently celebrating Variety Week (Jan. 12-18) in 46 tents in the United States, and in Toronto, Mexico City, London, and Dublin. More than 10,000 showmen from all branches of the entertainment industry, who have dedicated themselves to helping the ailing and underprivileged children of the world, are participating in the salute to Variety's many-faceted efforts.

Founded in Pittsburgh in 1927, Variety Clubs have since its inception raised more than $75 millions, and in 1957 spent $2,894,216 on charities. For 1958, $2,519,000 was pledged by the various tents. George Eby is international chief barker.

In addition to the main charitable projects of each Tent, all VCI Tents carry on other humanitarian activities designed to brighten the lives of the less fortunate. These include the showing of movies to shut-ins in hospitals and other institutions; providing radios, television sets, athletic equipment, and other facilities to Boys' Clubs, Camps, and hospitals; providing free tickets to boxing and wrestling matches, circuses, theatres, and other attractions; providing taxi service for the blind; etc.

VCI also bestows an annual Humanitarian Award to the person who has rendered conspicuous service each year toward mankind's betterment. The recipient is not chosen by the Variety Clubs but by a committee consisting of editors, publishers and college presidents.

This week-long observance will highlight the humane work of show business people. An effort will be made to gain the greatest possible public awareness and achieve the understanding and good will of editors, radio and TV stations, and civic leaders.

Clearances have been obtained by Ralph Staub, producer of the short subject distributed by Columbia, "The Heart Of Variety," from all personalities who appear in the subject, so that selected clips from the film may be shown on television during Variety Week.

Highlights of the week will be ceremonies by many Tents for the induction of new Barkers, who are public figures, and the installation of new officers.

The 32nd anniversary convention of Variety Clubs International will be held in Las Vegas, with Tent 39 the host, on March 31, April 1-2-3.

Disney Profit Up

BURBANK, CAL.—Consolidated net profit of Walt Disney Productions and domestic subsidiaries for the fiscal year ended Sept. 27, 1958, was $3,865,473, equal to $2.51 per share on the 1,537,054 common shares outstanding, president Roy O. Disney told shareholders last week. This compares with the previous year's net income of $3,649,359.

Melamed Joins NTA

NEW YORK—David J. Melamed has been named vice-president in charge of business affairs of National Telefilm Associates, Inc., according to an announcement by Ely A. Landau, chairman of the board of NTA.

This scene in Atlanta calling attention to Old Newsboys Day is typical of the many fund raising activities of Variety Club Tents all over the world as they lend a helping hand to handicapped and needy youngsters.

Samuel Quits As BV President, Sales Head

NEW YORK—Leo F. Samuels, president and director of Buena Vista, last week announced his resignation from the film distribution company, effective immediately. A veteran of 34 years in the motion picture industry, Samuels joined the Walt Disney organization in 1938. In the more than 20 years with the company, he has held a number of major executive and sales posts, including foreign sales manager and world-wide sales supervisor.

Samuels played a key role in the organization of Buena Vista in 1952 and was elected president and general sales manager of the Disney film distribution subsidiary that year.

Prior to joining the Disney organization, Samuels was affiliated for 13 years with United Artists where he was liaison between stockholders and the board of directors, assistant to the president, and assistant secretary of the company.

Telemeter Merged Into Para.

HOLLYWOOD—Barney Balaban, president of Paramount Pictures Corporation, last week announced the corporate rearrangement of the International Telemeter Corporation and total acquisition of the Telemeter pay-as-you-see television system by Paramount. International Telemeter, which previously had been a 90 per cent Paramount-owned subsidiary, has now been merged into Paramount and will operate as a division of Paramount Pictures Corporation under the name of International Telemeter Company.

Two former subsidiaries of the International Telemeter Corporation, Telemeter Magnetics, Inc., and Palm Springs Community Television Corporation, as a result of the merger become direct subsidiaries of Paramount Pictures Corporation.

All Loew's Operations Register Profit—Vogel

NEW YORK—Loew's, Inc., has achieved a clear-cut turnabout, Joseph R. Vogel, president, declared last week.

He announced a net profit of $774,000 after taxes for the fiscal year which ended Aug. 31, 1958, and a net profit of $2,625,000 after taxes for the new fiscal year's first 12-week period which ended Nov. 20, 1958.

The 1958 fiscal profit of $774,000—which amounts to 15 cents per share on the 5,336,777 shares outstanding—contrasts with the $455,000 net loss after taxes experienced in fiscal 1957, Vogel said.

The fiscal year's first quarter net profit of $2,625,000—which amounts to 49 cents per share—contrasts with the net loss after taxes of $1,291,000 which Loew's experienced in the similar 12-week period of the past fiscal year.

"At the present time," Vogel declared, "every branch of our operations throughout the world are profitable."

"Sometime this spring we expect to complete the division of the assets of the company as approved by the stockholders and the Federal Court, and distribute the theatre company stock to our stockholders. I am confident the two companies resulting from the separation will have sound and satisfactory results for the full fiscal 1959 period."

The major source of the upturn was in film production and distribution, which achieved a pre-tax profit of $2,187,000 during the 12 weeks, compared to a pre-tax loss of $4,378,000 in the same period a year earlier.

Para. Sells Broadcasting Stock

WASHINGTON—Following approval by the Federal Communications Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission, and other governmental agencies, Paramount Pictures Corporation last fortnight consummated the sale of 335,200 shares of capital stock in Metropolitan Broadcasting Corporation to John Kluge and associates for a reported $4,000,000.

This was said to be Paramount's entire holding in the company, which was spun off several years ago from the Allen B. DuMont Enterprises.

Metropolitan owns television stations WNEW-TV in New York and WTTG-TV in Washington and radio stations WNEW in New York and WKH in Cleveland.

The transaction does not in any way affect Paramount's interest in DuMont Laboratories, nor does it have anything to do with Paramount's 100 per cent ownership, through its subsidiary, Paramount Television Productions, of TV station KTLA-TV in Los Angeles.

Paramount had three representatives on the Metropolitan board, Barney Balaban, Paul Raibourn, and Edward L. Ward. In addition, Arthur Israel, Jr., of Paramount, has been secretary of Metropolitan.

Cleveland Exhibs Elect

CLEVELAND—At an election held last fortnight Henry Greenberger was reelected to a fifth term as president of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association. Others returned to office were Joseph Rembrandt, vice-president; and Louis Seitz, secretary. Leonard Mishking is treasurer.

N.Y. State Minimum Wage Increased For Amusement Industry Employees

NEW YORK—Retiring Industrial Commissioner Isador Lubin last fortnight signed an order increasing the basic minimum wage in New York State for employees in the amusement and recreation industries from 75 cents to $1 per hour. The new wage standard is effective on March 1, 1959, and will be increased again on Oct. 1, 1959, at which time it becomes $1.05 permanently.

In the case of certain occupations in motion picture theatres special other rates were set in compliance with revised recommendations of the Amusement and Recreation Minimum Wage Board presented at a public hearing Dec. 18 at New York State Department of Labor offices here.

Special rates for certain theatre employees under the new order are: cashiers, cleaners, porters and matrons, other than children's matrons in theatres, will receive a minimum hourly rate of 90 cents until March 1, 1960, when the rate becomes $1. At present, they receive from 65 to 75 cents, depending upon the size of the community.

Ticket-takers and doormen, who now receive from 60 to 70 cents according to the size of the community, will get an hourly rate of 85 cents until March 1, 1960, when this rate also becomes $1.

Ushers, children's matrons, ramp and checkroom attendants, other unclassified service staff workers and messengers in theatres, who now receive from 50 to 55 cents, will have an hourly rate of 75 cents.

All rates in the new order are statewide with no differentials in regard to the size of the community.

A further stipulation of the order also affects ushers. When they are required to report for duty on any day, whether or not assigned to actual work, they shall be paid for at least four hours, except that the guarantee shall be two hours on those days on which a theatre is only open in the evenings.

A final provision in the order affecting theatres is in regard to spread of hours. Employees must be paid for one additional hour at time and a half the applicable minimum hourly rate for any day in which the spread of hours exceeds 11.

UA Readies Drive-In Prints

NEW YORK—United Artists' pioneering program of special, high-key prints for drive-ins, successfully introduced with its release of "Run Silent, Run Deep," moves into full swing as De Luxe Laboratories readies delivery of the new-type prints for UA's release of "Separate Tables," "I Want to Live!" and "The Last Mile," it was announced by James R. Velde, general sales manager.

Brightened for better-defined projection in open-air situations, the special prints will be shipped to UA exchange areas to service drive-in dates for the three pictures set for early spring. Ten such prints are currently in use in drive-in situations in the Los Angeles area.

"Night" Goes Continuous

NEW YORK—The Criterion Theatre put into effect, starting Jan. 5, a continuous performance policy at popular prices for J. Arthur Rank's "A Night To Remember."

The motion picture adaptation of the Walter Lord best-seller about the maiden voyage of the Titanic had opened on a hard ticket policy.

American Legion Opposes U. S.-Soviet Film Exchange

NEW YORK—The American Legion last fortnight joined with other veterans' organizations in attacking the cultural exchange of Soviet-American films.

The Legion, on record as opposing exhibition of Russian-made films in the U. S. since 1952, stated in an editorial in the January issue of their magazine that the film deal is "an exchange of indirect propaganda" and that "the imports will become talking points for American Communists."

The Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Veterans of World War I of the U. S. A. already have assailed the "cultural exchange."

Phila. Distrib Seeks Censor Fee Refund

HARRISBURG—Benny Harris' American Film Company of Philadelphia has filed an action in Commonwealth Court here seeking to recover nearly $30,000 paid over to the Department of Public Instruction for use by the defunct State Board of Censors.

In an action filed by associates of Huethe F. Dowling, local counsel for American Film Company, the firm stated it was denied a request for reimbursement by the State Board of Finance and Revenue.

The company requested return of its funds, representing money paid from 1915 to 1952, on the ground the State Supreme Court declared the censorship law unconstitutional on March 13, 1956. Shortly after the Supreme Court decision, the Board of Censors ceased to exist.

Since the board operated under an unconstitutional law, the firm maintained, the state never had the right to compel payments for use by the board. The Revenue Board rejected the request for reimbursement on Dec. 3, 1958. The court was asked to order the state to make the refund.

Howco Opens St. Louis Office

ST. LOUIS—Howco Exchange, Inc., opened its seventh branch office here last week. Other Howco Exchanges are located in Atlanta, Charlotte, Jacksonville, Kansas City, Memphis, and New Orleans.

The St. Louis office will serve as headquarters for W. C. Kroeger, midwest district manager, who will supervise Kansas City, Memphis, and St. Louis from the new location.

Scott Lett, Howco vice-president, in announcing his company's expansion has also named Eddie Martin as manager of the Memphis office and Larry Biechele as manager of the Kansas City office.

Marcus Circuit Expands

MILWAUKEE—With the purchase of the Ritz, this city, formerly operated by Mike, Arnold and Barney Baumm, and the Wisconsin Beaverdam, formerly operated by Fox-Wisconsin, the Marcus Theatre Management Company has become the largest circuit in Wisconsin with some 38 operations.

Industry Leaders Join Fabian Birthday Fete

NEW YORK—Amusement and motion picture industry leaders will join in celebration of the 60th birthday of Si Fabian, president of Stanley Warner Corporation, at a dinner party taking place at the Sheraton-East Hotel tonight (Jan. 14). Announcement of the affair was made by William J. German, chairman of the amusement industry Federation of Jewish Philanthropies campaign, and Barney Balaban, dinner chairman.

Balaban announced that a group of top industry figures were planning the testimonial and party in honor of Si Fabian and on behalf of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies. Those named were: associate chairmen, Arthur Krim, Samuel Rosen, and Abe Schneider, and treasurer Spyros P. Skouras.

"Si Fabian's many contributions to our industry and tireless efforts on behalf of all worthy philanthropy have earned him the esteem and highest regard of all who know him," Balaban said. "I am certain that our industry celebration of his birthday will be an evening he will remember with pride."

Lawrence A. Wien, noted attorney and general campaign chairman of the citywide Federation drive, will be the evening's guest speaker. Speaking of the work of the 116 hospitals and social service agencies of the Federation which annually serve 700,000 people of all races and creeds, he will stress the vital importance of overcoming a $2,000,000 deficit incurred by this agency network last year.

Dinner chairman Barney Balaban called upon all leaders of the amusement and motion picture industry to join in support of Federation which provides 87% of all Jewish sponsored care in the Greater New York area. "I know that our honored guest Si Fabian, would be greatly pleased to know that our celebration of his birthday resulted in support of hospitals, community centers, camps and social agencies that are vital to the welfare of our community," he stressed.

N.Y. Communion Breakfast

NEW YORK—The ninth annual industry Communion Breakfast for Catholics in the New York area will be held at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, Sunday, Jan. 25. Speakers at the breakfast, which will follow the 9 a.m. Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral, will be Rev. Robert I. Cannon, S. J., former president of Fordham University and noted public speaker, and Cyril Richard, famed stage, screen and television actor and entertainer.

The idea for an annual Communion Breakfast for Catholics in the motion picture industry started in New York nine years ago and since has spread to other cities including Los Angeles, Detroit, New Orleans, and Toronto.

NLRB Rules In Mont. Hassle

WASHINGTON—A National Labor Relations Board trial examiner applying the new NLRB theatre standards for the first time, last fortnight ruled that the board clearly had jurisdiction over a labor dispute involving several Butte, Mont., theatres.

He found the Butte local of the IATSE guilty of refusal to bargain and various other unfair practices and ordered the local to cease and desist. The local has 20 days to appeal. The dispute involves projectionists at the Fox Montana and Golder Theatre chains in Butte.

Indiana Exhibitors Win Theatre Reassessment

INDIANAPOLIS—The Allied Theatre Owners of Indiana announced last fortnight that through the efforts of the late Bill Carroll and Trueman T. Rembusch, chairman, ATOI tax committee, and president Dick Louchry, who presented the plight of theatres and their need for tax relief, the Indiana State Board of Tax Commissioners' Committee on Improvements at the Assessors' Convention made the following recommendation:

"Following the appearance of two representatives of the Allied Theatre Owners of Indiana, Inc., in order to petition for consideration under the social obsolescence portion of the tax law, this committee recommends that the following formula be used in connection with a Petition for Reassessment: (1) Use the total number of admissions for year 1949 as 100 per cent base; (2) Percentage of total number of admissions year 1957 to total of 1949 base to arrive at new appraisal of theatre buildings. In no event is new appraisal to be less than 50 per cent of 1949 appraisal.

"A theatre owner applying to his local tax board for reassessment of his theatre building may not make use of the formula unless he presents 1949 and 1957, or last complete year theatre operated, admission totals certified by sworn affidavit.

"It is further recommended that once a petition has been acted on favorably to the petitioner that a subsequent petition should not be submitted for at least another four years unless an extreme condition has arisen during the interim."

The ATOI points out that exhibitors must do this locally to secure relief, by securing reassessment Form #152 from local assessors' office. On that form ask for a reduction of your 1949 assessment in the percentage amount of decline of total number of your admissions 1949 over 1957. Include sworn affidavit as to accuracy of your admission figures. Call attention to the fact that the procedure being followed was recommended unanimously by the 58th Annual Conference of the State Board of Tax Commissioners and County and Township Assessors of Indiana.

In no event, the ATOI committee points out, will more than a 50 per cent reduction be granted on assessments. The deadline for filing is March 31.

SW Profit Increases

NEW YORK—An increase of 46 percent in the net profits of Stanley Warner Corporation and its subsidiaries for the quarter ended Nov. 29, 1958, as compared to the same period last year, was announced by S. H. Fabian, president, at the annual stockholders meeting last week.

Theatre admissions and merchandise sales and other income were $30,719,700, which compares with $28,150,800 for the corresponding quarter one year ago, an increase of nine percent. The net profit for the 13 weeks after all charges including federal and foreign income taxes was $1,179,700, which is 46 percent higher than the net profit of $804,500 earned one year ago.

Commenting on the Stanley Warner theatre division, Fabian said the company was continuing to streamline its operations by eliminating the theatres which have lost their profit potential, but at the same time was improving its earning possibilities by installing, in selected theatres, equipment for the showing of feature motion pictures photographed in 70mm and Todd-AO.

Fabian, Samuel Rosen, and Nathaniel Lapkin were reelected as directors.

Paramount Crystallizes '59 Plans As Weltner Heads Important Meeting

Jerry Lewis, star and producer of Paramount's "The Geisha Boy," is seen arriving at the Hollywood premiere of the film hauling a rickshaw in which Nobu McCarthy, Japanese actress who appears in the picture, is riding while carrying Harry, the trained rabbit, also a "member of the cast."

House, Senate To Act Against Toll-Television

WASHINGTON—With the convening of Congress last fortnight it was indicated that both Houses would move against toll television.

Senator Strom Thurmond, North Carolina, was ready to introduce a bill to declare pay TV illegal.

The House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce last year under committee chairman Representative Oren Harris took the leadership in scheduling pay TV for discussion and moving it to the point where the Committee voted a "request" to FCC not to license experimental toll TV until Congress has declared itself. However, the Senate Committee took no positive position in the matter.

Harris promised the FCC at last year's adjournment that he would expedite a Capitol Hill test by reintroducing his bill; and it is believed he will fulfill that pledge within a few days. This will get the challenge under way in both houses in time to insure a Congressional vote on the basic question.

The action by Thurmond and Harris is virtually certain to forestall promised consideration of licensing by FCC 30 days after adjournment of the first session. That a regulatory body would presume to rule on a matter currently before both Houses of Congress for policy decision is highly improbable.

Rackmil Heads Tokyo Meet

TOKYO—Presiding at Universal International's Japanese managers' conference here, president Milton R. Rackmil continued his program of personally outlining the company's future production plans and operating policy to key members of its overseas organization.

At the conference, attended by foreign general manager Americo Aboaf, Far Eastern supervisor Alvin Cassel, Japan's general manager Paul Fehlen, Japan's sales chief Makoto Horii, top local executives, and area branch managers, Rackmil gave a frank exposition of U-I's new production and distribution policy, which he said, was aimed at developing the company's potential in both fields.

NEW YORK—Paramount Pictures policies and programs designed to shape 1959 into "The Big Boxoffice Year" are to be crystallized at a meeting now in progress of division managers and home office executives which George Weltner, vice-president in charge of world sales, announced last week for Jan. 13, 14, and 15 at the company's home office.

Weltner is to preside at all sessions. All U. S. and Canadian sales division executives are attending the meeting, which Weltner described as one of the most important in the history of Paramount.

Planning and discussions center on a rapidly developing 1959 release schedule that will back up the company's faith in the future of the motion picture industry as reaffirmed on a number of occasions last year by Barney Balaban, president, and Weltner.

Additionally, new merchandising techniques, the outlines of a precision-organized publicity program, plans for extensive advertising campaigns, and other features of the company's promotional operation for the new year are being presented by Jerry Pickman, vice-president in charge of advertising, publicity, and exploitation; Martin Davis, assistant director; and Joseph Friedman, national exploitation manager.

Hugh Owen and Sidney Deneau, vice-presidents of Paramount Film Distributing Corporation, head a contingent of home office sales operations executives at the meeting. Gordon Lightstone, Paramount's Canadian general manager, is attending the sessions and upon his return to Toronto will call a Paramount all-Canada conference for discussion of the New York meeting's developments.

Division managers in New York are John G. Moore, eastern, Philadelphia; W. Gordon Bradley, southeastern, Atlanta; J. H. Stevens, mid-western, Chicago; Tom W. Bridge, southwestern, Dallas; and H. Neal East, western, Los Angeles. Myron Sattler, New York branch manager, is attending all sessions.

Home office executives participating include Robert J. Rubin, vice-president of Paramount Film Distributing Corporation; Edward G. Chumley, U. S. and Canadian sales manager for "The Ten Commandments"; Edmund C. DeBerry, executive assistant to Owen; Jack Perley, assistant to Deneau; Ben Shectman, contracts manager; Arthur Dunne, bidding manager; Fred LeRoy, sales operations; Ted Krassner, executive aide to Chumley.

The three-day meeting follows the Paramount conferences held in Hollywood by home office and production executives. Participants in the sessions at the studio were Balaban; Paul Raibourn, vice-president; Weltner; Pickman; and Russell Holman, eastern production manager, all from New York, and Y. Frank Freeman, studio vice-president, and other production executives.

Balaban and Raibourn are sitting in on the New York meeting.

New Faces Important To Columbia, Jackter Tells Southern Sales Meet

NEW ORLEANS—Columbia Pictures has given high priority to a talent development and promotion program as part of its overall reorientation, Rube Jackter, vice-president and general sales manager, told sales executives from the southern divisions here this week at the second in a series of regional meetings.

Enlarging upon the policy announcement he made last week in Washington, Jackter told the meeting at the Roosevelt Hotel that the discovery and introduction of new faces is a major concern of the company.

At a screening of the work print of "Gidget," Jackter told the group that the film, which stars Cliff Robertson, Sandra Dee and James Darren, is an example of what the company is trying to do.

Jackter said that it was not Columbia's intention to let these new faces sink into any "stock company" status, and if top roles were not available in Columbia pictures they would be loaned out to other companies for promising parts.

"The constant development, promotion and introduction of new faces in motion pictures is as important as the continual introduction of new styles or fashions in any other field of merchandising, and Columbia will do its share and more of this vital work," he concluded.

Jonas Rosenfield, Jr., executive in charge of advertising and publicity, explained to the sales executives some of the means to be utilized in promoting the young actors and actresses, individually and as a group.

He mentioned that the young stars, including Joby Baker, Michael Callan, Darren, Joanna Moore, Jo Morrow, and Evy Norlund, would appear in special shorts for both industry and theatre use, will be involved in merchandising tie-ups, would undertake personal appearances both singly and in groups, and would be the subjects of intensive publicity drives in all media.

In attendance from the home office were sales executives Milton Goodman and Jerome Safran; Joseph Freiberg, manager of the sales accounting and contract department; and H. C. Kaufman, manager of exchange operations.

The field executives present were headed by division managers Robert J. Ingram, Atlanta, and Jack Judd, Dallas. Branch managers from Atlanta, Charlotte, Jacksonville, Memphis, Oklahoma City, and New Orleans were present.

A meeting for the far west and midwest divisions will be held in Chicago next week.

Col. Adds To Finance Group

NEW YORK—A. Schneider, president, Columbia Pictures, last week announced additions to its finance committee to bring it to full strength due to vacancies caused by the deaths of Harry Cohn and Nate Spingold.

The full committee which was appointed at the board of directors meeting following the recent stockholders meeting consists of Schneider, Donald S. Stralem, A. Montague, Leo Jaffe, Leo M. Blancke, and Alfred Hart. Louis J. Barbano, financial vice-president of Columbia, will serve the committee in an advisory capacity.

Schneider also announced that Stralem had been designated as chairman of the committee.

ACLU Sees Danger In "Censorship By Boycott"

NEW YORK—In its 38th annual report for the year ended June 30, 1958, the American Civil Liberties Union stated that film censorship had decreased on Federal and State levels in 1957-58, but warns that "censorship by boycott" is increasing.

Municipalities which censor films, once estimated as high as 90, have declined to 20 or less, the report states.

Currently, the U. S. Supreme Court's practice is, according to the ACLU report, "issuing verdicts on the basis of a narrow definition of obscenity, rather than dealing with the controversial aspects of the problem which lie at the heart of the controversy."

Virginia and Maryland still maintain state censorship, but in Maryland several recent bills aimed at reviving the waning powers of the censor failed.

Mich. Exhibs Meet, Discuss ACE Role

DETROIT—A vitally-interested group met last week in the Fox Theatre screening room to learn more about and discuss ACE. Over 50 attended and there was literally no statewide segment of exhibition not represented.

Milton H. London, an area chairman and president of Michigan Allied, which issued the call to members and non-members alike, chaired and keynoted the meeting. He stated unequivocally there was no thought in the minds of Michiganders to disband, merge, or otherwise tinker with the Allied apparatus. Without duplication of any functions, ACE would be enabled to use existing facilities of other organizations, such as Allied itself. To bolster his point, and reflect the thinking of those outside the state, he read a letter from Si Fabian sustaining his view.

James Nederland sounded a grim note of warning along with the belief ACE would be strong enough to stimulate production. (The Nederlanders operate the Riviera here, which is on picture policy occasionally punctuated by legit; the Shubert, entirely legit; and the Erlanger in Chicago.) He remarked so scarce were stage productions the Shubert was lighted only from six to 11 weeks a year. Adolph Goldberg, an area chairman, showed the importance of giving ACE real power so that "it would be strong enough to deal both with distribution and government." His twin brother Irving discussed other possibilities if the new organization is correctly used. Harold Brown, an area chairman and president of United Detroit, spoke briefly. The fourth area chairman, Lew Wisper, of W & W, was absent because of illness. The entire atmosphere reflected the serious determination to make ACE an effective, going, concern.

Ireland Variety Elects

DUBLIN, IRELAND—The Variety Club of Ireland named the following officers for 1959: Rick Bourke, chief barker; Jack Cruise, first assistant; Andy Doyle, second assistant; Noel Coade, property master; and Jim Walls, dough guy.

Texas Exhibs Support ACE At Local Level

DALLAS—At a brunch session in the Dallas Variety Club last fortnight 265 exhibitors representing over 900 theatres in Texas, vociferously applauded R. J. O'Donnell's treatise on the American Congress of Exhibitors (ACE) and pledged their unstinted support of the newly formed organization.

O'Donnell, vice-president and general manager of Interstate Circuit, who is area chairman with Julius Gordon, president, Jefferson Amusement Company, as well as head of the national organizing committee of ACE, made it clear that the new exhibitor organization must have grass roots support of all exhibitors in every part of the nation to achieve its proposed objectives.

He termed ACE as the showman's satellite—not waiting on the launching platform, but already in orbit—and told the exhibitors they can keep it there.

"We are taking the lead here in Texas by establishing a regional ACE office," O'Donnell said, "to hear exhibitor complaints and handle their problems. By utilizing the employed staff of Texas COMPO the two organizations can operate from the same office, performing separately the tasks necessary to industry affairs as well as the vital work needed solely for exhibition."

An executive board and a roster of executive committeemen were set up and will meet once a month to make a study of common problems that will be presented to the national executive group of ACE.

NSS Sales Execs Meet

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.—National Screen Service sales heads from 22 cities held a two day sales convention at the Roney Plaza here last week. Discussed were sales policies and plans for the 1959 calendar year.

National Screen produces and distributes trailers for motion picture theatres all over the United States and also furnishes advertising materials and accessories, such as window cards and TV trailers, to exhibitors.

Among those on hand for the sessions were the following sales executives:

Herman, Norman, and Burton Robbins, Monroe Goodman, Benn Asche, Herbert Bonn, and Allan Shevin, all of New York; Maynard Sickels, Boston; Milton Feinberg and Arthur Menheimer, Chicago; Ivan Clavet, Detroit; Louis Patz, Kansas City, Mo.; Jack Marpole, San Francisco; Bud Brody, Seattle; Charles Lester, Atlanta; Jack Lustig, Denver; Perry Nathan, Pittsburgh; Nat Barach, Cleveland; Robert Simril, Charlotte; Kenneth Friedman, Salt Lake City; Paul Short, Dallas; Louis Boyer, New Orleans; John Modnikow, Milwaukee; Herbert Washburn, St. Louis; Gilbert Clark, Dallas; William Bein, Cincinnati; R. B. Wolf, Los Angeles; and Stanley Goldberg, Philadelphia.

Burstyn Winners Named

NEW YORK—Importers and distributors of foreign films in the U. S. last fortnight named "He Who Must Die," French film distributed by Kassler Films, Inc., to receive the sixth annual Joseph Burstyn award as best foreign language film of 1958. Second and third choice were "The Seventh Seal," Swedish film, and "Pather Panchali," from India.

The annual award is a memorial to the late Joseph Burstyn, pioneer film distributor, honoring his services in presenting and championing unrestricted exhibition of finest motion pictures from other countries.

The NEW YORK Scene

By Mel Konecoff

PRODUCER SPEAKS AGAIN: Max J. Rosenberg, co-producer of the UA release, "The Last Mile," has by now started his six-week tour of a number of cities in the east and midwest on behalf of the film, a strong drama dealing with convicted killers who await death in prison. He believes that a producer's function does not cease with the completion of a film but rather that the producer should do all in his power to follow through via exploitation and appearances wherever possible.

The capable producer told his listeners that he hoped the film stood on its own as an honest treatment of a melodramatic situation, rather than as a preachment against capital punishment, on which he refused to take a stand. Some readers will remember the work as a hit Broadway stage play in the twenties or as a film made in 1931.

Rosenberg is strongly convinced that pictures can be made and made well in the east, since there is an abundance of acting as well as technical talent easily available here. Almost any kind of subject can be made here with the possible exception of those that call for outdoor settings or for specific locations. Both he and director Howard Koch had nothing but praise for production personnel.

Incidentally, Mickey Rooney, the star, comes off quite well in his strong dramatic part and receives more than adequate support.

PHARMACEUTICAL NOTE: Edward C. White, president, New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association, tells us that "the personal health of millions of Americans would be better off if they turned off their television sets and went more often to the movies for entertainment."

Continued he, "Pharmacists throughout New Jersey are experiencing too many patrons depending on self-medication huckstered on television for the relief of headache symptoms, which would be caused by eyestrain watching too much of this (TV)."

Other pre-moviegoing health advantages listed were less chance of viewers taken in by suggestion they treat themselves for symptoms that could mask serious illnesses, less eyestrain, a healthful walk after dinner to and from theatres, etc.

White is a member of the Hoboken Board of Education. He might have added a small item like there's better entertainment available in theatres as well.

Albany Censor Debate Includes SW Executive

ALBANY—For the first time in the local annals of panels on the highly controversial subject of motion picture censorship, a theatre manager who doubles as district manager for a leading circuit will be among the participants—under the auspices of the Parent Teacher Association of School 16, on Jan. 19. He is Alfred G. Swett, manager, Strand, and district chief for Stanley Warner Corporation.

Swett was invited to take part along with Dr. Hugh M. Flick, ex-director of Motion Picture Division, State Education Department, and still its outstanding thinker on film censorship; C. R. Roseberry, writer for Times-Union of a recent series about screen licensing; and former critic for the Knickerbocker News, David H. Beetle.

Other panelists include an Albany Law School faculty member, possibly James A. FitzPatrick, of Plattsburgh, counsel for Joint Legislative Committee on Offensive and Obscene Material, and a spokesman for the Albany Roman Catholic Diocese. Its bishop, the Most. Rev. William A. Scully, is among the nation's strongest supporters of the Legion of Decency and of film censorship. It was Bishop Scully—then chairman of the U. S. Bishops' National Committee on Motion Pictures, Television and Radio and national moderator of the Legion—who called for the Strand to withdraw "Baby Doll" about two years ago.

After being turned down, he ordered a six-month ban for Catholics on the SW ace house here and on the chain's Troy in Troy. Both suffered heavily as a result of the interdiction.

Mrs. Matthew Margolius, program chairman, also requested the appearance of, or a statement by, the state PTA's legislative chairman on motion picture censorship. The debate is expected to broaden into an exchange on "censorship" generally. It will be thrown open to questions from the floor.

Goldwyn, Jr., To MGM

NEW YORK—Samuel Goldwyn, Jr., will produce an independent motion picture to be released by MGM, it was announced last week by Sol C. Siegel, MGM studio head. A story property will be announced shortly, to be put before the cameras early in 1959.

Goldwyn will move his offices to MGM this month to begin preparations for the filming.

Meetings resulting in the new contract were initiated several months ago, following the successful foreign releases by Loew's, Inc., of Goldwyn's "The Proud Rebel."

President Backs Film Exchange Deal With USSR

NEW YORK—Eric Johnston, president, Motion Picture Export Association of America, and George V. Allen, director, United States Information Agency, had an appointment with President Eisenhower to report on recent developments in the State Department Cultural Exchange Program and in particular the details of the film negotiations with the Soviet Union.

It is understood that the President showed keen interest in the progress to date and hopes that the film exchange program may be successfully concluded in the near future.

Johnston announced the complete list of seven pictures which have been selected for distribution in the United States by the major U. S. film distributors. They are "The Cranes Are Flying," "Swan Lake," "The Idiot," "Circus Stars," "Othello," "Quiet Flows the Don" and "Don Quixote."

The six films already selected by the Soviet Union are "The Great Caruso," "Lili," "Roman Holiday," "Marty," "The Old Man and the Sea," and "Oklahoma!"

The balance of four pictures to make up the 10 selections of the Soviet Union are expected to be announced shortly.

N.Y. Solon Favors More Film Control

ALBANY—A declaration by Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller, in his inaugural address, that "we must work, perhaps hardest of all, on the field where the future can be won or lost—in our schoolrooms—and we must attack the problems of juvenile delinquency," led Assemblyman Joseph R. Younglove, chairman, Joint Legislative Committee on Offensive and Obscene Material, to ask whether "motion pictures and television" are contributing to or are a drag, upon our immensely expensive program of education.

He said that witnesses had asked this question at the Committee's recent New York City hearings; that the public "is increasingly aware of the fact some, or a number, of the motion pictures released during the past year have not been in the public welfare."

Younglove added that "it does not make sense to spend vast sums for education and do nothing to control a medium as powerful in its possible adverse effect on education, as motion pictures."

"The Committee feels at this time that it is imperative the work of the Motion Picture Division, State Education Department, be continued," Younglove commented.

He had kind words to say about "the attitude" displayed by representatives of the motion picture industry at the New York hearings.

The Johnstown Assemblyman observed that "The motion picture industry is mature enough to take the steps necessary to protect and continue its business."

He warned, however, that if the present cycle of films emphasizing "brutality, crime, sex, and obscenity" persisted indefinitely, the film industry could be "killed." Younglove hoped this was only a temporary trend.

He did not know whether the Joint Committee would sponsor legislation at the 1959 session, as it did at the 1958. Two bills tightening control on the content, promotion, and advertising of motion pictures, as well as certain other media, won approval of Senate and Assembly. Later, they ran into a veto by Governor Averell Harriman as of doubtful constitutionality.

LONDON Observations

by Jock MacGregor

AS THE NEW YEAR STARTS all sides of the industry are getting together to make an all out do-or-die effort to present the strongest possible case to the Chancellor of the Exchequer for the abolition of Entertainments Tax which is now levied solely on the cinema. Time is short for the budget is due in April. Employer and employee are united in the fight, and never has confidence in final victory been higher. . . . With Brigitte Bardot's "Parisienne" getting a circuit release as top feature in a dubbed version, the old question arises as to whether it is the exhibitor or the patron who really objects to dubbing, or whether the alleged resistance is a myth. Anyway, the shapely Bardot should provide the answer. Incidentally, I hear the picture has been dubbed into English twice, by Rank for this market and UA for America and elsewhere. In each case, Charles Boyer dubbed his own part. Now Major De Lane Lea, a pioneer in this field, has opened a dubbing studio a couple of blocks from Film Row. One can but marvel at the use of limited space and the intricate equipment. . . . Independents generally found 1958 much to their liking. Now Phil, Sid, and young Norman Hyams of Eros are looking forward with the greatest confidence for a bigger and better year. While such horror offerings as "Blood of the Vampire" and "Trollenberg Terror" proved highly lucrative, their really big winner was the warm, homely "Cry from the Streets" with Max Bygraves, a most likeable newcomer from the music hall. Not only did this do excellent business on release, but many astute exhibitors brought it back for Christmas and found it just what the box office ordered. Now they have "Life in Emergency Ward 10," based on a popular TV series, and "Serious Charge," a meaty drama, readying for release. And talking of Christmas hits, ABC and MGM really cleaned up with the unit program—"tom thumb" and "Andy Hardy Comes Home." Doug King is now finding that these unit programs are just the thing for this market. 20th-Fox's idea of giving "Sheriff a Fractured Jaw" a nine day booking certainly seems to have paid off if the queues lining for my local cinema are any indication of the overall business. Incidentally, if only the ticket scalpers could get the tickets they would be forsaking "My Fair Lady" for "Inn of the 6th Happiness," such are the queues that continually surround the Odeon.

CONGRATULATIONS to Bernard Charman, editor of The Daily Cinema, on the handsome "Welcome Back Jack" 38 page tribute to Jack Warner on his return to the studios after his serious accident. . . . Good luck to Joe Vegoda and Michael Green who are launching Regal Films as a new distribution outlet. Joe was RKO's sales director. Initial releases include "Jack the Ripper," "Call Girl," and some Goldwyn reissues. . . . Found the fellow I gave a lift to on Christmas Eve when he could not get a taxi from Les Ambassadeurs was Wyatt Earp—Hugh O'Brian himself. Proves I'm no TV addict. . . . Congratulations to Bill Annett on his promotion as managing director of Rank Screen Services in succession to Gerard Holdsworth, who will remain on the board of directors. Bill has been a great worker for the Variety Club. . . . Macgregor Scott and his AB Pathe sales team are moving to the old RKO Radio buildings in Dean Street. Meanwhile, Terry Ashwood and the AB Pathe shorts and specialized films division will take over the vacated Film House offices. . . . Very sorry to hear that Columbia's Mike Frankovich has been taken ill while in Switzerland. . . . The Queen will attend a benefit performance of "Gigi" at the New Columbia Theatre on March 4.

Drive-In Loans Okayed As SBA Reverses Stand

NEW YORK—George G. Kerasotes, president, Theatre Owners of America, and Philip F. Harling, chairman of the Small Business Administration Committee of TOA, last fortnight hailed the announcement by the SBA in Washington that it had reversed an earlier decision and had decided to make drive-ins eligible for Government loans.

They said the decision was recognition of the TOA's contention that all theatres should be treated alike, and expressed satisfaction that the SBA had increased the loan limit for all theatres from the prior maximum of $250,000 to $350,000 for 10 years. They added that the action should provide grounds for private lending organizations to review their loan policies for theatres in view of the Government's recognition of all theatres as suitable applicants for loans.

Kerasotes and Harling said that TOA's efforts will now be directed to obtain "through legislation or other means" modification of the SBA's loan requirements to enable theatres to qualify more easily. They are particularly interested, they said, in obtaining removal of the provision now requiring a theatre be turned down by a private lending institution before it can apply for an SBA loan.

Largest Theatre Pass Awarded Texas Solons

DALLAS—Size conscious Texans have conceded that the newly designated state of Alaska supersedes the Lone Star State as the nation's largest, but the motion picture theatre people in Texas still hold title to having the biggest theatre pass.

"As a matter of fact, the new 1959 Texas COMPO Courtesy Pass can claim the world's record for its size and number of honoring theatres," stated Kyle Rorex, executive director of Texas COMPO. The Pass lists 800 theatres in 185 towns representing 80 per cent of the total number of theatres in the state.

Designed as an integral part of the Texas COMPO public relations program, the Pass is being mailed to every State Legislator and Senator as well as all Texas Congressional lawmakers while they are in their home districts during the holidays.

The giant Pass is over 18 inches long and bears 2 columns of theatre names and towns front and back. It is folded 7 times to fit in the lawmaker's pocket or billfold.

This is the fourth consecutive year that the Pass has been issued and Texas exhibitors recognize it as the best method of displaying their strength and unity in a concerted industry effort to prevent burdensome local, State and Federal taxes on theatre admissions. Theatre owners were able to raise the exemption of State admission tax from 80 cents through one dollar in 1957.

Included on the Pass are all the operations of Interstate Circuit; Rowley United; Jefferson Amusement Co.; Frontier; Ezell Drive-In Theatres; Trans-Texas Theatres; Phil Isley Theatres; Hall Theatres; Wallace Theatres; Mart Cole Theatres; Frels' Theatres; Weisenburg Theatres; Adelman Theatres; Scott Theatres; H & H Theatres; Cinema Arts Theatres; Border Theatres; Bearden Theatres; O. K. Theatres; Glasscock Theatres; Talley Enterprises; Statewide Drive-In Theatres; Consolidated Theatres, and others.

On The Line

A Loss, A Gain

The New Year has begun with the loss to the theatre equipment industry of one of its most prominent leaders—Merlin Lewis, executive secretary of the Theatre Equipment and Supply Manufacturers Association. Mr. Lewis has assumed similar duties with the recently formed American Congress of Exhibitors, and we wish him good luck and Godspeed in his new capacity. To the ACE organization, on which the future of exhibition may well rest, he brings great energy and wide experience.

For the record, we wish also to thank and congratulate Mr. Lewis for his tireless efforts on behalf of TESMA and the industry in general, particularly when those efforts were directed, as they were so often, to making the motion picture theatre the best possible place for the public to seek entertainment. While there is still a long row to hoe to improve many theatres, Mr. Lewis has pointed the way, and it is to be hoped that TESMA will continue to back up just as vigorously the long range objective of bringing every operating theatre on this continent and, indeed, in the world up to first class standards.

As TESMA loses Mr. Lewis, another industry organization of prime importance gains a new and energetic leader who proposes to amplify the theatre food and refreshment business to its full potential as a source of revenue to the operator and of convenience and pleasure to the patron. Philip L. Lowe, named president of the National Association of Concessionaires last fall, has long been active in this field and has devoted a great deal of time in the past to NAC business; as president, he succeeds two equally dynamic men who have guided NAC fortunes since its inception—Bert Nathan and Lee Koken.

In short, Mr. Lowe follows in the footsteps of the architects of NAC, assuming duties which have been discharged with dignity, forcefulness, and success. He has very substantial work cut out for him because, like many theatres, many theatre concession operations can be improved 100 per cent or more. Mr. Lowe has demonstrated ability to achieve such objectives and to lead the way to the better management, efficient maintenance, and major expansion of theatre refreshment facilities, while reaffirming NAC as a cornerstone of one of exhibition's most remunerative facets. We are certain that he can and will succeed, and to Phil Lowe, too, we wish good luck, Godspeed!

Auditorium Design and Seating

The Auditorium Comes First When It Comes To Theatre Remodeling Or Construction; Seating And Other Factors Play A Vital Role In Its Design

By BEN SCHLANGER

Architect

THE external approach to a theatre, its lobby, foyer, and restrooms are important in any modernization scheme, but the amount to be expended on these items can be ascertained only after the most important item, the auditorium, is given full consideration. It is in this portion of the theatre that the patron enjoys the greatest benefits of modern presentation.

Psychological Factors

When wide film and wide screen systems were introduced, the change constituted only one step of two important developments that were essential to successful motion picture competition with home television. Auditoriums or, more specifically, the provisions which are made for seeing and hearing the performance, hold a much greater significance than is ordinarily appreciated. The mere ability to see and hear is not sufficient fully to enjoy the screen presentation. There are psychological values which involve, lighting and environmental factors which dictate, the specific improvements to be made in the interior finish and shaping of the auditorium. Particularly, the front half of the auditorium nearest the screen can be completely changed, to become an integral part of the picture presentation.

It was logical at one time to delay basic changes to the auditorium because a definite direction was not evident in new projection systems. We now know that there is sufficient development pointing to common use of film widths greater than 35mm, or at least wider camera films that will be reduced for 35mm projection. This development, specifically, affects location of desirable seating areas in the auditorium because it is possible to sit closer to the picture without the fuzziness which is apparent when the picture is projected from the 35mm film that has not been processed from a larger negative.

The ability profitably to exploit the front half of the auditorium also introduces the benefits to be derived from stereophonic sound, because the patron senses the directional quality of the sound when the picture subtends the widest possible angle from his point of view. These developments do not necessarily eliminate the usability of the seating areas more remotely located from the screen, but they do emphasize the new importance of the closer seating areas which, for a while, seemed to have lost their value due to the overmagnification and fuzziness of image presented when wide screens were introduced without wide camera films.

Design Problems

There is, as yet, one major deterring factor which makes it difficult to prescribe a fully successful screen and screen environmental interior treatment: the lack of standardization of picture aspect ratio. The variation in picture aspect ratio, which still exists, has forced the continued use of adjustable masking and curtains which, in itself, makes it difficult to create an auditorium surface treatment which can enlarge effectively the visual field of the spectator and make him feel that the projected picture and the picture environment has a continuous and open effect.

Another unresolved factor affecting needed improvements is the curvature of the screen. This factor becomes a problem if a theatre must be able to project, in addition to standard films, the Cinerama or Todd-AO processes, which require deeper curvatures than the other systems. It is not likely that the Cinerama system will have to be provided for in the average theatre. The Todd-AO system, which is adaptable to more CONTEMPORARY auditoriums such as these have been designed in keeping with the requirements of wide screen processes. Certain psychological values involve, and lighting and environmental factors dictate, the interior finish of the theatre. Seating which has been satisfactory in the past demands new thinking in the future to keep abreast of film processes. Above all, the theatre auditorium should be neutral ground for motion picture presentation; the heavy ornamentation of the past is a distracting factor which should be modified or eliminated.

IT'S EASY TO SERVE GOOD POPCORN

By H. E. Chrisman
Director of Sales
Cretors Corporation

ABOVE AVERAGE PERSONNEL, properly trained in the maintenance of corn popping equipment and in the careful preparation of the product according to certain precise rules, are the key to higher profits from popcorn, a high-profit item to begin with. The proportion of oil to corn is a particularly important consideration in achieving a tasty and, therefore, fast-selling product. Circulating heat in the popper is another method which has proven exceptionally useful in turning out hot, tender, crisp corn.

POPCORN has been, and still is, the highest-profit theatre concession item. So much so, I think, that many times it is neglected because many theatre owners feel popping corn is so simple and the profits are so large that only limited attention is given to this part of the concession.

It is no news that popped corn rarely tastes the same in any two situations. In my travels around the country, I taste the popped corn at many theatres and, frankly, it is not encouraging to see how corn is sometimes popped and sold. But it isn't just my opinion, because too many people mention it to us, and too often these complaints are justified.

All of us know that today the special hybrid raw corn is better than ever. The expansion has been exceptional and the flavor excellent, with the net result that you make more money per hundred pounds. Popping oils, both coconut and peanut, are excellent products. Coloring and other ingredients have been added to the popping oil and seasoning to make popped corn look and taste better. Popcorn machine manufacturers have spent a substantial amount of money and effort to improve efficiency and incorporate special features that will produce a better product. If all of this is true—and it is true—then why doesn't every concession stand sell good popped corn?

We realize some of it may result from the fast turnover of young and inexperienced personnel, but most of the problems can be overcome with a little effort. I feel that many concession stands can afford to employ better than average personnel because the profits justify it. Also, the savings in better personnel more than pay the additional expense.

It is usually true that equipment loses its efficiency as it gets older. That's true of some popping equipment; and it's the rule, rather than the exception, that an inefficient popcorn kettle can cost the theatre from $15 to $25 profit per hundred pounds of raw corn. This means that a part of the progress made in hybrid corn is wasted because it's impossible to obtain full expansion from raw corn when the kettle is inefficient.

But, we are still concerned about taste. This same inefficient kettle produces a smaller popped kernel than its normal expansion and it's hard—not tender and crisp. So, the taste is actually affected to some degree by the efficiency, or inefficiency, of the popcorn machine kettle.

Next, we want to discuss a factor possibly just as important as the machine—the popping oil and its ratio to raw corn—something that the majority of theatre owners never think too much about, except that oil is the most expensive of ingredients to pop corn.

I have mentioned the two most popular oils as coconut oil and peanut oil, but strongly recommend coconut oil as it has many advantages over peanut and other oils. Peanut oil is especially undesirable if the popped corn is reheated for any reason. Because the heat in the oil pops the corn, it is of utmost importance that the proper amount of oil be used. If too little oil is used, the first popped grains take up most of the oil and there is not enough left properly to pop the remaining grains. This again results in smaller, untasty kernels, and a loss in dollars and cents. Also, the greatly increased expansion of raw corn in recent years makes it more important than ever to use the proper amount of oil. Our tests and experiments over the years show 33⅓ per cent as the best ratio for expansion and taste. For seasoning salt, a "rule of the thumb" is ¾ ounce to one ounce per pound of raw corn for the average taste. Some may prefer more, but it is not desirable to use too much salt to increase beverage sales. This will decrease popcorn sales.

Another excellent method of improving the taste and acceptability of corn is dehydration of the popped kernel; or, as we refer to it, circulating heat, which is standard equipment on our machines. As you know, popped corn absorbs the moisture in the air like a sponge, which results in a tough, tasteless product. This is especially true of drive-in theatres and areas where the humidity is high. But the right method of filtering warm air through the popped corn eliminates this problem, resulting in a hot, tender, and crisp corn. If you are not using circulating heat in your indoor houses, and especially the drive-in theatres, don't wait any longer to make the change. You won't be sorry.

THE POPCORN SCOOP should be used carefully, to prevent the breaking of the popped corn kernel and concomitant waste and lost profits.

I will briefly touch on several other factors that are important to popping good corn:

1. Our tests have shown the best popping time for a charge of corn is about 2¼ to 2½ minutes. But never under two minutes, nor over three minutes, as either extreme will reduce expansion and affect the taste.
2. Thermostats are merely a safety device, at least on our machines, and do not need adjusting. The thermostat will break the circuit at 500 degrees in the event the machine is left on by mistake with the kettle empty, but the kettle is too hot to pop corn and the machine should be cut off and allowed to cool.
3. Do not preheat a Cretors kettle. It is not necessary.
4. With the exception of the first popping, do not reduce the charge of corn under the capacity of the kettle on our machines. Know the capacity of the kettle, and if it calls for 18 ounces of corn, use 18 ounces; 32 if it calls for 32 ounces.
5. Make sure the machine is getting the right amount of current: this is essential for efficient popping.
6. To prevent breakage of the popped kernels, teach personnel to use the popcorn scoop sparingly. This prevents waste and lost profits.

We do not profess to be experts in the popcorn business, but Cretors has made popcorn machines for 73 years. We manufacture the Official Weight Volume Tester for the Popcorn industry, and it's part of every day routine to make tests and to check all types of hybrid corn, popping oil, and popping equipment. It is part of our responsibility to the industry to develop better ways of popping and serving popcorn.

The suggestions I have made to you are not a matter of opinion, but are the methods proven best over a great many years by tests and experience. We would not tell you how to buy film, projectors, or seats, but I do believe our suggestions about popcorn will make you more money.

Convention, Conference Heads Appointed By NAC

CHICAGO—Spiro J. Papas, executive vice-president of the Alliance Amusement Company, has been named general convention chairman for the 1959 National Association of Concessionaires convention and trade show in the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, Nov. 8-12, it has been announced by NAC board chairman Lee Koken and president Philip L. Lowe. At the same time, Arthur B. Segal, Selmix Dispensers, Inc., was appointed exhibit chairman for the trade show.

It was disclosed further that the NAC Western Regional Conference will be held in the Riviera Hotel, Las Vegas, Nev., Feb. 9-11 under the chairmanship of Harold F. Chesler of Theatre Candy Distributing Company, NAC first vice-president. This meeting will be devoted to a study of successful food and beverage merchandising techniques, a pitchman's forum, boxoffice building ideas, and a social program. Attendance of 200 is expected.

Coke Appoints Franklin Fountain Sales Manager

ATLANTA—The appointment of Wilson P. Franklin as manager of the Fountain Sales Department of The Coca-Cola Company was announced last fortnight by vice-president Harold Sharp, in charge of Fountain Sales.

FRANKLIN

Sharp also announced the appointment of Cliff E. Hewell, formerly manager of the Dispenser Section, as the Department's regional sales manager of the Atlanta Region, succeeding Franklin. Henry F. McGill, now the Fountain Sales Department's Richmond district manager was elevated to manager of the Fountain Dispenser Section, succeeding Hewell.

Franklin joined the Fountain Sales Department of Coca-Cola in 1940 in Atlanta. He served in various sales capacities, both in the Atlanta and Cleveland Regions, as well as in the home office department before becoming regional sales manager in Cleveland. In 1953 he was appointed regional sales manager of the Atlanta Region.

Hewell joined Coca-Cola in 1944. He was the Fountain Sales Department's district manager at Omaha, and in the Birmingham, Ala., District, before being made manager of the Dispenser Section in 1952. McGill joined the company in 1948 as a fountain sales representative at Birmingham.

Mothproof Carpet

Archibald Holmes and Son announces that beginning January 1, every yard of Beautiful Holmes carpet shipped will carry the label "Guaranteed Mothproof for the Life of the Carpet." The only possible exceptions are candy stripe and spool-end goods. The permanent process, which is called "Moth-a-Nil," originated in Australia and uses the chemical, HEOD.

Moth-a-Nil destroys pests in three ways: by contact, by vapor, and by ingestion. This is an improvement over older types of mothproofing in that it repels the insects, including carpet beetles and silver fish, before they have had a chance to dine on the wool.

Laboratory tests prove that the protective chemical is still present in lethal doses even after twenty shampoos, it is said.

Animated Display Lamp

An entirely new concept of display animation that creates dazzling scintillation in chrome, enamel, metallic fabrics and other reflectable surfaces, has been introduced by Spincraft, Inc. Called "Scintillite," the new unit produces sparkling eye-catching movement and life from every surface it touches, without the need for mechanical turntables, flashers, fans, banners, or other similar units. New light-motion is achieved by a revolving series of reflector spotlights or floodlights kept in constant movement by an electric motor. Varying degrees of scintillation, fast or slow, can be obtained by positioning the device at different distances or angles.

Scintillite is said to permit endless variety in special effects by varying the types and colors of bulbs, the angle of mounting, the surfaces reflected, and the size and number of units used. In addition to its basic scintillation effect, special light, shadow, moving silhouette, color and motion effects can be achieved by use of translucent surfaces, lensed glass, perforated boards, silhouettes, screens and other display props, it is said.

SCINTILLITE LAMP

Self-contained, light in weight, and portable, Scintillite requires only an easy plug-in to any 110-volt AC outlet. It can be suspended from hooks, tilted to any angle by means of its triple chains, propped or braced in any position, even upside down, rested on overhead frames or grillwork, and can be recessed in wall or ceiling for built-in effect, the manufacturer states.

Litter Bug, Jr.

A new, lower-priced Litter Bug with narrower pick-up, designed for smaller requirements and tight spaces, has been announced by Mid East Sales Company, manufacturer of the original Litter Bug now widely used in drive-ins. Known as the Litter Bug, Jr., the new model offers the additional feature of rubber-tired casters on the pick-up housing to prevent scraping the surface being cleaned. It has a 24-inch wide pick-up, as compared to 30-inch for the larger model, making it ideal for cost and maneuverability on small premises, where only intermittent use is necessary, or for tight spaces and narrow aisles, it is said.

Now in its fourth year, the original Litter

LITTER BUG, JR.

Bug has paid for itself in labor savings in as little as three weeks. A gas-powered super vacuum cleaner does in minutes what takes hours with a broom. It picks up all paper litter—trays, cups, boxes, straws, leaves and grass—plus cigarette butts, matches, even ticket stubs, yet it does not remove gravel surfacing.

Waste Receptacle Top

Announcement has been made of the new Bennett Bilt Model 63 Drum Top by the Bennett Manufacturing Company. Model 63 Drum Top converts any 30 gallon grease drum (or any drum with maximum diameter of 19 3/4 inches to 16 3/4 inches minimum diameter) into a self-closing waste receptacle producing a sanitary, fire-resistant litterbug eliminator. The exclusive adjustable hold-down clamps permits the unit to fit the wide diameter range of 30 gallon drums.

A self-closing chromium-plated top door, with unusually gentle spring action makes depositing refuse so easy that cleanliness and neatness is automatic, it is said. Top opening is protected by rubber gasket.

Acoustical Tile

A new acoustical ceiling tile has been designed by the Wood Conversion Company. Called Nu-Wood (R) Micro-Perf, the product features acoustical correction and an effect of fissured stone obtainable only in products costing several times as much, according to the manufacturer.

BENNETT DRUM TOP

The acoustical properties are obtained through the use of pin-point perforations that flare out into bell-shaped cavities beneath the surface of the tile. These pin-point perforations afford about the same sound reducing efficiency as conventional, drilled tile, it is said.

The fissured design blends with the pin-point perforations so that at normal ceiling level the small holes are unnoticeable. Obtainable in two design colors, grey or beige, on a non-glare white tile surface, its sound-reducing qualities are confirmed through tests by Riverbank Laboratories, an independent testing agency.

AUDITORIUM DESIGN

theatres, requires a depth of curvature at least three times the depth of the curvature which is satisfactory for all of the remaining systems. It is the contention of this writer that it would be highly desirable to compromise on a screen curvature that would be somewhat deeper than the curvatures now in common use, yet deep enough to permit successful projection of Todd-AO films. If the latter could be achieved, it would be possible to make the auditorium surfaces blend into the projected picture and do away with the curtaining and masking which is inherited from the stage theatre and continues to be an inhibiting factor in the quest for a unique and vital new effect which is very much needed for motion picture presentation.

The auditorium surfaces that should be treated to form a proper environment are determined by plotting horizontal and vertical fields from the most remote seat location. All wall surfaces which can be seen within a horizontal subtended angle of 60 degrees become critical. All ceiling surface visible within a subtended angle of 15 degrees above a point of the eye of the most remote viewer also becomes critical. If possible, these critical surfaces should not be broken by exit doors or exit lights and certainly should be completely devoid of any form of ornamentation. These surfaces have to be shaped and textured to provide a light environment for the projected picture, which broadens the visual field without competing with or distracting from the central picture.

Neutralize Auditorium

The remainder of the auditorium surfaces, not in the direct field of view while the patron is concentrating on the film are nevertheless seen out of the corner of one's eye and also should be neutralized by eliminating ornamentation and areas of contrasting surfaces. Exposed lighting sources should be eliminated from the entire auditorium.

With the introduction of stereophonic sound, it has become increasingly important to introduce a maximum of sound absorption. A notable advantage in this respect is the ability to provide a true quality of sound for outdoor scenes and it is unnecessary to depend on auditorium surface reflectivity for indoor scene effects because the sound track on the film can incorporate these reverberations. In choosing acoustical materials, care should be taken to make it possible to repaint the surfaces without changing their acoustical quality. Perforated asbestos panels and perforated metals can be used with the absorbing material concealed by these materials. Carpeting and fully upholstered chairs also are required for full acoustical treatment.

Seating Requirements

New requirements for seating have emerged with the development of new film systems. There has been a tendency to encourage maximum space between rows for leg room. Thirty-two inch row spacing is insufficient, but on the other hand 35 inch for main floor or mildly pitched balconies is ample, and to increase this distance only decreases the number of seats unnecessarily, because there is a new space using requirement for greater distances from center to center of the viewers' heads. This is necessary because the patron needs a wider opening between the heads in front of him for a sufficiently unobstructed view of the increased screen widths. Theatre chairs are manufactured varying from 19 inches to 22 inches in width, and it is desirable, on the average, to have at least three inches from center to center of the chairs. The best method for establishing desirable distance between heads is to use, where necessary, a double armblock chair. This system does add to the cost of the chairs, but affords the luxury of an individual chair for each patron and certainly is one of the improvements that help the theatre compete with television. The desirable dimension between heads actually varies as the distance from the screen increases, the greatest spacing between heads being required in the rows nearest the screen.

a new concept in theatre chair styling

The "Futura's" modern, streamlined appearance is a new departure in theatre chair design. The graceful, sloping standards are heavy gauge, ovalized steel. Maximum comfort is provided by massive arm rests and by the heavily padded, deeply curved back and coil or arch spring seat with formed rubber or rubberized hair cover.

The deep-down solid comfort of Heywood-Wakefield seating helps you maintain a capacity box office . . . often at premium prices. Long, dependable service and low maintenance costs further contribute to your profits.

A YARDSTICK FOR CONCESSIONS

By Albert Floersheimer, Jr.
Director of Public Relations
Theatre Owners of America

HOW much should your theatre-operated concession throw off toward rent and as profit? There is no single answer applicable to all theatres because of obvious sectional, policy, and local differences. However, as a continuing service for its members, TOA can offer "yardsticks" against which you can measure your own operation.

Last April, we provided a set of yardstick figures on conventional theatre operating percentages. In June, our research developed similar "yardsticks" for drive-in theatres. We now can furnish you with percentage figures of concessions which are operated by theatres (as distinguished from refreshment facilities which are run by concession firms which pay theatres a rent for this privilege).

These figures are based on breakdowns furnished by theatres from all parts of the country, and of all sizes and policy, though the preponderance of theatres included are located in the east and midwest. In every case the theatre operator ran his own refreshment operation, pro-rating his supervision and administrative expenses to cover actual costs, and paying himself either a predetermined flat or percentage rent. The remainder could be considered profit.

We would stress these are average figures, and are not inflexible, positive "normals." Your theatre's policy, your geographic location, your labor market, all these factors can result in variances of several percentage points in the larger categories. However, if your total figures are greatly different from these, we urge you to reassess your operation. If your margin for rent and profit is much over 40 percent, it may well be you are charging too much, giving too small portions, or not giving the quality you want. If it is under 30 percent in conventional theatres, or 25 percent in drive-ins, there are undoubtedly areas where you can tighten up.

The famous pink paper SAVEABLE SECTION in which Experienced Trade Analysts evaluate coming product

Published every second week, as a separately bound and easily saveable section of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, this exclusive 24 year old service is both numerically more complete, and informatively more candid, than any similar trade analysis. Cumulatively numbered by film seasons (September to September), it is recommended that readers consecutively save all REVIEWS sections in a permanent file. The last issue of each August will always contain a complete annual index to close the season.

Combined, the every second week yellow paper SERVICE SECTION indexes to the past 12 months' product, and the alternating every second week pink paper REVIEWS, represent a unique informative service to theatremen. Please address all inquiries or suggestions about these two service features to the Editors of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, 246-48 N. Clarion St., Philadelphia 7, Penna.

SECTION TWO

JANUARY 14, 1959

COLUMBIA

City of Fear

MELODRAMA
81M.

Columbia

ESTIMATE: Interesting programmer.

CAST: Vince Edwards, Lyle Talbot, John Archer, Steven Ritch, Patricia Blair, Joe Mell, Sherwood Price, Cathy Browne, Jean G. Harvey. Produced by Leon Chooluck; directed by Irving Lerner.

STORY: Vince Edwards escapes from prison with what he believes to be a cylinder full of pure heroin worth half a million dollars. He eludes a police dragnet and makes it to Los Angeles where he meets girl friend Patricia Blair. Police led by Lyle Talbot and John Archer learn that the cylinder actually contains enough radioactive cobalt to place everyone in the city in danger if it is opened. Dr. Steven Ritch, radiology expert, is called in and authorities agree to keep the danger secret until the last possible moment to avert a panic. Ritch explains that Edwards is doomed to die of radiation even if the cylinder is not opened because of his long exposure. Edwards, already coughing and sweating, first signs of poisoning, contacts Joe Mell, front man in the dope racket. Police seek Edwards via Geiger counters. Edwards kills Mell and a petty racketeer to keep the "dope." Police finally corner him, desperately sick in a luncheonette. Edwards dies and the city is out of danger as the cylinder is finally found.

X-RAY: This programmer manages to build considerable suspense in a story that hold interest throughout via sharp editing and credible performances. Edwards, a young actor on the rise, is fine in the lead and receives good support from the rest of the cast. Direction keeps things moving, and the production, though not an expensive one, is intelligently handled in all departments. It should prove an asset to the program in most situations. Screenplay is by Ritch and Robert Dillon.

TIP ON BIDDING: Program rates.

I Mobster (905)

MELODRAMA
80M.

20th-Fox
(CinemaScope)

ESTIMATE: Good gangster tale for the program.

CAST: Steve Cochran, Lita Milan, Robert Strauss, Celia Lovsky, Lili St. Cyr, John Brinkley, Grant Withers, Yvette Vickers, Frank Gerstle, Robert Shayne, Jeri Southern. Directed by Roger Corman; an Edward L. Alperson Production.

STORY: As gangster Steve Cochran refuses to answer questions put him by the Senate Rackets Committee, he mentally recalls his youth when he got his start running bets for local hoodlum Robert Strauss despite opposition from his mother and father. He next becomes involved in selling dope and is turned in when he refuses to extend credit. He serves his time, keeping his mouth shut, and the syndicate promotes him when he gets out. His girl, Lita Milan, tries to persuade him to go straight. The syndicate orders him to kill the brother of Wally Cassell. He moves up the ladder rapidly until he becomes the number two man, next to boss Grant Withers. When Milan needs a job badly, he tries to get her to work for him. She refuses so he hires her brother, John Brinkley. The latter becomes a dope addict whereupon Cochran fires him and gives him a beating. Milan agrees to go to work for him and is a witness when Cochran kills her brother. She denies to the police that he had anything to do with Brinkley's disappearance. Strauss tips him that Withers has ordered him eliminated, and he kills Withers instead, becoming the boss. After appearing before the Committee, the syndicate decides Cochran should be eliminated. Strauss is forced to do the job himself.

X-RAY: A purported expose of the operations of a criminal syndicate, this melodrama should do well on the program. The performances are good, especially Cochran's, the story is of average interest, and the direction and production are okay. Interest is maintained even though the subject matter has been done before. The screenplay is by Steve Fisher, based on the novel by Joseph Hilton Smyth. Several songs are heard. Incidentally, Lili St. Cyr does a tease of a strip tease for whatever this is worth in some situations. The film is adult fare.

TIP ON BIDDING: Fair program rates.

AD LINES: "He Killed My Brother And Put His Dirty Trade Mark On Me!"; "What Kind Of A Woman Could Love A Gangster?"

Rally 'Round The Flag Boys (904)

COMEDY
106M.

20th-Fox
(CinemaScope)
(Color by DeLuxe)

ESTIMATE: Cute, highly amusing comedy.

STORY: Paul Newman is in public relations, and he's also a typical commuter from the town of Putnam's Landing, Conn. He gets along well with pretty wife Joanne Woodward even though the latter is involved in all sorts of community committees. Neighbor Joan Collins is lonely even though married to TV mogul Mervyn Vye, and she turns to Newman. Meanwhile, the town has been selected as the site for an Army secret project, and Newman is named to go to Washington to get the Army to change the location. In Washington, he meets Colonel Gale Gordon, in charge of the project, and tough Captain Jack Carson, who is to oversee the installation. His mission fails. Back at his hotel, he is told his wife has checked in only to find Collins waiting for him. He spills her perfume on him in an effort to get away and has to hang his clothes to dry. At this moment, Woodward arrives. Conditions are frigid from here on in. When the soldiers arrive in town, the local boys are resentful, especially when the girls go for the boys in uniform. Woodward leads opposition to the Army, and Newman is ordered into uniform to help them overcome opposition. He gets Woodward to ease up personally as well as with the Army by suggesting a July 4 pageant. The latter sees a brawl between the town boys and the soldiers. Later, Gordon takes some prominent citizens on a tour of the installation, which turns out to be a missile to go to outer space. It accidentally goes off with Carson in it instead of a chimp. Newman and Woodward are reunited and go on a second honeymoon.

X-RAY: Based on a popular best seller, this entry has lots of fun to offer all types of viewers. Readers of the novel who may feel upset that it was not followed to the letter will get many a chuckle out of what emerges on screen. It's cute and amusing, and a sneak preview audience seemed to get quite a charge out of the filmed happenings. The cast does well and its members fit the characters in the book. The direction and production are good. The screenplay is by Claude Binyon and Leo McCarey, based on the novel by Max Shulman.

TIPS ON BIDDING: Higher program rates or better depending on situation.

AD LINES: "Fun For All The Family"; "The Funniest Of Books Becomes The Funniest Film Ever."

UA (Rosenberg-Subotsky)

ESTIMATE: Well-made prison yarn.

CAST: Mickey Rooney, Clifford David, Harry Millard, John McCurry, Ford Rainey, John Seven, Michael Constantine, John Vari, George Marcy, Donald Barry, Leon Janney, Clifton James, Milton Selzer, Frank Conroy, Alan Bunce, Frank Overton. Produced by Max J. Rosenberg and Milton Subotsky; directed by Howard Koch.

STORY: New prisoner Clifford David is brought into the death house to await electrocution and arrives in time to see one of the other inmates get "last mile" treatment that night. Eventually, he gets to know the others awaiting execution, including killer Mickey Rooney in the next cell. The men discuss their desires, fears, etc., until guard Donald Barry taunts them and orders them to shut up. The night of David's execution arrives, though the youngster hopes for a stay from the governor. When Barry ventures too close to Rooney, he grabs him, chokes him into unconsciousness, and uses his keys to open the cells. They surprise other guards and arm themselves. They seize the guards, Captain Leon Janney, who is warden Alan Bunce's brother-in-law, and priest Frank Overton. Bunce orders them to surrender, but Rooney demands a getaway car, Bunce refuses, and Rooney kills Barry and Janney. A number of convicts are killed by guard guns. Rooney decides to kill the priest, but David fights with him over this until he is badly wounded by bullets from the outside. David begs Rooney to finish him off as he doesn't want to go through the death row wait again, Rooney kills him, after which he realizes the hopelessness of it all and walks out to his own death in the prison yard.

X-RAY: Strong drama, unpleasant situations, hopeless men, and the spectre of death are to be found in this tale of men who await their end in prison. The film has been well-made with fine effort noticeable in all departments. Fresh talent breathes life into a yarn that appeared on stages and screens years ago, and the result is interesting and absorbing much of the time. Direction and production are good. Perhaps a special note should be taken of the talents of Mickey Rooney, who does well in the lead. In the opinion of this reviewer, this is one film that cannot be soft-pedaled in the selling. It has to be sold hard and with energy, and the results could be surprising since the subject is unorthodox and off-beat for many of today's audiences. The screenplay is by Milton Subotsky and Seton I. Miller.

TIP ON BIDDING: Program rates or better, depending on situation.

AD LINES: "They Waited In Killer's Row For Life To Run Out"; "Strong Drama In An Unusual Story Of Men Who Had To Walk 'The Last Mile.'"

UNIVERSAL

Stranger In My Arms (5914)

DRAMA
88M

Universal
(CinemaScope)

ESTIMATE: Drama has saleable angles, potent names.

CAST: June Allyson, Jeff Chandler, Sandra Dee, Conrad Nagel, Mary Astor, Charles Coburn, Peter Graves, Hayden Rorke. Produced by Ross Hunter; directed by Helmut Kautner.

STORY: War bride June Allyson of Peter Graves lives with his parents Conrad Nagel and Mary Astor and their younger daughter Sandra Dee. After three years word comes of Graves' death. Politician Charles Coburn, father of Nagel, helps Astor in her plans for a hospital memorializing her dead son, and also in her hopes to get him a posthumous Medal of Honor. Jeff Chandler, Air Force test pilot who was with Graves at the end, is the one man who can help them in their goal. Chandler knows that Graves was a weakling and a coward and that he actually committed suicide instead of being the hero his family believes. However, he doesn't have the heart to tell them the truth. Chandler is attracted to Allyson; but finds she is under the domination of her mother-in-law. Dee gets a crush on Chandler; but he points out to her she is only undergoing puppy-love. When Dee sees how much Chandler loves Allyson, she does everything she can to bring them together. Chandler finally turns over to Astor a letter Graves had entrusted him with. In this Graves had proclaimed his hatred for his mother for having tried to dominate his life. Astor tries to retain her hold on Allyson; but Nagel threatens to leave with Dee if Astor does not permit Allyson to lead her own life. She gives in and Allyson goes away with Chandler.

X-RAY: Strong on marquee value is this drama that also contains romance, conflict, tension, emotional strife, and a set of offbeat characters. Interest is maintained fairly well although the story, except for an intense climax, develops in a leisurely fashion. Performances are good and direction and production are effective. Strong emphasis on the names should prove of value. Women should best appreciate the situation of an over-protective mother bound to the memory of her dead son. Screenplay is by Peter Berneis based on the novel, "And Ride A Tiger" by Robert Wilder.

TIP ON BIDDING: Better program rates in many situations.

AD LINES: "A Potent Emotional Experience"; "A Great Book Hits The Screen With All Its Dramatic Impact".

The Girl In The Bikini

DRAMA
76M

Atlantis Films
(English Titles)
(French-made)

ESTIMATE: Bardot strikes again.

CAST: Brigitte Bardot, Jean Francois Calve, Howard Vernon, Espanita Cortez, Raymond Cordy. Produced and directed by Willy Rozier.

STORY: Student Jean Francois Calve learns there is a sunken treasure near a Corsican island where he once spent his vacation and where he met Brigitte Bardot, daughter of the lighthouse keeper. He borrows money and hires smuggler Howard Vernon and his boat. Calve and Bardot fall in love. They find some of the ancient treasure in jars, but since it is late, they leave them tied in a net beneath the boat. Vernon doublecrosses Calve and leaves with his boat. The student tries to follow and is almost drowned, being saved by Bardot. The lighthouse radio receives word that a storm has hit the vessel and it is lost at sea. Bardot tosses the one souvenir saved, a gold coin, into the sea.

X-RAY: Bardot is in a Bikini bathing suit much of the screen time which leaves little to the viewer's imagination. Where other of her efforts have gone over there is no reason to suppose that this shouldn't. The tempo is casual and slow at times, but the story isn't the prime attraction here. The effort is suited to the art and specialty spots and where regulation houses have found Bardot playable. The script is by S. Peche.

AD LINES: "That Girl They Are All Talking About In A Bikini"; "Bardot In A Bikini . . . And A Story Packed With Passion And Greed."

The Gypsy and The Gentleman

DRAMA

Rank
(Eastman Color)
(English-made)

ESTIMATE: Fair import.

CAST: Melina Mercouri, Keith Michell, Patrick McGoohan, June Laverick, Lyndon Brook, Flora Robson, Clare Austin, Helen Haye, Newton Blick, Mervyn Johns. Executive producer Earl St. John; produced by Maurice Cowan; directed by Joseph Losey.

STORY: Keith Michell, nobleman with a dwindling income, is betrothed to but not in love with the daughter of a wealthy squire. He loses his purse as well as his heart to gypsy Melina Mercouri, who tolerates his attentions for what she can get out of him for herself and her lover, Patrick McGoohan. He lives with her openly while McGoohan tends his horses. She threatens to leave unless he marries her, and he does, much to the regret of his sister, June Laverick. Mercouri and McGoohan plan to deprive her of an inheritance from an aunt, even persuading Michell to join them. They even persuade the crooked lawyer to alter the terms of the will. Laverick accidentally learns the truth, and before she can get away, is imprisoned on the grounds. She escapes and seeks sanctuary with an actress friend, Flora Robson. Laverick is tricked into an asylum but is rescued by Robson and boy friend Lyndon Brook. Michell tries to make amends, dying with Mercouri by drowning.

X-RAY: This import has its moments of action, torrid romance, and drama, and it can serve as lower half filler on the regular program or as part of the show in the art and specialty houses. The cast is alright as are the direction and production. The players are relatively unknown here which is a further limitation. It's best suitable for adults. The screenplay is by Janet Green based on the novel, "Darkness I Leave You," by Nina Warner Hooke.

AD LINES: "Their Love Was The Hottest Topic of Conversation"; "He Was Willing To Give Her Anything . . . Even His Life."

Kassler Films, Inc.

ESTIMATE: Excellent English comedy.

STORY: Ian Carmichael and Janette Scott announce their wedding plans, and the tumult begins. Her mother, Edith Sharpe, takes her on a whirlwind shopping trip, sends for dressmakers, for the trousseau, invites all the relatives, who soon are over-crowding the house, etc. Her father, Cecil Parker, who is not exactly enthused over his prospective son-in-law, finds himself very much in the way. One of her brothers, Nicholas Parsons, arrives with a rock 'n' roll girl friend, Elvi Hale, who sparks off a crisis when Scott mistakenly thinks Carmichael is flirting with her. At the wedding rehearsal, her nerves on edge, the lovers quarrel for the first time. Carmichael decides to act quickly to save the situation, bundles Scott into a car, and drives away to the flat they are to occupy after the marriage. Finding themselves wonderfully alone at last, they do not return home that night. Next morning, their wedding day, Carmichael knocks down a road sign and the bicycle of country constable Terry-Thomas, who arrests him. The anxious family learn that they are in jail. The hard-of-hearing magistrate, Miles Malleson, confuses all the evidence, but Parker finally arrives and saves the day. The couple is rushed to the church where everyone is waiting. The constable again catches up with them and places a summons for a number of violations on the car parked outside the church.

X-RAY: This decidedly lightweight farce is a brilliantly directed film that gets every laugh possible out of a number of familiar situations. It unfolds in such a natural manner and is so splendidly acted by the entire cast of types that the whole sparkles and shines. There is a possibility that women will go for this more so than the men, but all can not fail to find plenty to amuse them. Production is first rate. This should please as part of the program and should shine where English-made films are popular. It was written by Jeffrey Dell and Roy Boulting.

AD LINES: "Never A Wedding Like This!"; "A Mad Merry Bridal Frolic."

We recently had a very successful benefit with the University Woman's Association, which have chapters all over the country.

We contacted the organization and told them we understood they were looking for a way to raise money. Knowing that they were interested in bringing a form of culture to Glens Falls, I felt the first approach was to try and sell them on an art type of picture. They chose "To Paris With Love" starring Alec Guinness.

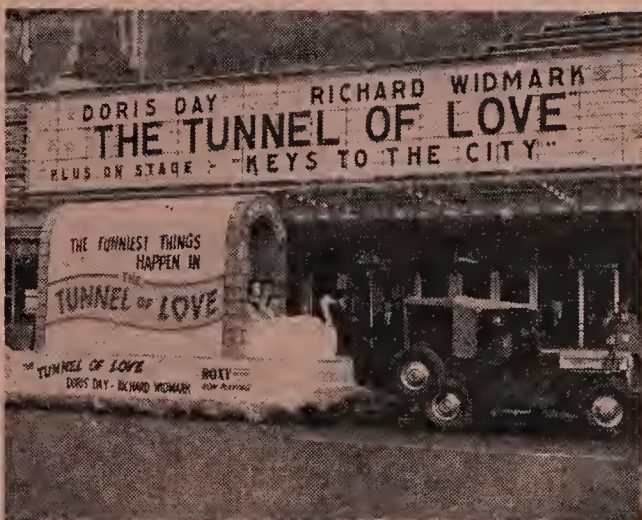

I then presented the plan I had in mind that would instill enthusiasm in the group for getting out and selling tickets. They really did a job, but it took considerable work on our part, keeping behind them and going through with our plan for them so that the opening night was a success for them, not only in sales, but also in presentation at the theatre.

I knew that among the people they reached would be many who do not ordinarily go to the movies, and who, if treated properly, with all the red carpet effect, would leave our theatre very pleased, and with a better thought for motion picture theatres.

So it was suggested to the ladies of the Association that they contact the merchants and have them put slugs in their ads on the benefit. I helped them with this and gave them some contacts. I suggested that the first ticket sold should be to the mayor, and a picture was run on this in the newspaper.

Red carpet from boxoffice to curb was used the night of the benefit with an usher out in front opening car doors and the entrance door for patrons. Ushers and doormen were in white gloves besides their uniforms. Coffee was served in the lobby by the Queensbury Hotel and this made a terrific hit. Organ music was played before screening time through a tieup with a record shop. All of the females of the theatre staff were attired in cocktail dresses. Paintings from several well known area artists were displayed in the lobby for viewing before and after the show and this proved of great interest to these people.

The University Women were thrilled with the way we handled this and our suggestions to them almost sold out the house; and our boxoffice that evening finished the job and really filled it. They want to rent the theatre the next time they have an occasion like this, and other organizations are thinking of the same thing—plus the fact that now, with the playing of "Bolshoi Ballet," we are getting cooperation from all of these organizations on this.

We did ourselves more good for public relations with these people, and also money in our boxoffice that night, than anything I have seen in recent years. This art patron is now behind the theatre 100 per cent for anything we aim to do; and I have great hopes for selling a subscribed series at this theatre later this year. They are now not only interested in art pictures; but are interested in some of the Hollywood productions that we have coming.

The night of the benefit the president of the University Women thanked the audience from the stage, and also thanked the merchants who helped make this a success, and especially the theatre for a wonderful job done in the presentation of a real theatre in town. I also told the people of some of our coming product that they would be interested in, which, by the way, created a lot of talk.

What is more natural than to exploit MGM's "Tom Thumb" with midgets? Here the little people are seen exploiting the film in a big way for Loew's neighborhood theatres in the big town of New York.

To me, giving this personal touch to your theatre operation, service, etc., is one of the best means of getting people back to the theatre. This benefit was the type of thing that got this message across—not in words alone, but in actual contact as well.

Natural Childbirth Sells "Dr. Laurent"

THEATRE: Beverly Canon

ADDRESS: Beverly Hills, Cal.

MANAGER: E. D. Harris

More American-made films lend themselves to exploitation than the foreign productions. Most "art" pictures are limited to newspapers, mailing lists, and contact with specialized groups.

However, every now and then "art" films can be exploited in Hollywood style, and we found such to be the case of Trans-Lux's "The Case Of Dr. Laurent." It was a little tough to sell, because of the subject matter, but we think we made a good try.

The Chandler Tujung Co-operative Nursery School sponsored a premiere benefit getting plenty of publicity in amusement and women's pages of the downtown dailies and the neighborhood papers.

We held special screenings for newspaper, television reviewers, and news editors; organization directors of doctor, nurses, social workers associations; city health departments; hospital staffs; medical social science and journalism instructors at two top colleges.

Through various contacts a lot of advance and current news and art breaks were obtained in the major dailies, plus personal-interview stories of professional people who favored the film and which were planted on the woman's pages.

Reviews of the film appearing in the school papers of University of Southern California and the University of California, Los Angeles, with a total circulation of 16,000, reached students and their families.

Tom Frensen, KRCA and June Levant, KTTV, heading their own television shows, interviewed guest movie star Coleen Gray, who had a child through 'natural childbirth,' the theme of "Dr. Laurent." Also interviewed on these programs was Dr. Mary Hungerford, supervisor of childbirth training program at American Institute of Family Relations. The majority of viewers of these programs are women.

Mention of the film's opening was made in bulletins sent to members of the Los Angeles County Medical Association; Southern California Nurses Association; Los Angeles Teachers Association; and the Social Workers Association.

Window displays were obtained in the Lane Bryant store fronting on a busy street. Booklets plugging "Dr. Laurent" were distributed in the store and also mailed to their customers.

A chance on a maternity outfit and a prenatal course to ladies was offered ladies attending the theatre. The Bryant store furnished the outfit and the course was donated by Dr. Hungerford, of American Institute of Family Relations.

Book shop window displays of "Dr. Laurent" photos, surrounded by books on child care, medicine, etc., were also obtained.

THE NEW ANNUAL "Showman-of-the-Year" CONTEST

Each individual achievement, selected by the Editorial Board and published in this every-second-week EXPLOITATION Section of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, will receive an Achievement Citation. Five by the same showman published in any one year will receive a SILVER Achievement Citation. And, should any showman ever accomplish ten in the same year, a GOLD Achievement Citation will be awarded. No weekly or monthly prizes will accompany such citations.

At each year's end, all such published achievements will be submitted to the "COMMITTEE OF 100" theatre circuit executives for their individual study and their personal choice of the BEST FIVE. A minimum of

will be awarded to the five "SHOWMEN-OF-THE-YEAR" so selected. Alert showmen, interested in the international distinction to be gained from such awards, will recognize that an advantage lies in winning repeated individual published achievements. Address all submissions and photographs to: GEORGE F. NONAMAKER, Feature Editor, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, 246-48 N. Clarion Street, Philadelphia 7, Penna.

and organize a 13 to 16 Movie Club which has proven to be a very good business builder.

First it has created a good feeling between the teenager and the management and has stopped the chiseling at the boxoffice with regards to their age; and, second, it has caused more adults to come with this age group because they have saved money.

We issued pass cards on wallet size, heavy card stock, reading: Guthrie-Lee 13-16 Movie Club. The individual presenting this ticket is (name) (address) (Date of birth). (Space for snapshot of member). The bearer certifies he or she was under 17 years of age on January 1, 1959. Holder may purchase one ticket good only for his or her admission at the reduced price of 45 cents. Not good for advanced priced pictures. On the reverse side, the cards read: Good only so long as management wishes to continue the plan with card being renewed each year. Misrepresentation of age on face of card, lending or buying ticket for another or IMPROPER CONDUCT IN THEATRE shall be reason for the management to revoke privileges this card implies. This card not transferable and must be returned when new card is presented at beginning of new year. Signed (Manager).

Since the school would not go along with us, we registered the students in the lobby. The Youth Center and my ushers took the register with them to school and signed up the members.

During the time we have been operating the club we have had three cards go through the wash and seven lost. It's lots of fun to see the kids smile and say "thanks for the break" for the reduced admissions. Also, we have less behavior trouble.

This attractive foyer display was erected recently at the Lyric, Wellingborough, England, by Frames Tours, Ltd., for the Rank film, "A Tale Of Two Cities," in a tieup made by manager R. J. Crabb.

How To Crash A TV Program

THEATRE: Downtown

ADDRESS: Mobile, Ala.

MANAGER: Joe D. Lyons

We recently worked out a very successful television promotion on Columbia's "The 7th Voyage Of Sinbad." Having a very small TV budget, we bought our spots where we thought they would be most effective, which was on WKRK, Channel Five, in conjunction with programs most attractive to children. Then we went to work on the station to give us some free time on "Popeye Cartoon Theatre," which appears daily from five to six p.m., and which stars Kevin O'Neill, who appears in a sailor costume. His costume, plus the Popeye Cartoons, makes this a "natural" for a tie-in with Sinbad.

In order to have an excuse to get in "live" on this program it was necessary to have someone appear in costume. After eliminating several ideas, such as harem girls, etc., we decided to use a Genie. We first thought about employing a midget as a Genie so that we would be able to have a rather elaborate script; but discarded the idea when none was available, so we decided to use a small boy.

This did not entail much of a search, as we noted that Gary Limmroth, our general manager's seven year old son just fit the part and had features similar to those of Richard Eyer, the movie Genie. Of course, we had to bribe him; but he took the part. The costume was the next problem; but this was secured at very little cost as Gary's 12-year old sister, Karen, using materials of her own made her brother up to look very much like a Genie. For the magic lamp, she wrapped gold foil around a gravy boat. She also wrote the script for the TV broadcast and rehearsed Gary.

All dressed up our Genie was introduced with much fanfare by O'Neill on his Popeye Theatre. Showing closeups of a large number of stills from the film, O'Neill made appropriate comments while they were exhibited. The first Popeye cartoon shown immediately after the live portion of the show was "Popeye Meets Sinbad The Sailor" and this, of course, added considerable to the program.

This having gone over in a big way, we felt that we should not let our Genie costume go to waste, so we decided to have Gary tour the town with one of our ushers carrying a placard on "The 7th Voyage Of Sinbad." This street bally was washed out, however, due to the elements, so we conceived the idea of having our Genie perform a real magic trick, which we hoped would get him on our other mobile television station WALA, Channel 10.

Contacting John Dixon, popular star of "Dixon On Disc," a teenage record hop show, we made arrangements to present our Genie on the opening day of "Sinbad." He was presented to the crowd on camera and received a large hand when Dixon asked him if he could perform any magic and he rubbed his lamp as pre-arranged, and a large gift package dropped from the sky into Dixon's hands. Stills from the film were also shown on this program. The only cost was the price of the "magic" present, a loud sports shirt.

We know that these two television appearances, easily duplicated, did considerable in promoting the picture as many of our patrons and friends have mentioned it to us.

Victor Nowe, manager, Odeon-Carlton, Toronto, Canada, had this most effective lobby display on Columbia's "High Flight."

Appropriate Tours Tie-Up

THEATRE: Lyric

ADDRESS: Wellingborough, England

MANAGER: R. J. Crabb

Recently I concentrated on tourism to exploit two different pictures and concluded highly profitable tieups with Frames Tours.

For Rank's "A Tale Of Two Cities," I arranged a simple contest. Patrons were invited to list as many of star Dirk Bogarde's performances as possible; and Frames Tours provided as a prize an air trip for two from Wellingborough to any city in England.

The travel agent arranged a most attractive foyer display which I augmented with 20 exhibition photographs of the stars relaxing off the set while on location at Bourges, France; and the distributor's board-sheets dealing with the production of costume films. These proved extremely interesting to patrons judging by the numbers who stopped to look at them and the comments. Another eye catcher was an "excitement" board featuring five exciting scene stills from the film.

For MGM's "Seven Hills Of Rome," I organized a "Yes" and "No" quiz contest listing a number of questions about Rome. The prize was again provided by Frames Tours and took the form of a rail and steamer trip with a visit to London Airport, some 70 miles away, for two. A completely new travel display with the emphasis on Italy was arranged for the foyer.

The R.C.A.F. Cooperates on "High Flight"

THEATRE: Odeon-Carlton

ADDRESS: Toronto, Canada

MANAGER: Victor Nowe

Weeks in advance of our engagement of Columbia's "High Flight" we visited the commanding officer of the Royal Canadian Air Force Base in Toronto and gave him full details of the film and setting up an immediate screening for Air Force Officers and executive personnel.

The screening took place four days after my visit and as a result the film received enthusiastic endorsements. A special bulletin was issued by the base and sent to every unit including all Air Cadet Units throughout the city, advising them of the film and its coming to the theatre, and recommending that every member of the Air Force see it.

DO IT YOURSELF!

This is a runner-up entry in last year's MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR'S SHOW-MANSHIP SWEEPSTAKES in which the publication paid out $5,000 in awards.

These entries were judged as outstanding by a panel of experienced theatremen. They can be readily adapted on a "do it yourself" basis by you for your theatre. If you didn't save them originally—do so now!

MAJORETTE AND TWIRLING CONTEST

Submitted by Murray Spector
Central, Jersey City, N. J.
1900 seats • 85 cents top admission
General patronage.

This stunt attracted 12 contestants with the youngsters demonstrating their skill in baton twirling. The girls wearing shimmering costumes and tassled boots, competed for major prizes. They ranged in age from five to 14 years and many had experience at previous contests and had been selected as County Champions.

The contest was judged by expert twirlers including a past commander of the Jersey City American Legion, who had 12 years' experience in judging twirlers and drum corps; and a department chairman of the contest committee of the New York State American Legion.

In addition to the contestants there were present previous twirling and strutting winners, who were on hand to give exhibitions on their skill in this art. These exhibitions were performed by youngsters in the five and seven year class. These exhibitions were performed while the judges were making their final decisions for the contest and were quite an asset to the program.

As another added attraction, three attractively attired teen-agers performed with accuracy a specialty number in total darkness with lighted batons, and this was well received by the audience.

Fifteen local merchants were tied in with the contest and supported the program with lavish gifts, some ranging as high as $40 in value. With this incentive, many skilled and talented twirlers were attracted to the contest. There were also prizes for those who were not in the winning circle. Everyone appearing received a gift with the top winners naturally getting the big prizes. In addition, 15 boxes of candy were promoted and to sweeten the youngsters each received a box and a prize so they were all happy.

Local newspapers covered the event and we received good publicity both before and after the event. Word of mouth comments were most favorable. It seems everyone had a good time, both performers and audience, and we feel that the results were well worth the effort.

At all their meetings from that date, the film was announced and a 40x60 on it was placed at every base, featuring opening date and theatre credit. Ten days in advance of opening, the Cawthra Square Recruiting Air-Force Base cooperated by giving us an excellent lobby display featuring pilot equipment, flags, plaques, awards, trophies and photographs from their collection. They utilized the display to promote recruiting and two cadets were on duty in uniform, which added greatly to the atmosphere and selling power of the display. A life-size model in full flying kit, including a pressurized suit, breathing apparatus, helmet and boots, seated in the latest type cockpit ejector seat, was featured.

At a concert given by the RCAF band, a special announcement was made of the showing gratis.

On opening night we had a grand parade of 200 Air Cadets with their officers and band to see the film as our guests. Upon arrival at the theatre the band played a number of march selections which created plenty of out front excitement.

This "French" maid served tidbits of French cheese and bread and a soft drink in the lounge of the State, Sioux Falls, S. D., as advance publicity for MGM's "Gigi."

The Air Force was truly a great agent for us in selling "High Flight." Their public work is indeed excellent and their contacts wide and vast. The young cadets gave us wonderful assistance, the recruiting officers supplied us with many posters and the equipment displays. As a result we obtained much added publicity in the press; and window tieups were readily obtained, including those with Canadian Pacific Airlines, Trans Canada Airlines and BOAC Airlines bureaus.

French Gifts Promote "Gigi"

THEATRE: State

ADDRESS: Sioux Falls, S. D.

MANAGER: Cliff Knoll

Starting nine days before opening of MGM's "Gigi" we arranged to have a cute "French" girl visit all television and radio shows giving each personality a bottle of champagne, French cheese, French bread and a "Gigi" record. Through this promotion we succeeded in getting our girl interviewed on 20 radio and TV shows. This was a natural and should be easy to duplicate wherever the film plays.

We sent the same girl with her gifts to the Argus Leader where she presented the city editor, the movie editor and the society editor with the same gifts. The city editor was so delighted with this stunt that we wound up in the Round Robin column five days before the picture opened.

In an effort to reach the type of people who would enjoy "Gigi," we mailed a thousand perfumed cards to the Community Playhouse membership.

Taking advantage of our heavy weekend crowds, we had our "Gigi" girl in the main lounge of the theatre offering to patrons tidbits of French cheese and bread and a PARAMOUNT, in addition to the rest of its vast promotional campaign for "The Buccaneer," has come up with "The Buccaneer Eye Patch," which they claim to have tested and found terrific. It's a simple exploitation idea that costs only $15 in minimum lots of 500 and one that will have the kids all over town copying each other to get on the band wagon. They should be distributed every place youngsters congregate; and every kid will be a walking ad to help promote the film in his street or section. For complete information contact your nearest Paramount exchange.

Universal as part of its expanding word-of-mouth promotional campaign on "The Perfect Furlough" arranged to provide a special illustrated postal card for distribution in domestic U.S. Army installations which will show the film prior to its scheduled mid January release. The special illustrated postal cards are for mailing by servicemen to their families back home telling them about having seen the picture and urging them to see it when it comes to their home town. The initial postal card order was for 50,000 cards.

Columbia has set a strong music promotion campaign on "Senior Prom." Columbia and Capitol both have disk hits recreated from the film. Special disc jockey kits containing the records and a host of material about the film and its stars is being distributed to 750 disc jockeys across the country.

Swap Night For Drive-Ins

THEATRE: Gulf Drive-In

ADDRESS: Corpus Christi, Tex.

MANAGER: Ed Farmer

We inaugurated Swap Night as a drive-in promotion early last summer and have continued it at intervals all season.

It is very simple. We just invite our patrons to come an hour before show time and bring anything they have to sell or trade, and trade with each other.

We furnish a master of ceremonies on the patio with a microphone which goes out to all speakers to carry on the trading or "swapping" and get the people together.

We have a special pass on postal cards which we mail out to certain guests such as used furniture dealers, car dealers, etc. These people can keep the trading going as most of them will buy or trade for anything.

The general public seem to enjoy the proceedings very much and it gives our concession a good boost since we get the crowds in early.

ESTIMATE: Could fit German houses.

CAST: Hildergarde Neff, O. W. Fisher, Viktor de Kowa, Karl Judwig Diehl, Fritz V. Fredersdorf, Claus Bierderstaedt, Maria Paulder, Helga Siemers, Alf Pankartar, Reinhold Schunzel. A Topaz Film, produced by Eric Pommer; directed by Rudolf Jugert.

STORY: O. W. Fisher, a young officer in the German army of a more colorful day, meets Hildergarde Neff, who is an actress and Viktor de Kowa's mistress. They fall in love, but the romance is frowned upon by Fisher's relatives, his fellow officers, his superiors, and even his command. When Fisher insists that he is going to marry Neff despite his colonel's orders not to, and that he will resign, a situation develops where his friends appeal to Neff. Convinced that she is harming Fisher after she witnesses a demonstration of his men, who do not wish him to resign, Neff goes to his colonel and asks him to tear up the resignation. She carries out her promise to disappear. Fisher, though heartbroken, returns to his command.

X-RAY: This vintage story of love overcome by social standards and what some may view as duty moves along at a dull pace, encumbered by stilted dialogue. The rambling plot may appeal to those who understand German and who do not have to depend upon subtitles, or to those who like tales of love frustrated by conventions and ennobled by self sacrifice. The screenplay is by Alex Eggebrecht and Carl Zuckmayer.

AD LINES: "She Gave Him Love But Saved His Honor"; "Their Love Was Great But Convention Was Stronger."

Mad Little Island

94M

(British-made)

(Eastman Color)

ESTIMATE: Amusing entry for art and specialty spots.

CAST: Jeannie Carson, Donald Sinden, Roland Culver, Catherine Lacey, Noel Purcell, Ian Hunter, Duncan Macrae, Jean Cadell, Gordon Jackson, Alex Mackenzie. Produced by Basil Dearden; directed by Michael Relph.

STORY: A tiny isle off the coast of Scotland is selected by British authorities for a rocket base. Officer Donald Sinden is sent to explore the island and to secretly get to know the people. He is accepted by the people and is attracted to school teacher Jeannie Carson. Other officials follow and report on the plan to the people, informing them that some may have to be moved. The inhabitants plan to battle officialdom. Carson helps lead the movement which confuses men and equipment until eviction orders are enforced with troops. The only thing left to appeal to is public opinion, and Carson gets the idea of enlisting bird watchers who are many and influential. Pink gulls, so dyed by a few inhabitants secretly, are discovered, and the newspaper headlines scream with the whole nation becoming involved in the controversy. Authorities reverse their stand and the island is saved. Carson and Sinden admit their love, when the pink gulls lay their eggs, the baby birds are pink as well.

X-RAY: Charming and cute is this import that should amuse and entertain art and specialty house audiences with its quietly interesting yarn, its capable performances, its adequate direction and production, and its bevy of off-beat characters. It holds interest fairly well throughout. The screenplay is by Monja Danischewsky, based on the novel by Compton Mackenzie.

AD LINES: "Fun For All"; "This Comedy Will Charm Everybody."

THE SERVICESECTION is the only service of its kind giving a full coverage listing, and reviews of all features and shorts in the domestic market.

Alan Trading Company

ESTIMATE: Average burlesque film.

CAST: Rita Ravel, Misty Ayres, Mitzi Doerre, Bobbie Bruce, Libby Jones, Snuffy Smith, others. Produced by Harry Wald, directed by Phil Tucker.

X-RAY: There is no story to this—merely a series of stale burlesque bits by two alleged comics to space a series of strip tease numbers. Among the gals are a few names familiar to burlesque theatre devotees. This can be exploited in spots where it can be shown without censor interference. Production is most economical the one set used being a Mexican cabaret interior. Sound and photography are satisfactory.

AD LINES: "Burlesque South Of The Border"; "Torrid 'N' Terrific!"

Sixth fleet, and scenes and settings from the Brussel's World Fair. EXCELLENT.

COLOR NOVELTY

N.Y., N.Y. United Artists. 15M. This impressionistic Technicolor subject about "A Day In New York" won a prize at the Brussels World Film Festival. It was made by Francis Thompson and has a musical score by Gene Forell. It is all shifting patterns of semi-abstract images with unusual effects achieved through the use of many different types of lenses. It is almost too arty for the average audience and seems a trifle long. GOOD.

ONE REEL

CINEMASCOPE COLOR NOVELTY

ROCKETS ROAR. 20th-Fox CinemaScope Novelty. 10m. In DeLuxe Color, this timely subject made with the aid of the U.S. Army and the Department of Defense, shows the many types of rockets being tested in White Sands, N.M., and Cape Canaveral, Fla. The guided missiles that can almost think for themselves are seen seeking out and destroying targets. GOOD. (7810).

MGM BACK ON THE TRACK

THERE WAS probably no one thing in recent years that gave the exhibition fraternity the jitters quite so much as the 1957 tumble of "The Mighty Leo" into a faltering, loss-ridden, proxy-fight threatened, headless old cat. For more than 30 years the influence of MGM on the entire industry thinking had been great. MGM had bred such giants as Marcus Loew, Irving Thalberg, Nick Schenck, Louis B. Mayer, Bill Rodgers, Howard Dietz, Charlie Reagan, and a host of individual successful producers. It was MGM that made, and had, "More stars than there are in Heaven!" In virtually every territory the MGM branch manager or branch salesman carried admitted prestige and importance that was shared by few others. With the threatened collapse of this production titan, exhibitors trembled.

So it is with a great deal of relief and satisfaction that the exhibitors of the world can view the recent results, and the future promise that is MGM's today. President Joseph R. Vogel, out of admitted loyalty to the parent company that had been his lifework, left the relative calm of the theatre department to head the chaotic whole. He took up a fight with his back literally against the wall. The need for economies brought many a heartache. But MGM was put back on the track and started to move forward.

The fiscal year ending last August turned a previous year's loss of over $400,000 into a profit of nearly $800,000. And the first quarter of the current year, that ended with November, 1958, showed a continued rise with a net profit of $2,625,000. So the elements that threatened to "spin off" this prime source of important films have retired into the shadows with a bundle of dough that they made on their stock appreciation; and the road ahead, as witnessed by the current announcements in the trade press, is more reminiscent of "The Mighty Leo" of old than any similar MGM announcement of the last 10 years.

Sparked by this future promise, many a theatreman will throw back his shoulders and renew the fight, who otherwise might have tossed in the sponge. So let's give a hand to Joe Vogel, and to his team of Sol Siegel, Ben Thau, Howard Strickling, Jack Byrne, et al., for having jockeyed "The Mighty Leo" back on the track to success.

THINGS TO REMEMBER NEXT CHRISTMAS

THOSE WHO LOOKED around last Thanksgiving Day, and who saw the Christmas tinsel, lights, and ornaments that were already swinging across every Main Street in every town and neighborhood, had to realize that the pre-holiday season has been stretched and stretched until it now runs six weeks or more. At the rate it has been moving forward in recent years, it isn't unreasonable to believe that eventually we'll just about get past Labor Day when we'll be in it. And with the pre-holiday season comes the holiday slump.

Part of this slump comes from no really attractive pictures. Every distributor sits on his good ones and waits for a holiday release. So across the land patrons have a great choice of some pretty blood-curdling horror and science-fiction double features. But nothing more. And then, come the actual holiday weeks, a whole assortment of blockbusters, several of them ideal for the kids who are out of school, knock one another's brains out in the big-city first-runs, while the sequents and key second-runs continue to serve some pretty blood-curdling horror and science-fiction double features.

But such are the policies of this industry, and while the big-city first-runs account for so much of the national gross we suspect it is foolhardy to hope for change.

Across our desk, however, we have observed many theatre-men who turned the pre-holiday slump to advantage.

There were many who put a key in the lock three weeks before Christmas with the announcement that they would use the interval before reopening Christmas Day to house-clean, to repaint, and to repair and reupholster their seats, in preparation for a new year of bigger and better pictures. Employees were given the three weeks as their vacation. And, contrary to popular belief, it doesn't seem that any movie-going habits were destroyed, for when the theatres reopened patrons showed new appreciation for their large-screen, commercial-free, and genuine color features by appearing in bigger crowds than usual.

In two other towns, that must remain nameless for obvious reasons, three or four week pre-holiday closings were used as propaganda against local admission taxes. In one town the two theatres, while owned by different interests, agreed to close, and found no difficulty in encouraging more than 10,000 protests to the mayor and city council when they claimed it would be impossible to reopen in the face of a 10 per cent tax. So many riled patrons pack tremendous influence, and a tax repeal was voted quickly and crowds packed the theatres when they reopened during Christmas week.

In a second town three theatres closed for three weeks in protest, but weren't quite so fortunate. The town people are behind them, however, and local businessmen have endorsed their stand against a 10 per cent local tax with promises to help them have it lifted in the 1959 budget. In the meanwhile, the three theatres gave vacations and didn't actually lose too much.

So the value of closing for a while during the pre-holiday slump should receive close consideration. It isn't too costly a venture, for we know of some relatively important theatres that experienced $16 and $23 nights last December. If your theatre needs repainting and refurbishing, here is the opportunity. Or if it is felt that such action would have a desired effect on neighboring businessmen, or the public, or on local politicians, here also is the opportunity. Maybe, too, there can be a combination of all of these.

In any event, this is what just a few others have done. Think it over!

Letters . . .

UNSOLICITED • The letters from readers which appear on this page are not solicited. MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR does not suggest questions to readers in order to provide a flow of letters.

From PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (Can.)

We find MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR indispensable to our booking department. Don't reduce your yellow SERVESECTION in any way.

H. G. STEVENSON, Manager
Princess Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: Year-end totals showed that M.P.E. had reviewed 448 Features to other papers' 377 to 317. That M.P.E. had reviewed 174 Short Subjects to other papers' 71 to none at all. And that M.P.E.'s alphabetical index (SERVESECTION) is the only one that covers a full year, with data on 571 Features. By actual count, others had data on only 336, 257, and 141 Features respectively. We plan on keeping such M.P.E. records complete and accurate—and on not reducing them in any way.

From TORRINGTON, CONN.

Reading the letter from "A SMALL TOWN MANAGER" on the uses of Stereo Sound (Dec. 3 issue) prompts us to send in the attached newspaper ad on "MARDI GRAS" as carried by us during the week ending Nov. 29. The only way we can see to get on the Stereo Sound "bandwagon" is to tell the folks about it in your ads. And in addition to newspapers, we plug Stereo Sound over radio.

As for knowing whether a print is Stereo or not, you can always depend on 20th Century-Fox to make a musical with it, and we always request a Stereo print. Our only criticism directed to film distributors is that a single and double column ad mat, with Stereo Sound copy, should be included in their press books. Separate, of course, from the other ad mats.

But the man in Newton is right. Stereo Sound is sure a "hot" item.

JOHN J. SCANLON, Manager
Warner Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: Featured across the top of Mr. Scanlon's newspaper ad was: "The only theatre in a radius of 25 miles equipped with STEREOGRAPHIC SOUND, plus 18,000 sq. ft. Cinemascope Screen. SEE and HEAR . . . etc." It is smart to sell and keep selling. Never depend on the patrons' memory. Remind them! Particularly when you are offering something in which they have a proven interest.

From SPENCERVILLE, O.

Just take a look at the pink REVIEWS section from your Dec. 10, 1958, issue, and the titles are enough to keep most people away from the theatres. What titles: "THE BRAIN EATERS," "HOW TO MAKE A MONSTER," "TEENAGE CAVEMAN," "TERROR FROM THE YEAR 5000," "MURDER BY CONTRACT," "HOT ANGEL," "INTENT TO KILL," and "FRANK-ENSTEIN'S DAUGHTER."

I know you only review them, just as we only play some because we can't find anything else. One every now and then might be all right, but why do they insist on making so many?

Why not more "MA AND PA KETTLE," or "FRANCIS" pictures, or others of this calibre? They would certainly do enough extra business to offset the extra cost. Or do they cost more?

THEODORE CHRIST
Ohio Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: That was a bundle wasn't it! But we're afraid there aren't enough Spencervilles to make the "KETTLE" and the "FRANCIS" pictures profitable. Those "horror" shows can play the big cities and the Spencervilles, too!

From BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

I am writing this letter to thank you for all of your courteous services which have so greatly assisted me during the past year. They were very much appreciated by me. Just as an example, the yellow SERVESECTION was invaluable for finding running times, and the dozens of other things necessary to scheduling my shows. May your holidays be joyous, and may the coming year be full of happiness.

MICHAEL SABAL, Booker
Cameo Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: The editors of this page want to hope Mr. Sabal, and all of the other thousands of friendly readers whom he typifies, had a Very Merry Christmas, and have a 1959 that is full of happiness and success.

From COLONIAL BEACH, VA.

I find MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR to be quite indispensable and I don't know what I would do without it. It is most useful in making up the programs for our theatre here on the beach. But there is one fault that I have noticed recently. In the short subject listings I have a hard time looking up the cartoons and other shorts for the running time, etc., because they don't seem to be complete and up-to-date.

M. C. HIXSON
Mayfair Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: As a result of this and other suggestions and criticisms, The Shorts Parade that appears in every-second-issue of the yellow SERVESECTION is being re-edited, re-enlarged, and re-dressed into a 1959 model that we feel will be the industry's best. It is good to observe theatremen who share our own regard for the importance of shorts.

From HUNLOCK CREEK, PA.

I want to compliment MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR on its very good reporting of the important industry news.

ARTHUR H. CRAGLE, Manager
Garden Drive-In Theatre

From SALEM, MASS.

We read every issue of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR from cover to cover, and find it very informative.

RAYMOND T. WHITE
The New Plaza Theatre

From JEFFERSON CITY, TENN.

MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR is getting better all the time.

SARA MALOY, Supervisor
Maloy Indoor-Outdoor Theatre

About 437 LETTERS in 1958

To begin with, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR welcomes letters. MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR published 437 of them in 1958. Letters from completely identified industry executives are unquestionably the true proof of active readership. MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR likes to learn what its subscribers are thinking about it, about industry problems, and about all matters of public interest. But it can't possibly find space to print all of the scores of weekly letters on such subjects that flow in.

Many writers may wonder why their letters haven't been picked or chosen. Possibly it is timely to state some of the reasonings used:

No letter is ever sidetracked because it expresses views in conflict with editorial policy. None is omitted because it criticizes MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR. And none because someone in a position of industry importance might not like it.

The basis of selection is the probable degree of reader service, and industry interest, in the matter on which the writer expresses an opinion.

MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR does not care to publish letters: (1) calculated to give rise to religious or racial controversy, (2) couched in abusive language, (3) inspired by propagandists, (4) restricted to subjects concerning the writer only, or (5) obviously presented to avoid the costs of advertising. It prefers short letters to long ones, and it reserves the right to editorially boil down any missives that are objectionable only because of their length.

A few things more: Anonymous letters will receive no consideration. Names may be withheld from publication if the writers so request, but the names and addresses of writers must accompany letters intended for publication. Neither will MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR solicit executive opinion on some controversial topic, and then publish the replies in such a way as to leave the impression of voluntary letters from readers. Papers with bona fide reader interest and reader reaction don't need to "phony" them.

Subscribers who conform to the qualifications above have long been contributing to the readability of, and interest in, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR. We are grateful to them.

MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR publishes more letters than any other trade paper because it receives more letters than any other trade paper. It's as simple as that!

Detroit Fire Kills Three

DETROIT—Twenty pieces of fire-fighting apparatus were summoned by three alarms Saturday morning (Jan. 17) to extinguish a blaze at the Hotel Tuller where Variety Club of Detroit pitches Tent Five on the 14th floor.

The conflagration, which took three lives and injured 30, did $1,000,000 damage, final estimates revealed. Fire fighters rescued 427 persons. Variety's loss could not be assessed at once since elevators were knocked out and no one was permitted in the building. However, the fire was halted on the lower floors and it is presumed Variety's loss will be confined to smoke damage.

Esther Mundy, attendant for more than 20 years, was about to enter the premises to prepare the celebration culminating Variety Week which was to have taken place Saturday night. Had she been minutes earlier, she would have been trapped with hundreds of others. No barkers were in the Tent when the fire broke out.

Lewis Goes Indie

HOLLYWOOD—Paramount Pictures and the new Jerry Lewis Productions have completed negotiations for a producer-talent-distribution arrangement that this year will yield Lewis' first independent picture under his new production banner.

BROADWAY GROSSES

Holdovers Dominate

NEW YORK—A week dominated by hold-over product registered average grosses. One opening, UA's "Anna Lucasta," took place at the Victoria.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"THE INN OF THE SIXTH HAPPINESS" (20th-Fox). Paramount $33,403*—The sixth week registered a strong $36,000.

"AUNTIE MAME" (Warners). Radio City Music Hall ($142,115)—Thursday through Sunday accounted for $85,000, with the seventh and last week headed for $126,000. Stage show.

"THE 7TH VOYAGE OF SINBAD" (Columbia). Roxy, the stage show, registered $39,000 for the fifth and last week.

"THE BUCCANEER" (Paramount). Capitol ($41,926)—The fourth week was reported as $23,500.

"THE GEISHA BOY" (Paramount). Mayfair expected the fifth week to reach $11,000.

"ANNA LUCASTA" (United Artists). Victoria ($19,202)—The first week registered a satisfactory $26,000.

"SEPARATE TABLES" (United Artists). Astor ($19,115)—The fifth week was $25,000.

"BELL, BOOK AND CANDLE" (Columbia). Odeon reported the fourth week as $13,200.

"A NIGHT TO REMEMBER" (Rank). Criterion announced the fifth week as $17,872.

"RALLY 'ROUND THE FLAG, BOYS" (20th-Fox). RKO Palace anticipated the fourth week at $16,000.

Cincinnati Tent Marks Active Variety Week

CINCINNATI—Tent 3 observed Variety Week with a varied program which included installation of officers; a radio-TV luncheon; inspection of facilities at the new Goodwill Industries; and numerous TV and radio announcements, calling attention to Variety Week.

George Palmer, WKRC-TV, was master of ceremonies for installation of 1959 officers in Metropole Hotel clubrooms, with the new officers being inducted by Judge Gilbert S. Bettman, Common Pleas Court. Nathan Wise, publicist, succeeded William Onie, exhibitor, as chief barker.

Wise installed Ladies Auxiliary officers at a clubroom luncheon attended by 65, including personalities of radio, TV, and the press. Local radio and TV executives were luncheon guests for a round-table discussion of future Tent activities.

The week's program closed with a dinner, honoring former barkers and their wives at Goodwill Industries, a major Tent project. It has assumed the cost of a Goodwill building for mentally and physically handicapped persons, aged 16 to 30, which was opened late last year. Guests toured the building and witnessed demonstrations of programs underway at Goodwill.

Membership in Tent 3 is now at an all time high, with its projects being financed by dues, parties, and a yearly appeal to the public on Old Newsboys Day, which annually provides about $20,000 for the Goodwill program.

RKO Circuit Ups Alexander

NEW YORK—Joseph Alexander last week was named RKO Theatres' division manager for Ohio by Harry Mandel, vice-president for theatre operations. With this promotion, Alexander, who was city manager for Cincinnati, will supervise all RKO Theatres in Columbus, Dayton, and Cincinnati.

Exhibs Everywhere Learn Of ACE

Meetings Throughout U.S. Carry Message Of Unity; Local Committees Formed, Ideas Of All Solicited

NEW YORK—Close to a hundred exhibitors and equipment manufacturer representatives attended the regional meeting of American Congress of Exhibitors last week at the Hotel Astor, where the aims and committee reports were endorsed unanimously. It was estimated that about 800 theatres were represented at the session, presided over by Max A. Cohen of the national executive committee.

Local heads of committees were named as follows: toll TV, Leslie Schwartz; producer-exhibitor relations, Wilbur Snaper; ways and means to obtain more product, Charles B. Moss; research, Harry Goldberg; industry-government relations, Sol Strausberg.

Exhibitors were asked to submit ideas and suggestions to these committees and to volunteer to serve on the committees they can best aid. The meeting voted endorsement of the 1959 telecast of the Academy Awards as well as the forthcoming Brotherhood Drive of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

National chairman Si Fabian addressed the gathering, as did a number of others on the dais which contained Sid Stern, Harry Brandt, Wilbur Snaper, Irving Dollinger, Ed Fabian, Maury Miller, Sol Schwartz, and Sol Strausberg. A question and answer period was also in order.

Phila. Exhibitors Urged To Buy Film Firm Stocks

PHILADELPHIA—Exhibitors of the area were briefed on the development of the American Congress of Exhibitors (ACE) at a meeting last fortnight at the Sheraton Hotel presided over by chairman William Goldman.

After reports on the ACE program and purpose, a resolution was passed approving the new organization unanimously.

Goldman suggested that exhibitors buy stock in each film company to give them as holders a more potent voice in their activities. The idea was enthusiastically received, and it is believed that action will be taken along these lines. Lester Krieger, secretary, Pennsylvania Association of Amusement Industries, is to be advised of the number of shares each exhibitor purchases in each company.

A "get acquainted with your Congressman" plan was discussed, with the consensus being that exhibitors should inform them of present industry problems, particularly those of the theatre men.

It was stated that at present ACE is not asking for financial support in the nature of dues.

It was apparent that the success of ACE in the Philadelphia territory might be more speedy than elsewhere since the area is peculiarly free from any entanglement with other exhibitor organizations.

Speakers at the initial session, which was attended by over 70, included V. C. Smith, independent exhibitor and co-chairman; Harry Goldberg, Fabian-Stanley Warner; Tom Friday, Comerford Circuit; John Coyle, Comerford Circuit; Frank Damis, Stanley Warner Theatres; ad Jay Emanuel, publisher, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR.

Similar meetings took place in other cities.

VCI Presents President Gold Life Membership

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A highlight of the observance of the first official Variety Clubs Week was the presentation of a gold lifetime membership card to President Eisenhower by George Eby, international chief barker of the Variety Clubs. Also present were Perry Como, Kim Novak, John H. Harris of California, Robert J. O'Donnell of Texas, and Nate Golden of Washington, D. C., the last three Big Boss, Ringmaster, and Heart Chairman respectively of the Variety Clubs.

Maryland, N.Y. Study Film Classification

ANNAPOLIS, MD.—It was learned last fortnight that 28 delegates and seven state senators have joined and plan to introduce a twin bill in both houses which would make it unlawful in Maryland for children under 18 to be permitted to view motion pictures termed "obscene" for a person of their years.

Under the measure, similar to a bill with a 16-year age provision defeated by a close margin last year, willful violators would be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by fines of up to $25 for each offense.

Sponsors claim there is a public demand in favor of legislation which would empower the State Board of Motion Picture Censors to license films for adults only.

The bills will be sent to the House Judiciary and Senate Judicial Proceedings Committees.

Meanwhile, in Albany, similar legislation was being pressed in both houses. This bill would call for films licensed by the Motion Picture Division, State Education Department, to be classified by it into one of three categories: general patronage; adults and adolescents; and adults only. Under the terms of the New York bill exhibitors would be required to note the classification in all advertising.

MPAA Votes COMPO Support

NEW YORK—The MPAA board last week voted to continue to match the contributions of exhibitors to COMPO.

With the MPAA okay, it was said COMPO will now institute a dues drive among theatre operators.

The scale will remain unchanged as follows: four-wall houses up to 500 seats, $7.50; up to 750 seats, $11.25; up to 1,000 seats, $18.75; up to 2,500 seats, $37.50; and over 2,500 seats, $75. For drive-ins the scale is up to 300 cars, $7.50; up to 500, $11.25; up to 600, $18.75; and over 600, $37.50.

Siegel Supervises MGM-TV

HOLLYWOOD—MGM last fortnight placed all the studio television film production under the personal supervision of production chief Sol C. Siegel, who announced that TV filming will now become a major part of the company's general program.

Richard Maibaum, executive producer of MGM-TV, will be in direct day-to-day charge. The studio's expanded TV production program now numbers seven prospective series shows and a further increase is contemplated, Siegel said.

Rep. Harris Submits Bill To Bar Pay-TV

WASHINGTON—Representative Oren Harris, the leading Congressional foe of toll television, last fortnight submitted a bill to bar pay TV unless Congress enacts legislation to regulate such service.

The bill covers both broadcast and cable televising.

Congressman Harris' draft would permit confined technical tests of pay TV for relatively short periods. Experimental licenses will not be granted until 30 days after adjournment of the current session of Congress, and then only if Congress has not by then enacted a legislative ban against the proposed system.

Harris promised "early hearings" on his bill and others which propose to legislate pay TV out of acceptance.

Harris explained, "Until new legislation has been enacted specifically setting forth the terms under which pay TV operations by radio or wire may be conducted, FCC should be prohibited from authorizing any person to engage in such operations."

Setting up regulations requires as a prerequisite a decision on whether pay TV would be in the public interest. Harris added, "Pay TV is likely to result in the imposition of great financial burden on the American people without bringing about a corresponding improvement in television programs, unless Congress first enacts adequate Federal legislation providing for regulation in the public interest of any such operations."

Enactment of the resolution would void FCC's decision to consider licensing experimental pay stations 30 days after Congress adjourns this year, pending draft of the rules, an action twice deferred on committee requests without supporting legislation.

300 Honor Si Fabian

NEW YORK—Si Fabian, president, Stanley Warner Corporation, was tendered a 60th birthday celebration and honored for his motion picture and philanthropic leadership at a dinner at the Sheraton-East Hotel last fortnight at which pledges totalling $150,000 were made to the 116 health and welfare agencies of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies.

Barney Balaban, Paramount Pictures head, was chairman of the affair attended by nearly 300 leaders of the amusement and motion picture industry. Fabian was presented with a plaque by Federation president Gustave L. Levy, while Balaban presented him with a clock on behalf of the celebration committee.

PCA Increases Fees

NEW YORK—The MPAA board last week announced an increase in the schedule of fees of the Production Code Administration effective on Feb. 1.

The new scale is based upon a new production cost alignment. At present, a Class A feature is termed one with a negative cost of more than $500,000 and the PCA fee is $1,500. Under the revised scale, a Class A feature is one with a negative cost of $1,500,000 and over, and the fee will be $2,500.

This is the first increase in the PCA fees since 1954. The only film category to escape the increase was short subjects.

Buy Company Stock, Kerasotes Tells Exhibs

SAN FRANCISCO—George G. Kerasotes, president, Theatre Owners of America, and member of the executive committee of the American Congress of Exhibitors, proposed at a luncheon meeting of Northern California Theatres Association last fortnight that "every exhibitor purchase stock in the motion picture companies of at least $1,000 for every theatre he owns" as a step to restoration of "vertical integration" of the industry.

"With 18,000 theatres and with $18,000,000 in film company stock in the hands of exhibition we will have representation," he said.

"We do not want to control the film companies. We want to help them and want them to help us in return. But we will not have a voice unless we have our money invested in these companies. All facets of the industry—production, distribution and exhibition—are inherently interdependent. We should be unified in our objectives and endeavors for the good of the whole industry. Vertical integration of the industry is the only solution. With it we will have a renaissance in the motion picture business," Kerasotes claimed.

In discussing ACE, Kerasotes stressed that it "has no intention to, nor will it supplant TOA or any other existing exhibitor organization. ACE's purpose is solely to unify and consolidate the mandates of exhibition, both organized and not organized. . . ."

He explained how "TOA will function in the future in relation to ACE. All our committee work will be made available to ACE." He asserted that the recommendations of the various TOA committees tackling the basic problems facing exhibition will be placed at the disposal of the committees of ACE "to consider, revise, adopt or reject." ACE was credited by Kerasotes with having "tremendously broadened our opportunities for success."

The TOA head reported also that "TOA membership is increasing, particularly among small theatres."

Sugar Heads Magna Sales

NEW YORK—George P. Skouras, president of Magna Theatre Corporation, last week announced the appointment of Joseph M. Sugar as vice-president in charge of sales for Magna, effective Feb. 1.

Sugar entered the field of motion picture distribution in 1935 in the contract department of Republic. With the termination of his Air Force services he became assistant contract manager and manager for P.R.C. When P.R.C. merged with Eagle Lion, he continued as manager of the contract department and then rose to the position of executive assistant to the distribution vice-president. In 1951, Sugar was in charge of the contract and play date department for United Artists. Since 1953 he has served in the capacity of metropolitan district and branch manager for United Artists New York exchange.

N.E. Variety Honors Cronin

BOSTON—Joe Cronin has been selected as the unanimous choice to be the recipient of the Variety Club's "Great Heart Award" given annually to the individual who does the greatest amount of good for the greatest number of people.

Cronin, vice-president and general manager of the Boston Red Sox, has been the co-chairman of the Jimmy Fund Drive for the past five years.

Academy Ends Anti-Red Ban on "Oscar" Winners

HOLLYWOOD—The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences last fortnight repealed an amendment to its by-laws that barred "Oscar" recognition to any person who admitted membership in the Communist party or who declined to refute charges of such membership.

The anti-Communist ban, adopted in February, 1957, was revoked at a special meeting of the board of governors as being "unworkable" and "impractical." The statement issued also declared that the hiring of talent for pictures is "The sole responsibility of the producers" and that the "proper function of the academy is only to honor achievements as presented."

Since its adoption, the controversial amendment had been a target of much criticism within the Academy as having imposed a police function that should not be a concern of an organization that evaluates artistic merit.

Blumenstock Resigns As "Oscar" Promoter

NEW YORK—The MPA Advertising and Publicity Directors Committee received the resignation of Sid Blumenstock as coordinator of all MPAA promotion and publicity activities in connection with the 1959 Academy Awards telecast effective last week. Blumenstock assumed his new duties as advertising and publicity vice-president of Embassy Pictures on Jan. 19.

In accepting Blumenstock's resignation, the Committee unanimously indicated their appreciation for the excellent work that he has done in preparing the ground work of an all-out, all-media promotional campaign for the coming April 6 Academy Awards telecast.

Plans are already concluded for the full cooperation of exhibitors throughout the country. The press book and exhibitor kit are now in preparation. General magazines, fan magazines, newspaper columnists, movie editors, TV and radio stations will receive special material for promoting the telecast.

To assist in carrying on the work started by Blumenstock, Charles Simonelli, chairman of the Advertising and Publicity Directors Committee, announced the appointment of Harry McWilliams to work with the Academy Awards Telecast Committee of Jerry Pickman and Roger Lewis, the several coordinating committee chairmen, and Taylor Mills, director of public relations, MPAA.

"Jones" Dispute Settled

NEW YORK—John Paul Jones Productions, Inc., has announced that it has settled its legal dispute with Barnett Glassman. The settlement provides that, in exchange for an undisclosed sum, Glassman will forego his claims to participate in the corporate management and to the corporation's stock. The settlement also provides for the discontinuance of all pending litigation between the parties. Glassman will be given screen credit for his participation in the production of "John Paul Jones." Samuel Bronston is the producer and John Farrow is the writer-director of the picture.

NEW YORK—Hal Roach, Jr., president of Hal Roach Studios and chairman of the board of the Mutual Broadcasting System, and Fred Schwartz and Arthur Sachson, president and vice-president of Distributors Corporation of America, announced last week the formation of a new company to be called the Hal Roach Distribution Corporation.

DCA will cease to distribute films and will instead turn to acquisition of features and production. Also, DCA has turned over its distribution facilities to the Roach company for stock and a slight cash consideration. The new company is a subsidiary of the Hal Roach Studios, which is wholly owned by the Scranton Corporation. Scranton also owns the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Officers of the new set-up include Hal Roach, Jr., chairman of the board; Fred J. Schwartz, president; Arthur Sachson, vice-president and general sales manager; Mitchell Klupt, vice-president and treasurer; Herbert R. Goldspan, vice-president; and Herbert Schrank, secretary. The entire personnel of DCA's home office and 12 sales offices are being transferred to the new company. It was reported that as the new flow of product becomes available, the company will increase its sales force, establishing additional branches at strategic points and putting on more field men.

It was estimated that between 20 and 25 features would be made and distributed during 1959, with 12 to 15 emerging from Hollywood's Hal Roach Studios and another eight to be made abroad using American stars, directors, etc. In addition, a number of foreign features are expected to be acquired and included in the program. The first feature under the new set-up is expected to be ready in March and is presently being completed by director-producer John Cromwell in Hong Kong. It's entitled "The Scavengers" and stars Vince Edwards and Carol Ohmart. Last year, DCA released 23 features.

Roach reported that the set-up was flexible with regard to type of features to be made and also to budget, with many pictures to come in for one to two millions costwise. Questioned about making the films available to TV, officials stated that their first concern was the protection of theatre customers. These would be fully protected against the early release of the product to TV, but there was no minimum time limit established or noted. The point was made, though, that had there been greater support from exhibitors in the early days of TV, officials of that company could have resisted demands of producers of their films and kept the pictures off of TV for longer periods. They stated no exhibitor has the right to complain about picture availability to TV unless he supports these same films in his theatre.

Kelly Joins Roxy

NEW YORK—Fred Kelly has been named associate producer of the Roxy Theatre's future stage presentations, it is announced by managing director Robert C. Rothafel.

Working in conjunction with Rothafel, who personally supervises all Roxy stage productions, Kelly's initial assignment will be the forthcoming stage show titled "Upbeat—U.S.A.," a tuneful revue which depicts musical trends of 1959.

Long-Run Embassy, Goldwyn Suits Headed For Retrial Before Jury

By MARK GIBBONS

SAN FRANCISCO—The two most important anti-trust suits in the movie industry apparently have gone down the drain after almost a year's court calendar days and now appear headed for retrial before a jury, a procedure that obviously will extend the time it took to hear the evidence in the Goldwyn and Embassy cases.

In 1950, Samuel Goldwyn filed suit against all the exhibitors he could think of on charges his films had been discriminated against. Six months later, Dan McLean and Lee Dibble, operators of the Embassy here, filed a similar monopoly suit, but this time the case was against the producers and distributors. Goldwyn asked $2,000,000 in treble damages; the Embassy suit seeks $8,000,000.

Just before last Christmas, Federal Judge Edward P. Murphy heard the last of the evidence in the Embassy suit after having similarly disposed of the long Goldwyn litigation. Then, before he could hear the brief closing oral arguments in both cases, Judge Murphy died suddenly of a heart attack.

Last week, Attorney Robert D. Raven, chief Embassy counsel, made a motion before Judge Lloyd Burke for a retrial with a jury, a move bitterly opposed by Arthur B. Dunne, chief counsel for the 20th-Fox affiliates and National Theatres; Charles Prael for Paramount and other defendants; and Macklin Fleming, representing Columbia and Universal. Raven argued, in response to the opposition's protest that he previously had waived a jury trial, that he had at that time considered Judge Murphy "eminently qualified" to hear the trial because of his marathon experience with the Goldwyn case.

Probably the most interested observer in Judge Burke's courtroom was Joseph L. Alioto, chief counsel for Goldwyn. While refusing to comment at this time on his next move, speculation was strong that the Goldwyn forces will make a similar motion for a retrial this time by jury. This was after Judge Burke announced he would shortly give a decision on Raven's demand for a jury trial and then advised the opposing sides to get together as to what they want to do in the matter of pre-trial hearings, if any.

IBM Tops Closed Circuit Field

NEW YORK—The largest closed-circuit TV network in history was employed by International Business Machines Corporation last week for a coast-to-coast sales meeting.

The one-hour telecast, produced and networked by TNT (Theatre Network Television, Inc.), covered 157 locations in 147 cities. This is the largest number of cities ever linked in any closed-circuit telecast of any kind.

In addition to producing, networking, and writing the large-screen telecast, TNT booked 157 hotel ballrooms, auditoriums, and TV viewing rooms in the 147 participating cities.

TNT employed 20,000 miles of TV telephone lines, 40,000 pounds of TNT TV projector equipment were shipped and used, and more than 2,500 engineers and technical personnel were involved in handling the telecast. The largest TV screens were 15 by 20 ft.

Nathan L. Halpern, president of TNT, largest and oldest organization in the closed-circuit field, notes that this was the 172d telecast by TNT.

Weltner Predicts Para. Business Surge In '59

NEW YORK—Paramount Pictures' present product position in terms of both quality and quantity clearly indicates that 1959 will be a year of pronounced business upsurge for the company and its customers, George Weltner, vice-president in charge of world sales, declared last week.

Weltner's optimistic observation was made at the conclusion of a three-day meeting of Paramount's U. S. and Canadian division managers and home office sales executives at the company's New York headquarters.

Barney Balaban, president of Paramount Pictures, in a talk to the assembled executives said he was highly impressed by the planning and preparation that produced the sales policies and patterns discussed at the meeting. He was equally impressed, he added, by the advertising and publicity approaches that will support this year's program of pictures.

Weltner said that Paramount's tangible evidence of its faith in the future is an array of completed, filming and planned productions that is reminiscent of the product strength that characterized the company's operations of the mid-40's.

New concepts in merchandising and advertising were outlined for the meeting by Jerry Pickman, vice-president and director of advertising, publicity and exploitation, and Martin S. Davis, assistant director. Joseph Friedman, national exploitation manager, participated in these discussions.

Pickman and Davis said every 1959 Paramount picture would be pre-sold to the point of absolute maximum penetration as it is about to enter release. They told the sales executives that there would be a marked increase in expenditure for advertising to support the new year's lineup, and that promotion activity in general on the consumer level would be sharply intensified.

O'Connor Joins PCA Board

NEW YORK—John J. O'Connor, vice-president, Universal, will succeed Daniel T. O'Shea on the MPAA Production Code Review Board, effective at once, it was announced last week. O'Shea was president of RKO Radio, which has resigned from the MPAA.

Ambitious AA Lineup Sets 36 For 1959

HOLLYWOOD—Allied Artists today is engaged on the most ambitious production program in its history, with a 1959 overall schedule of 36 films including six with budgets of $1,000,000 or more, Steve Broidy, president, announced last week.

Currently before the cameras is the Saratoga Productions, "The Big Circus," which Irwin Allen is producing in CinemaScope and Technicolor with Victor Mature, Red Buttons, Rhonda Fleming, Kathryn Grant, Vincent Price, Peter Lorre, and Gilbert Roland starring.

Being readied for release is the recently filmed "Al Capone," with Rod Steiger in the title role and Fay Spain in the feminine lead.

Another high-budgeter, now in the preparation stage and set for production on location in Japan this spring, is "The Confessions Of An Opium Eater." It will be produced and directed by William Castle in color, with Miiko Taka.

Also being readied for shooting is "79 Park Avenue," novel by Harold Robbins, who will produce the picture from his own script. "Man Of Montmartre," the novel by Stephen and Ethel Longstreet dealing with the life of famed painter Maurice Utrillo, is also in preparation.

Photography already has been completed on three other important attractions. Two of them were filmed overseas. They are "P. O. Box 303," starring Van Johnson and Vera Of Fire," filmed in Sweden with James Whitmore and Cameron Mitchell. The third picture Miles and photographed in England, and "Face on which photography has been completed is "Crime and Punishment, U.S.A."

Goldstein Continues Tour

NEW YORK—Morey (Razz) Goldstein, Allied Artists vice-president and general sales manager, this week resumed his nation-wide tour of the company's offices.

Goldstein, who has been holding a series of luncheon meetings with exhibitors in all the exchange cities, is scheduled to visit Indianapolis, Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, and Kansas City during the coming week.

Following his tour of the midwest, Goldstein will swing south with stops in Dallas, New Orleans, Atlanta, and Charlotte on his itinerary.

Goldstein's program at the luncheons includes an outline of current and future production plans for Allied Artists. At the same time he has impressed the necessity for exhibitors support of current Allied Artists product. Only through this support, Goldstein points out, will it be possible for Allied Artists to deliver the important future product that is so urgently needed by theatres.

Barry Heads NTA Network

NEW YORK—Charles C. (Bud) Barry has been appointed president of the NTA Film Network, it was announced this week by Ely A. Landau, chairman of the board of National Telefilm Associates, Inc.

Barry last week resigned as vice-president in charge of MGM-TV, television subsidiary of Loews, Inc., a position he had held since April, 1956. Prior to that he had been vice-president in charge of television and radio programming for the National Broadcasting Company and before that he held a similar position with the American Broadcasting Company.

In April, 1958, Sol C. Siegel, one of the motion picture industry's outstanding producers, was appointed Vice-President in Charge of Production at M·G·M Studios.

Under Mr. Siegel's guidance a definite plan for a long-range production policy has been developed, with Ben Thau, Studio Administrator, and the Studio Executive Committee.

As part of this revitalized program, creative talent, technical skills and plant resources have been realigned to produce the strongest and most efficient organization in our Studio's history.

On the following pages you will find descriptions of pictures which, we believe, represent the strongest and most appealing line-up of M·G·M attractions in many years.

With the enthusiastic and energetic support of our entire organization, we hold a conviction that the caliber and quality of these releases will be continuously maintained in our Studio product.

Harrison, Hyman Head Brotherhood Drive

NEW YORK—Alex Harrison, 20th-Fox general sales manager, will serve as national distributor chairman, and Edward L. Hyman, AB-PT vice-president, will be national exhibitor chairman of this year's industry participation in Brotherhood Week fund raising for the National Conference of Christians and Jews, it was announced last fortnight.

Their acceptance of the assignments was made at the annual NCCJ amusement division luncheon at the Astor Hotel. Harrison, who presided at the affair, was national distributor chairman last year.

The New York metropolitan area drive will start Feb. 18, and the national effort will begin at about the same time and will run for two weeks.

Availability of pictures from a number of major companies for special midnight shows as part of the fund-raising activities is expected.

Harrison announced that the amusement division had determined to omit the annual Brotherhood dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria which in the past had kicked off the industry's drive, explaining that larger collections will result with all money going to the NCCJ. He expressed the hope that this year's drive would be much better than last year's "failure."

Dr. Lewis Webster Jones, new NCCJ president, and former president of the University of Arkansas, Rutgers University, and Bennington College, spoke appreciatively of the work done by the industry, citing the production of films bearing upon the evils of bigotry and discrimination in addition to fund raising.

Silent tribute was paid at the luncheon to the late J. Robert Rubin, during his life permanent chairman of the division which he founded, and the late Solomon Goldsmith, NCCJ coordinator for the division.

Allied Raps 16mm. Availability

MILWAUKEE—At a recent meeting of the board of directors of Allied Theatre Owners of Wisconsin a resolution was adopted protesting "the practice of making available 16mm motion picture features for non-theatrical exhibition in any city or town where a regular commercial motion picture theatre operates, or within the near vicinity of such theatres."

Edward E. Johnson, president, said, "The releasing of product for 16mm. non-theatrical exhibition in competition to the established commercial theatres in the small towns and cities poses almost as serious a threat for these smaller theatres as would the sale of post '48 films to TV. . . . Wisconsin exhibitors are finding this type of competition a serious threat to their existence."

West Germany Gets Cinerama

NEW YORK—B. G. Kranze, vice-president of Stanley Warner-Cinerama, announced that arrangements had been made to open two Cinerama theatres in West Germany. The Capitol, West Berlin, will premiere "This Is Cinerama" at the end of March, and the Apollo, Dusseldorf, some weeks later.

The theatres will be operated jointly by Robin International and UFA Theatres.

Supreme Court Refuses Schine Contempt Appeal

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court last fortnight refused to hear an appeal by Schine Theatres, Inc., and several of its officers from a criminal contempt conviction.

The court's action sustained $80,000 in fines imposed on the Schine organization for failing to rid itself of theatres required to be divested under the 1949 consent decree. It also clears the way for trial of a companion civil contempt proceeding brought by the Government, deferred pending the final disposition of the criminal contempt case.

Phila. Variety Tent Installs New Officers

PHILADELPHIA—Variety Club Tent 13 held its annual installation of officers and annual testimonial dinner in honor of outgoing chief barker Samuel E. Diamond, branch manager, 20th-Fox, and incoming chief barker Leo B. Beresin, vice-president, ABC Vending Corporation and Berlo Vending Company, at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel Monday night.

Nevada's Lieutenant Governor Rex Bell, former western screen star, was to be principal speaker of the evening. The Las Vegas, Nev., Tent will play host to the forthcoming Variety Clubs International in March.

George W. Eby, chief barker, Variety Clubs International, was to have been among the honored guests, with Sylvan M. Cohen, prominent local attorney, acting as dinner chairman.

The newly elected crew officially sworn in at the dinner are, in addition to Beresin, Jack Drucker, first assistant; William Madden, second assistant; Martin B. Ellis, dough guy; Meyer Lewis, property master; and William Doyle, Paul Klieman, Hal Marshall, William Moclair, Harry Romaine, and Lester Wurtele, canvassmen.

Past chief barkers Max Gillis, Lou Goffman and Norman Silverman were to have been seated on the dais.

Samuel E. Diamond, Philadelphia 20th-Fox branch manager and retiring chief barker, Variety Club Tent 13, left, congratulates his successor, Leo B. Beresin, vice-president, ABC Vending Corporation and Berlo Vending Company. Both were honored this week at a testimonial installation dinner of the Tent.

NEW YORK—With Universal Pictures Company swinging into a new type of production program of multi-million dollar films to be produced either in association with outstanding independent producing companies or by Universal itself, the company has set a week-long sales conference here starting Jan. 26 to be followed by a series of regional sales meetings in the field, at which distribution and promotion plans will be mapped for the coming months, it was announced last week by Henry H. Martin, general sales manager, who will preside.

Milton R. Rackmil, president of Universal, who is currently in the Orient for a series of sales meetings, will participate in the opening sessions of the week-long conference to be attended by home office executives, regional sales managers, and advertising, publicity and promotion executives.

David A. Lipton, vice-president, will outline the projected advertising and promotional plans on the forthcoming pictures.

Martin pointed out that the meetings would be held at a time when three of the most important film productions in the company's history would be starting to shoot at the Universal-International Studios and on location—namely, "Spartacus," the $5,000,000 Bryna Production in Technirama and Technicolor starring Kirk Douglas, Laurence Olivier, Tony Curtis, Charles Laughton, Peter Ustinov, and Sabina Bethmann; the Granart Production "Operation Petticoat," in color, starring Cary Grant and Tony Curtis; and the Arwin Production "Pillow Talk," in color and CinemaScope, starring Rock Hudson and Doris Day.

The sales and promotion executives will see the first print of "Imitation of Life," new Eastman Color drama based on the Fannie Hurst classic and starring Lana Turner, which is scheduled for Easter release; "Never Steal Anything Small," the new Eastman Color and CinemaScope comedy drama with music starring James Cagney and Shirley Jones, scheduled for Washington's birthday openings; and advance footage on the U-I Vintage production "This Earth Is Mine," in Technicolor and CinemaScope, starring Rock Hudson, Jean Simmons, Dorothy McGuire, and Claude Rains, scheduled for early summer release.

Attending from the home office besides Martin will be F. J. A. McCarthy, assistant general sales manager; James J. Jordan, circuit sales manager; G. J. Malafronte, manager of branch operations and maintenance; and Irving Weiner, print department manager.

Regional sales managers attending will be Joseph B. Rosen who headquarters in New York; P. F. Rosian who headquarters in Cleveland; R. N. Wilkinson who headquarters in Dallas; and Barney Rose who headquarters in San Francisco.

Advertising, publicity and promotional representatives who will participate besides Lipton include Charles Simonelli, eastern advertising and publicity department manager; Philip Gerard, eastern publicity manager; Jeff Livingston, eastern advertising manager; and Herman Kass, eastern exploitation manager.

Green Resigns Loew's Post

NEW YORK—Louis A. Green, who was removed recently from the Loew's board's 1959 slate, resigned last fortnight as a director of the company.

20th-Fox Summit Meeting Covers Film Enterprises, TV, Recordings

NEW YORK—A summit meeting of top 20th-Fox executives from New York and California was called last week by president Spyros P. Skouras for this Monday (Jan. 19) at the film company's west coast studios.

The agenda for the top-level conference was to cover all fields of the company's motion picture enterprises, as well as television and the recording industry.

Chief among the topics under discussion was to be the major production schedule for 1959, which will be carried out under the direction of executive production head Buddy Adler. The ambitious and lavish production schedule was to be fully developed and detailed through the end of 1959 at the meetings.

Travelling to California, in addition to Skouras, were to be executive vice-president W. C. Michel, vice-president and eastern studio representative Joseph Moskowitz, 20th-Fox International president Murray Silverstone, vice-president Charles Einfeld, general sales manager Alex Harrison, De Luxe Laboratories president Allan Freedman, research director Earl Sponable, and 20th-Fox record company president Henry Onorati.

Studio executives participating in the conference were to be Adler, Adler's executive assistant Lew Schreiber, executive production manager Sid Rogell, studio literary operations head David Brown, publicity director Harry Brand, executive in charge of television production Martin Manulis, and vice-president in charge of television Irving Asher.

In addition to plans for the release and production schedule, promotional, advertising and exploitation programs for the first four months of 1959 were to be discussed. Pictures under discussion were to be "The Inn of the Sixth Happiness," "The Sheriff of Fractured Jaw," "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!," "I, Mobster," "These Thousand Hills," "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker," "The Sound and the Fury," "Compulsion," "Warlock," and "The Diary of Anne Frank."

Productions already before the cameras and slated for release this year which were to be on the meeting's agenda are Frank Tashlin's production of "Say One For Me," starring Bing Crosby, Debbie Reynolds, and Robert Wagner; "The Snow Birch," starring Susan Hayward and directed by Henry Hathaway; "The Man Who Understood Women," produced and directed by Nunnally Johnson and starring Henry Fonda and Leslie Caron; "Holiday for Lovers," produced by Charles Brackett and starring Diane Varsi, Clifton Webb, and Gary Crosby.

Darryl Zanuck, whose DFZ Productions have just completed "Compulsion," is currently under way on his multi-million dollar production, "De Luxe Tour." In addition, Richard Zanuck, producer of "Compulsion," will film "Requiem for a Nun," based on Nobel Prize winner William Faulkner's only stage play.

David O. Selznick is in Switzerland with writer Edward Anhalt preparing a screenplay for his large-scale undertaking, "Mary Magdalene," which will star Jennifer Jones. The producer will also ready "Tender Is the Night," based on the F. Scott Fitzgerald classic.

Prolific Jerry Wald has several properties in the works for the 1959 schedule: "Beloved Infidel," "The Best of Everything," and "The Lost Country," based on current best-sellers; and Clifford Odet's screen original "The PITTSBURGH—A feature of the sixth National Allied Drive-In Theatre Convention and trade show at the Penn-Sheraton Hotel on Jan. 26-27-28 will be the presentation of a "Star of the Year" award to Elizabeth Taylor in recognition of her talent performance in MGM's "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof" and "Raintree County." Miss Taylor has indicated her intention to attend in person on Jan. 28 to accept the award.

"New Hollywood Faces" will also be presented in person at the convention in the persons of Jo Morrow, James Darren, and Evy Norlund, courtesy of Columbia, and Linda Cristal, courtesy of Universal.

Reade Winners Honored

OAKHURST, N. J.—Continuing a policy of awarding cash prizes to the theatre manager who does the best overall job in advertising, exploitation, public relations, and physical theatre management each month, the following awards were announced by Walter Reade, Jr., president, Walter Reade Circuit.

For October, 1958, first prize resulted in a tie between Joseph Sommers, Majestic, Perth Amboy, N. J., and S. Merl Burdett, Red Bank Carlton. Second prize was won by Sam Hofstetter, Mayfair, Asbury Park, N. J.

In November, 1958, first place again resulted in a tie, this time between the Perth Amboy Majestic and Asbury Park Mayfair, with Sommers and Hofstetter being awarded duplicate cash prizes. Second place went to manager Ann DeRagon, Plainfield Strand.

SW Divestiture Delayed

NEW YORK—Federal District Court Judge Edmund L. Palmieri last fortnight signed an order giving Stanley Warner Corporation another year to dispose of the remainder of its stock interest in Cinerama, Inc.

SW told the Court it wished to avoid placing its remaining Cinerama, Inc., shares in a trusteeship, and felt that the stock could be disposed of in the additional time requested. The company now holds 330,627 Cinerama shares.

Story on Page One," D. H. Lawrence's "Sons and Lovers," and Norman Krasna's "The Billionaire."

Joseph M. Schenck will film Jules Verne's "Journey to the Center of the Earth," with Charles Brackett as producer, in association with 20th-Fox.

Jack Cummings will film "The Chinese Room" and "Can-Can," starring Barrie Chase.

Samuel G. Engel has several motion pictures on his schedule, among them "White Terror of the Atlantic," "Gemma Two-Five," and "The Nun and the Outlaw."

Mark Robson will produce and direct "From the Terrace," based on current John O'Hara best-seller.

Dick Powell will produce and direct "Casino," based on the novel by Steve Fisher, and "Bachelor's Baby," from Gwen Davenport's novel starring Bing Crosby.

Charles Brackett will produce "Blue Denim," based on the Broadway hit.

UA Studies Effects Of Video Promotion

NEW YORK—United Artists launched a field survey last week to explore more effective ways of using television as a promotional aid, it was announced by Roger H. Lewis, national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation.

The test, part of UA's continuing program to develop new pre-selling approaches, will employ the active cooperation of exhibitors in 300 communities across the country, large and small.

Theatre men are being asked to evaluate the promotional impact of UA television featurettes when they are broadcast in their localities. Each exhibitor taking part in the survey is receiving a letter explaining the purpose of the field program, the time of local telecast, and a request to assess the preselling and entertainment value of the featurette. Results of the survey will be used as a guide in planning future promotional films for TV.

The program will be kicked off with TV promotional films on Figaro Inc.'s "I Want To Live," and "Shake Hands With The Devil."

Col. Concludes Sales Meets

CHICAGO—Columbia concluded its series of regional sales meetings here this week with two sessions held at the Drake Hotel with vice-president and general sales manager Rube Jackter presiding.

Also present were vice-president Paul N. Lazarus, Jr.; sales representatives Milton Goodman and Jerome Safran; Joseph Freiberg, who is manager of the sales accounting and contract department; and exchange operations manager H. C. Kaufman.

Field force executives present for the far western meeting were headed by division managers L. E. Tillman, San Francisco, and Norman Jackter, Los Angeles, along with branch managers from Denver, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, and Seattle-Portland.

Division managers attending sessions for the mid-western divisions were Ben Marcus, Kansas City; Carl Shalit, Detroit; and Ben Lourie, Chicago. Branch managers from Des Moines-Omaha, Detroit, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, and St. Louis were also on hand.

Conn. Indoor-Outdoor Sold

NEW YORK—Berk and Krumgold, theatre realty specialists, announced last fortnight that they have sold the Lord Indoor-Outdoor Theatre, Plainfield, Conn., to Marie Theatres, Inc., Springfield, Mass.

The Lord Indoor-Outdoor was built in 1944 by Edward and Vincent Lord, Norwich, Conn., and is unique in that this was the first such type theatre ever constructed. The indoor theatre has a seating capacity of 600, while the drive-in portion has a drive-in capacity of over 1,000 cars.

Zide To Handle Art Films

DETROIT—Jack Zide, owner, Allied Film Exchange, announced last fortnight the organization of a new firm to distribute art films exclusively to be known as Specialty Pictures.

Associated with Zide in the new company will be his son, Mickey Zide. Pierre LaMarre, formerly a booker for Co-operative Theatres of Michigan and also owner of the Clawson Art Theatre, in suburban Clawson, will be manager of the new firm.

Brazil Eases Control Of Admission Prices

NEW YORK—Eric Johnston, president, Motion Picture Export Association of America, was advised last week by Robert J. Corkery, MPEAA vice-president for the Western Hemisphere, that the long hoped for action on price control of motion picture theatre admissions had been taken by the Brazilian government.

A decree of COFAP—the Brazilian price control body—provides freedom from price control for special category (showcase) theatres, and establishes new maximum prices for three additional theatre classifications. The new maximum prices for first category theatres will be 30 cruzeiros; for second category theatres, 22 cruzeiros; and for third category theatres, 15 cruzeiros.

The former maximum admission price was 18 cruzeiros for "scope pictures," and 12 cruzeiros for standard prints. It is understood that the new decree eliminates any classification by system or scope of product, but rather only by the type and quality of release house.

The issuance of this long awaited decree culminates 18 months of intense MPEAA negotiations with Brazilian authorities.

Buffalo Variety Installs

BUFFALO—A $41,118.08 Variety Club check for the Children's Rehabilitation Center was presented at Tent Seven's annual installation dinner in the Buffalo Statler Hilton, at which time continued support of the Center was pledged by Marvin Jacobs, chairman of the Heart Committee.

The event also marked the presentation of "Great Heart Awards" to Dr. Charles D. Broughton, rector emeritus of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, and Dr. Joseph L. Fink, rabbi of Temple Beth Zion for 34 years, both of whom have served as chaplains of the Tent.

George Eby, international chief barker, presented the wards. Eby installed these officers: chief barker, Francis Maxwell; first assistant, Isadore Erlichman; second assistant, Alfred E. Anscombe; property master, Charles Siegert; and dough guy, Myron Gross. New directors are Melvin Berman, Bernie Burns, Gerry George, James J. Hayes, Jacobs, and John Sueling.

New PR Firm Bows

NEW YORK—The organization of Thana Skouras Associates which will offer editorial consultant services in the motion picture, radio-television, and theatrical fields was announced last week. Additionally, the new firm will provide its client producers with advertising-publicity-exploitation programs tailored to their needs.

In connection with its proposed editorial services, TSA will analyze dramatic properties with regard to their specific film, radio-television and legitimate theatre markets. The new firm will also undertake editorial and market research on projects keyed to the entertainment field.

Offices of Thana Skouras Associates are located at 277 Park Avenue.

Ludwig Heads B-V

NEW YORK—Buena Vista Film Distribution Company last week announced the election of Irving H. Ludwig as president and general sales manager. Louis E. Gaudreau was promoted to the newly-created post of executive vice-president and treasurer.

The NEW YORK Scene

By Mel Konecoff

LUNCHEON NOTE: Otto Preminger thought it might be nice to have lunch at 21 with a small circle of press representatives and since no one contradicted him, he did. Flanked by Columbia vice-president Paul Lazarus on the one side and by United Artists director of advertising and publicity Roger Lewis on the other, Preminger reported on his forthcoming plans.

"Anatomy of Murder," with James Stewart, Lana Turner, Eve Arden, etc., will roll in March, interiors to be shot in Hollywood with exteriors to be filmed in Michigan. This is budgeted at two-and-one-half millions and is for Columbia release.

"Bunny Lake Is Missing" will cost two millions and will be shot entirely on location in New York City, mostly in Greenwich Village, in color. Columbia will release.

"The Other Side Of The Coin" will cost three millions and will be filmed on location in Malaya and Singapore for Columbia.

"Exodus," the best seller, will cost five millions and will be shot in Israel and Cyprus in Todd-AO. UA will distribute.

In between, Preminger will do a Broadway play.

He hit at the trend in the industry to make blockbusters and to buy best sellers regardless of whether or not they would make good pictures. Neither, he believed, does a film have to have top stars to be good. Preminger recently finished directing "Porgy And Bess" in Todd-AO. for Sam Goldwyn, and he was enthused about the wide screen process.

He also had some words regarding new faces and talent, stating that he casts people to fit the parts. He opined that we have to find more and more people who can prove themselves and become hits. Another Preminger opinion is that independent producers are most healthy for the major companies.

Regarding the high salaries demanded by acting talent, he thought this was one of the results of a free competitive society. If producers can't pay, then don't take them. If pictures gross for exhibitors, they should be willing to pay for them, said the director-producer.

We believe the messers Lazarus and Lewis agreed to split the cost of the lunch, which is fair after a fashion.

HURRAY FOR HUR: Morgan Hudgins, MGM unit publicist, returned here last week following nine months in Italy working on "Ben Hur," and he reported that the interest and activity surrounding the film was unusual with regard to the press industryites, and John Q. Public. The only ones who didn't come out on the set were the new Pope and a few individuals who never got to Italy—us for one. The amount of space garnered has been terrific, and what made it particularly attractive was that much of it was unsolicited.

The film, which got under way with Charlton Heston in the lead on May 20, 1958, and which wound up last week, saw over a million feet of film exposed via 65 mm cameras, the lenses of which are supposed to cost in the neighborhood of $100,000. Incidentally, it will be exhibited in that medium come release time. As many as 10,000 extras appeared in some scenes while over one million pounds of plaster were used, as were 40,000 cubic feet of lumber, 250 miles of rented metal tubing, etc.

The final release version may run about three-and-a-half hours when the four months of editing are completed. Tentative release date is fall of this year, and estimated cost to date is 14 millions, without prints or advertising.

The campaign has been held down to date, but as release nears it will be intensified with special stills, movie footage for theatre, TV, and school use, interviews, etc. More on this later.

PRODUCER SPEAKS: Sidney Harmon, producer of "Anna Lucasta," believes the Negro is coming into his own in the field of acting and that eventually they will be cast for ability and not for racial origins.

He and partner Philip Yordan will next make "Day of the Outlaw," with Robert Ryan, Burl Ives, and Tina Louise, to be followed by "Big Blonde," "Passage to Bali," and "Greta."

He thought the industry was saddled with too much defeatism and indifference and that there should be an organization devoted to dealing with the collective problems of the business.

THE METROPOLITAN SCENE: Van Heflin stopped by the dinner table to say hello the other night prior to a screening of his latest, "Tempest," a Paramount release produced by Dino DeLaurentis, which is a tremendous thriller about a Cossack who started a rebellion against Russia's Catherine the Great. Some of the battle scenes are the greatest. . . . Trend of the Times: The Brooklyn Strand, a downtown landmark owned by Fabian Enterprises, will be converted into a 52-lane bowling alley. It was built by Moe Mark in 1919 at a cost of close to three millions. Strike. . . . The Thomas Alva Edison Foundation named "Old Yeller" best children's film; "White Wilderness" best science film for youth; and "Old Man and the Sea" as "film best serving the national interest." . . . Ava Gardner sends Maja Soap in honor of her latest, "The Naked Maja." Is she hinting? . . . Book stores, newstands, etc., are featuring two books based on "The Buccaneer," one an Avon paper-backed novel and the other a comic classic. . . . U-I is out with a good mailing piece on "The Perfect Furlough." . . . Arthur Sachson, DCA general sales manager, related that the third first-run circuit came into being because they couldn't get their films off the ground through the normal Loew and RKO playoff. Last Thanksgiving, 42 other theatres participated. New Years saw 57 go for the DCA package offered first-run. Come February, more than 100 theatres are expected to play DCA. The money returned by grateful exhibitors has been classed as "substantial." . . . Morey (Razz) Goldstein, Allied Artists top good will ambassador, whose interesting and often amusing addresses have highlighted many an exhibitor and industry gathering in the past, will go back on the road with AA's message, thanks to the excellent reception he received everywhere on his recent swing through many exchange centers. The payoff for Goldstein's efforts will be increased playdates for the company's films.

202 Permits In Italo-U.S. Pact; $7 Million Remittances Authorized

The new pact provides for 185 import permits in each year for the seven operating companies, including United Artists, plus 17 for Allied Artists for each of the three years. Financial arrangements include provision that Italian negotiators will recommend an official rate remittance of up to $7,000,000 per year and official remittance of amounts equivalent to the dubbing fees. Permitted usages of the blocked funds will continue as in the past, and each film entered officially in the Venice Festival will be permitted an official remittance of the first $50,000 earned by the film.

An additional import permit will be granted for each Italian film financed or distributed by a member company. This would include third country co-production provided they are predominantly Italian.

Finally, the pact provides that certain issues of the dubbing certificates which American companies now have and will accumulate will be sold to Italian financial institutions at 25 per cent of the face amount of the certificate at maturity.

In commenting on the significance of the new agreement to Italy, Dr. Monaco said:

"This third agreement with the Americans which I have the honor of signing, regulating film relations between our two countries, is definite confirmation of the wisdom of the constructive policy which we have been pursuing on both sides.

"It has been a policy of collaboration and gradual elimination of unnecessary restrictions. It has served to aid the Italian film industry, which despite new competition has continued to attract an ever-growing number of spectators. These have paid yearly the astounding sum of over 186 million dollars in admissions. At the same time, the policy has permitted the development of Italian production and of co-production with the American companies, thus increasing greater world-wide interest in our output.

"I am certain that this new agreement will provide new and tangible advantages for both the Italian and American film industries."

Hailing the agreement as a new advance in the international exchange of films, Johnston said.

"This new agreement between the United States motion picture industry and Italy reflects the continued improvement of Italy's economic situation and the substantial growth of the motion picture production and exhibition industries in that country.

Mich. Co-op Head Quits

DETROIT—Delano A. Ritter, president, Co-operative Theatres of Michigan, resigned last fortnight. He said he plans to affiliate as a partner with Louis Mitchell in Mitchell Theatre Service. He is also withdrawing his Rialto theatre from Co-operative's booking organization.

An inexpensive and novel street bally was found in these hansom cabs used for MGM's "The Doctor's Dilemma" recently by the Trans-Lux 52nd Street, New York.

New Theatre Firm

ALBANY—Mossgood Theatre Corporation has been authorized to conduct a theatre business in New York, with capital stock of 200 shares, no par. Directors are Charles B. Moss, Clement S. Crystal, and Beatrice F. Crystal.

Ron Crabb, Lyric, Wellingborough; and Nat Matthews, Ritz, Leyton, can take deep bows. Doug, to show that he operates in Scotland, sent a wee Haig miniature bottle so that I might drink to his future endeavors together with a note reading, "By this motion I exhibit a true picture of my feelings." Cheers, Doug!

THE SIX TRADE UNIONS associated with the industry have unanimously agreed to establish a Federation of Film Unions. Representing every worker in film production from star to clapper boy, it will be a loose set up with only a minimum constitution. It replaces the Film Industry Employees Council, which was wound up on Dec. 31, and will correlate the activities of all unions on industry matters, keeping a particular vigilance on a decline in British production and adapting a clear policy for expanding the industry.

THE CAREFREE and the colorful are always acceptable in movies, but never more so than during the bleak, drear days of London's winter. To sit in a warm theatre watching sunny shots of far away places can be perfect bliss. Just such relaxation is offered in Rank's uproarious comedy, "Captain's Table," which takes place aboard a luxury liner bound for Australia. Starring John Gregson and introducing some of Britain's loveliest actresses, it provides just the escapism audiences desire. . . . Another delightful tonic has been provided by publicist Euan Lloyd who has devised, produced and directed "Invitation to Monte Carlo," in color and 'scope. It is the story of an orphan's trip to Monaco and has many delightful shots of Princess Grace with her husband and daughter. Warm and ingratiating, it provides for a highly enjoyable hour.

MIKE FORSTER, who was long with 20th-Fox and did so good a job publicising "Inn of the Sixth Happiness," has forsaken the industry in a way to go into partnership with the Earl of Kimberley as public relations consultants and personal representatives. His Lordship and Mike will fly to America on Jan. 30, visiting New York, Chicago, Washington, Dallas, and Los Angeles. . . . Currently visiting Hollywood, is another nobleman, Lord Killanin, chairman of Ireland's Four Provinces Films, who is having discussions with his associate John Ford regarding future productions. . . . Ill health is forcing Douglas Cornwell to resign as secretary and chief accountant at Paramount. F. E. Hutchinson announces that he will be succeeded by his assistant for the past 12 years, Donald Peverett. J. R. Adamson becomes assistant secretary. . . . F. D. Russell-Roberts has become general manager of CMA (Rank Theatres) and will coordinate all activities including theatres, restaurants, dance halls, etc.

Pa. Court Postpones Hearing Bardot Case

PHILADELPHIA—The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania last fortnight again postponed hearing the long pending case involving the seizing by Philadelphia District Attorney Victor H. Blanc of the Brigitte Bardot film, "And God Created Woman," at the Studio and World theatres on "obscenity" charges.

Harold E. Kohn, counsel for Kingsley International Pictures, distributor of the film, and Deputy City Solicitor Leonard L. Ettinger appeared to present oral motion to continue the case until March.

Kohn told the court that he and Ettinger would be agreeable to a further postponement because in the meantime the U. S. Supreme Court was considering similar issues in a New York case.

By a five to one vote the Court decided to put off hearing the case, which was really to decide the question of obscenity in Pennsylvania in all its ramifications, until they could muster a full seven-man court. Justice Curtis Bok is ill.

Justice Michael A. Musmanno dissented and said, "The case should be heard without further delay so the law enforcement officers of the Commonwealth will know just what the law is on the subject of obscenity."

Booker Club Affair Set

NEW YORK—The Motion Picture Bookers Club will hold its 20th annual installation dinner and dance on Jan. 26, at the Tavern-on-the-Green in Central Park.

ALBANY

Motion Picture Operators Local 324 IATSE, which returned to office for 1959 a slate headed by Edward Wendt as president, Frank Matthews as vice-president, and Charles Hill as secretary-treasurer, dug itself in for a long struggle with Turnpike Drive-In, Westmere, over renewal of a contract. Members continued to picket the 700-car spot, owned by Alan V. Iselin. The Local claimed Iselin's requests included, for all practical purposes, one-man-in-the-booth. Theatres in neighboring Troy now have one-man projection operations, but the Albany unit is determined to resist its local introduction. . . . Alfred Marrow is now in command of Tri-State Automatic Candy Corporation's Albany branch operations. . . . Herb Schwartz, Columbia manager, scheduled a trip to Washington, D.C., for a division sales huddle Jan. 5-7.

ATLANTA

Earl McCawly has closed his Roxy, Gainesboro, Tenn., for the winter. . . . George M. Jones, Universal office manager, was winner of "The Lucky Fifty." . . . The Moultrie, Moultrie, Ga., gutted by fire in March, 1956, was rebuilt at a cost of $125,000 for building and $75,000 for equipment, and reopened by operator C. H. Powell. C. C. Clarke is manager. . . . J. P. Hudgens, office manager, Columbia Pictures, and his wife had an automobile accident in Sheffield, Ala., while on the way to visit in Oklahoma City. As a result, Mrs. Hudgens is in a hospital.

BOSTON

The selectmen of the town of Braintree, Mass., have approved the application for a permit of Arthur K. Howard to erect a deluxe drive-in at the intersection of Route 128 and Granite Street on Route 37. The location of this new 1500 to 2000 car open-airer is directly across the highway from the new South Shore Shopping Center now under construction. Howard, president of Affiliated Theatres Corp., operates two other outdoor theatres, one in Rhode Island and the other in Connecticut. Ground on the new project is expected to be broken in the early spring with a late summer opening scheduled. . . . Irving Shapiro, head of Concession Enterprises, has bought out Relston, Inc., the candy, popcorn, and theatre supply business, from James Stoneman. The deal also includes the candy and popcorn popping plant in Cambridge, which Shapiro is taking over. . . . Stanley Farrington, former booker at Affiliated Theatres Corp., has joined Paramount as a booker, replacing "Buck" Spurr who has resigned to enter another field of business. . . . Jean Stuhl, receptionist at United Artists, was married in south Boston to Robert E. Lewis, with a reception at the Lithuanian Club. Her two bridesmaids were U A office workers, Mary Lou Ryan and Helen Montague. . . . Edith Meyerwitz, former assistant cashier at U A, was married to Henry Nierman and is retiring from the business world. . . . The franchise rights for "Uncle Tom's Cabin" have been acquired by Edward Ruff and Mel Safner of Ruff Film Distributors for New England. A circuit deal has been completed with New England Theatres, Inc., for theatres in Hartford, Conn., and Bangor, Rockland, Waterville, Maine, and Rutland, Vt., and Dover, N. H.

NEW HAMPSHIRE NEWS—Strand, Dover, succeeded in getting a half-column story in the local newspaper on New England Theatres' plans for the coming year. . . .

Lester Pollock, Loew's, Rochester, N. Y., in a tieup with a local merchant, recently rounded up this $600 jack-pot of toys, given away at a recent kids' matinee which featured 20 cartoons.

Daniel Webster, Nashua, showed a benefit film for the Nashua College Club for three days with part of the proceeds financing a scholarship fund. . . . State, Nashua, recently gave away 10 turkeys. . . . A two-and-a-half hour show including 20 cartoons was programmed at the Colonial, Laconia, on a recent Saturday. . . . Enfield, in that town, closed for the winter. . . . The Manchester newspaper has been publishing protest letters over showing of a Russian "cultural exchange" film included unadvertised in a local theater program.

BUFFALO

George Eby, chief barker of International Variety, was the principal speaker at the 26th annual Installation Dinner Dance of Tent 7, Variety Club of Buffalo. The event was staged Jan. 11 in the Statler Hilton Terrace Room. Myron Gross, manager of the Buffalo office of Co-Operative Theatres, was chairman of the installation committee. Francis Maxwell, office manager at United Artists, was installed as chief barker of Tent 7. Other new officers are Ike Ehrlichman, first assistant; Alfred Anscombe, second assistant; Charles Siegert, property master; and Myron Gross, dough guy. . . . C. V. Mitchell, manager, Schine's Elmwood, Penn Yan, N. Y., has announced that the house will be closed indefinitely as a result of a flash fire which swept the balcony section of the building. . . . Elmer F. Lux, past president of the Buffalo Common Council and for many years prominent in exhibition and distribution in the local area, is the new president of the Erie County Grand Jurors Association. . . . The RKO-Palace theatre in Rochester will celebrate its 30th anniversary on Jan. 21. Tentative plans for the celebration call for such events as the reopening of the $125,000 organ that Tom Grierson used to play as old song slides were flashed on the screen. The Palace also will inaugurate a new system of "surround" speakers which will bring sound into the auditorium from 26 spots.

CHARLOTTE

The Tryon, Charlotte, suspended operations Dec. 20. One of the houses of the Blumenthal chain, it opened its doors 22 years ago and had operated since. A Blumenthal official said its equipment probably will be turned over to other houses in the chain, but that its seats are being sold. . . .

The Palace, Thomasville, N. C., which was erected in 1924 and has been in operation since that time closed Jan. 1 it was announced by J. S. Stoker, president of the Thomasville Theater Company, Inc. A first-run house, the Palace also formerly featured vaudeville and road shows. Its closing will reduce the number of motion picture houses here to one, which is operated by a separate company of which Stoker also is president.

CHICAGO

Charles Spicer, MGM salesman, is recovering from a complicated illness which hospitalized him. . . . J. Trent Roberson leased the Indiana, Salem, Ind., from M. Switow and Sons. He was a former manager for the Switow Circuit. . . . Armand Barton, inventor of sound film dubbing, died at 73. . . . Bernhard Focken, Abbott Theatre Supply repairman, died of a heart attack. . . . Three masked bandits bound the Harding janitor after closing, pounded open four safes, and made off with $800. . . . Theatre attorney Seymour F. Simon filed for re-election as City Alderman. . . . J. J. McFarland took over the LeMoine, Macomb, Ill., and is conducting a contest for a new name for the house. . . . The large Arcadia, popular in the silent days, and later converted into a roller rink, was destroyed by a $75,000 fire.

CINCINNATI

Mike Todd, Jr., in town recently, said that Mike Todd Productions will start screening "Scent of Danger," a type of film incorporating a gimmick called "Smell-O-Vision," in Seville, Spain, by mid-March, with premiere slated for late July. "Smell-O-Vision" is a process developed by Swiss inventor, Hans Laube, with the scents being controlled over 10-second periods. . . . In summing up the entertainment value of films shown here in 1958, movie critics of local papers were in accord that there was considerable variety of good entertainment, with emphasis on adult pictures. "A" ratings were given to 39 films, with "Gigi" rated as "closest to a milestone of progress" for the year. The critics felt that films have gained in quality and the trend was toward films based on popular novels, plays, and musicals. . . . Everett Gattels is new manager for Chakeres Circuit house at Wellston, O. . . . The Community, Path Fork, Ky., O. G. Rhodes, owner, was gutted by fire.

CLEVELAND

Nat Barach, NSS branch manager, has joined other members of the organization in a sales meeting called by president Herman Robbins in Miami. . . . Mayfield Art Theatre has passed from Jack Silverthorne and Jack Lewis into the operational hands of the Great Films, Inc., of Cleveland, introducing a policy of revivals of great films, both foreign and domestic. First program under this policy was Charlie Chaplin's "Gold Rush" and a W. C. Fields short. Great Films, Inc., operate a chain of art theatres in Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and shortly in Boston. Heading it are Robert B. Fischer, president; Mark Redwood, vice-president; and Edward R. Sartsky, secretary-treasurer. House manager is Eric Ten, transferred here from Philadelphia. . . . In Euclid, which comes within the Greater Cleveland area, Councilman Edward Eckhart is looking into the possibility of abolishing the three per cent admission tax which involves the 1800-seat Lake and the 1500-seat Shore, both units of the Associated Circuit of Cleveland. Annual revenue from this tax is reportedly from $8,000 to $10,000. Mayor Kenneth J. Sims, when approached, said he would have to review the city's financial picture before stating whether it could afford to support such action. It was pointed out that the theatre admission tax has been abolished in this area in Lorain, Elyria, Galion, Youngstown, Painesville, and Ravenna. . . . In another action, 18 independent neighborhood houses have filed requests for real estate tax reductions with the county board of revision. Representing the theatre owners is Edward Wargo, prominent local real estate operator. Theatres involved are the Ezella, Commodore, Union Square, Imperial (closed), Madison, Variety, Lyric, Beachcliff, Homestead, Hilliard Square, Berea, Lake, Shore, Shaw-Haden, Continental Art, Shaker, Mayland, Riverside.

DALLAS

The first indoor theatre to be built in the local area in almost a decade is to be constructed in the new shopping center area, Preston Royal Village. It will be a 1,002 seat theatre which will be operated by Gordon and B. R. McLendon as lessees. Henry S. Miller, Jr., is realtor and the shopping center is owned by Trammell Crow & Associates. The theatre will be ready for occupancy in June. The McLendons operate Republic Theatres in the southwest, including the Casa Linda here. . . . Edwin Christian Tiemann and his wife may preach in front of the downtown Majestic, Tower, and Palace, but they must not interfere with the theatres' business. That was Judge Claude Williams' judgment in District Court in a suit brought by the Interstate Theatre Circuit, owners of the three theatres. Interstate sought to stop the side walk evangelist from preaching and carrying signs in front of the theatres. Interstate had alleged that Mr. and Mrs. Tiemann had interfered with business by exhorting patrons not to enter because they would be sinning. . . . A statewide meeting of motion picture theatremen was held at the Variety Club. The meeting was called by R. J. O'Donnell, vice-president and general manager of the Interstate Theatre Circuit, with headquarters here, and Julius Gordon, president of the Jefferson Amusement Co., Beaumont, Tex. They said the meeting was called to familiarize Texas film exhibitors with the newly formed American Congress of Exhibitors (ACE).

DETROIT

For the first time in over 10 years the rafters of Tent 5 shook until 4 a.m. as Barkers and friends reveled in the New Year. The affair was given by the Barkerettes with guests of honor Lief and Mrs. Erickson and family, plus the entire cast of "Sunrise at Campobello" company then playing Detroit. Smorgasbord sandwiches were served, the dance band played and everyone had such a good time entertainment was deferred until after the orchestra went home! One hundred and seventy-five attended.

HOUSTON

Kerwin Mathews, star of "The Seventh Voyage of Sinbad", was in for a personal appearance in conjunction with the showing of the film at the Metropolitan. . . . Ellis Ford, manager, Delman, will continue his revival series which has attracted a lot of patrons to the boxoffice. . . . The first motion picture ever made here by a local firm for showing in motion picture theatres all over the world has wound up its shooting schedule. The final shots were taken on "The Five Bold Woman" at the western town set up at Atascosita on Lake Houston. The company had been delayed by rain, fog and overcast skies while shooting at Fort Clark, near Bracketville, Tex. Jim Ross is head of the Hatkoff, who has resigned to go into the advertising and promotion field. . . . Nicholas Zeo, operator of the Parkway Drive-In and the Phillips, Springfield, Mass., has leased the first-run 1200-seat Park, Westfield, Mass., from Gateway Company of Danbury, Conn., for an undisclosed sum. Zeo has reopened the theatre after remodeling. . . . Harold G. Cummings, first manager at the Smith Management Company's Meadows Drive-In when it opened in 1955, serving in that post until January, 1956, has returned, replacing Joseph Bresnahan, resigned. . . . The $250,000 law suit brought by New Britain, Conn., theatre owners against the city of New Britain, protesting the mandatory presence of policemen in theatres, has been pushed back to the January term of Hartford Superior Court.

NEW ORLEANS

Joy N. Houck acquired ownership of the Patio, a de luxe suburban theatre on Airline Highway, from Mrs. William Sendy. . . . The Joy, Moss Point, Miss., was destroyed by fire shortly after midnight on New Year's Day with damages estimated at $80,000. The theatre was recently purchased by William Cobb, president, Exhibitors' Poster Exchange, and operator of a string of theatres in Louisiana, and William Butterfield, owner, Lake Drive-In, Pascagoula, Miss., and was in the process of being remodeled. . . . George Nungesser, Variety Club's new chief barker, announced that ceremonial installation of officers is to be held on Jan. 17. . . . The Carmen, Breau Bridge, La., practically demolished by an explosion and fire several months ago, is being rebuilt by Hector J. Naquin, owner of the real estate. . . . Mrs. H. T. SERVICE SECTION

THE CHECK-UP of all Features and Short Subjects as reviewed and compiled during the past 12 months

Published every second week, as a separately bound and easily saveable section of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, this exclusive 24 year old service lists by (1) Distribution Source and by (2) Alphabet, all professional motion pictures offered for dating by the nation's theatres, plus all those that are in production. Each new issue is a complete, carefully checked reference index, brought up-to-date from the best available sources. Complete and detailed REVIEWS are published as separately bound and easily saveable pink paper sections, on the alternating every second week throughout the film season (September to September), and are cumulatively numbered. It is recommended that readers save this SERVICE SECTION reference for only the two week interval between issues, and then discard it as antiquated data. The pink paper REVIEWS, however, should be permanently saved and assembled into complete files, by seasons, and the last issue of each August will always contain a complete annual index.

Combined, the yellow paper SERVICE SECTION and the pink paper REVIEWS represent a unique informative service to theatremen that is unequalled in either accuracy or completeness. Please address all inquiries or suggestions about these two service features to the Editors of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, 246-48 N. Clarion St., Philadelphia 7, Penna.

C. B. . . . HE KNEW WHAT THEY WANTED

CECIL B. DEMILLE was a pioneer with the uncanny ability during his distinguished career to "reach" the public with every production. Combining spectacle and heart, his films brightened the lives of more moviegoers than those of any other creator of entertainment. All over the world, populations responded to the magic of his genius.

Fittingly enough, his last production was his greatest, and the classic "Ten Commandments" serves as a perfect climax to a brilliant life of service to God and to man. The name of Cecil B. DeMille will remain alive through his works. More can not be said of any man.

Asked recently what was in his future, DeMille replied, "Another picture or another world." He died at 77. His life was full. But measured in enthusiasm, he was a very young man, indeed.

May he rest in peace!

THE SALE OF NOVELTIES FOR EXTRA PROFITS

THE RECENT ANNOUNCEMENT by Ben Sherman, ABC Vending Corporation, that his company was adding a Novelties Division, and had already tied up with Disney Productions for the theatrical distribution of their licensed novelties, opens new vistas in the EXTRA PROFITS field. It also opens new vistas in the field of advance exploitation, for we hear that effort will be expended to encourage theatremen to anticipate actual playdates, and for possibly a month in advance to decorate entrance lobbies with pertinent novelties and thereby prolong the sales periods. We also hear that, starting with an early release, all items offered in theatres by the ABC Vending Novelties Division will be sold exclusively in theatres and without competition from neighboring stores. All of this should help the eventual gross.

Net profit, it seems, is about the same as that in popcorn, so that theatremen should be willing to go to work, and the appointment of Mel Gold as sales manager in charge of distribution of this Novelties Division would seem to promise that his experience in advertising, publicity, and showmanship will be turned to use in guiding theatre efforts into the most productive exploitation and merchandising methods.

Sporadic efforts in the direction of novelties sales have taken place before, often at local levels, but there has never before been a coordinated national drive. Yet novelties, tied to a particular picture or type of picture, would seem to have even more right to be sold in theatres than candy, popcorn, or soft drinks. Records of hit tunes from hit pictures should also be at home in the lobby stands or in the hands of ushers.

Let us hope that this ABC Vending effort, which is open to all theatres everywhere, will breed a successful expansion in lobby vending. If so there should be many facets to such an enterprise that will warrant developing.

OUR BUSINESS . . . AND "THE BUSINESS OF SEX"

So THE USE of prostitutes by "the largest corporations in the United States" is so common that "some madams submit monthly bills to companies" and "put out a book" of pictures to insure satisfaction. And the delineated proof, under the title, "The Business of Sex," was worth a recent 55 minute program, MCed by Edward R. Murrow over the entire Columbia Broadcasting network at 9:05 p.m., when most kids, and all teen agers, are still very much awake and alert to what is going on. And, in case the kids and the teen agers missed it, the New York Times and virtually every other prominent newspaper in the land devoted generous space the next day to complete coverage of the exposé, and to direct quotes attributed to the procurers and to the girls themselves. There was even positive and repeated assurance that the young ladies in question earned "$25,000 a year and more," and that it was tax free "because these men are all legitimate businessmen. They deduct you at the end of the year."

With our right hand raised, and our fingers twisted into a genuine Boy Scout pledge, we promise this is not distorted.

It is actually on the record, and it was much more candid than our necessarily brief summary.

Instead of going to the D.A., or to the Department of Justice, with their supposedly authentic facts, Mr. Murrow and his associates went into the family living room, the bedside and the study room; the newspapers provided cooked-over versions the next day.

But it's the motion picture business, maintaining its own Production Code and its own Advertising Code, that is the target for every rabble rouser who is "against sin." And it is "movies" and "movie advertising" that are charged with being the prime causes of juvenile delinquency. It isn't these captains of industry, but the newspapers that run ads on "C" classification pictures that "act as procurers," as one publication recently stated it.

Will somebody please put this industry's transgressions in scale, as compared to the overall transgressions of "The Business of Sex" and the media that spread it.

From MONTGOMERY, PA.

For some time I have been trying to play Buena Vista product, but the only quotation I can get on their top shows is $40 guarantee against 40 per cent of the gross. In the winter I am only open two days a week. So I sent them the following letter:

"I am interested in playing your features. My price schedule is $12.50, $15.00, $17.50, $20.00, and for extra specials $25.00. If you must have percentage, I'll pay 35 per cent with no guarantee, and I'll give you Friday and Saturday. You have to take Friday and Saturday because those are the only days we are open. We close as soon as the drive-ins open.

"We have four drive-ins around here close, but I just about have them run out of business. Every time they play a show, a couple of weeks later I play it also. It's driving them crazy.

"We are open, in business, and paying our bills. Do you want to do business with us? Or do you want to sit on your thumbs waiting for the top dollar until we close up?"

I think you may get a laugh out of it.

ROBERT W. THOMPSON
Eagle Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: Written on a letter-head that showed Mr. Thompson also represents "KEYSTONE CONCRETE SEPTIC TANKS" and "APPLIANCES," we got our biggest laugh out of a postscript that read: "I find the Septic Tank Business a much cleaner one than the one I am leaving."

From WYOMING, ILL.

I can't afford to renew my subscription; and still I can't afford to be without this great publication, and the splendid pink REVIEWS and yellow SERVESECTION that I depend on entirely for every source of information necessary to the proper buying and booking for my theatre. So will you kindly bring me up to date on the pink REVIEWS by sending me all sections starting with page 4505 (Sept. 3, 1958)?

MARION F. BODWELL
Paramount Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: We are proud of the number of old expired subscribers who come back and voluntarily renew after just a few months. There is probably no greater tribute to the value of the theatre services rendered by MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR.

From WAPPINGERS FALLS, N. Y.

Because I receive MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR weekly at my theatre, I no longer require it at my home address. It is a fine trade paper, and when business stinks as it does most of the time I can read it twice, if not more. But I can read the same copy twice, not the theatre copy once and the home copy at home. I stuff it in my brief case to make the case bulge, and to impress my neighbors with the thought that I have had some business that night. In the summer time I can get some value from the second copy; but in the winter time we have no flies. In the summer time I knock hell out of one copy while I read the other.

Seriously, I enjoy your paper, and the services that I get from it. It is always in front of me on the desk. Right on top of the bills. It's great as a paper weight, too!

Here is a sample of the rubber stamp we are using on all of our checks. I picked up the idea from MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR and it is a good one. Incidentally, I suppose you are still receiving letters as to who was the first to ever use such a thing. It would be interesting to find out.

J. J. FITZGIBBONS, JR.
Theatre Confections Limited

EDITOR'S NOTE: The rubber stamp reads "THIS IS MOVIE MONEY. HAVE YOU BEEN TO A MOVIE RECENTLY?" And when the largest theatre concessionaire in Canada, with four district offices and numerous warehouses, and doing a multi-million dollar gross each year, sends out its checks—that's a lot of checks!

From NEW PRAGUE, WISC.

Please, please print more data such as "THE MAN WITH HIS HEAD IN THE HOLE" (Editorial—Dec. 3, 1958 Issue). I am having our local editor print the results of the Gilbert Youth Research, Inc., survey as listed in your editorial, and I'm sure it will open a lot of eyes.

We need lots more such help. If all exhibitors would use their influence at the grass-roots level to try to have their newspapers publish such findings, we might counteract some of the mind-poisoning by those who think motion pictures are a bad influence. Most times these latter have no facts, but a great deal of convictions, amplified over and over again by their crusader's zeal and by repetition of the same diatribes.

G. P. JONCKOWSKI

EDITOR'S NOTE: There have been scores of letters received praising the data contained in that Dec. 3 piece. Real research on just what influences cause juvenile delinquency may be forced on the industry in order to combat the pro-censor and the slap-movie elements, that speak so glibly without research of any kind. Here is a worthwhile field for MPA or COMPO activity.

From LEHIGHTON, PA.

The enclosed editorial was written by the newly appointed editor of our daily Lehigh Valley Evening Leader, Mr. Seymour Kopf. Other theatremen might profit from this.

GEORGE KARAS, Manager
Classic Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Kopf's editorial is being reproduced in its entirety. It's a good editorial. And an honest one! Mr. Karas is lucky to have such a friendly townsman. As Mr. Karas says, views like these should help others. How about clipping it and sending it to your local paper?

FOR THE SMALL TOWN THEATRE

"Put us on record for the small town movie house. We notice many of them closing all over the country, and we hope it does not happen in Lehigh Valley.

"It is true that there are drive-ins, that the bigger cities such as Allentown have more elaborate theatres, and many high school auditoriums are even bigger than the local-town movie houses.

"But we question whether it is a good idea for local people to snub local theatres. Drive-in theatres are all right for grown-ups, but are they all right for teenagers? Big city theatres play the latest films, but is there really that much difference between a one-month old picture and a brand new one? Is it really worth the cost of transportation and the headaches of traffic to see a recent film which, after all, might not be nearly as good as an older one?

"We believe that the small-town movie theatre is important in another respect, too. America is losing much of its town meeting custom, which many consider to be the cornerstone of our democracy. The small-town movie theatre has brought townspeople together and it was not an uncommon sight for theatre-goers to engage in after-show conversation. The family and home seemed closer together then. It was not an unusual sight for teenagers to attend the local theatre with a date, then enjoy an ice cream soda. People may have been slower—but at least they knew where they were going.

"That is why we would like to go on record for our local movie theatre. We would like to see it supported more than it is. We believe that it is a sad sight for any town to lose its theatre for lack of public support. And we hope it will never happen here."

"Eden" Convictions Reversed

BOSTON — The Massachusetts Supreme Court last week set aside the convictions of a theatre projectionist and a film salesman who had been found guilty in Fall River, Mass., of exhibiting an alleged obscene film, "The Garden of Eden," three years ago.

Justice Arthur Whittemore in his decision said, "There is nothing sexy or suggestive about this nudist film."

BROADWAY GROSSES

Openings Spark Average Week

NEW YORK—Two good openings sparked business in the Broadway first-run with business about average elsewhere.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"THE INN OF THE SIXTH HAPPINESS" (20th-Fox). Paramount ($33,403)* — The seventh week was sure of $34,000.

"SOME CAME RUNNING" (MGM). Radio City Music Hall ($142,115)—Thursday through Sunday accounted for $98,000, with the opening session bound to top $148,000. Stage show.

"PERFECT FURLOUGH" (U-I). Roxy, with stage show, claimed $49,000 for Wednesday through Sunday, with the first week estimated at $56,000.

"THE BUCCANEER" (Paramount). Capitol ($41,926)—The fifth week was heading toward $20,000.

"THE GEISHA BOY" (Paramount). Mayfair expected the sixth and last week to tally $10,000.

"ANNA LUCASTA" (United Artists). Victoria ($19,202)—The second week was reported as $20,000.

"SEPARATE TABLES" (United Artists). Astor ($19,115)—The sixth week was $23,000.

"BELL, BOOK AND CANDLE" (Columbia). Odeon reported the fifth week as $13,000.

"A NIGHT TO REMEMBER" (Rank). Criterion stated the fifth week was $16,000.

"RALLY 'ROUND THE FLAG, BOYS" (20th-Fox). RKO Palace anticipated the fifth week at $14,000.

Protect Para. Decrees, Myers Tells Allied

PITTSBURGH, PA.—In his address at the Allied States Association's 1959 National Drive-In convention this week Abram F. Myers speaking on the need to concentrate on essentials, said: ". . . In the all-important matter of selecting measures for improving the motion picture business . . . let us beware of 'modernizing' the decrees entered in the Paramount case.

"We all agree that the basic need is to stimulate increased theatre attendance . . . We should do our utmost to revive the business by advertising and exploitation.

"At Allied's National Convention in Chicago last November the delegates adopted a resolution calling upon Allied to explore the desirability and feasibility of organizing a national buying circuit for independent exhibitors . . . I commend it to your very careful consideration.

"Another need of the drive-ins . . . is the ability to play pictures while they still retain novelty appeal . . . Delayed availabilities are the biggest handicap to exhibitors in their struggle from the slough of bad business to the high ground of prosperity.

"Allied's 'White Paper' and its suggestion that exhibitors try to interest their Congressmen and Senators in the dereliction of the Department of Justice . . . is a prime essential in the program to revive exhibition.

"It is of prime importance that you resist the attacks on the decrees and join in a crusade to preserve them."

TV Licensing Bill Launched

ALBANY, N.Y.—Licensing, under standards similar to those followed by the Education Department's Motion Picture Division, of most television programs broadcast over stations in New York State, would be required by the terms of sweeping bill which Assemblyman A. Bruce Manley, Fredonia Republican, unexpectedly introduced.

TOA Backs Harris TV Bill

NEW YORK—Philip F. Harling, chairman, TOA's Anti-Pay TV Committee issued a plea for support of the bill sponsored by Representative Oren Harris of Arkansas, chairman of the House Commerce Committee.

Harling urged exhibitors to contact their Congressmen and prevail upon local chambers of commerce, PTA's, veterans' organizations and labor unions to get in touch with the solons with a request either to support the Harris measure or introduce identical legislation.

Fox Okays Record Production Budget

SPG Honors Goldwyn; Excessive Demands Hit

HOLLYWOOD—Veteran producer Samuel Goldwyn last fortnight was presented the Screen Producers Guild Milestone Award at a dinner at the Beverly Hilton Hotel. The presentation was made by Spyros P. Skouras.

Others honored were Marvin Gluck, of UCLA, who received the Jesse L. Lasky Intercollegiate Award for the best film produced by a college or university for "Reflection" and Arthur Freed, "best producer of a theatrical film in 1958," for "Gigi."

Danny Thomas shared the master of ceremonies chores with Mort Sahl.

Goldwyn said the excessive guarantees and percentages being asked by some stars, production executives, and agents would bring about a day of reckoning; and that this created conditions "worse than I have ever known them" in 47 years in the industry.

He also said that without the revenue from the pre-1948 pictures sold to television, some of the companies "would be closed down today, and the entire business would be a lot worse off."

Goldwyn stated that "the solution of our problems depends on intelligent cooperation between all segments of Hollywood."

He reiterated his belief that fewer pictures must be made, asserting that "a mere 34 pictures produced approximately one-half the total domestic film rental last year." He said the distribution system has to be overhauled and consolidated realistically in the light of today's conditions.

He also asked for integrity "in all we do," asserting that "the public is tired of advertising which shrieks that every picture is the best that was ever made, and of publicity which exaggerates facts and figures. When our own advertising and publicity destroys public confidence in any part of what we have to offer, it damages everything we do. There is still a great audience for fine motion picture entertainment; and if we make such pictures and deal honestly with the public, we will get all the public support we are entitled to."

"Oscar" Show Lengthened

HOLLYWOOD—Lengthening of the 31st Annual "Oscar" presentations show to one hour and 45 minutes and coverage by Canadian television and Alaskan radio were disclosed by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Under the agreement with the National Broadcasting Company, a quarter-hour will be added to the previously announced 90 minute-fare on 192 stations of the NBC Television Network and radio broadcast.

Thirty-five Canadian stations will carry one hour of the ceremonies, bringing the total number of North American television outlets to 217.

Including Alaskan stations, the number of commercial radio broadcast outlets totals 199.

MGM Expands Studio Stages

HOLLYWOOD—Construction began last fortnight on the modernization of Stages 16 and 19 at the MGM studio with the project expected to be completed within 90 days.

The demand for extra stage space is due to expanded motion picture and TV production schedules.

Ad Code Seal Approved By MPAA For Pressbooks

NEW YORK—Charles Simonelli, chairman of the MPAA Advertising and publicity directors committee, last week announced that the members of his committee had unanimously approved the use of a statement and MPAA Code Seal in all pressbooks approved by the MPAA Advertising Code Administration.

Effective immediately, the eight member companies will use the following statement, together with an MPAA Code Seal on the front inside cover of all future pressbooks. The statement reads: "All material in this pressbook has been approved under the MPAA Advertising Code, a self-regulatory procedure of the Motion Picture Association of America."

Independents who clear their pictures with the Production Code Administration in Hollywood and their advertising with the MPAA Advertising Code Administration in New York and Hollywood may also use the Seal and statement in their pressbooks.

Loew's Names Shupert V-P In Charge of TV

NEW YORK—George Shupert, with a long and distinguished background as one of the industry's top television executives, has been appointed vice-president in charge of TV for MGM, it was announced last week by Joseph R. Vogel, president of Loew's, Inc. Prior to joining MGM, he had served as president of ABC film syndication since 1954.

Shupert first became associated with the entertainment industry in 1938 through the production of industrial films, and, in 1940, he was appointed director of sales, commercial film division, for Paramount in New York. From 1942 until 1951, Shupert was importantly connected with Paramount's TV operations, advancing to vice-president and director of commercial TV operations for Paramount TV Productions, Inc. Among other executive TV posts, Shupert was vice-president of Peerless TV Productions, Inc., and vice-president and general manager of United Artists Television Corp., and in 1953, vice-president of the American Broadcasting Company film syndicates division, and then president of ABC film syndication before his new affiliation with MGM.

MPAA Studies Classification

NEW YORK—It was learned last fortnight that the Production Code working committee of the MPAA will explore the desirability of adopting an audience classification system for motion pictures.

Heretofore, the idea has had little appeal to the MPAA, but the decision to investigate the idea follows closely upon the introduction of a classification measure in the New York State Legislature at Albany.

Skouras, Adler Announce Summit Meeting Approves $66 Million For 34 Films To Be Released In 1959

HOLLYWOOD—Reflecting a rising optimism in the future of the 20th Century-Fox Studio's producing activities, president Spyros Skouras and studio executive producer Buddy Adler officially announced last week that a record-breaking $66,000,000 has been appropriated for the making of 34 pictures for release during 1959.

Approval of this record budget appropriation is the outcome of conferences at the studio between studio heads and the top brass of the 20th Century-Fox Corporation's distribution organization, here from New York in annual session.

With Skouras and Adler in these sessions were vice-president W. C. Michel, Joseph H. Moskowitz, and Charles Einfeld, treasurer Donald Henderson, International Corporation president Murray Silverstone, general sales manager Alex Harrison, and George Skouras for Todd-AO. Participating as Buddy Adler's aides were Lew Schreiber, his executive assistant; Sid Rogell, executive production manager; J. B. Codd, studio treasurer; David Brown, story executive; and others.

Included in or supplementing the 34 properties definitely set for production this year will be a multi-million-dollar spectacle to be specified later for filming in Todd-AO process and released as a road show attraction, it was further announced.

Producing companies contributing to the 1959 release schedule include Darryl F. Zanuck Productions, David O. Selznick Productions, Jerry Wald Productions, Walter Wanger Pictures, Leo McCarey Productions, Samuel G. Engel Productions, Jack Cummings Productions, and Mervyn LeRoy Productions.

The list of new pictures for 1959 release is as follows: George Stevens' production of "The Diary of Anne Frank," "Woman Obsessed," "Say One For Me," "The Man Who Understood Women," "Holiday For Lovers," "Blue Denim," "No House Limit," "Blue Angel," "The Alaskans," "Stage Door," "The Best of Everything," "O Mistress Mine," "Tender is the Night," "Salaambo," "Island in the South," "Cleopatra," "Sink the Bismarck," "Bachelor's Baby," "The Billionaire," "The Loves of Ruth," "A Journey to the Center of the Earth," "De-Luxe Tour," "Can-Can," "Beloved Infidel," "The King Must Die," "From the Terrace," "The Chinese Room," "Sons and Lovers," "The Story on Page One," "Requiem For A Nun," "Tight White Collar," "Return to Peyton Place," and "John Brown's Body."

"Pennypacker" Saturation Set

NEW YORK—Twentieth Century-Fox's "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker" has been set for a 400-theatre saturation opening, encompassing 15 midwestern states, starting Feb. 4.

The mass launching of the Clifton Webb starrer, according to the film company, will be backed by one of the most elaborate newspaper and radio-television campaigns ever organized for a Fox attraction.

The saturation is being spearheaded by Fox exchanges in Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Omaha, Des Moines, Kansas City and St. Louis.

Possibility Of Theatre Licensing Discussed At N.Y. Censor Debate

ALBANY—The possibility of "licensing motion picture theatres" was suggested by James A. FitzPatrick, of Plattsburgh, counsel for the Joint Legislative Committee on Offensive and Obscene Material, during a two-hour panel session on "Motion Picture Censorship," held in School 16 under the auspices of its PTA.

Joining the former Assemblyman in the often sharp but always good-humored exchange were Dr. Hugh M. Flick, ex-director of Motion Picture Division and present executive assistant to Dr. James E. Allen, Jr., State Education Commissioner; attorney Lewis A. Sumberg, who has several independent exhibitors among his clients but who did not "speak for the industry, the producers, or any trade group"; C. R. (Tip) Roseberry, erstwhile film critic for The Knickerbocker News and author of a recent two-week series on "Censorship" which appeared in The Times-Union; and David H. Beetle, editor of the Knicknews, who served as moderator.

Sumberg was substituted as a panelist by program chairman Mrs. Matthew Margolis. She could not line up a spokesman from the circuits operating theatres locally. Originally, one was slated to participate, but he later informed Mrs. Margolis he would be out of town that night.

The Albany Roman Catholic Diocese was also asked to designate a representative, but declined. The chancery was said to be "well satisfied" with the inclusion of FitzPatrick, a Papal Knight.

A member of the Legislature 10 years, a former member and later chairman of the Joint Committee on Offensive and Obscene Material, and a "student of this whole subject for 10 years," the slender Irishman touched off most of the verbal fireworks.

He spoke with great fervor and conviction; appealed, as a father of four children, to the parents for their understanding and cooperation in the fight against immorality, obscenity, brutality, and violence, "either in the printed medium, on the screen, or the TV set."

FitzPatrick pointed out that comic books had been the Committee's first target; that, under pressure from his group, that industry "finally cleaned itself up, although there is still room for improvement."

The Committee had refrained from "impinging on liberties"; had been very careful in the bills it introduced; preferred to obtain the cooperation of industries within its field of study. This includes "motion pictures, television, and radio."

The attorney flatly said he was disappointed in the recent record of the motion picture industry. It had "realized the need for regulation"; had "drawn excellent codes, for production and for advertising." Unfortunately, "these are now being honored more in the breach than in the observance."

FitzPatrick made it clear that 1959 legislation would be sponsored by the Joint Committee. He revealed that the Committee was "studying" a film classifications act—the Conklin-Marano bill. It would require the Motion Picture Division, in licensing films, to classify them as suitable for "general patronage," "for adults and adolescents," or for "adults only." Also, theatres would note the classification, in their advertising.

It was while discussing the motion picture situation—including the appeal to be argued this winter before the U. S. Supreme Court, in "Lady Chatterly's Lover,"—that FitzPatrick

President Submits Budget Of $5,752,300 For USIA

WASHINGTON—President Dwight D. Eisenhower last fortnight reduced his budgetary request for USIA's motion picture service under the amount he asked Congress to appropriate for this year; but has placed the agency's figure at about $500,000 more than was made available for the current fiscal year operations.

Last year he recommended $6,433,700 for the movie section with Congress okaying $5,203,100 for the purpose. The estimates which were sent to Congress last week propose $5,752,300 for overseas motion picture operations. This figure, however, is expected to be cut by Congress, and if the cut is deep, movies can expect to suffer more than radio and television, since the President has indicated that greater emphasis will be placed on the overseas activities of these mediums in the future.

Wisc. Allied Leader Retires

Sayre Heads SAG

HOLLYWOOD—Following the resignation from the presidency of Franklyn Farnum, the Screen Extras' Guild last fortnight elected Jeffrey Sayre to the post.

made a passing, but significant, reference to "licensing motion picture theatres."

This, sub rosa, has long been suggested as a possible alternative to straight censorship, although the details have never been spelled out.

FitzPatrick vowed he would "fight for other legislation satisfactory to the courts, or for a new approach"—should the 1954 amendment, which he sponsored, be knocked out by the nation's highest tribunal. He did not believe the latter would happen.

A blast at the quick-buck men, who produce "cheap, tawdry, lurid films" and who give the Motion Picture Division so much trouble, was fired by Dr. Flick. He drew a line of demarcation between them and the major producers.

Distrib Chairmen Set For Brotherhood Week

NEW YORK—Exhibitor-distributor meetings for the purpose of finalizing local campaign plans for the industry's Brotherhood Week will be held late this week in 40 exchange cities in the United States.

Alex Harrison, 20th-Fox general sales manager, who again is chairman of the industry's Brotherhood Week fund-raising drive for the National Conference of Christians and Jews, announced his appointments of distribution area chairmen.

National exhibitor chairman Edward L. Hyman, vice-president of American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, was to announce the exhibitor area chairmen this week.

The following branch managers will serve as distribution area chairmen and meet with the exhibitor area chairmen:

ALBANY—Edward R. Susse, MGM; ATLANTA—Foster Hotard, Paramount; BOSTON—Welden Waters, 20th Century-Fox; BUFFALO—Hugh Maguire, Paramount; CHARLOTTE—J. W. Greenleaf, Universal-International; CHICAGO—Robert L. Conn, 20th Century-Fox; CINCINNATI—Phil Fox, Columbia; CLEVELAND—Harry Buxbaum, Paramount; DALLAS—William B. Pa. Town Cuts Tax

CONSHOHOCKEN, PA.—This town last week reduced the admission tax from 10 per cent to five per cent due mainly to the efforts of the owners of the Riant.

Exchange Area Meetings Of ACE Approve Aims Of New Organization

NEW YORK—In the few short weeks of its existence, 10 exchange area meetings of the American Congress of Exhibitors have been held and wholehearted approval of the aims and program of ACE has been voted, a statement from the organization's New York office reported last week.

The 10 areas voting enthusiastic approval represent more than 40 per cent of the potential income from theatres of the United States, according to an average of distribution percentages supplied by a major organization. The areas are Buffalo, Dallas, Denver, Omaha, Detroit, Kansas City, New Haven, New York, Philadelphia, and San Francisco. Additional meetings have been dated for Cleveland, Milwaukee and St. Louis with many others in the planning stage. Dates for these meetings are expected to be announced in the near future.

It is expected that every exchange area will have held local meetings within the next 20 days, according to the New York office of ACE, and, according to the statement, from reports of area chairmen who have talked to brother exhibitors in the various areas, approval of the ACE program also is expected to be forthcoming from these areas.

Make up of the American Congress of Exhibitors has been explained in great detail to exhibitors present at the area meetings with emphasis placed on the fact that any and every exhibitor in the country is welcomed by ACE into membership, with the only qualification necessary for membership being ownership of a theatre and the desire to join ACE. It is stressed that the organization is not designed to replace existing exhibitor groups.

Tax Reforms Studied

HOLLYWOOD—Following a meeting last fortnight of the Motion Picture Industry Council Tax Reform Committee it was learned that the group will conduct two surveys before setting down in detail its recommendations for procedure designed to bring about changes in tax laws which would benefit the industry.

Within the film industry itself, the Committee will conduct a survey to determine the various income levels at which the need for tax reform is most pressing, and to gather special information pertaining to each.

Outside the industry, the Committee will canvass the professions and businesses which must cope with the short-earnings-period problem that principally confronts the entertainment world to determine which of them are subject to special tax provisions which ease their tax burden, and to compare such provisions with a view toward working out a common formula which could be utilized by all in a grass-roots presentation to the Congressional tax committees.

New Team Acquires "Platero"

NEW YORK—"Platero Y Yo," classic novel of the late Noble Prize-winning Juan Ramon Jimenez, has been acquired for filming in Spain this year by Edward Mann and Thomas Weitzner.

The new team of Mann and Weitzner have projected production of "Platero Y Yo" on location in Andalusia, original locale of the novel. Two versions, in English and in Spanish, will be shot simultaneously in color.

Kay Norton was recently appointed vice-president in charge of administration of United Artists Records and is seen here with Max E. Youngstein, president. She will also function as vice-president of United Artists Music and as operating head of UA's music companies.

Kay Norton Named V-P of UA Records

NEW YORK—Max E. Youngstein, president of United Artists Records, Inc., and United Artists Music, Inc., last week announced the appointment of Kay Norton as vice-president in charge of administration of United Artists Records. Miss Norton joined UA Records as a consultant last September following a notable career as an executive in the motion picture and industrial relations fields.

In addition to her duties as head of administration for UA Records, Miss Norton also will function as vice-president of United Artists Music and as operating head of UA's music companies.

Prior to her association with United Artists, Miss Norton operated her own industrial public relations organization, Norton and Condon, Inc. She has represented the international interests of industrialist Axel L. Wenner-Gren, and has also handled the public relations of 165 companies in western Europe and key organizations in the electronics field in the United States.

She has been a member of the board of the Andros Bahamas Development Corporation. Before entering the industrial field, Miss Norton had been national publicity director of RKO Radio Pictures and was the first woman to hold a position of that stature in the motion picture industry. Miss Norton brought to that job wide experience as a special public relations representative for the major film companies which she serviced through her own firm.

In private life Miss Norton is the wife of author Robert Sylvester, who conducts the popular Dream Street column for the New York Daily News. They live in New York with their children, Kathie, age 10, and Karin, eight months.

Para. Declares Dividend

NEW YORK—The board of directors of Paramount Pictures Corporation voted a quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share on the common stock payable March 13 to holders of record Feb. 26.

Loew's Management Favors Voting Change

NEW YORK—The elimination of cumulative voting in the election of Loew's directors was urged last fortnight by management in a proxy statement accompanying notice of the special meeting on Feb. 24 and the regular annual meeting two days later.

The first meeting is being called for the sole purpose of amending the company's bylaws to eliminate cumulative voting in advance of the annual meeting at which stockholders will vote on management's proposed slate of 15 directors. A majority of the 5,336,777 shares of Loew's stock outstanding is required to abolish cumulative voting. This practice is seen one of the main causes of Loew's recent corporate difficulties.

The meetings are scheduled for Loew's 72nd Street Theatre.

Col. Wins TV Suit

LOS ANGELES—Superior Court Judge Kurtz Kauffman last week denied an attempt to block television distribution by Columbia Pictures of some 300 theatrical films.

He dismissed the two-count complaint asking for an injunction and damages of $300,000 that had been brought on behalf of the Lee Zahler estate by his widow, Mrs. Rose Zahler. She contended that the company was in violation of an agreement with the composer and conductor of movie music. The court found that there was nothing in the contract to prevent the company from licensing the pictures for television. The Judge also dismissed the complaint against the second defendant, Los Angeles TV station KTTV.

Rank Sets Distrib Deals

LONDON—J. Arthur Rank Overseas Film Distribution last fortnight concluded a deal to distribute eight Associated British Pathe films in a number of important markets, principally in France, Germany, the Netherlands, Indonesia, Latin America, the Far East, the Philippines, India, Burma, and Ceylon.

At the same time, it was learned that Rank Film Distributors of America will distribute "Verboten," a Globe Enterprises production, for RKO Pictures in the United States. Terry Turner has been engaged to handle promotion and general exploitation for this film in major cities in association with the Rank sales and publicity staff.

Josephs Heads "Porgy" Sales

NEW YORK—George M. Josephs has been named director of domestic sales for Samuel Goldwyn's "Porgy and Bess," it was announced last week by Columbia Pictures executive vice-president A. Montague. Josephs will be released by general sales manager Rube Jackter from his position as Columbia's home office Eastern sales representative to handle the "Porgy and Bess" assignment.

The arrangement between the Goldwyn organization and Columbia calls for Columbia to set up special sales and promotion units to service "Porgy and Bess." Bill Doll previously was announced as the head of the advertising-publicity unit.

THE PISTOL-PACKERS KNOW WHAT

Industry Mourns DeMille's Death; Pioneer Was Top Spectacle-Maker

HOLLYWOOD—The industry last week mourned the death of Cecil B. DeMille, 77, pioneer producer-director, who made some of filmland's greatest spectacles.

Funeral services were held at St. Stephens Episcopal Church followed by interment in a $250,000 private mausoleum DeMille built for himself in Hollywood Memorial Park in 1953. Pallbearers included Adolph Zukor and Samuel Goldwyn, who now are among the few of Hollywood's founding fathers still living.

DeMille died of a heart attack in the Hollywood mansion located only a few blocks from where he set up his first studio in a wooden barn 46 years ago. In the intervening years he had given the public 71 films including "The Ten Commandments" and "The Greatest Show On Earth."

DeMille's aged wife was not told of his death due to illness. Other survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Cecelia Harper and Mrs. Katherine Quinn; and two sons, John and Richard.

At the time of his death, DeMille was planning another picture, "On My Honor" about the Boy Scouts of America.

Messages of condolence poured in from all over the world.

Thailand Cuts Film Tariff

NEW YORK—The Motion Picture Export Association of America, Inc., announced last week that the Government of Thailand had reduced the tariff on 35mm film to 2 bahts per meter and 0.4 bahts per meter on 16mm film.

This action culminated a long and persistent campaign conducted by Irving Maas, MPEAA vice-president for the Far East, and Charles Egan, MPEAA South-East Asia representative.

The rates previously were 4 bahts per meter for 35mm product and 0.8 bahts per meter for 16mm film. (The Thai baht is worth about five cents U.S.)

Edele Heads UA Branch

NEW YORK—James R. Velde, general sales manager, announced last fortnight the appointment of D. J. "Bud" Edele as manager of United Artists' New York exchange replacing Joseph M. Sugar, who resigned to become vice-president of Magna.

Edele was branch manager for the company in St. Louis for six years, and has been in the industry since 1935. He assumes his new post on Feb. 1.

Eddie Stevens has been appointed United Artists branch manager in St. Louis, replacing Edele.

Stevens joined the company in 1951 as city salesman in St. Louis, a post he held for eight years. Before joining UA he was a salesman for Eagle Lion Films and head booker for Universal in St. Louis.

Cooper Joins Paramount

HOLLYWOOD—Jack Cooper has joined the Paramount Studio publicity department under Herb Steinberg, advertising-publicity director, to handle press planting.

For the past several years Cooper has directed pre-release and release promotional campaigns for a number of independent production companies under the United Artists banner.

IATSE Supports TOA Improved Projection Plan

NEW YORK—The IATSE announced last fortnight that it heartily approved the Theatre Owners of America's plan for a nation-wide training program to improve the quality of projection in the nation's motion picture theatres.

The IATSE all over the country co-operated fully in the recent two-year survey of projection in theatres conducted by the Motion Picture Research Council.

George G. Kerasotes, TOA president, based his proposal on the findings in the MPRC survey, which revealed that 74 per cent of the 700 theatres in 100 cities checked were found to have inferior projection due to mechanical misalignment of optical equipment.

'Runaway' Productions Studied

HOLLYWOOD—The Hollywood American Federation of Labor Film Council unanimously passed a resolution last fortnight to support a proposed Congressional investigation of so-called "runaway" film productions in foreign countries by American interests. The labor group urged that the inquiry also consider production of American television films abroad.

The council's resolution reiterated its previous complaint that overseas production deprived Hollywood workers of needed employment and also stated that as a result the Government "is deprived of taxes" that would accrue through increased employment here.

SW In Cinerama Stock Deal

NEW YORK—It was learned last fortnight that Stanley Warner Corporation, which on Jan. 9 was given another year by Federal Judge Edmund L. Palmieri to dispose of its remaining stock interest in Cinerama, Inc., had closed a deal with Kidder, Peabody, and Company for the 329,327 shares still held. The price was said to be $2.50 per share.

McWilliams Heads "Oscar" TV Promotion

NEW YORK—Harry K. McWilliams took over last week as promotion and publicity coordinator for the 1959 Academy Awards telecast. His appointment for the post was announced by Charles Simonelli, chairman of the MPAA advertising and publicity directors committee.

The Academy Awards telecast, April 6 scheduled as a one-hour and 45-minute program this year, will be seen on the full NBC and Canadian Broadcasting Networks on 217 North American TV outlets. The radio version of the program will be heard on 199 stations.

McWilliams has been active in the entertainment field for more than 25 years. Recently, he was associated with Rank Films in the promotion of "A Night To Remember" and with 20th-Fox in the launching of "The Roots Of Heaven."

McWilliams served as assistant advertising, publicity and exploitation director for Magna Theatre Corporation; prior to that he was exploitation manager for Columbia Pictures for a period of eight years; and later became director of advertising and public relations for Screen Gems, Inc.

Exhibs Back "Oscar"

NEW YORK—Exhibitor committees have been organized in nearly all of the important population centers for the promotion of this year's Academy Award telecast, it was revealed last week by Charles E. McCarthy, information director of COMPO, which was given the task of enlisting exhibitor support for the telecast.

McCarthy said exhibitor committees last year helped to enlist the support of the telecast by several thousand theatres, with the result that the telecast had an audience exceeding 70,000,000 viewers.

Danheiser In NTA Post

NEW YORK—Melvin Danheiser has been named administrative assistant to Sidney Kramer, director of foreign distribution and film coordinator of National Telefilm Associates, Inc., it was announced last week.

Danheiser joins NTA following a long-time association with RKO Radio Pictures.

George Weltner, Paramount Pictures vice-president in charge of world sales, seated at head of table, recently presided at a home office product and merchandising meeting attended by U.S. and Canadian sales forces. Paramount executives seen with Weltner are Joseph Friedman, Martin S. Davis, Jerry Pickman, Edward Chulley, Ted Krassner, Gordon Lightstone, W. Gordon Bradley, John G. Moore, Edmund DeBerry, Matthew Schroeder, Sidney Deneau, Jack Perley, Tom Bridge, Samuel Sigman, Fred LeRoy, M. Sattler, and A. Dunne.

To My Exhibitor Friends:

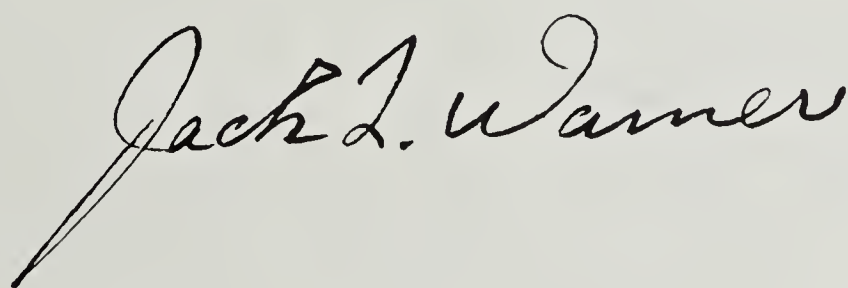

In all my years in show business nothing has meant quite so much to me as the expressions of confidence and regard which you have sent me from all parts of the world since my return to our studios.

My deepest appreciation to all of you for joining so warmly in this tribute, which I am well aware is directed not alone to me but to the world-wide Warner Bros. organization.

To say thanks for your friendly salute is not enough. My great concern—the goal of everyone at Warner Bros. — is to reflect the inspiration of your “welcome back” in productions of which we can all be proud.

In this connection it is especially pleasing to all of us at Warner Bros. that “Auntie Mame,” the first picture to be released during the period you have generously dedicated to honoring me, is bringing you — our exhibitor friends — so much success. I am sure we will share many more successes, not only in the months immediately ahead, but in the continuing future.

Sincerely,

Trans-Lux To Fight Kansas Attempt To Censor "Case Of Dr. Laurent"

NEW YORK—In a move considered highly significant by the censor-burdened motion picture industry and many other supporters of basic civil liberties, Trans-Lux Distributing Corp. will begin legal action to contest a ban imposed by the Kansas Board of Review on its film, "The Case Of Dr. Laurent," according to an announcement last week by company president Richard P. Brandt.

The controversy arises from the Kansas Board's ruling that a scene depicting a "natural childbirth" be deleted from "Dr. Laurent" before the film may be shown in the state. In retaining attorney Felix J. Bilgrey of New York to secure the right to exhibit his film in its entirety, Brandt declared himself prepared to "take all necessary legal steps" to fight his case to a successful conclusion. A renowned censorship authority, Bilgrey recently defeated the city of Chicago's attempt to impose a similar ban on the picture.

Brandt's decision to take the Kansas censors to court is based upon his conviction that the Review Board is an illegal body whose authority has already been invalidated by the Supreme Court decision on "The Moon is Blue"; and whose bigotry is a dangerous deterrent to civil rights. He pointed out that "The Case Of Dr. Laurent" has won international honors for its dramatic presentation of the exciting medical triumph of "natural childbirth," and has been acclaimed enthusiastically in the U.S.—gaining a Motion Picture Association Code Seal, a favorable rating from the Legion of Decency, and the endorsement of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Maternity Center Association, and numerous other lay and clerical groups throughout the country. Wherever it has played, critical praise for the film has been spirited and unanimous.

New Indiana "Rights" Bill

INDIANAPOLIS—Indiana exhibitors would risk revocation of theatre licenses and liability for damages for denying equal use of motion picture theatre facilities because of race, creed, or color under the provisions of a civil rights bill introduced in the Indiana Senate by Senators Jesse L. Dickinson, South Bend; and Robert L. Brokenburr, Indianapolis.

The measure seeks to expand the anti-discrimination law enacted by the Indiana General Assembly in 1885.

Times Square was recently renamed Variety Club Square in honor of Variety Clubs International. Participating in the name-changing ceremonies which were sponsored by Tent 35 of New York were Jimmy Durante and Rita Gam.

Priest Outlines Plan To Uplift Pictures

LOS ANGELES—A priest official of the National Legion of Decency, Catholic film evaluating agency, outlined a parish program of action to uplift the moral tone of motion pictures.

Msgr. John Devlin, the Legion's west coast secretary, urged the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women here to keep a sharp eye on their neighborhood theatres.

"If a condemned movie comes to the theatre, tell the owner carefully and definitely in a real spirit of moral consideration what you think of the picture," he stated. "If the theatre is owned by a chain, write to the head of the chain."

Parishioners should consult the bi-weekly moral ratings issued by the Legion, Msgr. Devlin counselled. He singled out foreign films as the chief offenders against moral standards.

If the picture was made in Hollywood, he said, write to the producer, because "producers will take cognizance of a letter that is well written and constructive."

"They are not anxious to offend," he explained, "because they are unwilling to lose your dollar at the box office."

NTA Profit Up

NEW YORK—Operations of National Telefilm Associates, Inc., for its first fiscal quarter ending October 31, 1958 showed a net profit of $1,364,887, or $1.24 per share on 1,099,611 shares then outstanding, according to Ely A. Landau, chairman of the board.

Included in this profit is a capital gain of $1,144,756 net of applicable expenses and taxes, or $1.04 per share, resulting from the sale of NTA's contract to purchase Associated Artists Productions stock. Net operating income from consolidated operations amounted to $220,131 or 20 cents per share.

For the quarter ending Oct. 31, 1957, net operating income was $269,577, or 26 cents per share on the 1,020,350 shares then outstanding. Film exhibition contracts during the quarter rose to $5,479,312, as compared to $4,310,604 a year ago.

Va. Exhibs Prepare For 25th Convention

RICHMOND, VA.—Syd Gates, Norfolk, president of Virginia Motion Picture Theatre Association, announced last week that the 25th annual convention will be held July 6-9, Chamberlin Hotel, Old Point Comfort, Va.

Paul Roth, Valley Enterprises, Inc., Washington, D. C., who operates conventional and drive-in theatres at Harrisonburg, will serve as general chairman, with Jerome Gordon, Newport News, and John Broumas, Transamerica Theatres, Washington, D. C., with theatres at Staunton, serving as coordinators. Carlton Duffus, Richmond, executive secretary, will be managing director for the convention.

The convention theme will stress the Silver Anniversary with a Founders Banquet July 8. Banquet chairmen are Seymour Hoffman, Richmond, and Ellison Loth, Waynesboro. Other committee chairmen will be business building forum, Rodney Collier, Washington; Hal Covington, Ashland; and Dave Kamsky, Richmond; distinguished guests, Julian Brylawski, Washington; drawings, J. K. Crockett, Virginia Beach, and Jesse Odum, Hampton; exhibits, Herbert Morewitz, Newport News, and Bob Richardson, Suffolk; finance, William Dalke, Jr., Woodstock; food, Hal Lyons, Franklin; golf tournament, Sidney Bowden, Norfolk, and Tommy Mudd, Washington; hospitality, Mrs. Harry Roth, Washington; Dave Garvin, Greensboro, N. C.; and Jack Rumsey, Covington; ladies, Mrs. Roy Richardson, Suffolk; Mrs. Dave Garvin, Greensboro; and Mrs. Carlton Duffus, Richmond; president's reception, Denver Aleshire, Luray, and F. M. Westfall, Martinsville; program ads, Leonard Gordon, Newport News, and T. I. Martin, Culpepper; prizes and donations; Jeff Hofheimer, Norfolk, and Roy Richardson, Suffolk; publicity, R. Dewanner Stallings, Newport News; registration, William Jasper and Charles Collins, Newport News; Tuesday evening party, Julian Gordon, Newport News, and R. F. Flanary, Jr., Richlands.

Exhib Sues Clasa-Mohme

NEW YORK—The Sun, Brooklyn, last fortnight filed an anti-trust suit in U.S. District Court against Clasa-Mohme, Spanish language film distributor, and the Harry Harris Circuit, charging collusion and refusal to service the Sun with films. Damages of $250,000 and a preliminary injunction are asked.

Dick Clark Agrees To Help Sell "Gidget"

NEW YORK—Dick Clark, the idol and trend setter of young America, has given his personal endorsement to Columbia's "Gidget." The endorsement, the first he has ever lent to a motion picture, will be the key-stone of a giant advertising and promotion campaign to be accorded the Cinemascope-color feature.

Clark, who is recognized as the single most potent merchandising force influencing the 12-26 age group, will be featured in the theatre and television trailers for "Gidget," as well as on radio commercials and in newspaper and magazine ads and theatre displays.

The age group over which Clark exercises a potent influence through his daily and weekly television shows over the ABC network comprises more than 75 per cent of the regular movie-going audience as established by industry survey. Clark's shows are the five-times-a-week American Bandstand, which reaches 31 million weekly over 97 stations, and the Saturday night Dick Clark Show, which is seen by more than 20 million viewers over 80 stations.

All of the national and fan magazine ads will carry Clark's likeness and the endorsement and a number of newspaper ads are being composed in the same vein. Special display material based on the endorsement for theatres is also in preparation.

SPG Raps Fox Dismissals

NEW YORK—The Screen Publicists Guild issued a vigorous public protest last week characterizing the recently-announced dismissals of publicity and advertising personnel at 20th Century-Fox Film Corporation as a "callous act . . . without foundation." Pointing to the rising financial curve at Fox, the Guild questioned the dismissal of personnel for purported "economic reasons."

MGM To Move N.Y. Branch

NEW YORK—The offices of MGM's New York Exchange will move to 321 West 44th Street on Feb. 2.

They will be located on the 10th floor after the move over from their current quarters at 630 Ninth Avenue.

The telephone number, Circle 6-6200, will remain the same.

The NEW YORK Scene

By Mel Konecoff

HENRY "HI" MARTIN, general sales manager of Universal Pictures, last week declared at lunch that his company was still pursuing a policy of quality instead of quantity. U-I will release 19 features during the fiscal year ending Oct. 31 in addition to an undetermined number of reissues. Innovations in distribution will be attempted in conjunction with advertising and publicity campaigns so as to give a film every chance to earn its top potential, said he.

One such innovation has paid off handsomely, and that is where the company's highly successful "Perfect Furlough" was booked in 150 situations for special shows on New Year's Eve. Executives have found that in each of these spots the film is doing well because the word-of-mouth has pre-sold the film. The feature is registering 82 per cent of "Battle Hymn" and 118 per cent of "Tammy" to date, with the former having grossed domestically $3,700,000 and the latter having brought in $2,700,000. Other big ones near release are "Never Steal Anything Small" and "Imitation Of Life," which is set for Easter.

1959-60 may well see the same number released although no definite commitment was made, with Martin instead noting that the number would depend on the conditions of the market, etc. Among those that will be released during the next fiscal year are three that have started production this week at an initial investment of $10 millions. They are "Spartacus," "Operation Petticoat," and "Pillow Talk." Others to be released are "Viva Gringo," "Matilda Shouted Fire," "Desert Flower," "Wine of Youth," "Spiral Road," and "A Gathering Of Eagles." Negotiations for others are constantly in the works.

Martin opined that fewer good ones could gross better than a lot of films that are sparsely attended.

He will hold a number of sales meetings with exchange staffs this week and next.

VARIETY NOTE: Some 120 members and guests attended the most recent meeting of Tent 35 at Toots Shor's to witness the induction of the new slate of officers, listen to a report on fund raising for the tent's heart project, and to be well entertained by comics Morey Amsterdam and Harry Hershfield.

Bob O'Donnell inducted re-elected chief barker Ira Meinhardt, first assistant Harry Brandt, second assistant Jim Velde, property master Walt Framer, dough guy Jack H. Hoffberg, fixer Harry Pimstein, press guy Al Steen, public relations guy Mort Sunshine, and canvassmen Irving Dollinger, Alex Harrison, Jack H. Levin, Morris Sanders, Robert K. Shapiro, Charles Smakwitz, and George Waldman.

Harry Brandt, president of the Cancer Research Control Foundation, urged that members buy or sell tickets to the program of 10 premieres of forthcoming top attractions, the first two of which are UA's "Some Like It Hot," starring Marilyn Monroe, and Fox's "The Sound And The Fury," with Yul Brynner, etc.

NOTE ON PASSING: We join the many in the industry who will miss C. B. DeMille and his worthy offerings, and extend sympathy to family and associates.

THE METROPOLITAN SCENE: Good old Jesse Zinser, who reviews motion pictures for CUE, replies to former movie critic Bill Zinsser of the Herald Tribune who griped in a book about films and pressures exerted by makers and/or distributors. The reply which was carried in the Jan. 17 issue was basic, forthright, and had much merit to it. . . . Arthur Kerman and Dave Emanuel were on hand to host the open house party inaugurating the new offices of Tudor Pictures at 375 Park Avenue. . . . The Paramount's managing director Bob Shapiro has made special admission arrangements for groups of 25 or more who want to see "The Inn Of The Sixth Happiness." . . . In case anyone is interested, UA Records is instituting a Gazachstahagen Contest. What is it? That's the contest. . . . Museum of Modern Art commencing a "Superproduction Series" of showing this week starting with the late C. B. DeMille's "Male And Female," made in 1919. Others scheduled include "The Thief Of Bagdad" (1924), "America," "Beau Geste," "King Kong," "Lives Of A Bengal Lancer," "Romeo And Juliet," "The Good Earth," "Marie Antoinette," "Wuthering Heights," and "How Green Was My Valley." . . . National Screen Service has made up some appropriate packages to drum up business for the Fridays that fall on the 13 of February, March, and November. . . . Kurt Blumberg joins United Artists Television, Inc., February 1, as administrative assistant to Bruce Eells, executive vice president, and also as manager of syndication operations for the company. He comes to UA directly from Independent Television Corporation, where he was manager of sales administration and planning.

This is a shot of the dais at the recent installation dinner of Variety Club of New York, Tent 35. Film star Greta Thyssen was a special guest. Ira Meinhardt is the new chief barker.

Henry G. Plitt, president, Paramount Gulf State Theatres, presented a plaque and a gift to Charles Oku at the recent TOA convention in Miami, Fla., on the occasion of his 60th birthday and his 35th anniversary with the Coca Cola Company.

Fox Sets Video Plans

New York—Martin Manulis, executive production chief of 20th-Fox television, yesterday outlined positive plans for filming at least 10 series for the new video organization's 1959 schedule.

Returning only a few hours earlier from Honolulu, where he signed James Michener to write a South Pacific series, "Adventures in Paradise," Manulis was given the production go-ahead by Spyros Skouras and studio executive producer Buddy Adler at a top-level conference between studio heads and home office executives.

LONDON Observations

by Jock MacGregor

I AM NO LOVER of gimmicks at premieres. Too many misfire and are apt to cause more embarrassment than excitement. An exception which I applaud was the Dutch night organized by the Rank group for the world premiere of "Operation Amsterdam," the exciting film reconstruction of the expedition to snatch Holland's fabulous stock of industrial diamonds before Hitler's invasion.

Holland's top models displayed their country's fashions, specially flown over for the occasion. Dutch drinks and eats were served by Dutch misses. In addition to be-diamonded lovelies to complete this diamond premiere, guests were invited to take a stone from a display. Five-hundred were paste, three were genuine sparklers, reported to be worth more than $300 each. I am happy to say that, after only a moment's glance, I picked a genuine one. "Will I have it made into a engagement ring?" I've been asked. I need notice of that one.

IN HONORING Rank's prize-winning showmen at lunch, Kenneth Winckles said he hoped the new Third Circuit, which includes many Rank theatres and comes into being this month, would be regarded as the "National Circuit." He did not want it looked on as a poor relation and believed it could provide good returns to producers.

For the first time, the contest covered the whole year, giving all managers an equal chance. He was well pleased that the group's 450 theatres had averaged 155 campaigns a week and added that true showmanship had replaced "foldermanship." Good showmanship, he believed, made theatregoing more exciting. The winners, all from the north, were A. W. F. Wall, Gaumont, Falkirk; G. Newman, Capitol, Leith; and S. Robdrup, Gaumont, Darlington. The last two both started as uniformed staff.

I welcomed Winckles' "foldermanship" crack. When I get too elaborately displayed campaigns I always wonder how the manager has the time to spare and what he is trying (a) to sell, (b) to cover. All I want for "EXPLOITATION" are clear facts, photos when available, and samples of self created throwaways, contests, etc. I do not need overprinted matter inspired by the press books, though I must confess samples of a cereal featured in a national tie-up have provided my recent breakfasts.

THE MOST INTERESTING new deal in a long while results in Rank handling Associated British Pathe's "Ice Cold in Alex" and "I Was Monty's Double" in a number of overseas territories. Macgregor Scott and Harry Norris intend this as the first of a series of such tie-ups. Rank Overseas Film Distributors is going from strength to strength and now handles the product of several American and British producers. . . . Quietly and efficiently the British Film Institutes does a fine job running the National Film Theatre, preserving historic films and generally creating an interest in the cinema. As a tribute to William Wyler it sponsored, for the first time, the "Big Country" premiere at the Odeon, and what a joy their comprehensive brochure on the director was. Wyler and Charlton Heston broke off from "Ben Hur" which has since been completed to fly up from Rome for opening. Rarely has a Hollywood movie had better reviews here. Incidentally, the Lord President of the Privy Council has appointed MGM's Charles Goldsmith a governor of the BFI. . . . Rank's latest Wisdom comedy, "Square Peg" is doing a burster. Jim Carreras, back from South Africa with a fantastic sun tan, having seen the money being coined by Bernard Bresslaw's first comedy, "I Only Arsked," in the pre-release spots, is not sure he shouldn't go away more often—his next trip will be with son Mike to America. Charles Goldsmith is embarrassed. "Reluctant Debutant" is doing so well at the Empire, that he has had to postpone the "Party Girl" opening. Which all goes to prove that it's laughter they're after. . . . Exhibitors from all over the country were so encouraged by the EXPLOITATION department of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR recently devoting an entire issue to their exploits that they have been literally flooding me with entries for the "Showman-Of-The-Year" contest. Winners will be announced for the past year in a future issue of the publication.

The Cosmic Man (5902) MELODRAMA 72M.

Allied Artists

ESTIMATE: Science fiction entry for the supporting slot.

CAST: Bruce Bennett, John Carradine, Angela Greene, Paul Langton, Scotty Morrow, Lyn Osborn, Walter Maslow, Herbert Lytten. Produced by Robert A. Terry; directed by Herbert Greene.

STORY: When a large, ball-shaped object lands not far from an air base, Colonel Paul Langton and civilian scientist Bruce Bennett are assigned to investigate. The two clash as to means and reasons for the investigation. Langton tries to move it by force to no avail. The pair make their headquarters at the lodge owned by attractive widow Angela Greene and her crippled son, Scotty Morrow. Eventually, a cosmic man, John Carradine, who can appear and disappear at will leaves the ball, and Bennett sees that he is merely studying the earth and its peoples. In an appearance before officers and scientists he asks them to change their attitude so that they will be able to co-exist with others in the universe. Carradine sees trouble, leaves, and befriends Morrow, after which he uses him as a hostage in case he is stopped. A last minute bit of treachery almost destroys Carradine, but he regains his ship and it takes off. Morrow is cured and the immediate future looks bright for Greene, Bennett, and the boy.

X-RAY: Too little action handicaps this science fiction entry which showed promise. It can go on the lower half with a fair yarn, okay performances, and adequate direction and production. The original story and screenplay are by Arthur C. Pierce.

AD LINES: "The Thing That Could Destroy The Earth;" "The Mysterious Objects Reported Everywhere Could Be 'The Cosmic Man' in Action."

COLUMBIA

Gideon Of Scotland Yard MELODRAMA 91M

Columbia
(English-made)

ESTIMATE: Satisfactory detective story for the program.

STORY: Chief Inspector Jack Hawkins of Scotland Yard starts his day off on the wrong foot as an eager young policeman gives him a traffic ticket. In the course of the "typical" day, he learns that one of his detectives accepted bribes, hunts an escaped madman who murders a girl, tracks a young girl suspected of payroll robbery, and breaks up a bank robbery. With all these cases successfully concluded, he returns home late as usual. There he finds his daughter entertaining the young man who started him off with the traffic ticket.

X-RAY: The directorial genius of John Ford is evident throughout this English production which follows a policeman through a typical day, replete with problems, frustrations, comedy, pathos, triumph, and failure. Hawkins does his usual competent job and a host of intriguing English character actors wander through the proceedings. The audiences should enjoy it once they're in, but attracting them will prove the hard part. Emphasis on Ford, who has four "Oscars" to his credit may help. Screenplay is by T.E.B. Clarke.

TIP ON BIDDING: Program rates.

AD LINES: "Four-Time Academy Award Winner John Ford Turns To Crime"; "24 Tension-Taut Hours In The Life Of A Top Crime Fighter."

PARAMOUNT

The Black Orchid (5813) DRAMA 96M.

Paramount

ESTIMATE: Fine, entertaining drama.

CAST: Sophia Loren, Anthony Quinn, Ina Balin, Jimmie Baird, Mark Richman, Naomi Stevens, Virginia Vincent, Joe Di Rada, Frank Puglia, Majel Barrett, Scotti Vito. Produced by Carlo Penti and Marcello Giresi; directed by Martin Ritt.

STORY: When the husband of Sophia Loren and father of her young son, Jimmie Baird, is murdered by gangsters, she feels she is responsible, having driven him into the rackets to get money to meet her many demands for a house, furnishings, etc. Six months later, she is working as a flower maker while Baird has been sent to a state farm to pay for his acts of juvenile delinquency. A neighbor tries to introduce her to widower Anthony Quinn, but she claims to have no interest in men. He does get to meet her and accompanies her to the farm when she goes to visit Baird. Quinn's daughter, Ina Balin, who is about to be married to Mark Richman, becomes upset and jeopardizes her own happiness by refusing to leave her father to go live with Richman in Atlantic City. Loren and Quinn tell Baird that they'll take him away from the farm if they get married. She does accept his proposal of marriage, but Balin insults her when they formally meet, after which she even refuses to see Richman. When the wedding is called off, Baird runs away from the farm, Quinn explains to Richman that Balin has withdrawn from everything as her mother did before her. He and Richman go to church to pray where they find Baird. They take him back to the farm. Loren goes to see Balin and explains that her father is entitled to happiness. When the men return, they find harmony and understanding.

X-RAY: Very well-made is this sensitive drama of ordinary people who seek happiness by trying to overcome various problems and obstacles. It has a number of touching moments that will bring tears as well as scenes that are heartwarming. It also has a few moments of fun and lightness. The story is simple, yet thoroughly interesting, and the characterizations of Quinn and Loren are very able bringing much to the entry as a whole and making it thoroughly believable. Once the public gets to see the film, they'll go for it in a big way. Director Ritt does a fine job and the production values fall into the better category. Given a chance, word of mouth should prove an additional asset. The original story and screenplay is by Joseph Stefano. It has some special measure of pleasure for the femmes, who will get a chance to use their kerchiefs now and again.

TIPS ON BIDDING: Higher bracket in many situations.

AD LINES: "An Unusual Story About Ordinary People"; "You'll Love This Heartwarming Story . . . It's Romantic, Funny, Filled With Joy And Tears."

ESTIMATE: Exciting spectacle.

CAST: Silvana Mangano, Van Heflin, Viveca Lindfors, Geoffrey Horne, Oscar Homolka, Robert Keith, Agnes Moorehead, Helmut Dantine, Finlay Currie, Vittorio Gassman, Laurence Naismith, Claudio Gora. Produced by Dino DeLaurentis; directed by Alberto Lattuada.

STORY: Russia's Czarina Catherine II, played by Viveca Lindfors, is disturbed by strife and uprisings in the hinterlands. Junior officer Geoffrey Horne, son of a general is transferred to a small, isolated outpost as a disciplinary measure. Enroute, accompanied by his faithful servant, Oscar Homolka, Horne rescues half-frozen traveler Van Heflin from a freezing death on the plains. The outpost is commanded by captain Robert Keith, who lives with his wife, Agnes Moorehead, and daughter, Silvana Mangano. Horne falls in love with the latter and arouses the resentment of fellow-officer Helmut Dantine. A duel results in Horne being wounded. The fort is attacked and conquered by the rebel army commanded by Heflin, self-proclaimed Czar Peter III. When Keith and the others refuse to give him their allegiance, they are hung. Moorehead is killed when she, too, protests against Heflin. Dantine survives by switching his allegiance. Heflin saves Horne's life for having saved his, despite a refusal to switch allegiance. He and Homolka are allowed to proceed to a royalist fort where his news and views are shrugged off. He deserts to return and try to save Mangano. With the assistance of Heflin, he and Mangano are wed, after which the imperial army traps and destroys Heflin's forces, taking him a prisoner. Horne is arrested, court martialed, and sentenced to die.

Mangano appeals to Lindfors for mercy to no avail. The Czarina decides to personally interview Heflin, and he convinces her that Horne was loyal. Rebel Heflin goes to his death while Horne is freed to rejoin Mangano.

X-RAY: Adventure and excitement are plentiful in this well-made and entertaining spectacle, and the interesting yarn is aided by scenes in which thousands of men and animals fill and overflow the wide screen. The impact is indeed impressive. The settings are solid and substantial, yet delicate and colorful, as dictated by changes in the story that maintains its absorbing pace throughout. It's different and suspenseful and has a commanding quality about it. It can be sold as a tremendous adventure spectacle without fear of contradiction from anyone, professional critic or those who pay. The cast is universally good, with Heflin particularly so, and direction and production are superior. The screenplay is by Louis Peterson and Alberto Lattuada, based on a novel by Alexander Pushkin.

TIPS ON BIDDING: Higher bracket in many situations.

AD LINES: "Thrilling Adventure With A Cast of Thousands"; "Action . . . Romance . . . Spectacular Battle Scenes . . . Suspense . . . All Create A Thrill-Packed 'Tempest'".

The Trap (5811)

84M

Paramount
(Technicolor)

ESTIMATE: Interesting, name-packed action drama.

CAST: Richard Widmark, Lee J. Cobb, Tina Louise, Earl Holliman, Carl Benton Reid, Lorne Green, Peter Baldwin, Charles Wassil. Produced by Norman Panama and Melvin Frank; directed by Norman Panama.

STORY: Richard Widmark, attorney for the crime syndicate headed by Lee J. Cobb, returns to his home town in California after several years absence. He must persuade his father, Carl Benton Reid, the local sheriff, to remove guards from the local airport so that Cobb can escape to Mexico. Otherwise, he will be killed. Reid agrees, but Widmark's weak brother, Earl Holliman, married to Tina Louise, tries to capture Cobb for the reward money. Reid is killed in the gunfight, and the aroused townspeople capture Cobb. Widmark vows to drive him 60 miles across the desert and bring him to justice. Accompanied by deputies, Holliman, and Louise, who is in love with Widmark, they start the trip. Cobb taunts them with the fact that his men are following all the way. The car is disabled and the deputies killed. They hole up in a cafe where Cobb, attempting to kill Widmark, kills Holliman instead. Widmark turns Cobb over to a State Police car which turns out to be in the hands of Cobb's gang. They rush to the airport but Widmark deliberately drives his car into the path of the speeding plane, which crashed. The authorities nab Cobb, and Widmark and Louise are free to seek a future together.

X-RAY: Superior performances by an interesting cast with considerable name value and plenty of action place this a notch above similar mellers. The color is good, and the desert scenery impressive. Production values are excellent, direction able, and the story, while predictable, unfolds interestingly enough. The presence of Tina Louise can also be exploited although she has little to do but look frightened. It should fit well into the program in most situations. What it is, in effect, is a well-made modern western, lacking none of the elements but featuring automobiles instead of horses. Screenplay is by Richard Alan Simmons and Norman Panama.

TIP ON BIDDING: Better program rates.

AD LINES: "They Found Love Under The Shadow Of Death And Terror On The Sun-Blasted Desert"; "One Man's Courage Faces The Smooth, Deadly Power Of The Syndicate."

(RegalScope)

ESTIMATE: Okay western.

CAST: Willard Parker, Grant Williams, Audrey Dalton, Douglas Kennedy, June Blair, Dabbs Greer, Barbara Heller. Produced by Jack Leewood; directed by Paul Landres.

STORY: Willard Parker, former Union cavalry officer, returns to his home town in Texas to find himself branded a traitor because he did not fight on the Confederate side, and to find his younger brother, Grant Williams, is the sheriff and undisputed law. Williams has as his deputies some young gunslingers who still wear their Confederate Army uniforms, and they dish out the law to suit their own warped minds. When Parker's former law partner, Douglas Kennedy, is killed protesting against the hanging of an innocent man, and his daughter, Audrey Dalton, is jailed for accidentally killing one of Williams' men, Parker goes into action and organizes a town meeting. Williams sets out for a showdown with Parker, but one of his deputies, trying to prevent the gun duel, shoots Williams.

X-RAY: While this contains much that is familiar along western lines, there are some twists to the novel by James Landis on which the screenplay was based. There is sufficient action for fans of this type of film, and more plausibility than usual. Performances and direction are a niche above average for a western, and many of the new faces in supporting roles turn in creditable performances.

TIP ON BIDDING: Program rates.

AD LINES: "He Burned His Brand On The Town"; "The Big Guns Of The West In A Blazing Duel Of Giants."

The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker (909)

COMEDY

ESTIMATE: Entertaining, impudent comedy.

STORY: Clifton Webb is a progressive thinker on all fronts in addition to operating a successful business with branches in Harrisburg and Philadelphia. In the former city lives his wife and eight children, the eldest, Jill St. John, in love with a minister. They plan to wed, and the family calls Webb in from Philadelphia, breaking up his routine of spending one month in each city. It develops that Webb, really a free thinker, also has a home in Philadelphia where he has fathered nine children. Their mother is dead. The news throws wife Dorothy McGuire for a loss and it appears that Webb's regulated life is over. St. John's marriage also appears doomed. Webb explains that his love of a real home and the happiness he found with McGuire made it impossible for him to live alone in Philadelphia. In the end, he is forgiven; St. John's marriage is performed; he and McGuire are wed again to prove his love; and maiden aunt Dorothy Stickney takes off to care for the Philadelphia brood.

X-RAY: The hit Broadway comedy is brought to the screen with all its impudent humor and proves an entertaining package indeed. Webb's style and delivery are eminently suited for the lead and do much to prevent the story's ever becoming objectionable. A good cast also helps, given a potent assist by a host of bright, new faces. There are plenty of laughs and a delightful feeling of the period involved that pervades the proceedings. The screenplay by Walter Reisch makes the most of Liam O'Brien's play, and direction and production are first-rate.

TIP ON BIDDING: Better program rates.

AD LINES: "Broadway's Delicious Comedy Becomes The Screen's Brightest New Hit"; "That Belvedere Man Is Back . . . Funnier Than Ever In An Impudent New Role."

Smiley Gets A Gun (903)

89M

20th Fox
(Australian-made)
(CinemaScope)
(Color by DeLuxe)

ESTIMATE: Pleasant programmer for juveniles and family trade.

CAST: Keith Calvert, Bruce Archer, "Chips" Rafferty, Margaret Christensen, Reg Lye, Grant Taylor, Verena Kimmins, Leonard Teale, Dame Sybil Thorndike, Guy Dolman. Produced and directed by Anthony Krimmins.

STORY: In an effort to keep the lad out of trouble, police sergeant 'Chips' Rafferty makes a bargain with youngster Keith (Smiley) Calvert whereby he will give him a rifle if he performs a number of good deeds. The score is to be kept via notches on a tree which can and are easily erased when he slips back. Whether or not the lad can do it becomes a topic for wagering up and down the countryside. Calvert has his ups and downs, earning his marks and then having them taken away. Eventually, he nears his goal, and Rafferty promises him the gun if he can persuade elderly Dame Sybil Thorndike to leave her home and hidden treasure of gold to preside as queen of a ball celebrating the completion of a community water well. She at first refuses but finally agrees to help Calvert. She doesn't know that the lad has inadvertently revealed the hiding place of the gold to writer-stranger Guy Dolman, nor does the boy suspect him when it is stolen. Since Calvert knew the hiding place a preliminary hearing is held to see if he should be tried. Before the verdict is pronounced, the real thief is discovered. Calvert gets his gun.

X-RAY: The story of an average lad who can get into and out of scrapes easily is cute, pleasant, and at times exciting. The younger set and family viewers should be entertained by the import despite an occasional word or sentence which will have to be guessed at, because they may be native to Australia. The acting is good as are the direction and production. Exhibitors may remember that 20th Century-Fox released a predecessor to this entry featuring a cute Australian youngster who had a tendency for trouble. Their experience then may stand them in good stead now. The screen play is by Anthony Krimmins and Rex Rienits, based on a novel by Moore Raymond.

AD LINES: "A Heartwarming Story Of A Heartwarming Boy"; "Young Fun Big As Only A Little Boy Can Make It!"

These Thousand Hills (906)

ESTIMATE: Good western.

CAST: Don Murray, Richard Egan, Lee Remick, Patricia Owens, Stuart Whitman, Albert Dekker, Harold J. Stone, Royal Dano, Jean Willes, Douglas Fowley, Fuzzy Knight, Robert Adler, Barbara Morrison, Ned Wever. Produced by David Weisbart; directed by Richard Fleischer.

STORY: Don Murray is a young cowboy, who is determined to be a somebody with money. He signs with a cattle outfit to herd cattle and break horses. In Montana, he decides to try and make some money with partner Stuart Whitman. He agrees to race his horse against one put up by rancher-gambler Richard Egan, and he wins despite a foul by Egan's Indian rider. He has another run-in with Egan when the latter's dance-hall favorite, Lee Remick, prefers Murray. When he is broke, Remick lends him several thousand dollars, her savings, to start a ranch, and he prospers when everyone else is hard hit by the weather. Murray marries Patricia Owens, niece of town banker Albert Dekker. While running for the Senate, he is maneuvered by Egan into joining a posse that is after some horse thieves. Too late, he finds Whitman among the outlaws. He tries to have the men held for trial, but Egan goads the others into taking justice into their own hands. Whitman is hung on the spot. Back home, he finds a note that Remick needs help. Despite objections from Owens, he goes to her to find she has been beaten by Egan. He has it out with Egan and beats him until Egan gets a gun and is about to murder Murray. Remick kills Egan. Murray is determined to aid in her defense with the blessing of Owens.

X-RAY: This could be classified as a so-called adult western because of some dialogue and situations with a strong and somewhat off-beat type of yarn that holds interest throughout. It contains goodly amounts of action and drama as well as colorful settings and some scenes that are different. The acting is efficient, and the direction and production are good. It should make up well as part of the program. It is based on the novel by A. B. Guthrie, Jr., with the screenplay by Alfred Hayes. Randy Sparks can be heard singing a tune based on the title.

TIPS ON BIDDING: Higher program rates.

CAST: Victor Mature, Elaine Stewart, Faith Domergue, Reba Waters, Noah Beery, Lee Gordon, Rex Ingram, John Hubbard, Harry Carey, Jr., Slim Pickens, Roy Barcroft, William Ching. Produced by Robert E. Morrison and Nate H. Edwards; directed by Francis D. Lyon.

STORY: Former Confederate officer Victor Mature and his motherless 10-year old daughter, Reba Waters, head west to start a new life. They come across a group of cavalry soldiers escorting a payroll and two sisters, Elaine Stewart and Faith Domergue. The former is supposed to marry Captain William Ching, while the latter is acting as chaperone and is thoroughly fed up with the country. The escort is attacked by a band of renegade Indians. Only the two women survive. Mature also finds the Indians have left the paper payroll intact. They continue on, with Mature killing Indians to get through. Two soldiers who acted as scouts escaped death and join Mature, only to take the payroll at gun point. Mature kills them. They finally reach the area where Ching and his men are pinned down by other renegades of the band. Domergue, realizing that Stewart loves Mature, sacrifices her life so the Indians will be distracted and they can get through. Mature is able to kill the Indian leader of the renegades and the others disperse.

X-RAY: There's quite a bit of entertainment packed in this comparatively short film having plenty of action, suspense, and thrills, in addition to a couple of "names" which could prove of value in the selling. It should make up well as part of the program. The cast performs well, and direction and production are capable. The screenplay is by Lee Gordon and Fred Hartsook based on a story by Steven Hayes. Interest is well maintained.

Wilke, Herbie Faye, Billy Greene, John Duke, Jack Orrison, Roland Winters, Ingrid Goude, Sanford Seegar, Ed McNally, Gregg Barton. Produced by Aaron Rosenberg; directed by Charles Lederer.

STORY: James Cagney, boss of a small stevedores' local, wants to become boss of the waterfront. Naive young attorney Roger Smith is hired by Cagney despite objections by his wife, Shirley Jones. Cagney develops a yen for her and bribes Cara Williams to work as Smith's secretary and help break up the marriage. Cagney, although warned by waterfront boss Horace McMahon to lay off, goes after his job. He hijacks a shipment of watches, getting Smith to dispose of the goods. Convinced Jones really loves Smith, Cagney confesses the robbery and is convicted. As he is being led away to jail, he learns he has won the election.

X-RAY: A sneak preview audience found this colorful entry to be lots of fun. It seemed to have something for nearly everyone. There was a load of laughs; romance from the light to the tender; action; and even a touch of the dramatic. To round it all out, let's not overlook short offerings in the song and dance department. Cagney is fine as the rogue union leader who thrives on intrigue and an occasional scrap. It is certainly an off-beat entry, but pleasingly so. The screenplay is by Charles Lederer based on the play, "Devil's Hornpipe," by Maxwell Anderson and Rouben Mamoulian.

CAST: Audie Murphy, Charles Drake, Joan Evans, Virginia Grey, Warren Stevens, R. G. Armstrong, Willis Bouche, Edgar Stehli, Simon Scott, Karl Swenson, Whit Bissell, Charles Watts. Produced by Howard Christie and Jack Arnold; directed by Jack Arnold.

STORY: Audie Murphy, a killer for hire who has a large number of corpses to his credit and who has never been punished because he goads his victims into going for their guns first, arrives in a town and settles down. A number of citizens who have enemies around or who have done deeds in the past which demand retribution show signs of nervousness and panic. Some try to force Murphy's hand and one even commits suicide, but Murphy sits pat, refusing to run or reveal his intended victim. Local doctor Charles Drake tries to talk Murphy out of his mission and into leaving after becoming friendly with him. Eventually, Drake's fiancée, Joan Evans, discovers that Murphy is probably in town to kill her ailing father, former judge Edgar Stehli, who will die shortly anyway. She begs Murphy not to kill him, but he ties her in his hotel room taking part of her blouse to goad the old man into fighting. Stehli dies before he can fire a shot. Drake arrives to face Murphy with a blacksmith's hammer, with which he expertly disables Murphy by smashing his gun shoulder. Murphy rides out, his killer career seemingly over.

X-RAY: Story and running time seem to be well-suited to each other because the film as a whole emerges as a good western with enough suspense, drama, action to hold audience interest throughout. The subject matter is off-beat, and good acting, direction, and production bring about a proper vehicle. It should do well as part of the program. The screen play is by Gene L. ESTIMATE: Good, big scale western.

STORY: Tough, poker playing doctor with a heart of gold Gary Cooper sets up practice in a wild Montana gold camp. He saves sluice box thief Ben Piazza from a mob, patches him up, and the lad continues to live with him. Some of the miners find Maria Schell, lone survivor of a stage coach hold up, blinded by the sun. Cooper treats her and is touched by her beauty. When her sight returns, she is determined to make a go of it alone, so she gets a grubstake from the general storekeeper, not knowing Cooper has arranged with him to put up the money. She takes as partners miner Karl Malden, whom she trusts, and Piazza. After weeks of backbreaking labor, they finally strike it rich. Malden goes on a spree and treats the whole settlement. He goes to Schell's cabin determined to force his attentions on her, but she repulses him until Cooper comes to the rescue. In so doing Cooper kills Malden, and the drunken mob turns on him to organize a lynching. At the last minute, Schell buys them off by scattering her bags of gold among them and offering them the deed to her mine. They forget about the lynching in their hunger for gold. With the help of Piazza, Schell cuts down Cooper and they know they face the future together.

X-RAY: Although not offering anything new story-wise, this large scale western opus has been given lavish production, top direction, and features many fine performances. The Technicolor enhances the lovely outdoor settings, and there is certainly plenty of action. The male lead suits Cooper to a "T"; Schell makes the femme lead count; and Piazza and Malden are outstanding in support. This is from the novel by Dorothy M. Johnson, with screenplay by Wendell Mayes and Halsted Welles.

is a somber place, controlled by Puritan elements. Upright farmer Yves Montand, in awe of his cold wife, Simone Signoret, has a brief affair with servant girl Mylene Demongeot. Signoret finds out and throws the girl out. Demongeot becomes leader of a group of youngsters who practice black magic for thrills. Discovered, she hatches a plot whereby the girls make believe they are actually bewitched, naming respected members of the community as witches. The authorities, spurred by greed, fear, vengeance, believe the girls and throw many of the accused into prison to await torture and death. The plague grows and Demongeot has Signoret arrested and even Montand. In prison, Montand and Signoret renew their love. His pride restored, he goes to his death, confident that by not confessing they have broken the back of the witch hunt. Salem's enraged citizens finally turn on their tormentors and the town is free.

X-RAY: This high rating import combines the powerful writing of Arthur Miller and screenplay writer Jean-Paul Sartre, top emoting by a talented French cast, and able production and direction to provide a fine booking for art houses. The screen adaptation of Miller's "Crucible" builds the grim mood with tension and dramatic scenes to a triumphant climax. Once one gets used to the Massachusetts citizens speaking French, he is swept along in the dramatic current. The running time, while long, doesn't drag. Miller's play, a big hit in Europe, did not fare as well on Broadway, but the author's name should still be stressed in U.S. exploitation as it will mean much to the discriminating filmgoer.

The Sleeping Beauty

CARTOON

Buena Vista
(Walt Disney)

(Technirama 70; Technicolor)

ESTIMATE: Another Disney cartoon treat.
CREDITS: Supervising director, Clyde Geronomi; sequence directors, Eric Larson, Wolfgang Reitherman and Les Clark; directing animators, Milt Kahl, Frank Thomas, Marc

Davis, Ollie Johnston and John Lounsbery; production design by Don de Gradi and Ken Anderson. Music adaption by George Bruns from Tchaikovsky's "Sleeping Beauty Ballet" with modern songs by Sammy Fain, Winston Hibler, Tom Adair, Jack Lawrence and Ted Sears. Story based on the Charles Perrault version of "Sleeping Beauty."

STORY: This is the familiar fairy tale, "Sleeping Beauty."

X-RAY: Once again, Walt Disney and staff have used their considerable talents to turn out an animated entertainment treat that should please most youngsters and many of their seniors. The story is familiar to millions, and each may be a potential customer. Therefore, the outcome could be terrific. It has color, movement, and cute characters to carry out the dictates of story and director. The kids will come in droves, spurred by the multi-media campaign, and the Disney name should attract adults as well. Although not the best of Disney's cartoon efforts, it still bodes well as far as boxoffice potential is concerned. Technically, Technirama-70, Technicolor, and full stereophonic sound are decided assets.

AD LINES: "Walt Disney's Latest And Greatest Cinema Achievement"; "The Famous Fairy Tale Comes To Life With All The Wonders Of The Modern Screen."

SECTION THREE
Vol. 61 No. 12

EXPLOITATION

ACTUAL PROMOTIONS, accomplished by Experienced Theatremen, that can be applied with profit to many other Theatre Situations.

This special section is published every-second-week as a separately bound saveable service to all theatre executive subscribers to MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR. Each such cumulatively numbered saveable section represents current submissions that have been judged by the Editorial Board as having the originality and ticket selling force to warrant placement in the 1958 SHOWMEN OF THE YEAR CONTEST (explanation elsewhere). It is recommended that theatremen save complete annual consecutively numbered files of these EXPLOITATION sections, and on the last page of each issue will be found a complete cumulative index for the preceding 12 months. Address all communications and submissions to the Editors of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, 246-48 N. Clarion St., Philadelphia 7, Pa.

Individual ACHIEVEMENT CITATIONS have been issued for each of these:

Local Marching Band Lends Hand

THEATRE: SW Palace

ADDRESS: Danbury, Conn.

MANAGER: Arthur W. Jenkins

One of the local marching bands in town was conducting a membership drive, so I thought it ideal time to make a tie-in; and suggested that they present a concert on our stage in return for some free advertising and some allotted time on stage to make a pitch about getting new members. These fellows are champion performers and have won over 300 silver cups in competition. When they heard the idea they went for it big and we staged the stunt on opening night of Warners' "Damn Yankees."

First of all they played for 20 minutes in front of the theatre before anything went on the screen. Then they went around back and came in directly on stage with the curtains still drawn. We had to fly our screen in order to give them room. They presented a 45 minute concert and I acted as master of ceremonies. This was done with absolutely no cost to the theatre except for a bit of overtime and a little extra line or two in our regular ad. However, we received three free articles in the local paper about the deal.

Since this is a baseball musical I decided to invite the "Little League" players in as my guests on opening night. There were about 175 of them; and this gesture obtained excellent added publicity.

We promoted a hi-fi set from a local dealer and an album of music from the film and this was played in the foyer before and after each show starting a week and a half prior to opening. With the use of a 22x28 and a set of 11x14 stills prominently displayed around it, plus a sign made up telling merchant's name and pre-selling the picture, this made an ideal display.

Incidentally, with this picture we began the distribution of merchant sponsored programs distributed through stores in outlying areas and locally in the theatre itself. This is at no cost to us except for a few passes.

Charity Benefits Are Like Money In The Bank

THEATRE: Ayers

ADDRESS: Corpus Christi, Texas

MANAGER: Ed Farmer

In November and December four charity benefits—three at the Ayers and one at the Gulf Drive-In—netted us over 400 inches of good newspaper publicity with 10 pictures, countless radio and TV coverage and 10 full 15-minute programs, and the good will of people in all walks of life. All were held at off times and just before Christmas when

Judges Invited To Choose MPE "Showmen Of Year"

PHILADELPHIA—Judges are now being invited to serve on the "COMMITTEE OF 100" theatre circuit executives to choose the BEST FIVE SHOWMEN-OF-THE-YEAR for 1958, based on their achievements as published during the year in the separate EXPLOITATION department of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR.

After their selection and judgment, five $200 checks will be mailed; and it is hoped that it will be possible to announce the winners before the end of February.

In each case, it is the intention of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR to devote a front cover photograph to each of the five SHOWMEN OF THE YEAR and thus bring international attention to their achievements.

With the issue of Jan. 14, the new 1959 "SHOWMEN-OF-THE-YEAR" contest began with prizes again aggregating $1,000. It is also believed that the success of the 1958 effort will bring additional side prizes from other industry sources.

business is naturally off anyway. The three at the Ayers were held on Saturday mornings, and the one at the drive-in was held on a Monday night when the spot is ordinarily closed.

It all started in the middle of November after the Marine Reserves, the Yule Toy Board and the Boy Scouts had made an extension on the annual Toys for Tots program. Although they had had a fairly successful drive, they didn't have nearly enough toys for the needy childrens' Christmas and published an article in the papers to that effect. I contacted a colonel in the Marine Reserves and offered to use our Saturday morning show at the theatre to collect the needed toys. The Marines handled all the publicity, getting new stories in the papers, radio and TV, and appearing in person on several radio and TV programs. We offered prizes, donated by merchants, kiddie show tickets, and a day at the U.S. Naval Air Station for three children as guests of the Marines. This was later increased to 15 children. Admission was by toys only. The turn out was terrific, 1,000 children bringing 4,000 toys. The Navy truck parked in front of the theatre, had to make two trips to the collection center. Everyone was happy with the deal, and we received letters of commendation from the Marines and the Governor of the State, who had proclaimed November as Toys for Tots month in Texas.

Next, a couple of weeks later, again on a Saturday morning, it was a "Share With Others" show, also a tieup with the Marines and for the benefit of the Salvation Army's Christmas Food Baskets for the needy. Same results publicity wise, and another good turnout with a lot of food and money for the good cause and a lot of good will. Admission was a can of fruit, vegetables or any non-perishable foods.

The Kiwanis Clubs on learning that many children here were not able to attend school because they had no shoes to wear had started a drive to collect useable or repairable shoes to distribute through the principals of the schools. We jumped in to help. Again we received much favorable publicity, merchants donated some prizes and the kids went to work rounding up old shoes which were their admission to this show. One girl brought in 171 pairs. It was estimated that well over 3,000 pairs were received along with $40 which went into a fund to pay Goodwill Industries to repair them. More happy people. More friends for the theatre.

Our fourth effort was another "Share With Others" show for the Salvation Army but this was held at the drive-in. It was similar to the one held at the Ayers, but on a larger scale with local bands making an appearance, etc. Promoted prizes were a barbecue grill, a tricycle, towel sets, comforters, a steam iron, three cameras, treasure chests, theatre gift books, etc., all promoted and awarded to those bringing the largest amounts of food.

The net result of all this was a lot of personal satisfaction; a lot of new friends and unestimable good will—and, let us not forget for the theatre and the drive-in, considerable extra concession business, even though no boxoffice receipts.

Seemingly annoyed because the cat featured in Columbia's "Bell, Book and Candle" is not present, these championship Siamese seen at the Randolph, Philadelphia, show their disdain for theatre manager Norman Cohen and Mrs. Razel Kapustin, artist famed for her portraits of felines, in this bally for the picture arranged by exploiteer Milt Young.

Hectic Promotional Effort Launches U-I Comedy, "The Perfect Furlough"

NEW YORK—Climaxing four months of hectic advance promotional activity utilizing every available promotional medium, Universal-International's "The Perfect Furlough," opened from coast to coast recently.

Universal's campaign really started with the initial "sneak previews" in New York and Hollywood last September. Early in October, after the Universal distribution department headed by "Hi" Martin decided to push back the release of "The Perfect Furlough," Universal vice-president Dave Lipton, Eastern advertising and publicity department manager Charley Simonelli and their staffs swung into action to deliver an impressive promotional impact on the local level at the time when the picture would start its coast to coast kickoff in mid-January. Having clocked 287 laughs at the sneak previews this became one of the important advertising "sell" on the picture since it was far above the customary number clocked by the Sindlinger Organization in its research for audience reaction to pictures.

The next step in the pre-selling campaign was to make the picture available for key city "sneak previews" so that exhibitors could see the picture under the same circumstances as the initial preview audiences. The reaction was heartening to the entire Universal organization and the pre-selling campaign started in earnest. In the meantime, U.S. Army co-operation was solicited and a directive was issued by the Recruiting Service in support of the picture. The Army also agreed to distribute picture postal cards in its domestic installations when they showed "The Perfect Furlough" so that the service personnel could write the folks back home about the picture.

A specially tailored national magazine advertising campaign was set by Lipton to reach various segments of the potential motion picture audience with Redbook being used for young adults; Seventeen for teen age girls; Dig and Teen for the high school set; Playboy for the college crowd; the fan magazines for the frequent movie-goers and the confession magazines for the housewives.

The big gun of the advance promotion campaign was Linda Cristal's visit to New York in mid-November for television and radio appearances and press, magazine and syndicate interviews. During the course of her two week visit to New York Miss Cristal participated in nine special events at which photographers took pictures which were wired throughout the country; made appearances on three network television shows; appeared on six network and local radio shows; was interviewed by three syndicate and one wire service writer and participated in photo layouts for seven national and fan magazines. She was also interviewed by three New York newspapers for later use of the material and also by one columnist. The sheer bulk of the material created sufficient momentum for the ensuing weeks and on New Year's Day, Miss Cristal appeared on the U.S. Army's Recruiting float in the 70th Annual Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena which was televised and made a deal with each of them for a mystery tune contest using Presley records going back to the first recording he made. The winners of these mystery tunes received a free pass to the theatre to see the picture and also one of the wallet size photos of Elvis in uniform.

We then contacted the House of Records, from Coast to Coast. She was also elected Mayor of Universal City and made a 19 city tour on behalf of initial openings of the picture.

The "287 certified laughs" theme is being used in connection with U-I's "The Perfect Furlough" as shown by the above ad mat.

Miss Cristal's personal appearances on behalf of the film have not been confined to the potential customers. She has also made several appearances at important exhibitor meetings. During her appearance in New York she was also a guest of honor at a midnight preview of the picture at the Paris.

Miss Cristal also made a recording of the title song of the picture for Coral and this record along with one by Warren Berry for Decca is being used as part of the promotion campaign on "The Perfect Furlough" in key and sub key openings.

Starting at the beginning of January Universal also bought television spots in 20 major markets as part of an advance television campaign which tied in directly with some of the key city openings and was followed by the local level campaigns which have been extensive. Universal also recruited a large contingent of field exploitation representatives to help promote the key city openings.

There is also a special animated teaser trailer being made available by Universal on this picture which highlights the 287 certified laughs. This is in addition to the regular trailer. There is a full exhibitor exploitation kit in addition to the regular press book.

Reviewing "The Perfect Furlough" campaign at one point, Charley Simonelli, Eastern advertising and publicity department manager pointed out in selling "The Perfect Furlough" you did not do one single big thing in the campaign but a lot of things and when you added them all up they packed a tremendous promotional impact at the local level. He explained that "The Perfect Furlough" was sold with a total marketing concept and three "I's"—integration of sales and advertising and publicity department effort; a campaign that created impact and image.

Emporium of Music, Stampfi's Record Room and the Village Record Shop. Each of the above put in a window display of Presley records with one sheet on the film telling the play dates at the theatre. We conducted another contest with them with the winners receiving the same prizes as stated above. The House of Records, realizing the value of the publicity, donated one Capitol four-speed record player, one long playing Presley record and four Presley albums for prizes. The Emporium of Music ran a two-column three-inch co-op ad for three days; and the Record Room did the same.

The Village Record Shop, located in the largest shopping center in Reno, for many weeks had an hour remote broadcast over KATO from its place of business. This program is conducted by teen-agers and is known as "The Rats' Nest." We made a deal wherein we would pay $10 towards the cost of the installation of the remote broadcast from the lobby of our theatre during the run of the Presley film. This was done and was a great success as many interviews were held with the kids regarding the picture. This broadcast is from eight to nine p.m. each night, except Saturday and Sunday. To test the listening audience of this program, we offered free passes to anyone who could name the record and the record company making it, several times during the broadcast. Our phones were swamped with calls. We estimate that within the period of time when the mystery tunes were being played, we had over 150 phone calls to the theatre.

This shop also has a television show each week on Thursday nights, and during it many announcements were made regarding the Presley film at the Granada.

Each of the record shops had a series of radio announcements plugging our film and the records. They all reported increased sales of Presley recordings due to the stunt.

The promotion cost us about $10 in cash, plus some passes, and included a lobby display of the various items given away as prizes. The record shops were more than glad to tie in with us.

In looking for another gimmick to stimulate interest, we found a dealer who had some Elvis Presley magazines originally put out to sell for 50 cents. They were stuck with them and could not move them, so we made a deal on a consignment basis whereby we sold them at our candy counter for 25 cents—splitting 50/50 with the dealer. We sold 650, which gave us additional revenue.

A Valentines Day Idea

THEATRE: Allen

ADDRESS: Farmington, N. M.

MANAGER: Kelly A. Crawford

Here's a little idea we used last Valentines Day and will repeat this year.

Last year it was "Careless Years"; this year the film will be "Senior Prom"; but it could be any film with teen-age appeal.

We hold a special Valentine's midnight show and bally the stunt like this: "Get a date for Valentine's Midnight Show. All single tickets $1.00. . . . Just 75 cents in PAIRS! See it with the one you love. . . . Buy a PAIR of tickets now!"

We are careful in selecting a feature that is not objectionable to parents; but also one that has 'teenage appeal.

Last year it went over terrific!

Midget Helps Sell "tom thumb"

THEATRE: Crest Westwood

ADDRESS: Los Angeles, Cal.

MANAGER: Jules Landfield

We were part of a large newspaper campaign, along with numerous other theatres opening day and date, in a first run multiple city run; but we felt that MGM's "tom thumb" had some extra business to be gotten—so we went out and tried to get it with a pretty extensive campaign.

One week before playdate 5,000 cards were sent out from our mailing list; and 73 letters were sent to various young peoples groups such as the P.T.A., schools, young people's centers, churches, etc.

Two days in advance of playdate 10,000

Gene Plank, Embassy, Reading, Pa., recently used this attractive motor float on Paramount's "Houseboat." The display was constructed by a lumber company, which went for the co-op stunt that did not cost the theatre a cent.

heralds were distributed house to house; and 3,000 balloons were imprinted with theatre name, picture title and playdate and distributed where they would do the most good.

We leased 450 six-sheet boards from an advertising concern and these were posted on opening day with "now playing" strips.

In addition to regular newspaper ads we went into the local Beverly Hills and Santa Monica papers.

But the stunt that caused the greatest amount of comment was the hiring of a midget (not a dwarf), but a bonafide midget, who was dressed in an authentic "tom thumb" costume made up by one of the Hollywood costume companies. He spent three days in Beverly Hills and West Los Angeles just going up and down the street talking with thousands of children, handing each child a balloon and giving their parents heralds.

One week in advance of playdate our two automatic answering phone services in addition to our current program were giving information on "tom thumb."

One hundred window cards were also used and placed around the entire West Los Angeles area.

Recently I had such success with my "hitch hike" campaign that I decided to pass it along to other exhibitors.

I merely "hitched" on to the automobile industry's new "Auto Buy" slogan and made a pitch not only for "You Auto Buy A Movie Ticket, Too" but also plugged our Auto Movies.

Not satisfied with my full bottom of the page layout, I placed a couple of ads in the classified section under "Used Cars For Sale." This is a well read section, where I

Here are some of the contestants busy with their entries in the recent model airplane contest Elmer DeWitt, Defiance Drive-In, Defiance, Ohio, held at his outdoor spot as an added attraction.

DO IT YOURSELF!

This was a runner-up entry in MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS SHOWMANSHIP SWEEPSTAKES in which the publication paid out $5,000 in awards.

These entries were judged as outstanding by a panel of experienced theatremen. They can be readily adapted on a "do it yourself" basis by you for your theatre. If you didn't save them originally—do so now!

FESTIVAL OF HORROR

Submitted by Sid Kleper

This stunt consisted of playing a combination of reissued horror pictures, two new features every day for a week.

A circus herald advertised the event as "7 Horror Filled Days. Look Out For The Monsters! All The Horror Men Together In 7 Days Of Horror. One Week Of Chills (no matter what the weather!) Two New Horrific Shockers Changed Every Day. Ghosts! Madness! Vampires! Suspense! Witchcraft! Torture! Murder!" A listing of the 14 films rounded up for the program was given and consisted of "Frankenstein," "Dracula," "The Black Cat," "House Of Horrors," "The Mummy," "Murder In The Rue Morgue," "Frankenstein Meets The Wolf Man," "She Wolf Of London," "House Of Dracula," "The Mummy's Ghost," "The Vanishing Body," "The Weird Woman," "The Ghost Of Frankenstein" and "The Tower Of London." A "faint check" was printed at the bottom of the herald, reading, "Any person fainting during the showing of any program during '7 Days Of knew I would catch the automobile trade's eye. These ads read, "Cheapest prices. Newest features." This attracted attention. Nothing else was stated except the drive-in's phone number.

Our cashiers were stormed with phone calls. Most everyone would "catch on" when the girl answered giving the theatre's name.

The exact value of this is unknown; but it created a lot of talk. The exact cost was our regular display ad with a different layout plus two inexpensive classified ads.

It did let them know about our "top features" at "rock bottom prices," however.

Horror" will be admitted as our guest to a subsequent horror show.—The Management."

Five thousand of these heralds, printed on light blue stock, were given city-wide distribution.

For street bally men dressed as Frankenstein and Dracula carted a coffin on a dolly around town day before and opening day. In the lobby we had skeletons with appropriate copy on mirrors, staircases and chandeliers. Frankenstein was laid out in a coffin as a lobby display for a week prior to opening. A false front was also erected with plenty of eerie atmosphere. Sidewalk intersections, curbs, etc. were stencilled. Through cooperation of the New Haven Ambulance Service an ambulance was parked in front of the theatre all day opening day.

Other gimmicks used to sell the show were a smelling salts giveaway; and an offer of $25 Saving Bond via the local newspaper to the first person willing to sleep in a cemetery over night.

Sports, news, and disc jockey plugs were obtained on radio; while a local columnist kidded the stunt stating that "We'll definitely, absolutely, NOT be there!"

duplicated by other drive-ins. It attracted plenty of interest and attention for us and was easy and inexpensive to stage.

We tied up with the local model airplane club, whose members donated their time on the specified night to give us an added attraction by competing in our model airplane flying contest. We donated a $25 prize to the club treasury in return.

Local press coverage was extensive and we succeeded in getting six readers in in all.

The stunt proved quite exciting. Some of the contestants tied streamers on the back of their planes while another followed and attempted to cut off the streamer with its propeller. Quite often the following plane gets more than just the streamer. At our demonstration we had two "crack ups" and one head on collision. The members, however, do not seem to mind getting their planes torn up.

We found that the contest makes for great excitement for patrons, contestants and their children.

COMPANY ASSISTS

Paramount is penetrating the classrooms of the country with educational material on "The Buccaneer" through Seventeen Magazine's special service to schools. This promotional operation is one aspect of a broad campaign the company has been conducting to keep the youngsters coming to the picture about American history's Jean Lafitte. The magazine's special educational publication, SEVENTEEN-AT-SCHOOL, which concentrates on providing teachers with a wide range of lesson suggestions, cites in a special feature numerous teaching aids present in "The Buccaneer." The film's authentic fashion styles, customs, and home furnishings of the period are given attention. Paramount itself has prepared a supplemental illustrated folder for class-room use in conjunction with the magazine's material. The attractive folder synthesizes the picture and discusses the War of 1812 background of the film.

United Artists has set a 22-country book promotion with Signet Books in conjunction with "Separate Tables." The paperback book is a novelization of the Terence Rattigan-John Gay screenplay of Rattigan's Broadway and London stage hit of the same name. The promotional campaign will provide national and international support for the film at some 300,000 newstands, drug stores, book shops, cigar shops, and department stores throughout the world. Point-of-sale material will include window posters, streamers, and rack displays cards. The truck fleets of Signet distributors will carry bumper strips and panel posters.

"Showman-of-the-Year" CONTEST

Each individual achievement, selected by the Editorial Board and published in this every-second-week EXPLOITATION Section of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, will receive an Achievement Citation. Five by the same showman published in any one year will receive a SILVER Achievement Citation. And, should any showman ever accomplish ten in the same year, a GOLD Achievement Citation will be awarded. No weekly or monthly prizes will accompany such citations.

At each year's end, all such published achievements will be submitted to the "COMMITTEE OF 100" theatre circuit executives for their individual study and their personal choice of the BEST FIVE. A minimum of

will be awarded to the five "SHOWMEN-OF-THE-YEAR" so selected. Alert showmen, interested in the international distinction to be gained from such awards, will recognize that an advantage lies in winning repeated individual published achievements. Address all submissions and photographs to: GEORGE F. NONAMAKER, Feature Editor, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, 246-48 N. Clarion Street, Philadelphia 7, Penna.

MERCHANDISERS . . . NOT JUST DISTRIBUTORS

WITH THE WAY in which exhibitors and producers are tied together in percentage partnerships on virtually all playdates, there might be good reason to abandon that term "distributor"; or to apply it more aptly to the service companies who now operate the vaults, shipping rooms, delivery trucks, etc. For the successful companies who still operate with field publicists, who analyze each film for its saleable qualities, who give each a specialized advance buildup to the trade and to the public and follow it well into the subsequent runs before cutting it loose, a better term would be "merchandiser." And never in the entire history of this industry has merchandising been so important to the ultimate success of any picture.

Unfortunately, and contrary to normal U. S. merchandising principles, any recession at the box office has always brought panic and "economy" drives to this business of ours. When business is good we spend like drunken sailors. But, when business is bad, and other industries increase their budgets to offset it, we "run scared" and almost commit self-destruction in our frantic efforts to retrench.

But there are signs that we are learning.

Over at Columbia, they're wearing big grins over the successful holiday merchandising of "SEVENTH VOYAGE OF SINBAD," a gimmick picture if we ever saw one, and over the good solid results on "BELL, BOOK and CANDLE"; and they're setting up some dillies on their next, and maybe biggest, "GIDGET."

At Paramount, they can take some bows for the way in which they lifted just a fair piece of entertainment, "THE BUCCANEER," into first-string status.

MGM should be proud of the way they launched "CAT" and "GIGI," but the big test for their cut-down staff is going to come with the launching of "BEN HUR" and with the other great potentials in that current trade paper announcement.

United Artists is, of course, unique in their full-steam drive on a lot of important pictures at one time, and is without question one of the industry's prime proponents of merchandising efforts. The campaigns on "SEPARATE TABLES," "I WANT TO LIVE," and "ANNA LUCASTA" follow closely on the heels of that on "THE DEFIANT ONES" as current examples.

And over at Universal, which slowed for a while to "re-tool," they're pouring it on "THE PERFECT FURLOUGH" as the first of a number of important shows with dramatic possibilities.

But it is at 20th Century-Fox that we can be duly impressed with the future merchandising plans. On the coast recently they announced a $66,000,000 expenditure on 34 big pictures for the coming year. But, most important, they announced that 10 percent of this total, or $6,600,000, would be spent on a sharply increased effort to prime the pump and to make the trade and the public want to buy their studio's wares. This seems to indicate that there will be no let-up in the Skouras-led optimism that has brought Fox to full leadership; that introduced CinemaScope; and that challenged each depression with renewed effort and heart.

So here and elsewhere it is the merchandising of picture by picture that counts. There are no "habit" customers any more. Both inside and outside of the business they must be sold, and pleased, and their repeat patronage won, picture by picture.

If the public never heard of a particular picture, or hearing about it wasn't impressed and filled with a desire to see it, no amount of film selling, no concessions in rental terms, and no personality of the sales staff, will bring percentage dollars back to the producer. If the trade never heard of it, or hearing, wasn't impressed with its boxoffice potential, scarcity may get it some dates but never the volume that would be its potential. But, in today's market as never before, if the trade and the public have been conditioned and are ready to buy a particular picture, there is no limit to the gross that is possible. It isn't the selling or the distributing that makes a picture succeed or fail, but the merchandising.

So let's pray for merchandisers in the future . . . not just distributors.

UNIVERSAL AND PERFORMANCE

BACK LAST NOVEMBER, we were proud to be one of the first to dispel some nasty rumors about the future of Universal, and to delineate some of the actual plans that Milton R. Rackmil had for the re-tooling and rebuilding of that old and respected source of supply. So, when the president of Universal Pictures Company, in addressing their more recent sales meeting, again pointed to the recent sale and lease-back of their studios as an accomplishment that "immeasurably strengthens" their financial and competitive position, and "assures the continuance of a full production program under the most favorable operating conditions," we don't think he is talking through his hat.

To quote Mr. Rackmil: "We have reviewed and reorganized every phase of the operation of our company on a world-wide basis and we are prepared to meet the problems and challenges of a changing business. We have gone through our crisis and now we are looking ahead with realistic confidence. We will live by performance and not by promises. In the past year we have taken drastic steps and we have made important strides. We will see the results in the year ahead." And in the field of "performance" some pretty important looking and impressively cast features are under way.

So we're still stringing along with Milton Rackmil. "Performance" is still the acid test of sincerity. And from where we sit, his "performance" looks OK!

Ohio Censor Bill Ready

COLUMBUS, O.—“Obscene” pictures are the target of a bill prepared for introduction in the Ohio Senate by Sen. Robert R. Shaw, Republican, Columbus, which would revive film censorship in the state. His bill would set up a five-member Ohio Motion Picture Board appointed by the governor.

One of the five would be a member of the film industry. The other four would include representatives of the Commerce and Education departments and two at-large members. The board would operate as part of the Commerce department. Members would receive $50 per diem.

Shaw said that any censorship bill, to be declared constitutional by the courts, must be limited to “obscenity.” Once the courts have ruled on the question of constitutionality, the Legislature can then expand the scope of censorship, Shaw said. The bill defines obscenity as follows:

“A motion picture is obscene if, considered as a whole, its predominant appeal is to prurient interest: that is, a shameful or morbid interest in nudity, sex, or excretion, and if it goes substantially beyond customary limits of candor in description or representation of such matters.”

BROADWAY GROSSES

Holdovers Lead The Way

NEW YORK—A few holdovers showed strength as Broadway first-run houses registered a week of about average business.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

“THE INN OF THE SIXTH HAPPINESS” (20th-Fox). Paramount ($39,435)*—The eighth week was reported as $30,000.

“SOME COME RUNNING” (MGM). Radio City Music Hall ($147,610) — Thursday through Sunday accounted for $91,000, with the second week headed for $135,000. Stage show.

“THE PERFECT FURLOUGH” (U-I). Roxy ($55,405)—With stage show, registered $36,000 Wednesday through Sunday, with the second week headed for $41,000.

“RALLY 'ROUND THE FLAG BOYS” (20th-Fox). RKO Palace reported that the seventh week was headed for $12,000.

TOA Plans Meetings With Legislators

NEW YORK—Theatre Owners of America directors and executive committee members plan to make a concerted effort to put exhibitor problems before Congressional representatives in the course of the TOA mid-winter meeting in Washington's Mayflower Hotel, March 1-3, it was announced last week by president George G. Kerasotes, who noted that the session has been extended one day for that purpose.

Toll television, Army-Navy pre-release, post-1948 motion pictures, the ACE program, and relief from the Paramount case decrees will be among the topics TOA executives hope to discuss with the legislators, Kerasotes said. TOA will be host to Senators and Representatives at a cocktail party in the Mayflower on March 2.

Kerasotes stated further that as TOA board members and committeemen advise their plans to attend, appointments will be made for them with their legislators through A. Julian Brylawski and Marvin Goldman of Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Metropolitan Washington. He noted that the meeting will offer a “unique opportunity” for TOA toppers to make personal contact with their Congressmen at a time when a great many industry problems require the support of Government agencies.

Jusko Heads Para. Branch

NEW YORK—Michael Jusko has been named to replace Hugh Maguire, resigned, as Paramount Buffalo branch manager, it was announced at the weekend by Hugh Owen, vice-president of Paramount Film Distributing Corporation.

Jusko has been salesman for the company in the Buffalo territory since 1953. Prior to joining Paramount he was with Republic.

The Independent Theatre Owners Association, headed by Harry Brandt, right, recently honored Joseph M. Sugar, left, with a special citation for his distinguished services and achievement to the industry. Sugar is the newly appointed vice-president in charge of sales for Magna Theatre Corporation, distributor of “South Pacific” in Todd-AO.

U-I Sets Regional Sessions

NEW YORK—Following the conclusion of the week-long sales conference of Universal Pictures Company's distribution and promotion executives here the company's four regional sales managers this week started a series of nine regional sales meetings with the first three taking place in Dallas, Detroit, and Philadelphia, to be followed by meetings tomorrow (Feb. 5) in San Francisco, St. Louis, Chicago, and Boston, and next Monday (Feb. 9) in Minneapolis and Atlanta, to be attended by the company's branch managers, sales managers, salesmen, and promotion executives.

President Milton Rackmil will attend the San Francisco meeting, and sales head Henry H. Martin will be at others.

Allied Board Endorses ACE Plans

Some Reservations Noted, Decree Provisions Defended; All Officers, Led By Adams, Reelected To Second Term

PITTSBURGH—The board of directors of National Allied last week unanimously endorsed the American Congress of exhibitors.

There were several "reservations," however, including a warning against allowing individuals not affiliated with an exhibitor organization to take part through ACE in "the important organizational activities which will flow from free cooperation among the associations." It was held that such action "would be unfair to the associations and constitute a threat to their survival."

As to ACE's organization and program, it was warned that "divergent views" may arise "if efforts hereafter are made to rescind, modify, or add to the present program." Allied stated that "any such proposals should be tested in the crucibles of the established national and regional associations and resolved with regard to the needs and desires of the members."

Allied reserved "the right to pass upon the legal and other aspects of any specific measure that may be advanced in furtherance of ACE's objective in preventing additional theatrical films from being made available to television before being committed thereto."

It also said it felt that the extension of the program against toll-TV also called for "further study from both the legal, practical, and public relations aspects."

The position was taken that the proposal to legalize the pooling agreements when entered into with good intentions and to have exhibitors serve on the film companies' directorates "must be carefully studied."

It was held that some of the ACE proposals "are aimed at provisions of the decrees that have been adjudicated and hence cannot be accomplished without amending the Sherman Act. For Allied to join in a movement to weaken the anti-trust laws would involve a drastic reversal of policy and may discredit its efforts along that line."

The board reelected the association's officers for another year and named Carl Goldman, Independent Exhibitors, Inc., of New England, as recording secretary, succeeding the late William A. Carroll.

Those reelected are Abram F. Myers, general counsel and board chairman; Horace Adams, president; Abe Berenson, secretary; and Edward W. Lider, treasurer.

Organization Is Vital To Exhibitors—Adams

President Horace Adams in his keynote speech to the convention told the exhibitors how important organization is, saying that "individually you cannot accomplish one single thing."

He proclaimed that "Allied is stronger and looking to the future and the unquestionable success of the motion picture industry in this country." This was his answer to the question as to the need of National Allied to continue now that ACE has come on the scene.

He said that "ACE is an organization of organizations, and that with the Allied board's wholehearted endorsement, we can proceed to do things that have been held up until now."

Films Influence For Good Stressed At Catholic Fete

NEW YORK — The Very Reverend Robert I. Gannon of the Jesuit Missions was the principal speaker at the ninth annual Communion Breakfast of the motion picture industry last fortnight at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel following the annual industry Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Over 1,200 were in attendance including Right Reverend John J. Flynn, Pastor of the Church of Sts. John and Paul, Larchmont, N. Y.; Monsignor Thomas F. Little, executive secretary of the National Legion of Decency, and his assistant Father Patrick Sullivan; Cyril Richard, Ricardo Montalban, Merv Griffin, Horace McMahon, Lisa De Giulio, Kate Cameron, New York Daily News film critic, and Mary H. Loomer, Legion of Decency executive.

Edward E. Sullivan, publicity director of 20th-Fox, was master of ceremonies at the breakfast.

The tremendous influence of motion pictures for good generally and on the life of the individual was stressed, while the "disreputable fringe" of the film industry was criticized for its unsavory influence.

Ben Marcus, speaking at the business-building forum, told the delegates that "we are guilty to a great extent of forgetting our responsibility to the American public. We must rehabilitate our theatres . . . and train our help to be courteous . . . we must fix up our places and make them more attractive. This is an absolute necessity if we wish to stay in business."

Marshall Fine, forum coordinator, supported Marcus by saying that an exhibitor should check everything in his theatre to make sure the place is "in good repair."

Milton London, head of Michigan Allied, deplored the fact that the theatre industry fails to take advantage of motion pictures for training of personnel.

Raymond J. Showe, Theatre Candy Company, Pittsburgh, asserted that "the only way to introduce new items in the concession line was by way of theatre trailers." He said that drive-in operators will be "away ahead of the game" if they employ this medium and recommended that trailers be changed "every month or so."

Jack Van Lloyd, Berlo Vending Company, advocated that drive-ins use "white screen intermissions" to provide additional time for patrons to purchase concession items.

Julian Rifkin, head, Rifkin Theatres of Boston, was coordinator of the concession forum.

In reporting on the Allied Film Clinics, Rube Shor stated that complaints included alleged instances of discriminatory pricing, forcing of pictures, clearances and availabilities.

Exhibitors with unsatisfied complaints were told to inform their Congressional representatives of their difficulties personally, laying the responsibility at the door of what Allied's "White Paper" contends is the failure of the Justice Department to enforce industry decrees.

Albert E. Sindlinger, president, Sindlinger and Company, business analysts, told the con-

COMPO In Business On 11 Big Projects

NEW YORK — ACE officials last week turned over to COMPO execution nearly every project COMPO's executive committee had approved on Dec. 30.

The 11 projects are:

(1) Act as the industry's spokesman on national legislation, on which there is mutual accord, as recommended by COMPO's executive committee. Included is continued effort for outright repeal of Federal admission taxes.

(2) Assume leadership of state and local campaigns against censorship, working in close co-operation with ACE and the MPAA.

(3) Conduct a research program on behalf of the entire industry.

(4) Assist in developing new star talent.

(5) Undertake a long-range study of motion picture advertising.

(6) Inaugurate business-building projects agreed upon by all elements of the industry.

(7) Assist local exhibitors in their campaigns to repeal local admission taxes.

(8) Inaugurate a broad public-relations program.

(9) Develop and expand its (COMPO's) public-relations field force, which will work closely with ACE exchange-area committees.

(10) Obtain exhibitor support for Academy Award telecasts.

(11) Maintain a speakers' bureau.

Attending the meeting held at the office of Abe Montague, Columbia Pictures, were Abe Montague, Merlin Lewis, ACE administrative secretary; Charles E. McCarthy, COMPO information director; Al Pickus, Ben Marcus, Al Floersheimer; Si Fabian, Max Cohen, Irvin Dollinger, Emanuel Frisch, and Harry Goldberg.

McCarthy and Lewis will form area committees to conduct field work. Exhibitor organizations will be asked to recommend personnel to COMPO.

Trust Suits Reinstated

NEW YORK—In a decision made last fortnight, the U. S. Court of Appeals reinstated two antitrust actions previously dismissed in Federal District Court "for lack of prosecution." The suits are those of Colonial Drive-In Theatre, Inc., and Haines Drive-In Theatre, Inc., both Pittsburgh area drive-in operators.

The suits were dismissed following the disqualification of Malkin and Ellner as attorneys for the actions when the defendants challenged the attorneys' links with a distributor-affiliated law firm.

The Court of Appeals, however, held that the interests of justice would best be served by restoring the actions for trial and adjudication. The Court pointed out that the defendants were to some extent responsible for the delays in prosecution in that they must have realized that their challenge of Malkin and Ellner would delay procedure.

UTOO Spring Meet Off

OKLAHOMA CITY — The directors of United Theatre Owners of Oklahoma announced last fortnight that it had been decided not to hold their usual spring convention this year. The event had been tentatively set for March 3-4-5 at the Biltmore Hotel here.

Rank Shifts Execs; Cuts Regional Heads

NEW YORK—Rank Film Distributors of America is discontinuing the position of regional manager, it was announced last week by Foster Blake, general sales manager.

Under the new plan, the branch managers will concentrate their activities on their individual territories, and supervision over the field force will be confined to home office sales executives. At the home office level, Abe Weiner, former New England regional manager, has been appointed assistant to the general sales manager, in addition to Gordon Craddock, Jr., whose present status as assistant to Blake is unchanged.

The number of sales offices will be reduced to 15 from the present figure of 17, and sales personnel will be reduced by two.

From its inception, the company has utilized National Film Service to handle all functions in connection with billing, accounting, inspection, and shipping, and booking operations have been confined to nine of the 17 sales offices.

The two offices closing are Salt Lake City, to be consolidated with Denver, and St. Louis, which will be combined with Kansas City. The company is also reopening an office in Philadelphia to handle sales in that and the Washington territories, and the present Washington office will be closed.

The majority of the present Regional Managers will continue in their present locations as Branch Managers, with responsibility for smaller territories. The changes are Edward Heiber, Philadelphia-Washington branch manager succeeding Robert J. Folliard, resigned; Herbert Martinez, Chicago-Milwaukee branch manager, succeeding Sam Gorelick, resigned; Jules Gerelick, Los Angeles branch manager, succeeding Seymour Borde, resigned; Morris Relder, Kansas City-St. Louis branch manager, replacing Earl Dyson and Clifford Mantle, former branch managers in those cities. Richard Stafford was formerly branch manager in Salt Lake City, which will now be handled by Al Koltz, branch manager in Denver.

"Loewdown" Hits 7,500 Mark

NEW YORK—The Loewdown, daily house organ for Loew's Theatres, hit its 7500th edition last week.

The Loewdown is the only daily house organ in the world and as far as can be ascertained, the oldest.

While it has been published in its present format since 1932, its actual birth was in late 1929, by Oscar A. Doob, as a twice-monthly printed tabloid. This style was abandoned in the interest of quicker dissemination of information, ideas, etc. So, actually, this is a 30th anniversary.

The Loewdown has three basic objectives: To convey quickly matters of company policy, general company news, and reports on coming attractions; to serve as a brain-and-idea-exchange amongst the forces in the field; and to give credit for jobs well done.

McGuire Joins UA

NEW YORK—Edward J. McGuire has been named head of United Artists bidding department, it was announced by James R. Velde, general sales manager. Before joining UA, McGuire was associate counsel of General TeleRadio, a division of RKO, in all matters pertaining to television sales. Prior to that he was counsel to the sales department of RKO Pictures, a post he held for five years.

Pittsburgh Used As Testing Ground For New Para., UA Playoff Pattern

Bosley Crowther, New York Times critic, recently presented the coveted Burstyn Award for "He Who Must Die," currently at the Beekman, New York City, to Frank Kassler, distributor of the film in the U.S.

Amusement Industries Honor Wm. Goldman

PHILADELPHIA—Exhibitor and civic leader William Goldman was honored last week by more than 400 of his fellow industryites and civic officials for his service to the motion picture industry and to his community.

The testimonial was tendered by the Pennsylvania Association of Amusement Industries, headed by Goldman for the past three years. The most recent achievement of the organization was the reduction in the Philadelphia amusement tax.

Guests at the Hotel Sheraton luncheon included Senator Wayne Morse, Oregon Democrat, who filled in for Pennsylvania Senator Joseph S. Clark, unable to attend. Morse said the tribute recognized Goldman's value as a citizen and stressed the role of amusement industries in education.

In addition to the theatre circuit he heads, Goldman is a member of the Board of Education, president of the board of educational channel WHYY-TV, and chairman of the Youth Conservation Commission, created to lessen delinquency. Philadelphia Mayor Richardson Dilworth credited Goldman for the progress made thus far by the youth group.

The dinner was chaired by David Milgram, who presented Goldman with a rare, hand-painted set of china, made in the 18th century. Toastmaster was William F. Kelly, president, First Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company. Others on the dais were Simon H. Fabian, Stanley Warner president; Sam Rosen, SW vice-president; Alex Harrison, 20th-Fox vice-president and general sales manager; William J. Heineman, United Artists vice-president; Harry Kalmine, SW executive; Rube Jackter, Columbia general sales manager; Victor Blanc, Philadelphia district attorney; Chief Justice Charles Alvin Jones, Pennsylvania Supreme Court; Judge Harry E. Kalodner, U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit; James P. Clark, president, Highway Express Lines and Philadelphia Eagles' principal stockholder; U.S. District Court Judge J. Cullent Ganey; and others.

Representatives of other amusement industries, including the Philadelphia Phillies, joined in the tribute.

PITTSBURGH—Area exhibitors were notified last fortnight of a new licensing policy which is being put to the test here by Paramount and United Artists on what is said to be an experimental basis. Other distributors may follow their lead.

Paramount's branch manager E. A. Jacobs informed Pittsburgh exhibitors that "on an experimental basis we have decided that we will grant first-run theatres in Pittsburgh 14 days clearance over theatres within the Pittsburgh metropolitan area. This will be the only clearance granted to a first-run theatre in connection with the exhibition of a Paramount picture during the period of this experiment."

"The first subsequent run availability of each picture in the Pittsburgh area will be determined by Paramount based upon its own best business judgment as to what availability is proper on a particular picture and taking into account, among other things, such factors as preferred playing time, availability of playing time in theatres, and other pertinent business factors."

Asserting that "as an experiment, we are planning our distribution based upon the assumption that we will have 15 prints available for the first subsequent run break in Pittsburgh," the company said they will be licensed "for use by the theatres making the 15 best offers."

It was explained that by a "best offer" was meant "that offer which, on the basis of playing time, terms, holdover provisions, etc., will afford Paramount, in its judgment, the best revenue-producing opportunity."

A print will be reserved only on condition that "a written contract and a playdate" are received by the company "not later than 14 days before the date on which the availability is set."

The exhibitors were told that "we will not grant any clearance to our first subsequent run licensees over the later runs."

It is understood that the new licensing setup is effective at once.

The United Artists test will be conducted with "a first-run multiple combination of 'The Last Mile' and 'Escort West'."

UA has advised the exhibitors that it will make the combination "available for first-run showing for Feb. 15, 1959, through competitive bidding to all theatres in the greater Pittsburgh area."

"Instead of our choosing those theatres which should play on this availability," said UA branch manager James Hendel, "we felt it would be more equitable to give all theatres an opportunity to license these pictures on this availability through the competitive bidding process."

For the purpose of the experiment the company disclosed that it has placed all the area's drive-ins and conventional houses in seven groups.

"All theatres within each group will have an opportunity to submit a bid for a license to exhibit this combination on this first-run availability," the company said.

"While the two pictures should be played together," it said, "exhibitors may bid for only one picture, if they desire. We will accept only one bid from one indoor theatre and one bid from a drive-in theatre in each group; and reserve the right to turn down all bids should they be considered 'unacceptable.'"

U-I Forecasts Progress In Future; Product, Merchandising Discussed

U-I Ready To Move Ahead After Reorganization Plan

NEW YORK—"The recent sale and lease-back of our studio facilities at Universal City immeasurably strengthens our financial and competitive position in the motion picture industry in that it assures the continuance of a full production program under the most favorable operating conditions," Milton R. Rackmil, president, Universal Pictures Company, told the company's sales and promotion executives in a statement at the opening session of their week-long sales conference in New York last fortnight.

In outlining future plans and policies for the year ahead, Rackmil stated, "Today we are a stronger, healthier and more vital company than we were a year ago. . . . We have reviewed and reorganized every phase of the operation of our company on a worldwide basis and we are prepared to meet the problems and challenges of a changing business."

Flexible Production Policy Stresses Quality—Martin

U-I's new production policy of multi-million dollar films, emphasizing quality rather than quantity, will enable the company to supply to the nation's theatres extended playing time pictures and will also help insure a steady flow of boxoffice attractions to the nation's theatres, Henry H. Martin, general sales manager, said.

Martin predicted that one of the new multi-million dollar film productions through extended holdovers based on the type of business they can do, will fill as much playing time as several previous U-I releases. He explained that the company's production and releasing planning is flexible and also involves films of all types which will augment the release of the multi-million dollar productions being made either in association with outstanding independent producing companies or by Universal itself.

"We will also undertake the release of outside pictures in which we have no financial interest other than to provide releasing facilities for these pictures. We will also make available a steady flow of selected re-releases depending upon market conditions with the overall effect being to keep up a steady flow of much needed product to the nation's theatres," Martin told his listeners.

Pre-Selling Vital Factor, Lipton Tells Delegates

"Never before has the proper merchandising and pre-selling of motion pictures been so vital to the potential success of our product as it is today," said David A. Lipton, vice-president.

"For the past half century motion picture showmen have always been confronted with the challenge of selling their show and they have resorted to a variety of tools and techniques to reach their audience. The theatre screen, the theatre front and the theatre section of local papers were the standbys in the earlier days. But today we are an industry in search of our audience and the old basics are not enough to reach the full potential. These only touch the hard core of regular film goers. To sell the infrequent moviegoers—the mass of the American audience who respond to an urge to see because

While in Washington, D. C., recently on tour in connection with U-I's "The Perfect Furlough," Linda Cristal stopped in to visit Senator James Murray, of Montana, and present him with a Golden Age Movie card from RKO Keith's. Senior citizens 60 or over can apply for the cards.

Ohio Bingo Bill Proposed

COLUMBUS, O. — Constitutional amendment to permit religious, fraternal and charitable organizations to conduct bingo games in Ohio for their own profit was proposed in the Ohio House of Representatives by Rep. Howard A. Fortney, Democrat, Ash-tabula.

The Fortney resolution, proposing submission of the amendment to Ohio voters next November, is the first of several such proposals expected to be introduced during the current session of the legislature.

Gov. Michael V. DiSalle said he has no objection to charity bingo. But DiSalle emphasized that it should be strictly for charity and not for the benefit of individuals or organizations not 100 per cent charity. He said his only official act in the bingo proposals "would be to vote as a private citizen."

Fox Ups Ad Budget

HOLLYWOOD—At 20th Century-Fox's east-west executive meetings last fortnight, it was decided to increase the company's advertising and promotion budget by one-third for 1959.

Approximately half of the money will be allocated to point-of-sale newspaper advertising and promotion to assist exhibitors on the local level. The remainder will be spent for national magazine, radio, TV and display advertising.

they have been sold—requires creative, aggressive and maximum showmanship, calling for the full use of all media which will stir, attract and move the audience available for a particular film."

In summing up his review of campaigns, Lipton stated, "The advertising and publicity budgets on these new productions will have no ceilings. Every area of advertising and promotion will be utilized more aggressively than ever before and new techniques will be introduced to make more effective use of these outlets."

He reported that in the promotion selling of these major box office attractions, Universal will cooperate with leading national advertisers, department and chain stores and brand products to reach the largest possible audience in the pre-selling of its product.

Stockholder Opposes WB Stock Options

WILMINGTON, DEL.—Exercise of option price reductions which stockholders of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., are expected to grant to five Warner executives at the annual meeting here (today) Feb. 4 is opposed in a Court of Chancery action filed by a New York stockholder, Mrs. Sara Keyser.

The shareholder also seeks to block payment of $1,000 per week to Samuel Schneider under an agreement made when he retired in 1957 as vice-president, treasurer, and member of the board of directors.

Named as defendants are the corporation, Jack L. Warner, Benjamin Kalmenson, Herman Starr, Wolfe Cohen, Steve Trilling, and Schneider.

Option price reductions which the stockholders will be asked to approve would cut the price of 60,000 shares optioned to Warner from $29.29 to $22, or 110 percent of June 19 market value, and would cut to $19 per share, or 95 percent of market value, the options of Kalmenson, 40,000 shares; Starr, 15,000; Cohen, 10,000, and Trilling 10,000 shares, an increase for him of 5,000 shares.

Vice Chancellor William Marvel gave the defendants until March 16 to appear and answer the complaint, and appointed Wilmington attorney Sidney Balick as sequestrator to seize the individual defendants' Warner stock holdings.

The plaintiff charges that Jack L. Warner, through the holding of 18.5 percent of the outstanding stock by himself and his wife, "dominates" the corporation and its board.

Wilmington attorney William E. Taylor Jr. represents the plaintiff.

New Roxy Appointments

NEW YORK—William L. Miller, 25 year Roxy veteran, has been appointed vice-president in charge of theatre operations; Florence Simendinger, who has served as administrative assistant on the Roxy staff for the past 25 years, has been appointed assistant secretary, in addition to her administrative duties; Alson Lee has been appointed treasurer; and Alex Rotko, who has served on the Roxy accounting staff for 17 years, assistant treasurer of Roxy Enterprises Corporation, operators of the Roxy Theatre, it was announced by Robert C. Rothafel, president, and Leon Brandt, executive vice-president.

Charles Simonelli, formerly of Universal's home office publicity and promotion staff, has been added to the Roxy publicity staff under Brandt. He is not to be confused with Charles Simonelli, currently Universal eastern publicity director.

SW Sets Phila. Parking Deal

PHILADELPHIA—Frank J. Damis, Stanley Warner Theatres' vice-president in charge of the Philadelphia-Washington zone, announced last fortnight the inauguration of a new service to patrons of the downtown Stanley and Stanton.

Recognizing downtown traffic difficulties, SW management concluded arrangements with the management of the Sheraton Hotel Garage for free parking up to four hours for the convenience of patrons of these theatres. The free parking services will be available every day including Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays, at any time of the day or night when attending either theatre. Parking tickets will be validated by theatre cashiers at the time of purchasing tickets.

License Fee Reduction Sought In N. Y. Bill

ALBANY—The annual attempt to reduce the licensing fees charged by the State Education Department's Motion Picture Division is underway, via a bill which Senator John J. March, Staten Island Republican, and Assemblyman Anthony P. Savarese, Jr., Queens Republican, presented to the Legislature. It has been introduced in four of the last five years, and has twice met a Governor's veto.

One change, possibly significant, has been made in the current bill. The effective date was switched, prior to introduction, from July 1, 1959, to April 1, 1960.

Averell Harriman, a Democrat, who as Governor disapproved similar proposals in 1956 and 1957, pointed out that it would cost the State an estimated $300,000 in revenue, and that the Legislature had made no provision for replacement revenue. The budget bills for the next fiscal year had, in both instances, already been enacted.

By moving forward the effective date to April 1, 1960, the new bill sets the proposed modification of fees to begin with a new fiscal year. Substitute revenue could be voted.

It provides that the fee for licensing shall be increased from three to four dollars per thousand feet or fraction thereof, on originals, and shall be decreased on prints from two dollars per thousand feet to four dollars "for each additional entire copy." The word "entire" is the key. It is the slashing of the fee for prints that would bring about the substantial loss of revenue to the State.

Proponents of the legislation, and opponents of censorship, have long argued that the State has made a heavy profit from film licensing. This is due to the fact the gross revenue from this source has ranged around $450,000 annually, whereas the costs of conducting the Motion Picture Division are less than one-third of such amount.

Hospital Group Renamed

NEW YORK—It was announced by Thomas E. Rodgers and Irwin Freedman, co-chairmen of the newly named "Special Activities Committee" of the Will Rogers Memorial Fund, at a luncheon last week that the former "Will Rogers Junior Committee" had changed its name to the "Special Activities Committee" of the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital.

UA 40th Anniversary Convention To Launch New Production Bonanza

Clark Blasts Censors In Letter To Flick

NEW YORK—Motion picture censorship is a deceit upon the people of New York, it was said last week by Ken Clark, vice-president, Motion Picture Association of America, in a letter to Dr. Hugh M. Flick, executive assistant to the Commissioner of Education, Albany.

Clark added: "Censorship is a weapon of totalitarianism. We in the United States should no more borrow it than we would borrow communism from the Soviet Union."

Texas Drive-In Meet To Honor Showman

DALLAS—Plans were being completed last fortnight for the seventh annual convention of the Texas Drive-In Theatre Owners Association scheduled for the Adolphus Hotel here on Feb. 16-17-18.

A feature will be a forum conducted by the National Association of Concessionaires at which Phil Lowe, new president, NAC, will be guest speaker.

The grand ball will be held Tuesday night, Feb. 17 at the Dallas Athletic Country Club with dinner, dancing and entertainment sponsored by the Pepsi-Cola Company. The following night, Feb. 18, will be the special presidential dinner at the Hotel Adolphus sponsored by the Coca-Cola Company.

Melvin T. Munn, director of public relations for the Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Texas, will be one of the convention's outstanding speakers.

The John H. Hardin Annual Award will be a new convention feature this year. This award will be presented to the outstanding personality in the drive-in theatre industry. The selection of the winner will be determined by votes cast by a special committee.

Business sessions of the convention will deal with problems common to all outdoor theatre men, and it is expected that the new American Congress of Exhibitors will also figure prominently in discussions.

NEW YORK—United Artists will hold its Fortieth Anniversary sales convention in Los Angeles and Miami Feb. 15-21 to set distribution patterns for the greatest concentration of top quality product in company history, it was announced last week by William J. Heineman, vice-president in charge of distribution, and Max E. Youngstein, vice-president.

Heineman will preside over the meetings with general sales manager James R. Velde. The conclaves will bring together members of the company's two divisions, six districts, and 33 U. S. and Canadian branches.

Heineman and Youngstein will lead the sales sessions in launching UA's greatly expanded releasing program for 1959. This year, the company is placing more than $65,000,000 in features in distribution.

Home office officials participating in the conclaves include Joseph Ende, controller and assistant treasurer; Louis Lober, general manager, foreign department; and Roger H. Lewis, national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation. Also attending will be continental U. S. sales division managers Milton E. Cohen, Sidney Cooper, and Al Fitter; Canadian district manager Charles S. Chaplin; and David Picker, executive assistant to Max E. Youngstein.

In a message to the entire domestic sales force on the eve of the national conclave, Heineman declared: "Since Arthur Krim and Bob Benjamin took over the leadership of United Artists in 1951, our feature programs have registered tremendous growth in each succeeding year. In 1959, we are advancing a program that is superior to anything that we have ever done before. . . .

"Our job at the convention will be to plan a distribution campaign that capitalizes on the huge potential of this program. Our booking patterns must reach a greater portion of the total film audience than ever before. Our sales planning must be more detailed. Our drive must be worthy of the quality product we are delivering to the nation's theatres."

The sales conclaves will open at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles on Feb. 15-17. The second and concluding sessions will take place at the Roney Plaza Hotel in Miami on Feb. 19-21.

Officers and representatives of the following exchange areas will participate in the first of the two three-day sales conventions to be held in Los Angeles: Chicago, Denver, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Omaha, St. Louis, San Francisco, Seattle, Salt Lake City, Calgary, Vancouver, and Winnipeg.

The Miami meetings will be attended by UA sales officers and representatives from the following exchanges: New York, New Orleans, New Haven, Jacksonville, Indianapolis, Detroit, Dallas, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Atlanta, Boston, Buffalo, Charlotte, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Washington, St. John, Montreal, and Toronto.

Schaefer For "Shake Hands"

NEW YORK—George J. Schaefer has been named international producer's sales representative for United Artists' "Shake Hands With the Devil," it was announced by Pennebaker executive producers George Glass and Walter Seltzer.

William J. Heineman, second from left, vice-president in charge of distribution, recently mapped plans for United Artists' 40th anniversary sales convention with general sales manager James R. Velde, seated, and UA divisional sales chiefs, standing left to right, Sidney Cooper, Milton E. Cohen, and Al Fitter. The sales meetings will be held in Los Angeles and Miami on Feb. 15-21 and will develop distribution patterns for over $65,000,000 in features to be released by the company in 1959.

By Mel Konecoff

DINO DE LAURENTIIS, one of Italy's foremost producers, was man of the hour last week as press representatives gathered to wine, dine, and listen at the "21" Club. De Laurentiis, who produced his first picture at the age of 19 at a cost of $5,000 prior to World War II, and who is married to Silvana Mangano, both feats of distinction, has since turned out some 70 to 80 features. His latest, "Tempest," cost four million.

With the aid of an interpreter, the producer discoursed on the state of the industry, and while the delivery was different, the result had a familiar ring to it. Said he, bad pictures are dead whereas the good ones are finding a stronger and more valid market than ever before.

It's true, he admitted, pictures are faced with stronger competition from TV, outdoor activities, and changing tastes. Not only that, but to overcome our opposition, we must produce very good artistic films or spectacles. He has done both, e.g. "Gold of Naples," "La Strada," "Nights of Cabiria," "Ulysses," "War And Peace," and now "Tempest," to name but a few.

According to audience and critical reaction, his last is his best. It was released around Christmas in Italy and has broken the previous records held by "War And Peace." He claims he has tried combining the artistic with the spectacular, and what emerges is an unusual film.

Other De Laurentiis observations were: Paramount has been a wonderful partner, friend and guide. . . . There is no actor no matter how great who can help a mediocre film. . . . It must be remembered that it is always the picture that launches, creates and makes the actor. . . . If an actor demands too much money just don't hire him. There usually is no threat of death involved in the negotiations.

He pointed out that picture people really have no nationality but rather belong to one big "universal family." Producers should give and get cooperation from their counterparts everywhere, opined he. He forecast that even should there be changes in the Italian Government, the status of the industry, American or local, would not be affected.

He can properly oversee distribution of his own films in Italy since he started his own distribution company there last year. . . . Russian films? They are too native and too localized. . . . His next is "Simon Bolivar," which may go before the cameras come October in South America in association with Paramount, if the proper governmental cooperation is forthcoming. . . . Incidentally, should you see a pleasant-faced individual talking to your audiences in the lobby one day, it could be De Laurentiis, who will remain in the U.S. for several months. He is seeking to meet moviegoers and perhaps be guided by them for future productions.

COMPULSION: Richard Zanuck has proven himself a chip off the old block by producing an outstanding drama called "Compulsion." Incidentally, he assured us that being the son of the famous Darryl F. is no handicap, but rather an invaluable aid, permitting him to be in the position he is in. However, from here on in, he noted, he is on his own name or no name.

Zanuck, the younger, put in a year in Charlie Einfeld's advertising and publicity department learning the ropes, so he is well aware that a film cannot be neglected after it has been completed as far as filming is concerned. With that in mind, he intends to make a four-week tour starting Feb. 15 in advance of openings. He will cover up to 20 major market areas showing the film to press and other opinion makers, sitting through interviews, appearing before college groups, women's clubs etc.

The film will probably open here during Easter week with the release pattern to be confined to several key showcases in N.Y., Los Angeles, and somewhere in the south. There are no plans for Chicago. The negative cost is a million and-a-half, with another million expected to be added to that for prints and advertising. It's supposed to follow the Meyer Levin book closely, and the outcome is gripping entertainment.

His next project will be "Requiem For A Nun" and will probably be made later this year, the exact date depending on the success of the stage play here. He will also assist dad with "DeLuxe Tour."

CONTEST NOTE: The other day Lige Brien, United Artists tie-up and promotion head, insisted we come over and judge a "Paris Holiday" contest which gave two winners free air trips to Paris via Sabena Airlines, plus Johnson Outboard Motors to the runners-up. Y'know we couldn't find a single relative among the hundreds of entries, and Brien also insisted that we couldn't declare ourselves a winner. It's getting so you can't make a dishonest buck or prize these days. Since the winners are non-subscribers, we'll let UA break the identities of the lucky people.

THE METROPOLITAN SCENE: Congrats to Bill Miller on being made a vice-president of the Roxy. It was a smart move. . . . Stern's Department Store is carrying an exhibit on the history of cartoon animation as created by the Walt Disney Studios. . . . President of the Radio City Music Hall Russell Downing has already set his attraction for the Fourth of July, "The Nun's Story". . . . Actress Maureen Stapleton, who has checked many a celebrity into the Hotel New Yorker during her tenure on the night reservation desk, was guest of honor at a buffet gala given by the hotel to mark her motion picture debut in Dore Schary's "Lonelyhearts". . . . To mark the arrival of "Party Girl" on the circuit, Loew's Ernie Emmerling sent over a "Party Girl Kit" which contained a whiskey glass, a set of crooked dice, a plastic gun, a cigarette, a bathtub, etc. . . . Sid Blumenstock, vice-president, Embassy Pictures, informed us that Joe Levine, president, had arranged a luncheon for 1,000 persons at the Waldorf-Astoria on March 20. The gala affair will launch the campaign for Levine's latest acquisition, "Hercules."

New NTA Subsidiary Headed By Goldman

NEW YORK—The formation of NTA International, Inc., an organization which will service the television and motion picture industries throughout the world, was announced last week by Ely A. Landau, chairman of the board, and Oliver A. Unger, president of National Telefilm Associates, Inc.

It was also revealed that Harold Goldman, executive vice-president and a director of NTA, will become president of the new world-wide company, which will be a wholly-owned subsidiary. Goldman retains his posts with the parent company.

GOLDMAN

NTA International, Inc., will be responsible for sales of all NTA products in foreign countries. In addition, it will retain control of all sales and distribution in the United States of the entire NTA library of feature films for both television and theatre use, and also the sales of non-theatrical and home movies both here and abroad. All future feature film packages will likewise be handled through this subsidiary.

NTA International will immediately absorb all NTA offices already established in various foreign countries and plans expansion into other nations for the sale of NTA products.

It plans additional television series in association with the British Broadcasting Corporation, which recently in conjunction with NTA entered into its first commercial television co-production endeavor, "The Third Man," a 39-week series, starring Michael Rennie. Under the agreement, 20 episodes of the series are being made in Hollywood and the remaining 19 episodes on location in England.

In addition, NTA International plans to undertake television series in other countries. The first of these is scheduled for production in Australia.

NTA Pictures, Inc., which currently is distributor of films for theatre use, will become a division of NTA International. Herbert H. Greenblatt, general manager of NTA Pictures, will report directly to Goldman.

Mrs. Twyman Talks to Women

NEW YORK—Margaret G. Twyman, director of the MPAA community relations department, addressed two important women's organizations, one in Denver and a second in Salt Lake City, last week.

Arrangements were made for these meetings by Robert W. Selig, president, Fox Inter-Mountain Amusement Corporation, Denver.

Mrs. Twyman's talks included the changing role of women in the world and in the U. S. in particular; the partnership of women and motion pictures; and highlights of the outstanding new motion picture product which will be forthcoming in 1959.

Another Rep. Raps Toll-TV

WASHINGTON—Rep. D. John Dingell, Detroit, last fortnight introduced an anti-toll television bill with the warning to his colleagues that pay TV can not do more than convert free programs to viewings at a fee.

Dingell is a member of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee which places him in a strategic position to forward the bill toward enactment.

vention that "if you can keep the post-'48 product off TV for awhile, your next era could be golden."

"At least if you in exhibition are stockholders with those who would sell," he said, "you'll know the facts of life and you'll know what those pictures are worth, and they won't be given away like the pre-'48 pictures were."

Sindlinger stated that "People still like movies. They spend more time with them than ever before. People still consider going out to see movies. People still read the movie ads, and people still talk about movies."

Film Company Speakers Stress "New Faces" Idea

"Movie audiences are fed up with watching grandmothers play high school girls and 56-year-old men essaying the roles of 22-years-old boys and that's why Columbia Pictures is staging an intensive 'new faces' campaign," said Robert S. Ferguson, Columbia's director of advertising, publicity and exploitation, in his address to the convention.

Ferguson also said that "in a national business atmosphere in which, with the exception of antique and art dealers, new styles, fashions and models are the very foundation of successful merchandising, we have people in our industry who are continually trying to push the old and abhor the new."

He went on to point out that Columbia management, in reorienting its planning, had placed the discovery, development and promotion of new acting talent high on the priority list, including James Darren, Jo Morrow, and Evy Norlund, who were sent to the convention by the studio for the exhibitors to meet.

In introducing these "new faces," Rube Jackter, Columbia vice-president and general sales manager, explained that the company's policy will be to keep them in front of the public so that they will become well known and acquire a boxoffice pull. He revealed that March 25 is "G" Day, the date that "Gidget," first of the company's "new faces" presentations will be released.

James H. Nicholson, president, American International Pictures, told the delegates to keep a "24-hour watch on all factors of our business." He said "The only safety factors we have is eternal vigilance and constant watching for signals." He recommended stepped-up promotion and increased mutual respect as remedies for problems plaguing the industry.

Independent producer Otto Preminger, a speaker at the banquet which brought the convention to a close, urged the producers latch on to as many "new faces" as possible and develop them into stars as quickly as they can. He maintained that there exists no particular crisis in the business at the moment. He said that since its lush days the industry has undergone a constant change which is evidence that it is very much alive and not dead. He argued that those in the business hold the key to its future.

Among film stars attending the banquet were Lana Turner and Linda Cristal. Elizabeth Taylor, designated as "Allied's Star of the Year," was unable to attend to accept her award.

The banquet host was the Coca Cola Company, and a cocktail party given by National Carbon preceded the affair.

William Jenkins, Adrian, Mich., won the $100 prize for the best business building idea submitted at the convention. His idea calls for the presentation of prizes to ticket stub

LONDON Observations

by Jock MacGregor

"DO AS I SAY—not as I do" is probably the earliest saying that I remember. Now I am one of the critics who are out of step with the rest in not hailing "Room at the Top." Pulling no punches in its approach to sex, I consider it an unnecessary picture. Make no mistake, it is well enough done and as such can be all the more damaging to the industry. In catchpenny exploitation subjects, sensationalism is one thing. In a quality offering, it is another. It will be seen by those who do not go so often to the movies, surprise if not shock them, and provide ammunition for attack.

Big, bad words and the more intimate details of love affairs are now commonplace in books and plays. In both media, a degree of interpretation is left to the individual. The vast cinema screen emphasizes only one view and, combined with its magnification and the fact that codes of censorship have lead the public into believing producers know when to stop, presents a very different matter. Many do not wish to hear words they may use in private uttered in a picture.

In view of the recent public hearings of the New York State Joint Committee on Offensive and Obscene Material with reference to "objectionable" films which were alleged to be morally harmful, especially to youngsters, this production is all the more unfortunate. While there can be varying views on the content of "Room at the Top," the sequence following the seduction of young heiress can only be taken as objectionable. Her enthusiasm and unbounded pleasure only tinged slightly with the thought she may "look different" can cause concern for the parents of teenagers. After all, the cinema on the whole caters for the family trade, and the unwary parent who drops in on this one with the family is in for a big shock.

TWO INDUSTRY LEADERS who have never lost sight of the family trade and have kept in high pressure production for many years without suffering have been visiting London. They are our old friends, Steve Broidy and Norton Ritchey, who are here to check on Allied Artists activities and inspect the new offices that Ken Murray has opened. Bubbling with pleasure over the phenomenal grosses being run up in the U.S.A. by "House on Haunted Hill" and the way "Big Circus" and "Capone" are shaping, Steve warned that the industry cannot exist on blockbusters alone. So many small theatres need product that there will always be a place in production for ingenuity and showmanship. . . . Settling down on this side of the Atlantic with his family is former Hollywood trade paperman turned publicist, Mike Kaplan. Over lunch in the 500 Club, he told me of plans he is formulating to put over "Once More With Feeling." Stanley Donen is to produce it in Paris with Yul Brynner and Kay Kendall starring, and it looks like the biggest picture ever to be made in France. Mike's campaign promises to match it. Columbia will release. . . . Col. Gordon Rayner without relinquishing his directorships with Ealing and associate companies has become overseas sales manager for Associated British Pathe. . . . Lauren Bacall turned the first spadeful of earth at the new town of Hemel Hempstead for the first Rank theatre to be built since the war. Seating 1200, it will cater to an anticipated 60,000 inhabitants.

UA Drive In Last Lap

NEW YORK—United Artists' Los Angeles, Charlotte, and Salt Lake City exchanges have placed first in the fourth lap of the company's "Salute to Arthur Krim" sales drive, it was announced by co-captains Robert S. Benjamin, chairman of the board, and William J. Heineman, vice-president in charge of distribution.

Western district manager Ralph Clark was also declared district winner of the fourth lap. Chicago, Denver, and Calgary placed second for the fourth stanza, followed by third place winners San Francisco, St. Louis, and Vancouver.

The overall standings in the 32nd week of the 37-week drive show Chicago, Cleveland, and New Haven to be the leaders of their respective divisions.

The drive honoring the UA President will offer $60,000 in prize money to the participating division, district, branch and sales managers, salesmen, and bookers in the company's U.S. and Canadian territories. This is the largest amount ever earmarked for a United Artists sales campaign.

savers, the stubs to be pasted in a book in the manner of merchandising stamps.

The convention concluded without passing a single resolution for the consideration of delegates. This was said to set a precedent for a conclave of the exhibitor organization.

Aldrich Sets Yugoslav Deal

ROME—Producer-director Robert Aldrich has concluded the first equal co-production deal between an American and a Yugoslavian production company, with the signing of an agreement between the Associates and Aldrich Company and Avala Film of Belgrade, for the production of Nicolai V. Gogol's "Taras Bulba, The Cossack." Anthony Quinn will star in the title role.

The $3,000,000 venture was organized by Kaufman-Lorner Associates of Rome and was signed by Aldrich on behalf of his company and Jovan Petrovic of Avala. Other participants in the meeting were Ingo Preminger, Aldrich partner; Rodo Andrich, artistic director of Avala; and Eugene Lerner of Kaufman-Lerner.

The $3,000,000 will be covered equally in dollars and Yugoslavian dinars. It is the largest investment ever made by a Yugoslav film company in a foreign co-production.

Loew's To Ask Court To Okay D-I Acquisitions

WASHINGTON — It was learned last week that Loew's Theatres will petition Federal Court in New York City for permission to acquire drive-ins at South Bend and Osceola, Ind., operated by Mrs. L. Cocherty.

The petition will come before Judge Edmund L. Palmieri on a date not yet set.

Ezell, for many years southern district manager, for major exchanges headquartered here, died in a Philadelphia hospital following a heart attack.

BOSTON

Stanley Farrington, booker for many years at Affiliated Theatres Corporation, has joined the Paramount exchange booking staff, replacing "Buck" Spurr who has resigned to enter another field of business. . . . With the booking and clerical department of Rank Film Distributors moved to New York City, Stan Davis, branch manager will remain in the present quarters and will continue to manage the New Haven and Albany branches also. Abe Weiner, however, has moved back to New York and has been promoted to general sales manager for the Rank company. Bill Cuddy, who was office manager for Rank, has transferred to Universal-International where he replaces Eddie Knudsen who has returned to his former post as head booker. . . . Bruce Nutter has been appointed manager, Capitol, Winchendon, Mass., for owner Sam Feldman. . . . John Cox, Jr., has been appointed assistant manager at the New Fenway, working with Mrs. Anne M. Cohen, general manager. . . . Middlesex Amusement Company has closed the doors of the Auditorium, Malden, for the usual reasons, leaving only the Granada and the Strand in that city. Both the latter spots are under the Middlesex banner.

BUFFALO

Lou Levitch, manager, Granada, Schine's de luxe community house where "South Pacific" now is running in Todd-AO, has made a deal with the Loblaw stores through which patrons of the stores may purchase two tickets at 89 cents each with each $5 in Loblaw purchases. Loblaw is giving the arrangement some splendid display publicity in their weekly double truck ads. . . . Ethel Tyler, for many years office manager at the Buffalo National Screen Service branch, has resigned and soon will announce her new connection. . . . The Paramount was the scene on Jan. 23 of the world premiere of "I, Mobster." . . . It is reported that the Circle, one of the houses owned by the late Matt Konczakowski, will close early in February but that the Marlowe, another house in the circuit, will be kept open by the Konczakowski children in memory of their father. . . . "South Pacific" will end its run at the Granada, Schine community theatre in north Buffalo, on Feb. 13 on which date the house will return to 35mm. presentations.

CHARLOTTE

The Manor at Wilmington, N. C., was closed Jan. 2 at the request of the city building inspector pending outcome of an inspection of the building's west wall. E. M. Marks, manager, said the wall may have been weakened last year when an adjacent building was torn down, and that after the city building inspector checked the wall he agreed a survey should be made to find out the exact condition of the structure. The building has not been condemned, and Marks says he hoped to be able to reopen the movie house soon. . . . The Uptown, Durham, N. C., was broken into the night of Jan. 13 and a second floor office was ransacked. Nothing was taken, a small cash box apparently being overlooked. Entry to the building was gained by removing the hinges from the back door. The break-in was discovered by a policeman patrolling his beat at 2. a. m., and two hours later a similar entry attempt was discovered at the Criterion, a block away. Entrance in the latter case was not gained, however. . . . Rudolph Howell, theater executive, has been elected vice-president of the Smithfield, N. C., Chamber of Commerce.

CHICAGO

Added glow was given the 1959 installation of Variety Club officers by the initiation of 26 new members. The new officers for 1959 are William Margolis, chief barker; Nat Nathanson, first assistant; Charles Cooper, second assistant; Harry Balaban, dough guy; and Sam Levinsohn, property master. . . . Harry Witz, chairman, Continental Electrical Construction Company, theatre equipment manufacturers, died. . . . S. J. Gregory, president, Alliance Amusement Company, and John Papas, father of Spiro Papas, Alliance executive, were honored with St. Paul medallions on behalf of Patriarch Athenagoras I of Constantinople. The highest honor of the organization was presented at a president's dinner given by the St. Andrew Greek Orthodox Church. . . . George T. Brandt, retired B and K personnel director, joined the Harry Engelstein Organization, operator of the Regal and Kim. The taking over of additional houses is planned. . . . A Movie Jackpot Night copyrighted and designed to lure people away from TV for attendance at neighborhood theatres has been inaugurated by Dan Goldberg and Charles Teitel, World Playhouse. . . . Noel Pickett, merchant, purchased the Hippodrome, Sheridan, Ind., from Hilda Burtle. . . . Jack Springer, former Jackson Park manager, was named by Smith Corporation to supervise its 66 Drive-In and the Ridge, Griffith, Ind.

CINCINNATI

Nathan Wise, chief barker, Tent 3, Variety Club, installed the officers of Ladies Auxiliary, at a luncheon in the club's Metropole Hotel clubrooms. . . . A number of drive-in operators have plans formulating for expansion of services to patrons, with emphasis being placed on recreational facilities for children. . . . Bennett Goldstein, 20th-Fox sales manager, was transferred to Philadelphia exchange in like capacity. . . . Duke Hickey, U-I publicity department, was in to bally "The Perfect Furlough". . . . City manager C. A. Harrell has commended Willis Vance, local exhibitor, for his "imaginative concept" of a new river-front 10-story garage and motor terminal building, privately financed, and costing about $4 million. . . . Owner of downtown 77-year-old Gayety, a burlesque and film house, who had protested the tax evaluation of $131,580 as too high, was overruled by the State Board of Tax Appeals.

CLEVELAND

Henry Greenberger of Community Theatres Circuit was reelected president for a fifth term at the annual meeting of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association. Also reelected were Joseph Rembrandt, vice-president, and Louis Weitz, secretary. Leonard Mishkind, General Theatres Circuit, succeeds James Kalafat as treasurer. . . . The three per cent admission tax revenue in the City of Cleveland in 1958 was the lowest it has ever been since the tax went into effect 10 years ago. The take, according to License Commissioner Stanley P. Nemec, was $344,000. High was $602,000 in 1948. The 1958 figure shows a decline of almost 43 per cent, due, according to Nemec, to the general recession and the small attendance at the local baseball games. . . . Jules Livingston, recently appointed local Columbia branch manager, took bows at a testimonial luncheon sponsored jointly by the Cleveland Salesmen's Club and the Variety Club. Martin Grassgreen, president of the Salesmen's Club, was in charge of arrangements.

DALLAS

Phil Isley, who heads the Phil Isley Theatre Circuit with headquarters here, has been named chief barker of Variety Club's Dallas Tent 17. He replaces Edwin Tobolowsky. Other officers named include Charles Weisenburg, John Hicks, Meyer Rachofsky and W. L. Marshall. . . . The Texas unit of the newly created American Congress of Exhibitors will work with Texas COMPO to eliminate the need for two state industry organizations. Kyle Rorex, executive director Texas COMPO, will serve in that capacity for ACE, too. Paul Short will be administrative executive, and W. O. Reed general counsel for Texas COMPO, and Edwin Tobolowsky, general counsel for Texas Drive-In Theatre Owners Association, will serve as legal counsel for the ACE unit.

DES MOINES

The Mills, Tama, Ia., has closed its doors due to lack of business. . . . Mrs. Dick Witter has been named manager, Newell, Newell. The house is operated by the New Chamber of Commerce. . . . Woodrow R. Praught, vice-president of Tri-States Theatre Corporation of Des Moines, was elected chief barker of Variety Tent 15 at the annual meeting in Des Moines. Larry Day was named first assistant chief; Ralph Olson, second assistant chief; Lou Levy, dough guy; and Dave Gold, property master.

DETROIT

Max J. Rosenberg, producer of "The Last Mile," which has its world premiere at the Palms here, met the critics at a luncheon. . . . The World, formerly the Cinema and originally before World War II a legitimate house built by the German American Bund, is again dark. This was Detroit's only downtown art house. It has changed hands and policies many times, the withdrawing operator being William Fleming, who will continue at the Studio which ran day and date with the World. . . . Everett Olsen, who is originally from Minneapolis where he was with Paramount 20 years ago, has rejoined the company and was introduced to the press here as new area publicist. In the intervening years he has also been a theatre and drive-in operator in North and South Carolina.

HOUSTON

Marc J. Wolf of Indianapolis was here for the installation of officers of the Variety Club of Houston, Tent 34. New officers are Robert Lewis, chief barker; Jerry Kirby, first assistant chief barker; Harry Martin, second assistant chief barker; Richard McGar, dough guy; Jack Bryant, property master; and Les Hunt, Bobby Tinterow, Ted Roggan, Fred Baum, Sidney Balkin and Augie Schmitt, directors. Francis Deering was master of ceremonies and Henny Youngman furnished the entertainment. John T. Jones Jr., president of the Houston Chronicle, was selected as "Houston's Man of the Year," the first time the title has been conferred by the Variety Club.

MINNEAPOLIS

Most of the officers, including the business agent, of local 13, IATSE, were reelected at the annual meeting. Officers include George Gubbins, Sr., president; Robert Golling, vice-president; Mark Rice, Sr., business agent; and Robert Westerman, secretary-treasurer. . . . Fire and water did $20,000 damage at the Reid H. Ray Film Industries, Inc., plant, St. Paul. Reid Ray, owner, said the fire apparently started in a film vault when nitrate film exploded. The fire turned on 12 sprinklers which flooded the vault. Water damage was caused to other parts of the building when the door was opened. . . . American Legion is reopening the Playhouse, Flasher, N. D., closed for some time. Some redecorating and remodeling also has been done. Used booth equipment is being installed by the Minneapolis Theatre Supply Company. . . . Local businessmen are reopening the theatre at Grantsburg, Wis.

NEW HAVEN

Hal Bogue has resigned as manager, Mark-off Bros.' Midtown, Norwich, Conn., and is expected to announce a new industry affiliation shortly. He is replaced at the Midtown by his former assistant, John Durandi. . . . The Colonial Theatre Amusement Corporation, a new Milford, Conn., corporation, has filed a certificate of incorporation with the Connecticut secretary of state, listing authorized capital, $50,000; 500 shares at $100; beginning business, $1,000; incorporators, Donald Root, West Haven, Conn., Anthony Salerno, and Robert Elliano, Milford.

NEW ORLEANS

Joy N. Houck and J. Francis White, Charlotte, top executives of Howco Pictures, left for England and France to make arrangements for the distribution of their pictures there. . . . The Gloster, Gloster, Miss., closed. . . . The Ritz, Hattiesburg, Miss., closed for remodeling. . . . Fred Juneau has leased the Joy, Cottonport, La., from Joy's Theatres. . . . The Ritz, Lucedale, Miss., is now on weekend operation only. . . . The following theatres are now closed one day midweek: W. D. Conrad's Dixie, Loreauville, La.; Mrs. Edith Gee's Village, Bonita, La.; and S. P. Serio's Century, Morganza, La. . . . Lewis Cox reopened the Bayouland, Barton, La. . . . Tringas Theatres closed the Bay Drive-In, Niceville, Fla., until spring. . . . The Crosby, Crosby, Miss., closed. . . . Elaine Miano, Allied Artists assistant booker, resigned to devote her time to domestic duties. . . . Julie Call, MGM cashier, left to await the arrival of the stork. . . . Joe Carlock returned to take over the reins of the Pitt, Lake Charles, La., in the post vacated by Clyde Daren, who moved to Abernathy, Tex., to devote all his time to his own theatres there. . . . Hazel May Hill, Columbia cashier, and Gerald St. Romaine have an altar date on Jan. 17. . . . Mr. and Mrs. William Cobb planed to Minden to attend the funeral of their brother-in-law, Douglas Cheshire. The Cobbs and Mrs. Cheshire are co-owners of the Joy in that town, which has been managed by her for many years.

PHILADELPHIA

Variety Club Tent 13 Heart Fund Drive award winners were Florence Scowcroft, Philadelphia; Al Knight, Stratford, Ontario, Canada; Paul Norris, Sr., Wilmington, Del.; Mildred Tatelman, Philadelphia; The Stewarts, Camden, N. J.; J. F. Ruffner, Reading, Pa.; Lillian Cohen, Riverdale, N. Y.; Belle K. Baer, Philadelphia; Franklin Pharmacal Company, Philadelphia; and G. J. Haney, Wormleysburg, Pa. . . . Max Chasens, Hamid Enterprises, Atlantic City, N. J., led the Transportation Committee of the Commuters' Association, protesting the proposed cut in service of the Pennsylvania-Reading Seashore Lines to the shore resorts. . . . The Pennypak has been leased to a little theatre dramatic group headed by Bob Ferguson. . . . Friends of Eli Epstein will be pleased to hear he is now connected with Ellis Theatres' booking department. . . . Charles Amsterdam is recuperating in Mt. Sinai Hospital, Miami, Fla., and would like to hear from his friends. He was injured by a hit and run motorist.

ST. LOUIS

Marcella DeVinney, 20th-Fox, who was "Miss Film Row" of St. Louis in 1957, was reelected business agent for Film Exchange Employees Local Union F-1, IATSE affiliate. Other officers for 1959 are president Ralph Hacker, UA; vice-president W. Cole, U-I; secretaries Mable Schmidt, MGM; Marlene Buck, National Screen; and Hazel Hildebrand, U-I; and treasurer, Charlotte Murphy, Columbia. . . . Robert Hyland, general manager, radio station KMOX, CBS, was installed as chief barker of St. Louis Variety Club, Tent Four, at a luncheon meeting held at the Forest Park Hotel. The Tent recently moved its quarters from the Chase Hotel to the Forest Park Hotel. . . . The Mansfield, Mansfield, Mo., closed. . . . The Longwood, Lemay, Mo., has been closed and may be dismantled and converted to other use. . . . D. J. (Bud) Edele, UA branch manager, has been promoted to manage the New York City exchange, a post he will assume next month. He is succeeded here by Eddie Stevens, who has been on the sales staff here since 1951. . . . Mildred Skinner joined Allied Artists as secretary to manager Maurice Schweitzer. . . . United Artists' "The Great St. Louis Bank Robbery," produced here, will have its world premiere at Loew's Orpheum on Jan. 29 followed by a saturation booking in some 75 Missouri and Illinois theatres. . . . The Canna, Gillespie, Ill., is to be modernized.

SAN ANTONIO

George Kaczmar, former manager, Empire, is now a special investigator for the local District Attorney's office. . . . Jerry Jobe has instituted "Teenage Night" every Friday night at the Sunset, Fort Worth, Tex., and as a result has a packed house. He removed several rows of seats in the front row. Then after the showing of the feature he turns on the house lights and provides music for 30 minutes of dancing in the front space. Jobe reports he does a tremendous business at the concessions stand. . . . Clarence H. Moss, manager, State, operated by the Interstate Theatre Circuit, has announced that admission prices have been increased for adults from 40 to 60 cents. . . . The Glenn, Winnie, Tex., has been taken over by Mrs. O. J. Loupe who has leased the theatre from W. R. Armstrong, who has operated the theatre since 1947. Armstrong and his family will move to Beaumont, Tex. . . . The Casino, Hebbronville, Tex., has been closed until further notice. . . . Pete Fernandez, Fiesta, Mathis, Tex., is trying out special midweek previews.

SEATTLE

The M. R. "Razz" Goldstein Appreciation Drive started Jan. 3 and will run for three months, winding up April 3. . . . Seattle lost another long-time neighborhood house when the Venetian closed. . . . The Liberty, Portland, closed because the theatre property has been sold for a new building. . . . I. B. Johansen leaves the Uptown to take over as manager of Sterlings Lake City, replacing Frank Bunting who has returned to the Midwest. Johansen's vacant post has been filled by Jack Meals, formerly assistant at the Garden.

SERVICE SECTION

THE CHECK-UP of all Features and Short Subjects as reviewed and compiled during the past 12 months

Published every second week, as a separately bound and easily saveable section of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, this exclusive 24 year old service lists by (1) Distribution Source and by (2) Alphabet, all professional motion pictures offered for dating by the nation's theatres, plus all those that are in production. Each new issue is a complete, carefully checked reference index, brought up-to-date from the best available sources. Complete and detailed REVIEWS are published as separately bound and easily saveable pink paper sections, on the alternating every second week throughout the film season (September to September), and are cumulatively numbered. It is recommended that readers save this SERVICESECTION reference for only the two week interval between issues, and then discard it as antiquated data. The pink paper REVIEWS, however, should be permanently saved and assembled into complete files, by seasons, and the last issue of each August will always contain a complete annual index. Combined, the yellow paper SERVICESECTION and the pink paper REVIEWS represent a unique informative service to theatremen that is unequalled in either accuracy or completeness. Please address all inquiries or suggestions about these two service features to the Editors of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, 246-48 N. Clarion St., Philadelphia 7, Penna.

The Prize Baby is proudly telegraphing his boxoffice punch with trailers—the key which taps 87 ticket sales for each one spent!

No wonder every smart showman is on the receiving end of this ratio message.

*Decoded, the above dots and dashes of the Morse Code mean 87 to 1 and refer to the ratio of admissions dollars motivated by trailers to trailer expenditures as established by the most recent Sindlinger survey.

Letters . . .

UNSOLICITED • The letters from readers which appear on this page are not solicited. MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR does not suggest questions to readers in order to provide a flow of letters.

From NEW YORK, N. Y.

With reference to Tommy James' letter about the "TOM AND JERRY" Cartoons (Dec. 24 Issue), we too are extremely pleased with the response to them around the world. However, continually rising costs and diminishing returns forced us to discontinue production.

These shorts have had intensive repeat performances, to such extent that we reissued all of those available which had sufficient elapsed time from original playoff to permit their being accepted this year in our short releases. When and if conditions indicate that it would be profitable to renew production, every consideration will be given to it.

J. P. BYRNE

Metro Goldwyn Mayer Pictures

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is just about what we thought. Long live "TOM AND JERRY."

From FT. MADISON, IOWA

I just want to say that MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR is the one magazine that I can read over and over.

I am in charge of the Legion of Decency work in our Catholic parish, and in the other two Catholic parishes here, and this is where your sensational SERVICESECTION comes in handy. The L. of D. ratings are the most timely, and quicker than our own papers. I am also interested in the pink paper REVIEWS, dating back to 1936 if you have them.

Congratulations, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR! You definitely are a great trade magazine.

JUSTIN JACOBMEIER

Also employee of the State Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: Well! This is a switch! Mrs. Looram, please note!

More About Opinion Making

Several different sources have drawn to our attention the fact that at least three different New York distribution executives thought well enough of our Jan. 7 editorial observations ("WHY EXHIBITORS STEAL") to warrant photostating the page and sending marked copies to their friends and contemporaries. One of them described it as "particularly forceful because it quotes an exhibitor, and is published in a trade paper whose publisher is an exhibitor."

We must feel that such obvious surprise stems from failure to get out into the territories and visiting with their customers. If they had, they would know just how confiscatory some of their sales policies are. And how they are chasing many an honest man right out of this business.

From MIAMI, FLA.

From time to time you have commented on what "bushel-basket" showmanship can do to movie going patronage in general and to neighboring competition in particular. How would you like to compete with this Wometco Circuit drive-in? I agree they're pretty old; but why so many? And why 20 cents?

A MODERN CIRCUIT EXECUTIVE

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is not an anonymous letter because the original is on file. The writer asked for anonymity because of occasional theatre owner organization activity. We wouldn't like it! Old or new! The accompanying ad was clipped from Miami Herald of Feb. 2. Is business really that bad down there "in season?"

From GALENA, ILL.

I have owned and operated this theatre for the past 26 years, and during nearly all of that time, the adjoining building was a grocery store. Just recently, a fraternal organization purchased the building and remodeled it into a clubhouse.

The remodeling was mostly by member-volunteers during the evenings and with much hammering, pounding, and other noises that interfered with my operation. I had to close several nights because of the noise. My protests, however courteous, received only non-committal replies and the disturbance continued.

While the remodeling is now complete, they now have a policy of dance bands and large group dancing, drinking, and singing parties on weekends and holidays, and this interferes with my show. When the theatre is quiet, you can hear their voices talking through the walls. And, when that band plays, you hear it right through my sound amplification.

I would appreciate it if someone could advise whether I have any resource, or if there is any way I can insulate my side of the wall to prevent the sound coming through. This would of course necessitate removing the chairs along the wall, but I'm desperate.

Has anyone had this same problem? And, can they offer suggestions?

STANLEY LEAY

Stanley Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: This sounds like a local lawsuit to force the neighbor to insulate his wall, rather than change a right of use that has existed for 26 years. But, it also sounds like something that must have come up before. Does anyone have any actual experience?

From NEW DELHI, INDIA

I want to import some films for commercial purposes such as are generally screened in cinema houses here. I would not mind even if they are old, but they should be quite new to the public. I would like to be contacted by dealers who may wish to export such films. I am sure that really good films will command a good market here.

KRISHAN KUMAR

2/90 Connaught Circus

EDITOR'S NOTE: Sounds like some of the films that are currently on TV, and are being advertised with full page ads in big newspapers. But he's right! Really good films will command a good market anywhere!

From BOWMANVILLE, (Ont.) CANADA

The MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR pink section REVIEWS and evaluation of features and short subjects are an excellent guide to good programming. I am missing pages 4373 to 4380 inclusive. Would you please send them to me?

M. GILL, Manager
Royal Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: Done! For a period of several years back we can usually bring files up to date.

From WEST MIFFLIN, PA.

Received from the WOODLAND DRIVE-IN THEATRE blank check 2503 drawn on the Duquesne City Bank, Duquesne, Pa. and showing the legend: "This is MOVIE Money —Have You Been to One Lately?"

ABOUT MONEY, AND EFFORT, AND MOUTHS

AS THE VARIOUS local meetings of A.C.E. are being convened by the territorial chairmen around the country, there is no doubting the sincerity, the concern, or the whole-souled willingness to work of those in attendance. From all reports, some of these meetings are turning out a greater number of exhibitors, a more representative gathering of all factions of exhibition, and exhibitors who are more willing to work and serve the best interests of the whole, than ever before. But, as usual, there are those who are not in attendance, those who spoof the entire enterprise, and those who foretell its doom. And, again as usual, many in these latter categories are the very ones who shouted loudest and longest on the "Film Curbs" about current inequities; or who have actually instituted suits to attempt to legally force corrections. There are some people who just never pick up their share of the work—or of the tab.

Back in December, Spyros Skouras invited 100 or so representative exhibitors to meet with him in New York, and all of these men and more paid their own expenses and used their own hours and days to journey from every corner of the land to attend. From their time and from their pockets was born the promising organization that is A.C.E. Up to the present moment, nobody has suggested dues or even passed a hat. Wouldn't you think that the loud talkers and the suit threateners would feel a moral obligation to help "the team" that is trying to do something constructive to help them?

But no! There will always be the ones who play solo. There will always be the ones who put their own selfish interest, and their own hope for a quiet behind-the-door exception, before the good of their fellows.

To paraphrase our friend Harry Brandt, every other theatreman should challenge them to "put their cooperation where their mouths are!"

Sort of—put up or shut up!

MORE ON CRITICS OR CRACKPOTS

A MIDWEST READER has this to say about some comments on this page ("CRITICS OR CRACKPOTS" — issue of Dec. 10).

"Let's consider this point. Legitimate shows are never viewed by any critics for reviewing purposes except on the opening night, and before a live audience. They may be allowed in every now and then to watch a rehearsal; but if they should ever attempt to write a review of the finished product, based on what they see then, they'd be laughed out of newspaper business.

"But what do we do?"

"To flatter and to pamper a supposed critic or two, we put on a special projection room screening some morning, with only two or three in attendance, and maybe some of them hung over from some free entertainment the night before. I've known them to arrive 15 minutes after the feature started, and to belch their way out 15 minutes before it finished. And then I've read some pretty bitter tirades about the picture they didn't actually see in full.

"We spoil 'em! And it's just our own fault when this treatment makes their heads swell, and makes them become peevish bores. They ought to be made to wait for the opening, regardless of how many important shows open on the same night. Then they'd have more respect for pictures — and for picture business."

We are inclined to agree.

REASONS FOR LOWER REAL ESTATE TAXES

ACTIVITIES by the Allied Theatre Owners of Indiana and Ohio, directed at the reduction in real estate and property taxes being paid by theatres, should be given close security by theatremen everywhere.

The whole theory of taxation on commercial buildings hinges on the economic health, on the current profit, and therefore on the ability-to-pay of the commercial enterprise. Local jobs and the economic health of the local community also depend on the same ability-to-pay. Should the taxation stifle the enterprise, the ability-to-pay dries up and the community suffers.

Many theatres today are assessed and taxed on the basis of 1949 and earlier admissions and profits totals. And such assessments and taxes have contributed to the thousands of closed one-purpose theatre buildings that dot the land. Most of these latter can be bought for much less than their assessments. There is every legitimate reason to have the assessments lowered on those that remain open.

In Indiana, they devised a successful formula. Variations of that formula might apply elsewhere. In any event, it is worthy of the thought and attention of theatremen and theatre owner organizations at all levels.

NOT QUANTITY, BUT QUALITY

WE DON'T KNOW whether or not it can be attributed to the well-loved veteran showman Al Boyd, but we note that the Boyd Theatre, Bethlehem, Pa., and others of the A. R. Boyd Circuit are carrying in their ads: "Hollywood is producing fewer but better pictures!"

With all of the down-beat talk in the columns and by-lined articles, stating however inaccurately that "less than 200" features were produced in Hollywood in 1958, and that "this is under any previous year and a drop of nearly 100 over the year 1957," maybe such an ad-line packs a lot of merit. We doubt if the public is as interested in quantity as in quality!

Except in "dusk-to-dawn" bushel baskets.

Kerasotes Will Back Area Saturation Tests

NEW YORK—Theatre Owners of America last week offered to test area saturation advertising campaigns and openings "as a substitute for the conventional current national campaigns." The proposal was offered as a means of improving business for both exhibitors and distributors, and of getting more out of national ad budgets.

The sales managers of all major companies were urged by TOA president George G. Kerasotes to pick one or two "A" pictures every month and to open them in an exchange area with a full cooperative advertising campaign. Kerasotes declared such openings would serve as "a tremendous shot in the arm" for the entire industry and would be "like running a monthly or bi-monthly business building campaign in the exchange area." Pointing to several recent such openings, the TOA head termed it as "a new trend in picture selling" and one which he said he felt was deserving of "further development, study and organized testing."

Kerasotes said that it is his feeling that film companies generally have insufficient staffs and ad money allocated to pre-sell pictures nationally in an effective way. As an alternative, he urged concentration in a few exchange areas, declaring that sufficient funds would remain to pre-sell the picture on a sectional basis in the remaining exchange area.

Maumee, O., Repeals Tax

NEW YORK—The City Council of Maumee, Ohio, has voted repeal of the local three per cent admission tax, COMPO was advised by Duncan R. Kennedy, Publix Great States Theatres. The tax from three Maumee theatres has amounted to about $4,000 a year. The tax will be replaced by a licensing ordinance for all amusement enterprises.

Welsh Joins NSS

NEW YORK—Burton E. Robbins, National Screen Service vice-president in charge of sales, last week announced the appointment of Charles L. Welsh as home office sales representative for its special films division. Appointment becomes effective Feb. 16.

Robbins pointed out that the appointment was in line with National Screen's expanded aid-to-exhibition, business-building program. The program involves the extensive promotion of special services for and by exhibitors through the use of Special Announcement Films. (See Exploitation Section.)

Welsh has for the past 27 years been a partner in the firm of Welgot Trailer Service. He had previously been associated with the Semler Cinema Service, United Trailer Service, Meyer Rigger Lab., and B. F. Keith's Theatres.

Fox Sues For Censor Fees

COLUMBUS, OHIO—Suit was entered in U.S. District Court here last fortnight by 20th-Century-Fox to recover $750,000 in back censor fees paid the state of Ohio prior to the end of state censorship in 1954.

The suit follows a similar action filed in Franklin Common Pleas Court recently by Paramount, which seeks $55,846 in back censor fees.

FILM FAMILY ALBUM

Arrivals

Harvey Barenblut, United Artists contract sales supervisor, New York, became the father of a daughter, Amy Lynn, on February 4.

Cliff Robertson, Columbia contract star, became the father of a daughter, Stephanie, on February 5.

Obituaries

Louis S. Capaldo, 51, veteran projectionist in the Camero, Watertown, Conn., died.

Mrs. Harry M. Kalmine, wife of the vice-president and general manager of the Stanley Warner Corporation, died in New York last week after a long illness.

Evelyn C. Kaplan, mother of David L. Kaplan, owner of Detroit's Theatrical Advertising Company, died last fortnight.

Una O'Connor, 78, veteran film character actress, died in New York last week after a long illness. "Witness For The Prosecution" was her last screen appearance.

Charles O'Reilly, 73, a founder and honorary chairman of the ABC Vending Corporation, succumbed to a stroke in New York on February 4. O'Reilly was a pioneer exhibitor.

Hall Youngblood, veteran Georgia exhibitor, died following a long illness.

PCA Rejects Classification System

MPAA Unit Approves "Oscar" Bally Plans

NEW YORK—The radio and TV coordinating group of the MPAA Ad-Publicity Directors Committee last fortnight approved a variety of plans aimed to heighten national interest in the Oscar nominations and the April 6 Award ceremonies which will be simulcast by NBC.

The group held a luncheon meeting to receive a full report from Harry K. McWilliams, coordinator of Academy Award promotional activities, at which Robert S. Ferguson, group chairman and Columbia's ad-publicity exploitation director, presided.

Plans to spot individuals on panel shows; for stars to contact key television and radio editors throughout the country by direct wire; special disc jockey plugs and the development of a disc jockey package of the five nominated songs; and details for a TV and radio station national promotion contest were among the many programs approved and put in work.

Attending the meeting in addition to McWilliams and Ferguson, were Roger Caras, Columbia; Jerry Evans, Universal; Howard Haines, Paramount; Bill Stutman, 20th-Fox, and Buddy Young, United Artists.

Fox Embraces Stereo Again

NEW YORK—Following joint conferences conducted by Buddy Adler, head of 20th Century-Fox production, here and in Hollywood, it was announced last fortnight that the company had decided to restore stereophonic sound to its original status as a companion technique of CinemaScope. True stereo prints will be available on all pictures now in production, with the recording to be more truly stereophonic than heretofore employed.

Earl I. Sponable, director of scientific development, said the decision is in response to complaints of exhibitors with theatres equipped for stereophonic reproduction, and in recognition of public appreciation of superior qualities of sound in consequence of high fidelity reproduction in the home.

The executive conference from which the decision emerged was also attended by Carl Faulkner, sound director; Loren Grignon, sound development engineer; and Sol Halperin, head of the camera department.

300 Honor O'Donnell

NEW YORK—Phil Isley, president of Isley Theatres and newly elected chief barker of Variety Tent 17, Dallas, stated that all attendance records were topped when 300 barkers and their guests, predominately motion picture theatre people, turned out for "Bob O'Donnell Night" to honor R. J. O'Donnell, vice-president and general manager of Interstate Circuit, and Variety International Ringmaster.

The gala affair was opened by Gordon McLendon, head, Tri State Theatres and a string of radio stations in the south, who represented the local Tent in paying tribute to O'Donnell. McLendon said, "Mr. O'Donnell has spent his life as a dedicated man—to his industry, to Variety, and to literally hundreds of individuals who hold him responsible for their success in life."

Films Pledged To Military Immediately After Playoff

WASHINGTON—At a conference last fortnight Robert J. O'Donnell, chairman, Theatre Owners of America's Army-Navy Pre-Release Committee, pledged representatives of the armed services the cooperation of exhibition and distribution to assure the availability of all motion pictures to military theatres immediately upon their clearing commercial houses in the move to have service theatres book their attractions through film exchanges.

Heretofore, the military theatres played features before commercial houses had a chance to show them. In cases where a film is not played off by commercial theatres within a specified time after its availability, it would arbitrarily be given to the military post; and in isolated areas where no competition with commercial theatres exists the armed services would be given immediate availability, O'Donnell said.

The plan is now being studied by chiefs of the Army-Air Force and Navy Motion Picture Services.

U.S. Film Popularity Still Strong Abroad

WASHINGTON—Nathan D. Golden, chief, Motion Picture and Equipment Division of the Department of Commerce, revealed last fortnight that the popularity of films made in the United States with foreign audiences continued strong in 1958 with 325 features reaching those markets and matching the 1957 return of about $215,000,000 eligible for remittance to this country.

Production in 1958 dropped to an estimated 225 features, but the foreign release in 1959 of a number of higher budget films will hold up U.S. earnings, it was said.

The signing of a new Italian-American agreement last month and higher admission prices in Argentina and Brazil are also expected to benefit U.S. film business.

Film agreements with the United Kingdom, France, and Japan continued unchanged through 1958; and remittances from Canada, Germany, Brazil, Australia, Mexico and Venezuela were reported as relatively constant.

Import quotas and playing-time restrictions presented obstacles, as did shortage of foreign exchange, excessive taxation, and censorship difficulties.

The outlook for foreign business in 1959 was said to be as bright, but at home, competition from foreign films, especially British, French, and Italian, is found on the increase.

Who Gets The "Oscar"?

HOLLYWOOD—The long pending question of just who is "Robert Rich," the mysterious author of "The Brave One" who never could be found to claim his Oscar award, is going to be tried to be solved according to Lewis Meltzer, chairman of the screen credits committee of WGA, West.

A number of claimants for the writing credit on the film have come forth to declare themselves the genuine "Robert Rich."

Meltzer said all obtainable evidence will be examined and a decision will be arrived at by the evidence alone.

Appeals On Disapproved Scripts Also Turned Down; Clark Hits Rating Effort In New York, Maryland

NEW YORK—The working subcommittee of the Production Code Committee of the Motion Picture Association of America at a meeting last week unanimously rejected proposals for the establishment of an audience rating system on PCA-approved pictures and for the creation of an appeals machinery for motion picture scripts disapproved by the PCA.

Kenneth Clark, MPAA vice president, chairman of the working group, was chairman of the meeting.

The subcommittee took the occasion to praise the work of the Production Code Administration, headed by Geoffrey M. Shurlock, and expressed gratification that the Code system is so fully and consistently supported in all branches of the industry.

The proposal that appeals be permitted on scripts disapproved by the PCA originated in Hollywood. As the Code now functions, appeals may be made only on completed pictures.

Members of the subcommittee present, in addition to Clark, were John J. O'Connor, Universal; Robert J. Rubin, Paramount; and Sidney Schreiber, MPAA. J. Raymond Bell, Columbia, was out of town on business, and voted by proxy.

Chairman Clark took the occasion to hit bills in the New York and Maryland legislatures to impose statutory classification of motion pictures saying, "These would establish an unthinkable, unwarranted and completely unjustified abridgment of freedom of choice. . . . The Code itself is the best guarantee against obscenity, for it means voluntary acceptance by motion picture producers of sound standards. . . . The law should not be the determinant of degrees of maturity in any American family. . . ."

Exhib Responsibility Bill Introduced In Maryland

ANNAPOLIS, MD.—A bill placing responsibility for keeping those under 18 years of age from seeing alleged obscene films on theatre operators was filed in the House of Delegates last week by 10 members.

The measure is seen as a counter to the heavily lobbied censorship bill on which hearings are scheduled for this week. This bill would give the Board of Motion Picture Censors the power to determine which pictures could be shown to persons under 18.

The newer measure is compared to existing Maryland statutes controlling the sale of obscene literature, which provide no prior censorship but place responsibility on persons making the sale and the owners of establishments involved.

Lightman, Jr., Heads Malco

MEMPHIS, TENN.—M. A. Lightman, Jr., last fortnight was elected president of Malco Theatres, Inc., to succeed his late father, M. A. Lightman, Sr.

Richard Lightman, his brother, and Herbert Levy were named vice-presidents. Edward P. Sapinsley was elected secretary-treasurer and Herbert Kohn assistant secretary-treasurer.

Humphrey Defends Soviet Exchange; Veterans' Groups Highly Critical

WASHINGTON — Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, Democrat, Minnesota, last fortnight branded as "grossly unfair" the criticism the U.S. film industry has received for the U.S.S.R.-American "cultural exchange" of motion pictures.

"I think Eric Johnston should be commended instead of criticized for his efforts," the Senator said during a panel discussion at the annual meeting of the Institute of International Education at the Mayflower Hotel.

"Instead of having the film industry beaten over the head because it has done something that we ought to have done 10 or 15 years ago, I think the industry ought to be given some kind of medal for its services beyond the call of duty," he said.

That veterans' organizations were opposed to the showing of Soviet made films in this country as part of the U.S.S.R.-U.S.A. film pact or otherwise became apparent.

The mid-winter national conference of officers of the Veterans of Foreign Wars adjourned after authorizing Commander John W. Mahan to consult with his top aides and draft a statement of position on the film exchange agreement. This was expected to be ready in several weeks.

Meanwhile, it was expected that the American Legion's position in the matter would be pronounced at a three-day session of the Legion's National foreign relations commission scheduled for April 2-3-4 here.

The publication staff of the Legion's nationally circulated magazine is currently researching and dissecting the movie exchange deal to gather material on which a full-length discussion in an early edition will be based. The tone and suggestions of the articles are expected to have strong influence on the April action.

Rep. In Black Sans Production

NEW YORK—Herbert J. Yates, president, Republic Pictures, announced last fortnight that the company, which dropped production last year, earned $1,500,000 in the year ended Oct. 26, compared with a net loss of $1,362,000 in fiscal 1957.

For the first three quarters ended July 26, 1958, Republic reported a net of $1,296,065, or 50 cents a share. Final quarter earnings were about $200,000.

In December, Republic declared a 15-cent dividend on common stock payable this month. This is the first payment since a five per cent stock dividend in January, 1956.

The company's income today is from leasing films to TV, renting Hollywood studio space, processing and developing theatrical and TV film, and making molded plastics.

Goldenson Heads Fund Drive

NEW YORK—Leonard H. Goldenson, president of American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, Inc., has accepted appointment as chairman of the advertising, publishing and entertainment section of the New York Red Cross Chapter's 1959 Campaign, it has been announced by Don G. Mitchell, campaign commerce and industry chairman.

Goldenson named Herbert R. Hahn, director of stockholder and public relations for American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, as his deputy for the campaign.

Kansas Attorney General Warns Too Zealous Censors

KANSAS CITY—Attorney General John Anderson last fortnight advised the State Board of Review that its regulations "are too general and the board members have given themselves wide discriminatory powers not provided by law."

He pointed out that the censors may delete obscenity from films, but may not go beyond that point.

Panel Discussions Feature Texas Meet

DALLAS—Two panel discussions will highlight the Texas Drive-In Theatre Owners' Association seventh annual convention on Feb. 16-18 at the Hotel Adolphus.

Devoted to film buying and increasing box office attendance by promotion, outstanding personalities heading these panels will be Brando Doak, Harold "Cuz" Goodman, and Adrian Upchurch.

Doak, with Border Town Theatres, Dallas, has been in the drive-in business for 15 years, and prior to that was with Paramount for several years. The honor of being instrumental in receiving more prints for drive-ins and more advertising assistance and cooperation through film distributors is only one of his achievements.

Upchurch, of Upchurch Booking Service, Dallas, has served the industry for 18 years. He books for 11 theatres throughout Texas and prides himself in booking good, wholesome family entertainment.

Goodman, manager, Denton Road Drive-In, Dallas, has had 25 years radio and show business experience, and has produced, acted, directed, etc. In 1941, he was awarded a commission from the Governor of Iowa as the Good Will Ambassador of the State.

Tim Ferguson, convention chairman, announced he had completed arrangements for hundreds of dollars in door prizes to be given away at the convention. He also announced that George Kerasotes, president, Theatre Owners of America, will be another speaker at the convention.

WB Registers Profit; Stock Options Okayed

WILMINGTON, DEL.—Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and subsidiary companies report for the three months ended Nov. 29, 1958 a net profit of $1,922,000 after providing $650,000 for federal income taxes, compared with a net loss for the corresponding quarter of the prior year of $467,000 after an estimated federal income tax credit of $550,000.

Former Federal Judge Hugh M. Morris presiding at the annual meeting of stockholders, announced that the net profit is equivalent to $1.10 per share.

Net current assets, he said, were $35,929,000 and debt maturing after one year was $5,975,000 at Nov. 29, 1958, compared with $34,736,000 and $6,051,000 respectively at Aug. 31, 1958.

Film rentals, sales, etc., for the three months ended Nov. 29, 1958, were $18,938,000 compared with $15,764,000 in the corresponding period of the prior year.

Two option proposals were ratified with votes of about 70.4 per cent of outstanding shares in favor and 8.6 per cent opposed. Although the option proposals are the subject of litigation in the Court of Chancery, there was no stockholder comment on them at the meeting.

Harold S. Bareford, assistant secretary of the company, reported that Warners is continuing to purchase for motion picture production screen properties based on important books and plays. Two new works of major importance acquired in recent weeks are the Broadway play, "Tall Story," and Erskine Caldwell's novel, "Claudelle Inglish."

Warners' English affiliate, Associated British Pictures Corp., Ltd., he said, "is having a very profitable year from its motion picture theatres and is having extraordinary success from its television operations."

By vote of 1,235,676 in favor, 150,795 opposed, and 33,528 shares present and not voting the stockholders approved new stock options for William T. Orr, vice-president, 10,000 shares at $19; James B. Conkling, vice-president and president of Warner Bros. Records, 10,000 shares at $17.34; and Rodney Erickson, vice-president in charge of TV sales, 10,000 shares at $19.83.

By vote of 1,235,085 in favor, 152,495 opposed, and 32,419 shares present and not voting, the stockholders approved option price reductions cutting the price of 60,000 shares optioned to Jack L. Warner from $29.29 to $22, and cutting to $19 per share the options of Benjamin Kalmenson, 40,000 shares; Herman Starr, vice-president, 15,000 shares; Wolfe Cohen, vice-president, 10,000 shares; and Steve Trilling, vice-president and production manager, 10,000 shares, an increase for him from 5,000 shares.

A stockholder suit is pending in the Court of Chancery seeking an injunction against exercise of the stock options by Warner, Kalmenson, Starr, Cohen, and Trilling, and also seeking to block payment of $1,000 per week until 1963 to Samuel Schneider under an agreement made when he retired in 1957 as vice-president, treasurer, and a director.

The plaintiff in the stockholder action is Mrs. Sara Keyser, of New York.

Loew's Handles "Hercules"

NEW YORK—Joseph E. Levine, president, Embassy Pictures, announced last fortnight that Loew's International will distribute "Hercules" in South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Chile, Puerto Rico, Cuba, and the Dominican Republic.

NT Income Rises During First Quarter

LOS ANGELES—National Theatres, Inc., last week reported a consolidated net income of $362,843 or 13 cents per share for the quarter ended Dec. 30, 1958.

The company's consolidated net income for the comparable period last year was $65,401 or two cents per share.

President John B. Bertero said that net income for the quarter—the first in its current fiscal year—included capital gains, net of federal taxes of $240,000 or nine cents per share, as compared with $179,000 or six cents per share for the comparable quarter of the preceding year.

"During the quarter ended Dec. 31, we terminated our interest in 17 theatres and properties not useful in the business," Bertero reported.

"Unprofitable operating units and those that do not provide an adequate return on investments are being eliminated. When our program is achieved we will have a solid basis for future growth and the development of additional sources of income," he added.

The new National Theatres head, who assumed the company's presidency on Oct. 1, said that "as a result of the overwhelmingly favorable vote" by stockholders, the company expects to be shortly in a position to go ahead with its previously announced exchange offer to acquire a controlling interest in National Telefilm Associates. At a special meeting of stockholders held on Jan. 8, more than 97 percent of the stockholders represented voted in favor of the acquisition offer.

At the same time, Bertero said that the "substantial increase in the production of important pictures during the year" announced by film suppliers "gives us hope that the shortage in supply that has characterized the last few years may be somewhat overcome."

National Theatres currently operates about 300 motion picture theatres in 19 states, and recently acquired television and radio stations WDAF-TV and WDAF in Kansas City.

Para. Profits Steady

NEW YORK—It was revealed last fortnight that the operating profits of Paramount Pictures Corporation last year were a little under the $2.80 per share earned in 1957. Despite this the net for 1958 was understood to be well ahead of the $2-a-year dividend rate.

The first three quarters of last year saw the profit from operations drop to $3,807,000, or $2.11 per share, from the $4,237,000, or $2.13 per share of the corresponding period of 1957.

The Cecil B. DeMille production, "The Ten Commandments," garnered rentals totalling $26,000,000 from rentals in this country and Canada plus $6,000,000 from engagements abroad from the time it bowed in November, 1956.

U-I Clears Dividend Arrears

NEW YORK—The board of directors of Universal Pictures Company, Inc., has declared a dividend of $3.1875 per share on the 4¼ per cent cumulative preferred stock, in full payment of all arrears of dividends on said stock; and in addition has declared a regular quarterly dividend of $1.0625 per share on said stock.

The dividends are payable March 2, to stockholders of record at the close of business on Feb. 16.

Active Status For All ACE Plans Following Nationwide Exhib Okay

IATSE, Employers Agree

HOLLYWOOD—Agreement was reached last fortnight by the 21 Hollywood locals of the IATSE and their principal employer groups, AMPP and NATFP on a new two-year contract.

The agreement calls for a flat 21 cents per hour wage increase with the contracts re-openable to negotiation should the cost of living index of the Bureau of Statistics rise five per cent or more.

The new pacts also provide for improvements in health and welfare plans and an increase in life insurance. Over 15,000 workers are affected by the agreements.

Radio City Names Two

NEW YORK—Fred L. Lunch was named director of advertising and promotion, and Edward Serlin, director of publicity and press relations of Radio City Music Hall last week.

Conn. Legislature Studies Bill To Control Film Ads

HARTFORD, CONN.—The sole measure concerning the film industry thus far introduced into the 1959 state legislature has been assigned to the judiciary committee, which intends to schedule a hearing shortly.

The measure—Senate Bill 44—would impose a ban on objectionable motion picture advertising.

It was introduced by Niantic Democrat Orefice, and would amend the General Statutes (1955), to read:

"No newspaper advertisements of motion picture films, or posters advertising motion pictures that are for display outside theatres, be allowed to contain material made up of pictures or accounts of methods of illicit sex, horror, terror, physical torture, brutality, or be allowed which contains pictures of or partially denuded figures, posed or presented in a manner likely to provoke or arouse lust or passion or be allowed to exploit sex, lust, or perversion for commercial gain."

NEW YORK—The complete program of the American Congress of Exhibitors will be put into active status immediately following meetings of the executive committee and the full committees at the Astor Hotel, Feb. 10 and 11 (yesterday and today), it was announced by S. H. Fabian, ACE chairman. The executive committee will meet Feb. 10 and full committees on Feb. 11.

Stating that attendance at the meetings was . . . "Important to formulate a program to start immediately to affect the entire future of the motion picture industry," Fabian urged attendance of all committee members.

"The fact that meetings of exhibitors have been held in 16 exchange areas with complete approval of the ACE program, without one dissenting vote recorded, indicates to us that we can go forward with our program with the knowledge that we have the complete confidence of exhibitors throughout the country," Fabian stated prior to the sessions.

"Area co-chairmen in parts of the country where meetings have not yet been held have been in touch with ACE headquarters and all have indicated that exhibitors in their areas are enthusiastic about the ACE program. All of these areas will hold local ACE meetings very soon.

"Our mid-February meetings will start ACE rolling along the lines indicated in the organizational committee reports. Whatever is necessary to put these recommendations into action will be done at the forthcoming meetings, other than the parts of our program that have been assigned to COMPO for action," Fabian concluded.

ACE committees and their chairmen are: post-48 films on TV, William Forman, chairman, and Harry Arthur, alternate; toll-TV, George Kerasotes, chairman, and Albert M. Pickus, alternate; producer-exhibitor-distributor relations, Horace Adams, chairman, and Irving Dollinger and Jack Kirsch, alternates; ways and means to increase motion picture production, S. H. Fabian, chairman, and R. J. O'Donnell, alternate; industry-government relations, Sol A. Schwartz, chairman, and Emanuel Frisch, alternate; industry research, Max A. Cohen, chairman, and Harry Brandt, alternate.

All committee chairmen and their alternates comprise the ACE executive committee.

Exhib Sues For First-Run

NEW YORK—An anti-trust suit was filed in U.S. District Court here last fortnight by Independent Theatres, Inc., Chattanooga, Tenn., against AB-PT, Wilby-Kincey Service Corporation, 20th-Fox, Paramount, Warners, Loew's. Universal, and Citation Films.

Trebled damages of $3,100,000 are sought and an injunction restraining an alleged conspiracy and monopoly involving first-run playdates.

SDG Names "Critic Of Year"

NEW YORK — Philip Scheuer, Everywoman's Family Circle film reviewer, has been chosen "Critic of the Year" by the Screen Directors Guild.

The nation-wide award was given "for outstanding writing in the field of motion picture criticism," to the critic "whose reviews during the past year are judged to be the most perceptive and conducive to the betterment of motion pictures."

Censorship Stirs Lively Debate As Flick Answers Clark's Blast

ALBANY—Asserting he had received "Mr. Clark's unsolicited, open letter a day after it had been released to the press," and that it contained "certain distortions of facts," Dr. Hugh M. Flick, ex-director of Motion Picture Division, State Education Department, and present executive assistant to State Commissioner of Education James E. Ellen, Jr., said the MPA vice-president has "done me a great injustice."

Clark wrote Dr. Flick a three-page letter, saying he had been "distressed" to read statements in the press by Flick in support of censorship, film classifications, criticism of industry Codes.

Dr. Flick, who has served in the State Education Department for a quarter of a century, with time out for five years of Army duty during World War II, said he never received a letter from anyone in an important position within the industry that he thought as much of an "affront" as Clark's.

He "could not understand" why Clark wrote the epistle, since there had been no correspondence with him; why Clark should release it to the press "a day before I received it."

Flick added, to inquiring sources, that "Mr. Clark is completely mistaken in saying I have criticized the Production and Advertising Codes. I have constantly and publicly declared my belief that the Production Code has proved of immense benefit to the industry and to the public, although I doubt the latter fully appreciates this. I have never criticized the Advertising Code."

Flick had, on several occasions within the last two years, spoken out against what he thought to be "misrepresentation" in film-advertising. This was not a reflection on the Code.

The educator found "insulting" Clark's reference to "compounding the felony" by supporting censorship.

He said: "I have and am supporting a law enacted by the Legislature, the duly elected representatives of the people, in 1921. And I might add, repeatedly and overwhelmingly reindorsed by the Legislature, despite the efforts of powerful opponents. The U.S. Supreme Court has several times considered cases involving the state licensing statute. It has never held the law to be unconstitutional or illegal."

There is "no deceit" upon the people in film censorship, said Flick. "Operation of the Motion Picture Division is open to any citizen with a legitimate interest."

As an historian and writer of historical articles, Flick underlined that "freedom and regulation are opposite sides of the same coin; they are inseparable. Those who speak of 'freedom of the press' sometimes forget that, for 200 years after the invention of movable type, the printing presses, printers, and the printed word were rigidly controlled. Not until a substantial body of protective legislation had been established, was 'freedom of the press' possible."

Promising a detailed but not a "public" reply to Clark's letter, Dr. Flick said the film classifications plan is his, not the Regents' or the Education Department's. He proposed it in the thought it would offer a more "affirmative" approach to censorship; especially, "would aid parents in determining what their children should and should not see on the screen."

Conventional Theatre Attendance Declines

TORONTO — Regular theatre attendance dropped to an 18-year low in 1957, according to preliminary figures from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. They showed a decline of 10 per cent, while receipts (exclusive of amusement taxes) of 1,716 regular motion picture theatres (1,849 in 1956) were down 5.2 per cent. Drive-in attendance and receipts were up, however, giving some strength to a sagging film picture.

Also up were the combined film rentals from theatres, TV, and other sources.

Regular theatre attendance was reported at 146,855,828, against the previous year's 162,859,006. Patronage of drive-in theatres rose to 9,945,630 from 9,705,983 in 1956, but the year's total was some 20 per cent below peak attendance in 1954 of 12,380,246.

In 1957, 49 film exchange companies operated 130 offices throughout Canada, compared to 53 operating 150 offices in 1956. Receipts rose 1.5 per cent in the year to $37,034,324 from $36,471,942 in the preceding year.

A count on the number of theatres has been made, and it all adds up to 1,808 35 mm. operations. This is broken down into 1,568 four-wall situations and 240 drive-in operations. The figure is down 289 from five years ago, the bulk of which were standard theatres closing. Drive-ins continued to increase.

In 1958, 88 theatres, two of which were drive-ins, closed, while in the same time five standard ones and four drive-ins opened. Although 464 theatres closed in the five years, of which nine were drive-ins, 175 opened in that time—109 standard ones and 66 drive-ins. Although only 289 operations were lost to the industry, the losses in attendance and receipts were much greater proportionately.

Canadian Comment

Cinerama will continue in Montreal and Vancouver with its closing in Toronto at the end of March with the expiration of the lease. The operation in Toronto began in September, 1957, when $120,000 was spent on alterations to the University. The first film, "This Is Cinerama," played for 23 weeks, and the next, "Cinerama Holiday," for 15, after which came "Seven Wonders of the World" for 18 weeks. The present film, "South Seas Adventure," opened Nov. 26. Business has been good, but closure came about because of the lease expiration.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS: Two months after the death of her exhibitor-husband, Mrs. Alberta Dean Summerville, 81, died at her home in Toronto after a long illness. She was the mother of Don and William, both of whom are in the theatre business. The former is also a city controller. Mrs. Summerville was born in Toronto, near Mary Pickford's old home. She devoted much of her time to charitable work. . . . Walter Bennett, 65, veteran manager of the Capitol, Vernon, B.C., was presented with the good citizen award of the town. . . . Ken Soble, owner, Hamilton TV station and radio station, has purchased the Kenmore, Hamilton, from United Amusements. . . . Spence W. Caldwell, Toronto, vice-president, Association of Motion Picture Producers and Laboratories of Canada, succeeded Arthur Chetwynd as president at the annual meeting of the association.

LONDON Observations

by Jock MacGregor

THE 13TH ROYAL FILM PERFORMANCE was an unqualified success—the gayest and most brilliant yet. It was a night of which the industry can well be proud. Not a brick—at least not a noticeable one—was dropped. Everybody was happy. As Her Majesty, the Queen Mother, was escorted to her car at the end of the show by the Empire's manager Albert Sidi, she was obviously delighted with everything and remarked, "I think everyone will enjoy it. Don't you?"

The program consisted of "Horse's Mouth," a French ballet short, "Lovers of the Seine," and the British documentary, "Ten Men and a Boat." All were warmly received. Even the stage show was admirable. It was simple and for once in no way embarrassing. Instead of sketches, etc., Max Bygraves just introduced the stars as they came on the stage, and an excellent line-up it was. Included were Lauren Bacall, Juliette Greco, Simone Signoret, Richard Todd, Peter Sellers, Frankie Vaughan, and Alec Guinness. All joined Maurice Chevalier in singing the chorus of "Louise."

Even the press approved! Of "Horse's Mouth," Donald Zec in the Daily Mirror wrote, ". . . the most adult, inspired laugh provoking picture Royalty have ever been permitted to see." "The first thing to be said about the film chosen for the Royal Film Performance is that it was actually worthy of the occasion," was how Majdalany introduced his review in the Daily Mail. All this I personally found exceptionally satisfying since I had the honor of serving on the selection committee.

Someone who can take a very big bow for the evening is Albert Sidi, who has only been manager of the Empire for a few months and has in fact never even attended a royal premiere before. Arrangements were pleasantly smooth and informal, and for once I came across no strained tempers—for a big night that really is something. Albert, I should add, comes from ABC's Ritz, Warrington, in the tough industrial north, and as one columnist said, learning this, "After dealing with those audiences a 'royal' is just kid's play."

For once, the Royal Film Performance has achieved everything that it set out to do. It raised a neat $70,000 for the Cinema Trade Benevolent Fund and garnered columns and columns of really first rate newspaper publicity for the industry, to say nothing of wonderful radio and TV coverages.

Basil To Be Honored For Civic Endeavors

BUFFALO—Constantine J. Basil, president, Basil Enterprises, Inc., owners and operators of eight community theatres in Buffalo and Niagara Falls, and also president of Lafayette Theatre Building, Inc., owners and operators of Basil's Lafayette and office building in downtown Buffalo, will be tendered a testimonial dinner Feb. 14 in the clubrooms of Tent 7, Variety Club of Buffalo.

The dinner will be in recognition of Basil's many civic and charitable services during his many years in show business and for his recent activities in the Variety Club collection to raise funds for the Children's Rehabilitation Center, sponsored by the Children's Hospital and Crippled Children's Guild and the Variety Club.

"Gus," as he is affectionately named by members of the industry, will be presented a citation at the dinner by Mayor Frank Sedita, in recognition of his efforts.

Basil was born in Stenimachos, Eastern Rumelia. This country later was annexed by Bulgaria. He attended grammar and high school in his native country, where he also served as a telegrapher and quartermaster in the Bulgarian Army from 1911 to 1913.

In 1915, he came to America and operated a confectionery business until 1923. It was in 1923 that he and his brothers entered the theatre business by opening the Clinton-Strand. During the ensuing years, the circuit increased to 15 community houses in Buffalo and the Falls.

Following the death of Nicholas Basil, "Gus" assumed the senior leadership of the circuit. With him now are Basil J. Basil, vice-president, and Theophilos J. Basil, secretary and treasurer. "Gus" has been active in Variety for many years. He is a past chief barker of Tent 7. He is also a member of the Ad Club, Shriners, Lions, Ahepha, Elks, Motion Picture Pioneers, and other organizations.

Basil is an avid film fan. When he built his apartment over the Colvin some years ago, he installed a partition of glass. By pushing a button, doors open and the Colvin screen is viewed from his living room.

"Gus" is married to Marica from his home town. They have two daughters, Helen, wife of Dr. Theodore Alexander of Safford, Ariz., and Bessie, wife of Paul Kay of Hollywood, Cal. There also are six grandchildren. "Gus" at present divides his time between California, Arizona, and Florida, where he has a home in Miami.

Al Anscombe, radio station WINE, is chairman of the dinner committee.

Para. Consolidates Studios

HOLLYWOOD—Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president and studio head of Paramount Pictures, announced last week that hereafter operations of the Paramount Sunset lot will be consolidated with the Paramount Marathon Street Studio, so that there would be available a complete integrated service to independent theatrical and television motion picture producers regardless of their distribution affiliation.

Store Aids "Diary" Sales

NEW YORK—The RKO Palace will have a 10-performances-a-week schedule on 20th-Fox's "The Diary Of Anne Frank" following the world premiere March 17, it was announced last week.

Reserved seat tickets will be sold through facilities of Bonwit Teller's charge account system.

The NEW YORK Scene

By Mel Konecoff

DAVID A. LIPTON, vice-president in charge of advertising, publicity, and exploitation at Universal, last week announced at a press conference that his company and its executives are more convinced than ever of the necessity for pre-selling pictures to the movie-going public. These days, pre-selling should practically be considered part and parcel of the negative cost, especially since fewer pictures must return more revenue in a period of reduced production.

Said he, if producers aren't prepared to back their negatives with pre-selling, they are making a mistake. While it won't make a picture that doesn't have the potential, it will certainly help many that do. Research and experience have shown that the public knows what it wants only after it has been stimulated by pre-selling via printed media. No pre-selling is complete without paid advertising. He noted that no other business develops a product at a high cost and then neglects to plug and sell the product.

Opined Lipton, the full potential of even the bigger pictures is not realized if it is not pre-sold. He praised the producers of "South Pacific" who spent $277,000 in magazine advertising despite the fame of the property. The result has been high returns.

He labeled magazines and newspaper supplements as the best media for pre-selling, preferring these to TV and radio which are mostly local in scope. Billboards are strictly seasonal. He deplored the decline in national magazine advertising since 1956 when over four million was spent by all of the companies. 1957 saw a 25 per cent drop to $3,100,000, while 1958 saw the industry spend less than two million or another 25 per cent drop. As a result, the public was not stimulated or informed about forthcoming pictures, and the results were felt at boxoffices.

In these days of late print deliveries, when a film is delivered just in time for theatre openings. Lipton felt that it was particularly advantageous to start pre-selling as soon as a film is announced ready for production. In line with that thinking, the U-I advertising budget will be higher this year than 1958 even though fewer pictures are represented. For instance, 35 per cent more will be spent to plug "Imitation of Life" than was spent on "Magnificent Obsession," with 40 per cent more to be spent in the national magazines. This will mean a readership of over 100 million, Lipton said.

Life and Look will be used for general audiences; women will be appealed to in McCall's and Good Housekeeping; Redbook is for young adults; Seventeen is for younger women; Parents Magazine is for the family; Scholastic, Teen, and Dig are for the teenagers; True Confessions and True Story are for you know who; Ebony and Tan will encompass the Negro market; and the fan magazines are to stimulate the moviegoing audiences even further. In addition, of course, backing this up will be all avenues of publicity and promotion as well as local point-of-sale advertising via newspapers, radio and TV.

Lipton announced, too, that advertising in trade papers would be expanded so that exhibitors as well as press subscribers would be kept informed and stimulated with regard to forthcoming Universal pictures. He opined that the industry has an obligation to support the trade papers that do a constructive job.

All of the aforementioned is based on the belief that interest in motion pictures is greater than ever and that the potential market is bigger than ever. Research has found more people considering going to pictures than ever before, but these have not been clinched by pre-selling. It has been proven that they are willing to leave their homes and their TV sets to see a good film. Lipton deplored a lack of collective thinking by the industry as regards the necessity of advertising in the various media.

PRODUCTION: Columbia executives Paul Lazarus, Jr., and Rube Jackter hosted a press luncheon recently for producer William Goetz and producer-director Charles Vidor in the company's executive dining room, where the pair related some facts concerning Goetz's most recent production, "They Came To Cordura" as well as their next joint venture, "The Franz Liszt Story," much of which is to be shot abroad with English actor Dirk Bogarde in the lead role.

Lazarus noted that "Cordura" is the most expensive film Columbia has made to date, costing over $4,500,000. He estimated it would have to bring in 11 million before the break-even point is reached. It stars Gary Cooper, Rita Hayworth, Van Heflin, Tab Hunter, and others, and was shot mostly on location in Utah.

Company officials have not as yet decided whether roadshow distribution will be attempted. This decision will be forthcoming when the final version is viewed by company toppers come March or April. The story, incidentally, deals with General Pershing's campaign against Villa and is a study of some of the characters involved, with lots of suspense and action. It was directed by Robert Rossen.

What comment had Vidor and Goetz about the high cost of talent? They felt it should be a matter of individual negotiation and that some of the individual, independent producers were doing something about it. They refrained from paying the high asking prices.

Goetz has a six picture deal with Columbia which includes "Me And The Colonel," "They Came To Cordura," "The Franz Liszt Story," also known as "The Magic Flame," "Mountain Road" with James Stewart, which will go in June, and "The Dragons," plus an untitled property. Vidor has an eight picture deal over a six year period, the first two of which will be "The Story of Barbara Woodcock" and "The Beach Boys."

Also present were Jonas Rosenfeld, Robert Ferguson, Hortense Schorr, etc.

THE METROPOLITAN SCENE: 20th Century Fox's Alex Harrison reported to us that after seeing a rough cut of "The Diary of Anne Frank" at the studio, "We have one of the outstanding boxoffice attractions of all time" . . . Maria Schell was to receive an award from several German language newspapers at the Little Carnegie for being "the most outstanding actress of 1958." It so happens her "Sins of Rose Bernd" is at the same theatre. . . . Fifty members of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in town to attend the annual meetings of the society were to inspect the stage lighting at Radio City.

New, modern-type doors and french-style windows have been installed by Farley Estate in Allied Artists' branch, and the adjoining Farley offices (formerly Republic exchange). The Max Westebbe Exchange, specializing in foreign products and occupying part of the old RKO setup, also has been given new door treatment. . . . Edgar S. Van Olinda, critic and columnist for Times-Union, flew to Buffalo for a press conference with Linda Cristal, of "The Perfect Furlough" cast. . . . Film Rowers speculated on the significance of Kallet Theatres' withdrawal from the operation of two small-town houses and reported willingness to dispose of several similar situations, as well as the circuit's sale of the highly profitable WKTV (television) in Utica, N. Y. The latter was said to be awaiting approval by Federal Communications Commission. Several months ago, the Kallet organization pulled out of the Galli Curci, Margaretville, N. Y., after long-time operation; local interests took it over. A similar situation developed at Avon in Canastota, N. Y. Dark since last May, the house was recently relighted under local management. Kallet temporarily continued buying and booking it. One theatre on the Southern Tier and two in the Champlain Valley reportedly are up for switch. Kallets leased all five, it is understood. . . . Variety Club Chief Barker Samuel E. Rosenblatt and his older brother, Fred, announced plans for construction of a seven-story office building on the L-shaped site of the old Grand, which Fabian Theatres demolished two years ago and converted into a parking lot. The Rosenblatts recently bought the plot from Fabian and plan to retain the parking arrangement.

ATLANTA

Mack Grimes, Bailey Theatre Circuit executive, was passing cigars to welcome a new son. . . . The committee for the annual Drive-in Theatre Association meeting is hard at work making up the agenda. The affair is at the Hotel Bradford on Feb. 17. Julian Rifkin, chairman for the meeting, and his committee of Edward W. Lider, Henry Gaudet, Mel Safner, and Norman Glassman have decided to put on an informal meeting with the exchange of fresh ideas on business builders and the airing of all drive-in problems. There will be no panel of formal speakers; instead, the meeting will be thrown open for the benefit of all participants. Carl Goldman, executive director of IENE, is the coordinator, and reservations should be made through the office of Independent Exhibitors, Inc., of New England, 38 Melrose Street.

NEW HAMPSHIRE NEWS—Scenic, Pittsfield, recently showed its first CinemaScope presentation. . . . State and Strand, Manchester, have inaugurated a Golden Age Movie Club extending an admission price of only 30 cents matinees and 50 cents evenings to patrons 62 years of age or over. Membership cards are given upon application at the box office. . . . The Tilton in that town has been sold by Mrs. John Bruno to Teodor Soczewinski of Franklin, who came to this country from Poland as a displaced person seven years ago. Michael Bruno, former manager, is assisting the new owner at present. . . . Memorial and Pineland in the Wolfboro area are promoting a family plan of admitting mother, father, and all school age children on two adult tickets. . . . The Winston-Salem Drive-In at Winston-Salem, N. C., has been named defendant in a $50,000 suit filed in Forsyth County Superior Court by Bessie Cox Hutchins, who alleges that she fell on a ramp which had been made slippery by application of oil or some oily substance, and broke her right wrist, losing 50 per cent use of her hand as a consequence. She says P. G. McGee, operator of the drive-in, who also is named defendant, was negligent in allowing the condition to exist. . . . Standard Amusement Co., Inc., of Greensboro, N. C., was awarded $3,000 by a Guilford County Superior Court jury at Greensboro from Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Tarkington, the verdict being the full amount the plaintiffs claimed the couple owed as rent on the Gay at Gibsonville, N. C. At the same time the court non-suited a cross-action in which the Tarkingtons, residents of Edgecombe County, N. C., asked that Wayne Theatres Inc., of Charlotte, and Max Zager and Max Zager Enterprises of Greensboro be named additional defendants to the suit. About the time of the jury award, Standard Amusement Company filed another suit against the Tarkingtons asking collection of back rent of $7,221.42.

Tom Dowd, Capri manager, moved his Central Film Distributors to the Theatre Building to facilitate operations. . . . The Aron, Chesterton, Ind., has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bauer from Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Cooper, who had operated it for 31 years.

CINCINNATI

Following the announcement by Gov. Michael DiSalle that he favored abolition of state capital punishment, Bernard Youngstein, UA's publicity department, quickly arranged a screening of "I Want to Live" for the Governor and other state officials in Columbus, O. Youngstein was enroute here to set up promotions of "I Want to Live" and for "The Last Mile," due for early release in this area. . . . Also in were Joe Gins, NTA assistant general manager; Lee Greenfield, Disney eastern assistant division manager, with Ted Levy, district manager. . . . Mrs. Charles Wolfson, retiring president, Ladies Auxiliary, Tent 3, presented heart awards to nine prominent local women at a recent luncheon in Metropole Hotel clubrooms. . . . Building housing Herman Hunt's Norwood, suburban Norwood, O., has been sold for other business purposes. Hunt also operates the Plaza, Norwood, and two Todd-AO houses in Columbus and Dayton, O. . . . Sam Weiss, formerly with 20th-Fox, and lately in Cleveland for 20th-Fox and Columbia, has returned as U-I salesman in Columbus and Dayton territories. . . . Paul Allen is new student booker and William Carlson is assistant shipper for 20th-Fox. . . . Jim Cotterman, with RKO for 17 years, has bought the Federation, Dayton, O. from Jim Herb. . . . Joseph Alexander, RKO city manager here, who was recently appointed RKO Ohio division manager, will supervise nine RKO houses in Columbus, Dayton, and Cincinnati. He is first assistant chief barker, Tent 3, Variety Club. . . . David Schrieber, U-I head shipper, was elected president of IATSE, local B-37, succeeding Laura Finney, 20th-Fox head inspectress. . . . Harry K. McWilliams, who has been appointed promotion and publicity coordinator for 1959 Academy Awards telecast, was publicity director for Cincinnati Summer Opera for 13 years, and recently associated with Rank Films in promotion of "A Night To Remember" and with 20th-Fox's "Roots of Heaven." . . . With three Fridays falling on the 13th this year, Realart and other exchanges with a backlog of spook films heavily booked them widely for February date, and have numerous advance orders for the other two. . . . Two busloads of employees and their wives from Rasor Airfield, Brookville, O., viewed "South Seas Adventure" at Capitol.

CLEVELAND

Leon Enken, president, Robins Amusement Company of Warren O., is showing his confidence in the business future of Warren in a practical manner. He has started a $50,000 improvement project on the Robins Theatre Building. This including modernizing all of the stores in the building, and also the theatre front. . . . Cleveland exhibitors are going to see what they can do to stop radio and TV stations from broadcasting unofficial bad weather warnings and urging people to stay at home. If possible, they will bring this to the attention of the Federation Communications Commission. . . . Speaking louder than words to express optimism for the future of the motion picture industry, Leonard Mishkind and S. P. Gorrel, heads of General Theatres Circuit of Cleveland, announce they have acquired two more theatres, bringing their operation to a total of 13 houses. The newly acquired theatres are the 450-seat Montpelier, Montpelier, O., which was leased from owner George Foley, and the Hub Drive-In, Bryan, O., leased from Daco Corp. It is the first ozoner to come under the General Theatres banner. . . . Sale of the Warner Building, 2300 Payne Ave. to Albert Levin and associates of Cleveland, became effective on Jan. 15. The change in ownership has not, as of this time, affected the location of the Warner exchange. It has, however, affected the space occupied by the exchange, which is now about half as big as it formerly was. . . . Sam Weiss, who came to Cleveland from Cincinnati as a member of the 20th-Fox sales staff, returned to Cincy to join the Universal branch there in a sales capacity. . . . Another one of the older neighborhood movie houses, the 900-seat Jewel, is disappearing from the local theatre roster. It closes Feb. 4 to be converted into a parking lot. The theatre has been operated by James Kalafat. . . . Earl Childs has resigned as branch manager of the ABC Vending Company automatic division. . . . John Matthey is building the first new indoor theatre in this area within at least five years. It is located in Amherst, O., and will be called the Amherst, same as the one he now operates under lease but which will shortly be converted to other use by the owner. . . . George Goodman, 20th-Fox salesman, has resigned effective Feb. 23, to return to his home base, New York City.

DALLAS

Phil Isley, newly elected chief barker of Dallas Variety Tent 17, said the membership is considering a return to its former quarters in Hotel Adolphus. The club rooms are on the ninth floor and may switch back to the former location on the seventh floor. Isley said he is campaigning for a plan which would make membership in the club more attractive for "the young executive group." A special membership fee of $30 a year would be offered as an inducement. Reaction has been favorable. . . . Jerry Brewster has joined the staff of Warner Bros. film exchange as a booker. He was formerly with Texas Theatre Service and Jefferson Amusement Company. . . . Andy Sisk has resigned his post with Jefferson Amusement Company, and is now a booker with Paramount. . . . Dallas will be one of the six cities to "test show" the new Yul Brynner-Deborah Kerr film, "The Journey," on Feb. 19. The film will be shown at the Palace. Houston is also included in the test showings by MGM. . . . Van Heflin was in to talk about his newest starring picture, Paramount's "Tempest." . . . James (Maverick) Garner will spend Feb. 16 in Dallas to promote "Up Periscope," which has a showing date of Feb. 26 but no local theatre assignment as yet.

DES MOINES

The Amusu, Fonda, Ia., was destroyed by a fire which hit the business area of the community. Merle Stauter owned the theatre. . . . A large number of the cast of "The Music Man" attended a portion of the Variety club inaugural ball at which Woodrow R. Praught was installed as chief barker. Among the guests from the show were Forrest Tucker and Joan Weldon, the leading players. The show played eight dates in Des Moines, setting an all time attendance record at the KRNT auditorium. . . . The Esquire, Davenport, Ia., has finally closed with William B. Haver, city manager for Tri-States Theatres, announcing future plans are indefinite. The house had been scheduled to close in late 1957 but continued until the latest action. . . . Ken Weldon, former manager for Republic exchange, has been appointed mid-states distributor for Hollywood Television Service. He will maintain headquarters at Winterset, Ia. . . . Leo Wolcott, board chairman of Iowa-Nebraska Allied, in a bulletin to the members declared that current selling methods are completely out of line with present trade conditions, and unless abandoned by the distributors for more realistic sales policies, they will undermine the very structure upon which their own welfare depends. Wolcott said the small exhibitor's problem today is the lack of proper merchandise, with the movie-going public becoming more and more selective and a steady diet of run-of-the-mill pictures no longer attracting customers to the boxoffice. . . . The Coliseum, Lamoni, Ia., has been changed to the Collegian in line with a suggestion by the Chamber of Commerce that a change in name might be helpful to business.

DETROIT

A proposal, which in its present form is not being received too enthusiastically by downtown movie houses, is for them to purchase and give away with tickets 30 cent stamps. These stamps when pasted by patrons on parking lot tickets will be good for their face value. Movie objection is that while vendors can afford to give away a small proportion on items costing from five to hundreds of dollars, in some cases this would mean the exhibitor giving away 50 per cent of admission price. Said to be successfully working in 27 other cities, the proponents of the plan here is a group calling itself the Washington Boulevard Committee. Theatre-men are going to make the Committee a counter-proposal. It will be that the stamps have dual value; instead of giving them away at box-offices they will be accepted at their value there as well as at parking lots. . . . Dick Warsaw, who for 39 years has been traffic manager for Film Truck Service, has resigned. One of the best-liked personalities on Film Row, he will be missed as he moves to Chicago to join the Koerner Motor Express organization. . . Clark Theatre Service has advised managers, bookers, salesmen, and cashiers of the following: The East Side has closed with no announcement as to reopening; the Senate reopened Jan. 21 under ownership of former exhibitor George Wise; the Cozy (Decatur, Mich.) will be handled by Clark, all transactions back to Dec. 31 to be retroactive. . . An old landmark may vanish. The Gaiety, home of movies and burlesque for nearly half a century, may be replaced by a two-tier bus terminal for the city-owned Detroit Street Railways. It was proposed to the City of Detroit Common Council that the house and adjacent property be condemned for the purpose, a civic improvement project.

HOUSTON

Mayor Lewis Cutrer, Houston, has proclaimed the week of Jan. 19 through 25 as "Motion Picture Week in Houston." Conservatively estimated, more than 200,000 persons attend Houston's movie theatres every week. The proclamation was issued as a salute to theatres for providing good entertainment through the years, for their public service, and for bringing gaiety and glamour to the city. . . Tina Louise was in to publicize her latest, Paramount's "The Trap." . . The fall and rehabilitation of a Houston juvenile delinquent is being watched by the recording eye of a French movie camera. It will join with an Iowa county fair, a hobo convention, a California twin contest, a soap box derby, the New Orleans Mardi Gras, and scenes on a U.S. aircraft carrier as a documentary record of American life to be shown to French movie audiences next summer.

JACKSONVILLE

Walter Powell, local 20th-Fox salesman for many years, has resigned from the industry to work for a drug firm. . . Here at the 20th-Fox branch was C. A. Hill, New York, head of the firm's exchanges. . . Laura Kenny, United Artists has been named chairman of the WOMPI national convention to be held here next September. . . Edna Cox, NTE, is the new WOMPI vice-president. . . The Atlantic and Main Street drive-ins have a new policy of "first outdoor showings" for several major film attractions which would normally have their first outdoor run on the twin screens of Loew's Normandy. . . The Hotel Robert Meyer, now under construction here, will be the scene of the WOMPI national convention next September, announced Laura Kenny, convention chairman. . . FBI agents and St. Petersburg police have captured the armed bandit who robbed the local St. Johns nearly a year ago. . . Dana Stiers is a new staffer at U-I. . . A new restaurant has been added to Bob Cannon's theatrical property in Live Oak. . . Leo Witchen, owner, Ritz, has embarked on a tour of Europe. . . It is reported that Mike Meiselman will return here soon from North Carolina to resume management of his father's Town and Country. . . Here with Thomas P. Tidwell, 20th-Fox branch manager, was Paul Wilson, district manager from Atlanta. . . A change in location was reported in store for the Allied Artists branch from Forsyth Street to 331 East Bay Street.

MIAMI, FLA., NEWS—Victor Levine was elected by the Crew of Variety Club to be the chief barker for 1959. He will succeed Luther Evans. Levine, a club member for 10 years, will have Carl Gardner as his first assistant, with Sammy Walsh serving as second assistant. Robert Green once again will serve as dough guy. Abe Gurevitz was named property master.

MEMPHIS

Joe Keifer, Malco chain, advises that the Skyvue Drive-In, Jonesboro, Ark., is on week-end operation only, and Wilmot, Wilmot, Ark., reopened Feb. 1 on a Sunday only basis. . . . J. L. Wilson is now the owner of New, Sparkman, Ark. . . . Mrs. J. Henley Smith is operating the Folly, Marks, Miss. . . . Ernest C. Hughes is running the Fran, Tishomingo, Miss. . . . L. E. Jackson advises the Erin, Erin, Tenn., has been closed. . . . K. C. Crowley, manager, Bemis YM.C.A. Theatre, Bemis, Tenn., advises this house closed Feb. 1. . . . M. L. Shepard has closed the Ferguson, Ferguson, Ark. . . . Mrs. Howard Bolts is the new chairman of the Ladies of Variety, Memphis Tent, for 1959. She was appointed by Ed Doherty, chief barker, who along with the appointment announced that the Tent's hospital has been renamed Variety Heart Institute. The scope of the hospital is widened, with all types of children's heart ailments being the concern of the group where research and clinical help are needed. Previously, the operation was only for children convalescing from rheumatic fever.

MINNEAPOLIS

Walter Dahlund is reopening the former Crosby, Crosby, N. D., as the Dakota. . . . Two bills providing for the continuation of daylight saving time in Minnesota have been introduced in the state legislature. One bill, providing for daylight saving time statewide, was introduced by Rep. Alfred E. Otto of St. Paul. Rep. Otto also introduced another bill permitting cities of the first class (Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Duluth) to go on daylight saving time. Another bill introduced by Rep. George Murk of Minneapolis would prohibit pay television. Daylight time is being fought vigorously by exhibitors, led by North Central Allied and the Northwest Exhibitors Business Building Forum. . . . Razing of the 4,000-seat Radio City to make way for a public parking lot has begun. Midwest Radio-Television, Inc., parent firm of WCCO radio and television, acquired the 31-year-old theatre and adjoining studio building from Minnesota Amusement Company last August. All but the lobby will be razed. The lobby eventually may be remodeled to house the station's radio studios. Razing will be completed late in March. . . . The new fifth floor addition to the Variety Heart hospital on the University of Minnesota campus was dedicated at a dinner. Joseph M. Podoloff, chief barker, Variety Club of the Northwest, presented a heart-shaped key ring to J. L. Morrill, university president. The new "Arthur W. Anderson floor," named for a former chief barker (and now the branch manager of Warners, Minneapolis), will be devoted to research in heart ailments. . . . John MacPherson is the new booker at Buena Vista. He formerly was a booker for Universal here and in Milwaukee. . . . Max Rosenblatt, DCA district manager, was in from Des Moines.

NEW ORLEANS

The Cox, Pierre Part, La., closed for several months, resumed operation. . . . Catherine Bonneval, executive secretary, Allied Theatre Owners of Gulf States, celebrates three special occasions this month: her birthday, the birthday of her grandson, and her wedding anniversary. . . . The 51 and Varia Drive-Ins, Jackson, Miss., the Rivoli Drive-In, Vicksburg, Miss.; and the Ann Drive-In, Leland, Miss., closed indefinitely. . . . Joel Bluestone, who acquired the Gretna Greens Drive-In, Gretna, La., by lease, closed it for remodeling and renovations. . . . Starlight Drive-In, Canton, Miss., closed until summer.

PHILADELPHIA

Melvin J. Fox was named chairman of the motion picture division for the 1959 membership enrollment of the Philadelphia Fellowship Commission. . . . Variety Club Tent 13 held a 66th birthday party in honor of Jimmy Durante. Co-chairmen for the event were Jack Drucker and Hal Marshal. . . . John Cook was elected president of the Reading, Pa., local of the IATSE Projectionists' union for 1959. . . . Milgram Booking Service is now handling the Broadway, Palmyra, N. J., and the Roxy, Maple Shade, N. J. . . . Charles Rothermel, manager for the past nine years, said the closing of the Strand, Carlisle, Pa., was due partly to a slump in business and to facilitate sale of the theatre currently owned by Meco Realty Corporation. . . . Universal held a regional sales meeting here.

PORTLAND

Sale of the Liberty theatre building to the Bank of California by John Hamrick Theaters was announced here by Will J. Conner, president of the circuit operating in Seattle and Tacoma. Conner said the circuit is planning a "new style, modern-type, de luxe theatre" for downtown Portland. Since negotiations are under way, he would not reveal the location of the proposed house here. The theatre site, reported purchased by Hamrick interests from the Bank of California for $1,000,000 in 1951, has now been repurchased by the bank for "substantially less than that amount," sources close to the deal said. The bank for the next few years plans to use the 100 by 200-foot site as a parking lot, and "ultimately expects to construct a modern banking building with drive-in facilities," according to Rogers W. Kimberling, vice-president and Portland manager.

ST. LOUIS

"South Seas Adventure," the sixth in the series of Cinerama attractions, will conclude its engagement at the Ambassador on Feb. 23. The sub-lease will expire at that time and since no other Cinerama attractions are in production, the theatre will again be taken over by Arthur Enterprises, Inc. . . . Marge Murphy, Universal booker, retired after more than 30 years with that company. She was succeeded by Nick Miscuraca, assistant shipper at the exchange for the past several years. . . . The world premiere of United Artists' locally made "Great St. Louis Bank Robbery" was held at Loew's Orpheum. . . . The ACE story was told to local exhibitors at a luncheon at the Forest Park Hotel by Edward B. Arthur, general manager, Arthur Enterprises, who is chairman of the ACE committee for the territory. . . . The Star, 16 South Jefferson Street, for many years a first run house for Negroes, closed because the Mill Creek rehabilitation project had caused practically all the theatre's usual patrons to leave the vicinity. . . . The Rowe, St. James, Mo., closed with future operational plans indefinite. . . . Elizabeth M. Rapp, assistant cashier for Columbia for the past two years and prior to that associated with RKO for some 25 years, died at St. John's Hospital. . . . The Palace, Johnston City, Ill., reopened after being dark for some time. . . . The Scott, Golconda, Ill., has had its name changed to the Circle.

SAN ANTONIO

Jack Chalman, city publicity director for Interstate Theatre Circuit, has calmed down those stomach ulcers and is back at his office. He was sidelined for three weeks. . . . Sporting a new aluminum facade, with complete interior remodeling and painting, the New Empire is now open as a Class-A theatre, it was announced by M. C. Otwell, the new owner. The theatre boasts all new seating, CinemaScope screen, and, as Otwell phrased it, "As fine or finer equipment and fixtures as any theatre in San Antonio." Walter Pitts, manager, has announced that "everything from top to bottom has been thoroughly renovated, and proper maintenance will be constantly observed."

THE SELMIX
Regent

- Styled in detail by world-famous designer Clare Hodgman.
- Precision-molded of handsome, durable plastic.
- Constructed with a new steel-structured base featuring a plastic wrap-around . . . does not rust, corrode, or show abrasions. Easy to clean, retains color for life.
- Result of 10 years of engineering research.
- Built with a continuous-flow valve that gives you a uniformly mixed glass or cup of Coca-Cola, drink after drink, in any size.
- Featuring, as optional equipment, a new float-valve assembly that automatically "cuts in" reserve syrup tanks when needed . . . no interruption in service during peak sales periods.

This magnificent new money-maker insures your quality and guards your profit on the most asked-for soft drink you sell — Coca-Cola. See your favorite wholesaler (or the representative for Coca-Cola who calls on you) for the profitable details on the new Selmix Regent dispenser.

ONLY ONE PROJECTION LAMP

*of many models and types
is ideal for you*

Strong manufactures the only complete line . . . lamps with many exclusive features. We will, without obligation to buy, demonstrate in your theatre the ones best for YOU.

Strong's Exclusive Lightronic System automatically maintains the correct arc gap length and the position of the positive crater at the EXACT focal point of the reflector. Evenly distributed screen light of constant intensity, and unchanging color is maintained without manual adjustments.

THE JETARC ~ Most Powerful Projection Arc Lamps Ever!

Proved throughout America against all makes of lamps. Employs a totally different system—a three dimensional, cylindrically shaped light source. Delivers up to 65,000 lumens with wide apertures—double the light of any 16½" reflector lamp and 51% more light than any lamp using an f 1.7/f 1.8 lens.

Projects all film widths by any process without changing the mirror. 21-inch cold type reflector—the largest ever employed—is an integral part of the rear door. Aperture spot size is changed by a convenient control of the position of the main reflector. The burner position need never be changed.

A 10 mm x 25" non-rotating Ultrex positive and rotating 7/16" x 12" solid Graphite negative burn at 140 to 160 amperes and 70 to 78 volts. A 10 mm x 25" Hitex positive may be burned at 125 to 140 amperes.

Brings indoor theatre quality projection to the largest drive-in screens.

U-H-1

Exclusive Beam Shaper Lens on 13.6 mm Trim Lamp Patterns the Normally Round Spot to the Size and Shape of the Aperture so as to Efficiently Utilize all Useful Light.

Burning a 13.6 mm carbon trim, the optical speed is equivalent to f 1.5 with f 1.5/1.6 lenses and projectors cleared for f 1.5. Light loss due to shadowing by feed mechanism is minimized. Exclusive built-in exhaust system permits use of the "cold" reflectors. 50% of the heat energy passes through the mirror instead of being reflected to the aperture. Separate Bodine gear head motors with self-enclosed gear reduction for each carbon drive. Another exclusive.

SUPER "135"

Burns a choice of four carbon trims, 10 mm Hitex carbons at 135 amperes, 9, 10 or 11 mm regular carbons at 120 amperes. 18" f 1.7 or 16" f 1.9 reflector.

The Super "135" and U-H-1 accommodate a 20-inch carbon trim. Five exclusive features: (1) Arc stabilization by its own magnetic field (no magnets required) and air jet which also prevents deposit of soot on the air-cooled mirror. (2) Mirror is integrated with rear lamphouse door which swings completely out of the way to facilitate retrimming and permit easy cleaning of the reflector and lamphouse. (3) The entire burner assembly can be shifted for easy spot focusing without disturbing the relative carbon positions or arc equilibrium. (4) Single control eliminates guesswork in matching the speeds of the two carbon feeds. (5) Unitized component design permits quick attainment of correct light for any projection technique. Single control amperage selection.

Whither The Drive-In?

It has been evident for a long time that outdoor theatres are growing, not only as an institution, but also in size. There has been considerable activity in expanding existing drive-ins to accommodate more cars, either by adding more ramps or, where possible, by building an entirely new theatre on an adjacent property as a "twin" to the original. At the same time, the trend in new drive-ins clearly has been to very large theatres—1,000 cars and upwards.

Also obvious is the fact that drive-ins have ceased to be a medium of screen entertainment exclusively. Playgrounds, miniature golf, shuffleboard, swimming pools, and many other recreational facilities are common, if not essential, to most of them, to say nothing of first class fast food service.

In reviewing the remarkable outdoor theatre developments of this decade, it behooves us all to give much constructive thought to "whither the drive-in?" To begin with, one's ideas about tomorrow's theatre must not be limited by today's standard. Already, the public has seen imaginative drawings of drive-ins covered by a retractable roof, a device which would, of course, make the ozoner weather-proof. This is just one example of the kind of imagination that is required to keep us from standing still. But it is up to the exhibitor to set the pace, because no designer or manufacturer can provide new devices for a non-existent market.

Ideas? The woods are full of them. Already, some drive-in operators are enlarging their food facilities into full-scale restaurants which could make the theatre profitable up to 24 hours a day. Midget auto activities for children have hardly had a chance to prove their potential. Wireless speakers, more powerful arc lamps, and many other recent developments open a vast new field for the reshaping of our thinking about what the drive-in can be, where it can be, and how large it can be. Motels, even hotels, are being put up as an integral part of the theatre, providing overnight guests with entertainment from rooms overlooking the screen tower and also with easy access to good food in the nearby concession building—something many of the country's finest motels lack. Inevitably, the more the drive-in offers, the greater its revenue.

A real showman, with thought and effort, can make almost anything of his drive-in today, and there are no visible boundaries to the future of outdoor theatres. Perhaps that is why they are out in the open, with only the sky and the stars for a ceiling.

A CHECKLIST FOR DRIVE-INS:

Before Reopening,

What IMPROVEMENTS Can Be Made?

APART from the standard technical and practical procedures to be followed in re-opening the drive-in theatre for the season, or in overhauling the outdoor theatre that is operating all year for the better weather, there are other facets to be taken into consideration.

The drive-in operator, as the spring approaches, should look carefully about him, prepared to make any improvements possible to the physical plant, not only for the benefit of his patrons, but also in the interest of increasing his revenue in every way possible. Working into the theatre from the roadside, we can examine a few details which all too frequently are taken for granted and can stand improvement.

Roadside Advertising

If the drive-in lacks proper roadside advertising, its importance is not to be underestimated. The most effective form of roadside advertising not only tells the motorist that he is approaching a drive-in theatre, but also what the theatre's current, even future, attractions are. Such advertising should be eye-catching, of course, and should be far enough away from the entrance to give the motorist sufficient time to turn into the theatre if he chooses. Large signs, and well illuminated signs, can be closer to the entrance than small, dark signs.

Where roadside advertising already exists, its effectiveness should be measured against its past pulling power and should be improved as required. Its physical condition should be noted and painting, repair, or other service undertaken as necessary.

Traffic Approaches

What about the traffic approaches to the drive-in? Are there local road deficiencies which should be taken up with authorities in an effort to improve traffic conditions outside the theatre? For instance, if a motorist approaching the drive-in on the side of the road opposite the entrance wants to turn in, are there arrangements to facilitate such a left turn? Or do traffic conditions tend to deny him admission?

Also, is your holdout area adequate? Often, especially when a theatre has been enlarged, the original holdout area is not large enough to accommodate all waiting customers. If ever a potential customer has been lost for this reason, now is the time to undertake expansion in this critical area.

Entry and exit surfaces get the heaviest traffic of any part of the drive-in. Their condition should be checked in both wet and dry weather to determine whether they require re-grading, filling-in of holes, or other repairs. The same program must be carried out to ensure good surfaces on the ramps and other parking areas.

Screen Tower

After checking the condition of the screen tower structure, scraping and painting may be in order, especially where there has been rusting. Applying only the best materials for this renovation will pay for itself in the long run. The adequacy of the screen tower for wide screen product should be gauged, and if there is any doubt that the screen cannot reflect the best possible picture, it is poor economy to postpone reconstruction. Especially the drive-in which has expanded in width is likely to have unfavorable viewing angles from extreme sides.

In all probability, a new screen surface will be needed each season. Many new paints and surfacing materials are on the market now which were not available a few years ago and, through careful consideration, the one best suited to the screen, and to the climate with which it must contend, should be selected.

Paint

At the same time, the paint condition of the outside and inside walls of all structures on the premises should be examined and re-

A CHALLENGE FROM AUSTRALIA

THE METRO GATESHEAD'S speaker posts are painted barbershop red-and-white for easy recognition in the darkness. The curved screen, 115 by 50 feet, is raked downward and designed to withstand hurricane force winds. The projection booth, below, features much equipment manufactured by Westrex

THE MGM circuit in Australia was expanded recently with the opening of the new £360,000 Metro Gateshead Drive-In. The site, within eight miles of the steel city of Newcastle, amid typical bush surroundings, is serviced by main highways from Newcastle and lakeside areas.

The 700-car theatre was constructed and opened within 13 weeks of the time the initial bulldozer was put into action. Exceptional teamwork between construction crews, electricians, engineers and other technicians made this possible.

The huge curved screen, measuring 115-feet by 50 feet, is constructed of fibro cement sheeting attached to timber and mounted on steel towering; it is raked downward to reflect maximum light to the audience. The whole screen structure was designed to withstand gale force winds of 120 mph.

Equipment

Westrex Australia was entrusted with the installation of all of the sound and projection equipment. The field speakers used are the Australian-made Westrex AE326 type, containing speaker units enclosed in alkathene envelopes to eliminate dust and moisture penetration. They are attractively finished in two-tone grey baked hammertone, each speaker has its own volume control, and is fitted with a seven foot nine inch straight white plastic cable to the appropriate junction box. The two inch diameter pipe speaker post is painted a bright, barber-pole red and white for attractiveness and easy recognition during screen times. Speaker units are easily replaced in case of failure by removing three screws in the housing. The unit is not bolted in position, but held under pressure between the two casting housings and a rubber pressure block.

The main amplifying equipment consists of six Westrex AE293 75 watt amplifiers

Wagner alone offers frames and glass units which can be built in ONE panel without limitation of size and can be serviced without removing frames. That's because they're stronger and can be installed before the glass is put in position. Elimination of maintenance costs necessary with frames comprised of many small signs joined together soon pays for a Wagner display. The exclusive tapered slotting of Wagner Letters causes them to "lock" on the mounting bar. They are immovable by wind or vibration, yet they're the easiest to change. They cannot "freeze" to the sign as do those which employ channel mounting. Of all plastic letters, only Wagner's can be stacked in storage without danger of warping.

They employ no spring lock clips which lose their tension, cause unsightly scratches, and necessitate mounting so far from the face of the sign as to cause shadows which by daytime frequently make the entire sign unreadable. The non-reflecting surface of Wagner letters presents no annoying glare to render them unreadable. 5 sizes and 5 gorgeous colors permit most effective displays.

Wagner also offers slotted aluminum letters in the widest range of sizes, styles, colors and finishes. Wagner Letters can be changed quickly and without the use of ladders. A "mechanical hand" facilitates the servicing of high panels, avoids falls.

Traffic Paint

A tough new traffic paint said to provide brilliant, long-lasting traffic markings on asphalt, macadam, concrete, cobblestone, and tarred road surfaces common to theatre and drive-in areas has been introduced by the Consolidated Chemical and Paint Manufacturing Co., Inc. Tests reveal the new enamel provides markings comparable in brilliance to costly beaded traffic paints and, at the same time, affords far greater resistance to wear and abrasion, it is said.

New "Jet-Dri" has been tested for road wear and driver visibility. Applications reveal the product retains its high lustre and bright color under consistently heavy traffic conditions. Unlike conventional traffic paints which require complicated bead mixing procedures, new Jet-Dri is applied in one operation, affording substantial cost and time savings. Because it dries in minutes, truck and auto tires leave no imprint on Jet-Dri surfaces.

With a tough, extremely wear-resistant finish, Jet-Dri surfaces resist gasoline, oil, alcohol, most acids, alkalies, and boiling water. Extremely weather proof, the new product is thinned with ordinary mineral spirits.

Equipped with all-weather seals of high-temperature silicone rubber to help protect against vibration, pole-whip or shock, the new Bell Holders are reported to be especially effective for the wide range of failure-prone installations in outdoor theatre areas. Additional features are an advanced "shield" design that completely eliminates back and side halo-light and pre-aiming quadrant that permits on-the-ground focusing.

The complete precision cast aluminum line includes floodlights for medium and mogul base reflector lamps up to 500-watts as well as a special heavy-duty vaportight unit that offers premium service advantages to users of medium base lamps. The new Bell Holders can be used singly or grouped in clusters for wide area floodlighting when combined with any of the variety of accessory fittings available for pole-top, mid-pole, wall or cross-arm mounting.

CENTURY ENTERS 70MM FIELD

The Century Projector Corporation announced at the end of last month the manufacture of the first American-made 70mm-35mm projection and sound reproducing equipment, which will be made available to motion picture theatre owners in this country exclusively through the John P. Filbert Company of Los Angeles.

According to Larry Davee, vice-president of Century, this equipment is the result of a number of years experimentation and research in the design and production of special film devices, including several models of wide film projector. Quality tests indicate that the type of projection, as specified by the standards of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, regarding picture steadiness, has been obtained.

Mr. Davee stated that the equipment is being produced to be interchangeable with standard American-made equipment, and that the optical center coincides with the standard American optical center of 35mm optical center film.

fore has introduced a sectional, aluminum portable frame which, by replacing sections of various lengths, fits every screen size available.

The sectional frame is said to be a complete departure from rigid, nonportable frames. The Trans-Lux unit is designed to meet all requirements for satisfactory support for large translucent or front projection screens of any material. The newly developed elastic tension strap and hook unit can be adjusted to fit any grommet spacings and a screen can be hooked into place in a few minutes. They are completely self-centering and no threading or lacing is required, it is said.

Proper Equipment and Correct Sales Approach Can Make Beverages One of the Most Popular and Profitable Concession Stand Items

In the booming business that theatre concessions have become in recent years, nothing plays a bigger part than "the beverage." Recent surveys of the industry show that the vast majority of theatres handle beverages for the enjoyment of customers and the increase of their profit statements. Some conventional houses feature elaborate dispensing sections as a part of the refreshment stand operation; some rely on automatic vending machines; many have both. At the drive-in theatre, the beverage service at the snack stand is frequently supplemented by push-cart service at the window of the automobile.

Growth and Profit

How has this situation come about? In the years before World War II, refreshment services in the average American theatre was limited largely to vending equipment which served cigarettes and candy bars; plus popcorn machines handled with the left-hand by ticket-takers. The public and the alert exhibitor have changed all that. In other words, the theatre-going public wants refreshment with its entertainment. In locations where the exhibitor has reacted aggressively to this demand for additional service, the rewards have been rich indeed.

Following closely on the heels of popcorn in customer preference at the refreshment stand come cold drinks. (Hot drinks—coffee, hot chocolate, etc.—are beginning to make very substantial inroads on the beverage business, particularly in the cooler sections of the country.)

More than 80 per cent of circuit indoor houses and over 60 per cent of independent operations now sell beverages. Outdoors, the booming beverage business is a rule, with almost 100 per cent of the theatres making drinks available to their customers.

Cola drinks are by far the most popular beverage offered, appearing as a featured item in more than 50 per cent of all theatres, indoor and out. Root beer is offered in one-third of the houses, and is second favorite. Fruit-flavored carbonated beverages appeal to roughly one-fifth of the customers, and after these come still-water fruit beverages, milk drinks and frozen fruit concentrates.

Equipment Important

As indicated earlier, the basic beverage business is done at the refreshment stand, both in the conventional theatre and the drive-in. The multiple-drink cup machine, (which dispenses a cola drink, a carbonated fruit drink and a still-water drink, for example), is the most popular unit for the average indoor house, and is likely to be found in secondary locations throughout the theatre as well as tied-in with the snack stand. At the larger stand, and in increasing numbers of drive-in operations, the self-contained unit which handles several drinks is becoming the accepted norm. Some of the larger plants feature complete soda fountains.

By using a dispenser, the refreshment stand operator gains uniform quality in the drink he serves. He gets away from the necessity for drawing from more than one tap, and he avoids the danger of flatness in the drink from over-stirring. He combines his service operation in one handsome, practical piece of equipment that even the newest employee can operate perfectly. He simplifies his dispensing operation, speeds up service, and, of course, increases his profit. Where it is not practical to use a single-drink dispenser, the multiple-beverage unit is capable of a good job, and of delivering quality drinks.

Two Trends

It goes without saying that quality equipment should be used for the dispensing of all beverages. Such equipment is usually easy to clean and maintain, and comes complete with manufacturer's instructions. They should be studied and followed closely by refreshment stand personnel.

Two trends within the beverage department of the concession operation have gained prominence within the past couple of years, and are worthy of extra mention. One is the definite move in the direction of larger unit sales (the 10, 15, 25, 30-cent cup) and the other is the increasing demand for thoroughly refrigerated beverages.

Many exhibitors report that even when placed in direct competition with smaller-priced cups, the larger drinks now appeal more to the public and result in heavier sales. This trend has brought along its own peculiar problems (such as quality-control) but should be watched.

The demand for refrigeration, on the other hand, is an old story given a compelling new twist. Beverage manufacturers have for many years urged that their products be served at 40 degrees, or colder, for maximum enjoyment, but consumer preference has now given added impetus to the message. In one recent year, operators reported gains in beverage business from 20 to 50 per cent after they started putting ice in their cups. Originally made to be enjoyed ice-cold, a beverage obviously becomes more desirable when

THE DRIVE-IN CONVENTION

The sixth National Allied Drive-In Convention in Pittsburgh's Penn-Sheraton Hotel last fortnight was highlighted by a successful and well-attended trade show. Forty of the industry's most prominent manufacturers and suppliers exhibited a wide range of outdoor theatre equipment, new and standard, over a period of three days.

Exhibits

Among the new drive-in equipment were a car heating and air conditioning system, reviewed elsewhere in this issue; miniature golf course set-ups; a six-sheet poster board; and a shadow box type of screen which permits an earlier starting time. Architect Jack Vogel unveiled a design for a unique drive-in theatre. Concession stand equipment and supplies formed an important part of the exhibits.

Entertainment Plus

Once again, leading companies entertained convention-goers royally. The generously sponsored festivity program commenced with a luncheon hosted by the Berlo Vending Company, followed later by a gala Night Club Dinner Party in the New Arena Supper Club, sponsored by Pepsi-Cola Company. On the latter occasion, entertainment included a floor show and dancing. The next day, American International Pictures' president James H. Nicholson sponsored another luncheon. In the evening, the National Carbon Company welcomed conventioners to a Cocktail Party, which was followed by the Motion Picture Industry Banquet, hosted by The Coca-Cola Company. Phil Spitalny and his orchestra provided entertainment for the Coca-Cola guests. Variety Club, Tent One, offered open house from noon until two a.m. throughout the convention.

The contribution of those companies offering elaborate hospitality during the convention cannot be overstated. It is their cooperation which make a hard working business meeting also one of pleasure, and one to be remembered.—THE EDITOR

Pepsi puts Profit into any Picture

Wherever people go for fun, they look for Pepsi-Cola. Pepsi's syrup sales are up 292% since 1950, and Pepsi's price advantage has enabled leading theatre owners to make extra profit from the trend.

Get the picture? More demand, more sales, more income—as Pepsi offers more profit per drink. Get the facts and figures today from your local Pepsi-Cola Bottler or write to: National Accounts and Syrup Sales Department, Pepsi-Cola Company, 3 West 57th Street, New York 19, N.Y.

The Nehi Story

• This is the first of a series of articles which will appear periodically in EXTRA PROFITS, aimed at keeping the theatre refreshment stand operator up-to-date on beverage merchandising angles and abreast of the display materials, tie-ins, and other advantages offered by the leading manufacturers in the soft drink field. An individual manufacturer will be called upon to contribute the data for each story.

THE NEHI CORPORATION, because of a distribution system of more than 450 bottling plants in the United States, is in a position to offer theatres greater and faster service on the local level, an important consideration in maintaining inventories and equipment in first class condition. This local service provides numerous benefits and savings, such as fresher products, no breakage in shipment, no freight costs on shipments, reduced inventories, and all products available from one supplier.

The local Nehi bottling plant will participate, in most areas, in the theatre's screen advertising to the extent of one dollar for each case of Nehi products (Nehi, Royal Crown Cola, and Party-T-Pak beverages) purchased. Each case contains four gallons. This means that the theatre makes money on the sale of beverages in two methods: to the consumer, and screen advertising. Also, many Nehi bottling plants are participating with theatres in kiddie shows and other promotions.

Nehi products costs less, it is said, than other products of comparable quality because no freight rates are included in the price. The Nehi products either are manufactured at the local level or delivered to bottling plants on the company's own trucks.

Profit Margin High

Nehi assures the theatre owner or refreshment stand operator of a profit 80 per cent or better on a 10 cent beverage. Soft drinks, as such a high profit item, must be given prime consideration in theatre merchandising.

Also, many Nehi bottling plants are in a position to furnish Co₂ gas at a reduced cost due to having converters in their plants, or a good source of supply. Many of these plants have trained personnel, as well, to assist in the servicing of equipment.

TIE-IN display materials also are available from Nehi to promote the company's beverages. The well-marked waste disposal unit is another plus factor in Nehi merchandising.

Four Purchase Methods

Nehi offers four methods to theatremen for the purchase of their equipment:

1. Cash—The actual cost of the equipment plus freight, which would be f.o.b. manufacturer.
2. Rental—In any theatre that will use a minimum of 200 gallons of syrup annually, Nehi will rent and maintain equipment at the price of 50 cents per gallon plus the regular syrup price.
3. Override—If the theatreman wishes to own the equipment, Nehi charges one dollar per gallon override plus the regular price of the syrup until the equipment is amortized, based on an agreement with the theatre that the unit is amortized in 24 months.
4. Combination Syrup and Dispenser—This is a deal charging list price for the equipment. Nehi will give the theatre enough syrup to ensure that when syrup is sold it will bring in more than enough money to pay for the dispenser.

These methods have been developed by the Nehi Corporation to put theatres in the beverage business at a minimum cost.

LIQUID ASSETS

it is served ice-cold. And ice in the cup retains the coldness in the drink until it is consumed.

Merchandising

Proper merchandising of beverages also stands to increase their sale at the refreshment stand. Many of the larger suppliers furnish, free of charge, elaborate promotional material running from film intermission trailers to display pieces to reminder signs. Attendants add a great deal to the promotion of certain items by suggesting them to customers. And, in many instances, simple placement of beverage dispensing equipment in close proximity to hot dog grill or popcorn machine increases the sale of both items.

Stock and Storage

Many operators order and take delivery of beverage syrups in large quantities on the theory that slight savings thus effected make the practice desirable. This is definitely not the case. Beverage syrups should be bought a week's supply at a time, on the same day every week. Like other food products, syrups should be protected against the natural hazards of heat and storage. For that reason, and to insure top quality drinks at all times, a week's purchase at a time is highly desirable.

When delivered to the theatre, beverage syrups should be stored in a clean, dry place away from hot-water pipes, steam lines, etc. It is recommended that syrup bearing the oldest date of manufacture be placed to the front of the storage bins or shelves, so that it will be used first. In this way, freshness of the syrup and of the drink dispensed to the customer is guaranteed.

The Profit Story

Properly stocked, properly stored, properly priced, and properly promoted, "the beverage" plays an important part in the financial life of the exhibitor. His patrons have proven on past performance that they want refreshment with their entertainment. The average theatre in the United States does more than 500 gallons of business a year at the beverage counter. Figured on the rate of return given him by one leading manufacturer, the profit from beverages alone comes to $2,000 a year for the operator!

If he sticks to top-quality products—products nationally advertised, nationally known, nationally preferred—the job of turning stock into profit becomes a simple one for the theatre man with money on his mind.

Rowe Sales Force

NEW YORK—As part of its program of providing widest possible sales and service coverage for independent vending operators, Rowe Manufacturing Company has announced the addition of six salesmen to its nationwide field force, plus three non-exclusive distributors in the west and southwest to supply supplementary on-the-spot service to operators.

Appointment of the distributors was a "special-situation departure" from Rowe's basic sales policy "which has been, and remains, that of direct sales to operators," according to sales vice-president Charles H. Brinkmann, and was designed to insure that operators in the particular areas would have year-around coverage. Regular Rowe field men will continue to call on operators in these areas, he stated.

NEHI'S POINT-OF-PURCHASE display material is eye-catching and effective, as demonstrated by the various materials used at this indoor theatre refreshment stand, at the Royal, Columbus, Ga.

For drive-in theatres handling a large volume of food orders, Hotpoint has developed a giant griddle six feet long, which is capable of producing more than 2,000 hamburgers per hour. The grid surface measures six feet by two feet and features eight cooking areas, each independently controlled by its own thermostat. Each of the eight areas may be used alone, or in any combination of individually selected temperatures; or, the entire grid may be operated at the same overall, edge-to-edge temperature.

A new low-priced infra-red broiler, the Roto-Red Model J222, has been introduced by Arrow Engineering Company, Inc. Described as simple to operate, any unskilled operator need only place meat on the upper rack, buns on the lower rack. One revolution of the racks and the meat is broiled, the buns toasted. Capacity is over 300 eight-

ROTO-RED BROILER

Clark Industries' new Junior Electric Broiler, suitable for smaller theatres, will broil from one to six hamburgers every 2½ minutes without grease, smoke, or fumes, it is said, with the result that it can be adapted also to indoor theatre food preparation.

The unit is described as the only "closed drawer" sanitary dispenser which has been specially developed for commercial food outlets such as concession stands. The broiler cooks all kinds of meat, as well as chicken and fish. Its dimensions are 14½ inches wide, 13 inches deep, and 16 inches high, including a full-color flashing sign on top. It operates on 115 volts.

CLARK JUNIOR BROILER

to-the-pound hamburgers per hour.

Sixteen different cooking speeds are provided to handle different types and thicknesses of meat. The broiler is suitable also for preparing hot dogs, cheese dogs, chops, small steaks, pre-baked pizza, and many other fast food items. The infra-red elements reach full heat in less than two seconds, eliminating the need for running the broiler when it is not in actual use. It operates on 220 volt, single phase current.

The Roto-Red J22 is small and compact: dimensions are 21½ inches wide, 26 inches deep, and 27 inches high. The stainless steel inner and outer casings are insulated with two-inch thick marinite to maintain cool outside operating temperatures.

NAC Meet Features A Four Point Program

LAS VEGAS—Four leading topics for discussion at the National Association of Concessionaires Western Regional Conference here this week were announced. The meeting, being held in the Riviera Hotel, was slated to take up "Crowd Getting Ideas for Theatres"; "Better Merchandising Equals More Profits"; "The Pitchman's Forum"; and "Let's Talk Shop." Harold F. Chesler, NAC first vice-president, is general chairman.

Among the speakers are Lee Koken, NAC board chairman, and president Philip L. Lowe, the latter leading a discussion of better merchandising methods for theatres and other recreation enterprises. Una R. Wood, a nutritionist of the American Institute of Baking, was to present a "Modern Sandwich-Making Clinic," at which she planned to demonstrate how to make beef-tacos, jumbo pizzis, cheese-ham rolls, roast beef-hot cole slaw, and other sandwich combinations.

Next week, NAC will convene a Southwestern Regional Conference in the Adolphus Hotel, Dallas, concurrent with the seventh annual convention of the Texas Drive-In Theatre Owners Association.

Union News Joins NAC

The Union News Company, operating company of the American News, has joined the National Association of Concessionaires, according to a joint announcement by NAC president Philip L. Lowe and first vice-president and membership chairman Harold F. Chesler.

Henry Garfinkle, president in charge of all diversified operations for Union News stated, "Union News plans to take advantage of the facilities and services NAC has to offer in the fast growing and ever expanding concession field; we will have representatives attend all NAC regional meetings and the national convention, where the free inter-exchange of ideas and mutual problems will be beneficial to them, as it is to all NAC members."

Bigger "Milk Shake" Bar

In response to a growing demand, especially from the theatre trade, Hollywood Brands, Inc., has come up with a "really big" candy bar in the form of a 15 cent Milk Shake.

This new item is said to be of the same taste and consistency as the improved five and 10 cent Milk Shake bars, with a center of malted milk nougat, caramel topping, and a rich milk coating. "It's truly a king-size bar," according to F. A. Martoccio, Hollywood president, "near one-quarter pound in weight, and practically a full meal."

New Clark Bar

A "Big Jumbo" 15-cent Clark Bar has been placed on the market in theatres and concessions throughout the country, according to Paul A. Tegel, sales manager of D. L. Clark Company. Production of the larger Clark Bar, Tegel said, is in answer to the growing demand for 15-cent bars in the concession and vending trades.

The new bar will be shipped in 80-count cases only. No plans have yet been made for making 15-cent Zag Nut, Mint, or Coconut Bars, Tegel said.

CLARK MINIATURES

Package Modifications Afford Better Profits

Package modifications intended to afford theatre concessions with the necessary profit margin are in progress on the entire line of candies manufactured by the D. L. Clark Company. To date, special prepriced packages for four confections have been developed and are in distribution. The special package line includes polyethylene bags of Peanut Blossom Kisses and Banana, Wild Cherry and Black Jack Caramels and two box items, Clark Bar Miniatures (shown above) and French Rolls.

Package sizes are slightly different than standard, according to Paul A. Tegel, Clark sales manager. Size, plus prepricing, Tegel says, allows concessionaires the profit margin with which they are accustomed to working. Other Clark candies in the line include Clark, Zag Nut, Mint and Coconut bars, Chocolate Chips, Zag Nut Miniatures, Mint Appetizers and Coconut Frosties.

Antique Steamer Heads For Drive-Ins

THE Miniature Train Division of Allan Herschell Company, Inc., has announced the addition of the new "1865" steam-type locomotive to its line. The new unit is designed to complement the modern one-fifth scale diesel type G-16 adult size miniature trains that have proven popular in drive-in theatres and elsewhere.

Although the "1865" locomotive features the big flaring smokestack, pointed cowcatcher, outsize engineer's cab, and bright brass trim, the motive power is the same reliable Wisconsin 26HP gasoline engine that has powered the Herschell diesel type G-16 miniature trains for many years. The 1½ ton locomotive and tender closely follow the design of the famous Baltimore and Ohio locomotive "William Mason" and the authentic and colorful paint and trim reflect the romance of Frontier Days.

The locomotive stands just over five feet in height, more than three feet in width, and is designed to operate on 14, 15, or 16 inch gauge railbed. The coaches seat two persons side by side; each coach has a capacity of 12 adults. Several coaches may be attached to each locomotive.

National Carbon Offers Bulletins To Managers

Enthusiastic reception of "National" Projector Carbon Bulletins has spread from motion picture projection booths to the front office, and theatre managers are using the handy reference work to keep closely in touch with developments in the important business of providing the best in screen light, the National Carbon Company reports.

When the series of loose-leaf bulletins was introduced last year, it was intended primarily to help projectionists keep pace with technical advances in their profession. Reports from around the country indicate that the series has become very popular with projectionists, and many say it is "the most useful information of its kind ever published."

"The word has spread," according to J. W. Cosby, arc carbon sales manager for National Carbon, "and we have had many requests from theatre managers to be put on the mailing list for copies of the Bulletin. We're now printing copies in sufficient numbers to be able to take care of these additional requests, and are more than happy to make the Projector Carbon Bulletin available to theatre management as well as projectionists."

A copy of each Bulletin as it is published, together with copies of back issues and a three-ring binder in which to keep them, are available from National Carbon Company, attention of Mr. C. G. Ollinger, 535 Fifth Avenue, New York 17.

Popscar Award Planned

The Selection Committee for the Popscar Award met in the offices of Popcorn Village, Tenn., recently to work out preliminary plans for polling concessionaires and theatres for their nominations for the film star whose picture sold the most popcorn in 1958.

Popcorn Village has been sponsoring the Popscar Award for many years. Among film star winners of this award in previous years are Roy Rogers, Abbott and Costello, and Elvis Presley.

All people in the industry are requested to mail nominations to the Concessions Committee, Popcorn Village, Nashville, Tennessee.

New Popcorn Box

Blevins Popcorn Company has announced what is described as an innovation in popcorn cartons. Its crowning feature is a quick lock that snaps into place. This is said to be the first box so designed that a squeeze and a flick does the trick both top and bottom. Another innovation is the bulging sides. It has the appearance of bulging with popcorn without crushing the kernels, and affords the same gross profits as a standard size box. It is available in 1½ and 1¾ ounce sizes.

PLAYGROUNDS ARE A MUST

By CHARLES CUMMINGS

American Playground Device Company

It has become an axiom that you'll always find a children's playground at the successful drive-in theatre. As soon as swings, slides, merry-go-rounds, and other playground devices have been installed, operators have noticed a marked increase in the take at the gate and at the concession stand. And, incidentally, the playground is just as popular with parents as children, because it gives them a chance to relax while the young ones are occupied.

From the operating standpoint, the playground has several advantages. It encourages the family to come earlier to the drive-in, distributing the flow of traffic more evenly and relieving the congestion that often occurs shortly before the screen program starts. Of course, the outdoor exercise thus afforded the children is certain to develop healthy appetites for food and beverages.

Increased Concession Sales

For instance, one drive-in general manager has reported that his concession revenues are slightly more than 50 per cent of the gate, attributing the figure, several per cent higher than before installing a playground, to children's better appetites.

Since it is conceded generally that the playground is a requisite for the successful drive-in, the important question follows, How much should be invested in this facility and what type of equipment should be installed?

It may be a surprise to some theatremen to learn that an impressive playground can be equipped for the 450 to 600 car drive-in for less than $700. This will buy sturdy, well-built swings, a steel slide, see-saws, a sizeable merry-go-round and several other specialized devices. This is not the flimsy equipment often seen in home backyards, but standard, durable apparatus such as that which withstands years of use and abuse in public parks and playgrounds.

Safety Factor

Safety of the equipment is a prime factor to consider. It is a matter not only of extra strength built into every piece of equipment, but also of design. The American Playground Device Company designs its units carefully, to avoid protruding nuts and bolts, hazardous surfaces, and anything else that might cause injury to children.

Safe equipment is, of course, just as important to the buyer as to the manufacturer. The best way to be secure is to select the products of a manufacturer who has a reputation for high quality, extra durable devices. This does not mean paying premium prices, as a comparison of prices and equipment will reveal. On the other hand, buying on a price basis alone is false economy. It is possible to get the highest grade equipment at a reasonable competitive cost.

American Equipment

To meet the climbing urge of children, American offers the Castle Walk and the Castle Tower, both engineered to stimulate the child's imagination while he is getting the

A Second Hot Food Item For Indoor Theatres Sells To Patrons Looking For The Different

New Coke Promotion

The Coca-Cola Company has planned a big spring promotion which can be expected to benefit theatre outlets for Coke by focusing renewed attention on this leading beverage.

During April, Coca-Cola advertising in major consumer magazines will feature spreads on a "Cook's Cruise," linking Coke with menu items from foreign lands, for which recipes are given.

Cretors Sales Up

NASHVILLE, TENN.—H. E. Chrisman, vice-president in charge of sales for the Cretors Popcorn Machines, reports that sales for the last four months of 1958 were 34 per cent ahead of the same period of the preceeding year, and the largest for many years. According to Chrisman, this increase was due to the replacement of old machines and popcorn warmers.

Chrisman noted that many theatre owners and concession operators have realized the importance of dressing up their concessions area to create more impulse buying.

"MANY indoor theatres sell hot dogs," writes Ed Farmer, manager of the Ayers Theatre, Corpus Christi, Tex., "but many patrons cannot or will not eat hot dogs." For houses already serving hot dogs, Farmer recommends the new Smithfield "Coney-Q" which is now being merchandized aggressively in five conventional theatres in his area, the Center, Ritz, Port, and Grand, in addition to his own house.

Especially those houses which recognize a patron demand for hot sandwiches in addition to hot dogs, but lack the space to keep and heat two kinds of hot products, should find the Coney-Q an interesting addition, Farmer feels. The Coney-Q is a hot barbecue served on a hot dog bun, but has various advantages over an ordinary barbecue sandwich in that it is easy and fast to prepare, Farmer says. It can be served in a hot dog sleeve or napkin and is not messy or drippy, making it ideal for indoor operations.

"We have used the Smithfield Coney-Q successfully for three months now and although it is a very good seller, it has not decreased the sale of hot dogs; instead, it has been a source of extra revenue and profit," Farmer states.

benefit of exercise. These units are so designed that all hazards of rough surfaces and "U" bolts are eliminated. These devices have gained wide acceptance among drive-in operators.

Also, there is the heavy duty merry-go-round, another favorite with youngsters. Like the rest of the American line, it is built to withstand harder use than it ever would be required to take. American's distinctive feature is the safety enclosure platform, which keeps the child from slipping down inside while the unit is in motion. There are, of course, such additional projects as all steel slides, wave stride units, and see-saws.

American finds its most popular single device to be the Combination Unit, which leads the field by a wide margin. This unit includes a new, extra heavy duty, all steel wave chute slide, two see-saws, and four swings. They are mounted on frames of steel pipe, locked by malleable fittings, and hot-dip galvanized for rust proofing.

Picnicking Facilities

Picnicking facilities also are being provided by drive-ins to induce families to come early and enjoy an outdoor meal. American's heavy-duty picnic table is ruggedly built with all steel frames and tested steel pipe, locked together by heavy malleable certified fittings. The table is eight feet long and accommodates 12 persons. Park benches also may be placed conveniently in the playground area for the parents to watch children at play.

"Shadow Box" Screen

The El Mag Screen System, developed by the Tweedy Screen Corporation, makes it possible for drive-in exhibitors, especially those in daylight saving time areas or those located in the extreme portion of a time zone, to advance program starting times up to one hour. The device also reduces bothersome outside lighting and affords a sharper picture, while eliminating shiny rainspots, saving costly repainting jobs, and is practical anywhere except where the screen faces west.

The El Mag System is a combination of shadow box, electro-magnetic, and hydraulic principles. Inexpensive to operate, it uses electricity and water from existing facilities, and can be installed by job-site methods, with all drawings, specifications, and engineering data furnished by Tweedy.

Acrylic Paint

Keeping Florida's drive-in screens white is a difficult maintenance job. Subtropical sunshine, salt air, drenching rains, and fast-growing mildew provide toughest exposure conditions in U. S. for outdoor operators. Introduction of acrylic latex for masonry paints a few years ago provided the first satisfactory answer to the problem.

Some 520 paint companies are now producing acrylic paints based on tough, weather-resistant resin related to acrylic plastic Plexiglas. Nearly all of southern Florida's big outdoor screens have been coated with acrylic paint since 1954.

Spector and Sons, Miami paint contractors, solved exposure problem on this 45 by 90 foot screen with one coat of white acrylic latex paint. Located at Miami's Turnpike Drive-In, the tower consists of reinforced concrete conventional size screen with wings of asbestos board on sides. Acrylic paint was applied four years ago, and the screen still maintains uniform whiteness on both asbestos board and concrete.

TESMA Board Meets, Names Knighton Mgr.

NEW YORK—Following a meeting of the board of directors of the Theatre Equipment and Supply Manufacturers Association here recently, Thomas E. LaVezzi, president, announced the completion of special arrangements with Wilfred L. Knighton for the general management of TESMA.

Knighton has had 30 years of experience in public relations and association and trade show management, and he is managing director of the Annual National Photographic Show, which he established in 1946. He has been identified with the photographic industry since 1928, serving as liaison between dealer groups and their supply sources. His wide experience is expected to benefit the industry generally and especially in maintaining excellent relations with all other industry organizations, such as Theatre Equipment Dealers Association (TEDA); Theatre Owners Of America (TOA); Allied States Association; and National Association of Concessionaires (NAC). The new management will maintain a full time staff at the TESMA offices, 1475 Broadway, New York, with Seymour Serber, executive assistant to Knighton, in charge.

LaVezzi also announced that TESMA advocates emphatically the immediate formation of an over-all Motion Picture Industry Committee of Executives, consisting of one senior member of the Board of Directors of every association and organization serving the industry from the producer to the exhibitor. This committee could make a careful study and attempt to solve or correct some of the problems which confront the industry such as the recent report of the Motion Picture Research Council, which indicated a need for improved projection techniques, and other shortcomings in the operation of many motion picture theatres throughout the country. This committee could also give powerful support to the ever-growing demands from the rank and file to merge the various and many trade exhibits into one large annual motion picture industry trade show, LaVezzi said.

LaVezzi announced the appointment to the 1959 TESMA Convention and Exhibit Planning Committee of Lee Jones, Neumade Products Corporation, chairman; Larry Davee, Century Projector Corporation; and V. J. Nolan, National Carbon Company. This committee is charged with the responsibility of planning the date, cooperating with other industry organizations and completing all necessary arrangements for the forthcoming convention and future trade shows. Speaking for the directors of TESMA, LaVezzi expressed the hope for early unification of all factors within the industry, making the single Annual Industry Trade Show a reality in the near future.

New Process Demonstrated

ROLLA, MO. — A number of theatre owners and exchange managers from St. Louis came here recently to witness a demonstration at the Rollamo Theatre of a new projection process that provides a picture with effects similar to those attained through the CinemaScope process.

The new method, worked out by Rowe E. Carney, Jr., in cooperation with Tom Smith, requires only a single camera for shooting and one projector for putting the picture on the screen. The demonstration was reported to have impressed greatly those in attendance.

housed in two AE299 cabinets. Another cabinet, the AE324, physically the same size as the AE299, houses the ramp sound distribution monitoring and emergency switching panels, together with a double exciter lamp supply in case of emergency. A radio tuner also is incorporated in the cabinet to supply a signal source for speaker testing during the day-time. System power output is 450 watts, which will allow expansion of over 200 cars at a later date.

Emergency Facilities

A unique feature of the Westrex system are the emergency switching facilities applicable to power amplifiers and speaker ramps. In the event of failure of any one amplifier, the ramp, which is amplifier supplied, can be switched to any of the other five amplifiers without appreciable drop in level.

Projection and arc equipment is considered the world's finest. Century CCW Special Curved Gate water cooled drive-in projectors are used, which allow a light speed of fl.6 to be attained when used with the Ashcraft Super Cinex water-cooled arc lamps. The 165 amps arc current is supplied by Westrex Australian-designed multi phase 180 amp rectifiers. These rectifiers are fitted with "on load" tapping switches allowing the projectionist to vary arc current while the unit is in operation. Three Westrex 12/180R rectifiers are used, one for each machine. The third serves the dual purpose of a supply for a biunal slide machine and an emergency switching for either of the previously mentioned.

Screen illumination results on this large screen are comparable with fine indoor theatres.

SMPTE Names Execs

NEW YORK—The Board of Governors of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers has named G. Carleton Hunt, General Film Laboratories, financial vice-president of the organization. Hunt will complete the unexpired term of SMPTE executive vice-president J. W. Servies, National Theatre Supply Company.

Also named to fill an unexpired term was S. P. Solow, Consolidated Film Industries, who replaces Reid H. Ray, Reid H. Ray Film Industries, as treasurer. Ray is now convention vice-president.

Barbara D. Skeeter, a former newspaper editor, has replaced Wallace Shapiro as director of public relations for SMPTE, it was announced further by the headquarters here.

United Artists To Release H-H-L Panavision Production

Hecht-Hill-Lancaster will be the first independent film company to use the new Panavision 35mm anamorphic process when the large budgeted outdoor drama, "The Unforgiven," for United Artists release, is completed in Mexico.

The distortion-free process will be supported by Panavision's recently developed ultra speed Panatar lenses, which require a minimum of arc lights for night and interior color photography. Eastman Color will be used for the release, which is being produced by James Hill and directed by John Huston. Franz Planer will handle the lensing.

UNIQUE DRIVE-IN HEATER

A combination heating and air conditioning unit for individual cars signals a new era for the nation's drive-in theatres, according to BTU Industries, Inc., the manufacturer.

The new system, developed by Jet-Heet of Englewood, N.J., uses forced, filtered air from a small-diameter flexible duct to heat or cool a parked car. This is the first time that such a system has been applied to the drive-in theatre car, although it has been used successfully for several years in homes across the nation.

The heart of the heating system is the Jet-Heet furnace that is now being used in Operation "Deep Freeze" in Antarctica by the United States Navy. The Navy ordered 100 of these furnaces to take care of most of the heating needs at the South Pole. Reports from Antarctica noted that these furnaces performed efficiently at 102 degrees below zero, the lowest outdoor temperature ever recorded at ground level. For the drive-in theatre, one oil-fired furnace is used to heat 30 cars, at a cost of only one to two cents per car per night, it is said.

Leading from the furnace are master insulating ducts that have been installed under the ground parallel to the parking ramps. Small flexible pipes attached to the risers from the master duct bring warm air into the car. The air is dispersed through a specially designed air diffuser styled to hook over the car window alongside the speaker. The design of this diffuser keeps the window slightly ajar for the used air to be discharged. This circulation prevents any clouding up of the inside car windows when the heating system is in operation, and insures uniform heating of the entire car. A small control damper on each diffuser allows the car occupants to regulate the amount of heating or cooling they desire.

A compact, electric air-conditioning unit attaches to each furnace and the same duct system is utilized to convey high velocity, dehumidified, low temperature air to the cars parked in the theatre in the summer.

SMALL, FLEXIBLE ducts bring filtered, dehumidified, heated or cooled air into each car at the drive-in from a master underground duct.

A COMPACT DIFFUSER distributes a uniform and controlled flow of air to all parts of the car from a convenient window location.

DRIVE-IN CHECKLIST

painted wherever there is peeling, special attention being given to the protection of the surface underneath. This gives the theatre owner an opportunity to select new and different colors, which in turn give the theatre a "new look." A great deal can be accomplished with very little paint and at very reasonable expense. Even when new paint is not required, a change of color, especially if no other improvements or renovations are to be undertaken, is a worthwhile investment, and one that brings much favorable response. In this respect, concession area and washrooms should have priority for redecoration.

Projection Equipment

The industry has made such strides in projection and sound reproducing equipment in recent years that only the newest and best-equipped drive-ins can afford to ignore the new devices that manufacturers and suppliers are offering. Bringing the drive-in up-to-date in film presentation is essential, and every piece of equipment in the projection booth is a link to quality picture reproduction.

While the screen itself must have maximum reflectivity, this quality alone will not produce quality projection. Among the most important equipment in the booth are the lens, the projector, and the arc lamp. The lens must be as efficient as the rated capacity of the arc lamp, and if there is any question regarding this synchronization, the manufacturer should be contacted to assure proper adjustment or to discuss new equipment.

The projector should be the one best suited to the individual drive-in operation, taking into consideration any recent expansion of ramps. The arc lamp, in turn, must be synchronized with the rated speed of the lens. For the most efficient operation, the lens and lamp should be the fastest speed possible, but they must be coordinated.

Speakers and Sound

All speaker posts should be inspected in the same manner as projection room equipment, cleaned, repaired, or replaced as indicated. Cleaning is often carried out when speakers are reconnected, but if they have been in use all winter, a special operation must be undertaken. Speakers and cords need replacement from time to time. When speakers are tested for sound, competent personnel should be assigned to listen to each individually, to manipulate the volume control, judge tone quality, and report all units needing repair or replacement. Speaker post lights should be switched on at night to check for burnt out or dim lamps.

The quality of the drive-in's sound is another area of critical importance, and it is essential that the operator have the best reproducing equipment available for the particular situation.

Refreshment Stand

Is this the year to alter refreshment selling equipment, facilities, or procedures? The alert operator will take into consideration any possible changes in the food and beverage preferences of his patrons by checking nearby soda fountains, drug stores, restaurants, and other outlets for changes in menus and also check with other food vendors.

Expansion, however, is the most likely field to demand the attention of most operators. As new food equipment and supplies are introduced, a host of new revenue

Pros & Cons Of A Year-Round Operation

IN the middle of the winter, many drive-in exhibitors operating the theatre throughout the cold season, and their colleagues who have closed for the winter inevitably begin to weigh the advantages of the all year operation, trying to come up with the solution most profitable to the individual situation.

There is not, of course, a pat answer to apply to all drive-ins. Even among the circuits, the majority treat each outdoor theatre as a separate operating problem and follow no rigid winter policy, generally influenced by whether the drive-in already has a heating system.

Most new drive-ins install car heater wiring when underground speaker cables are being laid during the theatre construction. In established drive-ins, however, the installation of electric heaters has to be very carefully calculated in relation to expense, because the cost of digging and repaving trenches can be exorbitant. While the price of heaters themselves is not prohibitive, installation costs for 400 units can run $50,000 and upwards, and the repaved spots above the trenches often require constant fill-in as they tend to sag under normal drive-in traffic.

Theatre Accessibility

Other drive-ins heater-equipped close for at least part of the winter, while some with no heaters remain open throughout. The answer depends on a number of general factors pertaining to the situation, and not necessarily on the have-or-have-not of heaters.

CHECKLIST (con't)

sources are offered the drive-in refreshment stand, many of them requiring redesign of the entire area, or at least a new approach to rendering the most efficient service. Be sure to consider foods, especially those with a high profit margin, which have not been offered previously.

Recreational Facilities

Playground facilities should be checked for changes or additions while being cleaned, repainted, and thoroughly inspected for safety. A few new units can make the entire play area another, unfamiliar world to impressionable children. For the older ones, particularly, look into midget autos; the numerous drive-ins which installed midget racing or safe driving courses last year report excellent reception, and a concomitant increase in daytime revenue at the concession stand.

Consider, too, the parents. Miniature golf, especially adaptable to drive-in areas, is becoming increasingly popular, while shuffleboard, another "sport" requiring minimum outdoor space, retains its age-old appeal. And it is not too soon to think about installing a first class swimming pool—recreation for the whole family, day and night!

These, of course, are but a few of the many phases of outdoor theatre operation which warrant the attention of the exhibitor when he is preparing for the spring and summer seasons. As he goes about his premises, the theatre owner will note many areas for improvement and, if he is on his toes, many areas to attract additional revenue. We hope to have suggested just a few of them ahead of the time that most drive-ins get ready to reopen.

Snowstorms do not present an insurmountable problem to attracting patrons in large metropolitan centers where roads quickly are cleared of snow. In rural areas, however, where snow clearing may be slow, the drive-in can, for all practical purposes, be isolated for days, even weeks, by one major storm.

While location is of prime importance, the exhibitor also must take into account the audience potential of the surrounding area and the likelihood that the audience will respond to hard-hitting exploitation and promotion of the winter program. Theatres in sparsely populated areas with small pulling power spread over large regions, such as those in resort areas or in the prairie states, cannot put much faith in the public's willingness to leave home, weather or no, for a heated drive-in.

The commonly accepted practice seems to be one of flexibility. Drive-in owners contend with the elements as long as they are able to do so at a profit. If they can get through the winter breaking even, well and good. But when it is no longer practical or profitable to operate, they close the theatre.

Other Considerations

Heating for the car, naturally, enhances any winter drive-in operation, but some theatres have experimented, with modest success, with various gimmicks in place of heat. Some have reimbursed car owners with cash or gasoline for the fuel consumed to keep the car's own heater going; others serve hot coffee on the cuff to warm their shivering patrons; some advertise the lack of heaters as a challenge to the hardy individuals willing to brave the cold.

While profit remains the obvious reason for winter operation, there are other important considerations favoring it. Although the theatre is closed, certain maintenance, tax, and other expenses continue, and there is very definite expense involved in closing and reopening procedures. If the theatre is in the area where it is difficult to acquire and train competent personnel, it could be to the theatreman's advantage to struggle through the winter with at least half of an efficient staff, if the loss is negligible.

But, the secret to successful winter operation is convincing the potential audience that visiting the drive-in is feasible and, if it is heated, that it is also comfortable. Operators not prepared to wage an intensive promotional campaign for their winter program had best close the theatre no matter how tempting the profit picture may be. It is one thing to have heaters, another to advertise them as efficient, safe, heat-producing devices.

Drive-ins featuring year-round operation probably will be the rule rather than the exception in the future in the colder areas of the country, as manufacturers produce new and better car heating devices at prices more and more drive-in men can afford. And exhibitors building new theatres will do well to remember that those drive-ins which have plugged car heaters have managed to operate at a profit throughout many a long and bleak winter in every part of the country.

Remodeling Creates New Showcase

By FIFI HARDING

WHEN the Morton Theatre, Dorchester, Mass., was constructed as a neighborhood house in the early twenties, it was considered a showplace. Although it was built as a motion picture theatre, the stage facilities lent themselves to an occasional vaudeville show, or special programs for local events. Many times the owners gave over the theatre for Jewish charity events in a neighborhood densely populated and highly religious. After World War II, this theatre was another victim of changing times and, when its lease expired in August, 1958, American Theatres Corporation did not renew it. The owners, headed by Robert Waldman, were confronted with a big decision. What disposition of the property would be the most equitable? Upstairs there were offices and, on either side, were stores, one a bank, which were still on lease. The owners realized fully that, in order to procure another theatre tenant, extensive alterations were necessary.

THE NEW ENTRANCE of the Morton features redwood paneling, new flooring, doors, and refreshment stand. Elimination of a back row of seats in the auditorium permitted the stand to be pushed back to make easier access for patrons. BELOW, top, is a view of the old lobby while work was in progress to remove garish murals, outdated window panels, and to lower the high and unhospitable ceiling. Extra space obtained in this way was used to advantage in the remodeling of the office space above the lobbies and auditorium.

The decision was made to go ahead with alteration plans. A new tenant, Al Lourie, who operates the Adams in Dorchester, was signed and the services of Louis Chiamonte of Merchandising Displays were acquired.

One of the first steps in the alterations was the removal of some of the seats, bringing the total down to around 1300. Next, the outside was improved with a new marquee, installed by University Sign Company; a new outside boxoffice was designed with a brick base; and the outside walls were recovered in a redwood finish. The front was repainted. At the same time, the Grove Hall Bank was repainted and a new brick front was added.

Inside, the lobby was paneled with the same redwood finish, new white louvre doors were installed, and new vinyl tiling was placed on the floor. The candy stand was pushed back, due to the elimination of the back rows of seats. The stand was paneled in knotty pine and a larger popcorn machine was added. Garish murals and 19th century window panels were covered by the paneling. The ceilings were lowered, not only to improve appearance, but also because the extra space could be used to advantage on the floor above for the offices. New modern light fixtures were installed; on either side of the lobby, floral boxes were placed in strategic spots to give an atmosphere of warmth and cheer. Unattractive stone paneling was improved by the simple method of recovering with the redwood panels.

In the auditorium, new seats were not necessary, as modern push-backs had been installed two years before; in the stadium section, however, about 200 were installed.

THE EXTERIOR treatment of the Morton called for a new marquee and paneling, as well as improvement to the facade of bank, left.

Fairways and greens are completely covered with three-eighths inch brown miniature golf Ozite Felt, sealed to base with waterproof cement. Enameled light standards 24 feet high are furnished, each carrying four 1,000 watt flood lights.

Various features of the miniature course are a Caddy House with trellis canopy, Caddy House sign with raised plastic letters which light up for night use; and a 19th Hole obstacle specially built for the free game possibility and the lock up of balls at the end of the game. Balls, tee-off mats, putters, and various other equipment are supplied with the unit.

Poster Board

The Tiffin Art Metal Company has introduced a theatre poster board particularly suited to drive-in roadside advertising. Designed for standard six sheet theatre posters, the overall dimensions of the unit are eight by eight feet. The posting surface is galvanized steel with an aluminum moulding.

The poster boards are shipped as complete packages containing directions for setting up. Packaged boards are available for single faced, double faced, or wall use, and Tiffin cantilever posts are offered for either two foot or four foot elevation under the panel.

Puerto Rico Builds

SAN JUAN, P.R.—Plans to open a number of new movie theatres in Puerto Rico—the first in 10 years—were announced recently by Rafael Ramos Cobian, prominent local exhibitor who owns the majority of the island's theatres. All of the theatres will be constructed within shopping centers now being developed by the Ibec Realty Company for Todos Supermarkets.

Ramos Cobian also disclosed he is negotiating to bring the Cinerama process here and into his first new theatre, at the 65th Infantry Shopping Center, a few blocks from the University of Puerto Rico campus in suburban Rio Piedras. The theatre, which will seat 750 persons, will cost $350,000 completely equipped, and will be extra-wide and semi-circular in shape to accommodate the special Cinerama screen.

Loew's State Remodeling

NEW YORK — An army of workmen has invaded Loew's Theatre on Broadway and is stripping the venerable house down in preparation for a million-dollar remodeling program. In March, a "new" Loew's State will emerge as a showcase for long-run product.

The new theatre will feature every innovation in comfort, projection, sound, acoustics, and seating. Newly-developed, all-purpose projectors will present all types of films, from 35mm to 70mm. This will include Todd-AO, CineMiracle, Camera 65, CinemaScope, VistaVision, and normal wide-screen. Lounger-type "Bodiform" seats, with self-adjusting contour backs, will be spaced to permit ease of entrance and egress, and will be staggered to provide perfect screen visibility.

The Loew's State Office Building also will receive a thorough remodeling treatment.

Another Promotion Pays Off

ESTELLE STEINBACH, manager of the Strand, Milwaukee, poses with part of the theatre's effective Old Colony Tropical Punch display.

AN outstanding job of promoting and selling Old Colony Tropical Punch is being done by several Fox Wisconsin Amusement Corporation theatres in Milwaukee. For several months, the Strand has featured Tropical Punch successfully in its lobby concession and mobile stands. Old Colony Tropical Punch is a product of Orange-Crush Company.

Two King dispensers are used for serving Tropical Punch in the Strand. In addition to the regular concession stands, the theatre has portable carts for use as mobile stands in the lobby when the theatre is crowded. During intermission, ushers mingle with the theatre-goers suggesting they try Old Colony Tropical Punch along with hot buttered popcorn.

Miss Estelle Steinbach, manager of the Strand, was recently selected "The Showman of the Year" by the National Theatres, and as "Career Woman of the Year" in Milwaukee.

In its first few months, the Strand Theatre alone used several hundred gallons of Old Colony Tropical Punch and expects to double or triple that amount in the next three months.

Hornstein Announces 70/35mm Equipment

NEW YORK—Cinematograph International, Inc., has been appointed exclusive distributor for the internationally known Cinemecanica Victoria X 70/35mm All Purpose projection and sound systems, it was announced last week.

Cinematograph offers to the exhibitor a complete package from the projection booth to the screen, including experienced engineering, supervision, and service. The flexibility of the Victoria X also permits combining American manufactured sound and arc lamphouses, it is said.

This new equipment is the result of years of study and planning, and has been designed as a perfect simplified single unit, capable of using all film processes, including Todd-AO 65/70mm six channel magnetic sound; and all aspect ratios in 35mm film with three or four track magnetic sound for CinemaScope, single track mixed magnetic sound, and single track optical sound, Cinematograph says.

George Hornstein, president of Cinematograph, stated that his recent European tour afforded him the opportunity of visiting some of the earlier installations in theatres equipped with Victoria X, among which are Cinema Max Linder, Cinema Les Images, Cinema Hermitage in Paris; Cinema Ambassador in Brussels; Cinema Odeon in Milan; Cinema Grattacielo in Genoa; and Cinema Metropolitan in Naples.

California Theatre Remodels

BEVERLY HILLS—Plans are being made for the remodeling of the Beverly Hills Music Hall Theatre on Wilshire Boulevard, according to Sydney Linden, managing director of the Herbert Rosener Theatre Circuit here.

"It is our desire to make the Beverly Hills one of the really deluxe art theatres in Southern California. It will be completely re-decorated, including new carpets and draperies, as well as approximately 900 of the newest loge seats to afford patrons the last word in comfort, with perfect vision from any location in the auditorium," Linden said.

"The installation of the latest technical advancements in stereophonic sound and projection will enable the presentation of the finest films in all processes, and new weather control systems will insure the enjoying of ideal temperatures year round," Linden concluded.

Four-Language Sound

NEW YORK—Motion picture projectors with a four-language sound system were used to present films to delegates attending the recent Atoms-for-Peace Conference at Geneva, Switzerland. The motion pictures dealt with various aspects of atomic energy, its development, and applications.

Seven RCA 16mm projectors were installed at the United Nations Building in Geneva, tied in with a special magnetic reproducer with four sound tracks. Earphones and switches were placed at each seat in the auditorium to permit delegates to select the English, French, German, or Russian sound track while viewing the picture.

The seven projectors were the RCA Senior sound model modified to operate with the special four-language magnetic sound track system.

CAST: Jon Hall, Nan Adams, John Farrow, Jonathan Haze, Greigh Phillips, Dave "Howdy" Peters, Tookie Evans, Martin Denny, Bob LaVarre, Bill Anderson, Abraham Kaluna. Written, produced and directed by Charles B. Griffith.

STORY: A group of skin divers, led by Jon Hall, are hired by John Farrow to locate a priceless emerald, buried in a sunken ship in the South Pacific. Along on the trip is Nan Adams, forced by Farrow to pose as his wife. Diver Greigh Phillips finds evidence underwater that Farrow murdered his first wife. Farrow damages his diving equipment, and Phillips dies underwater. Hall has been suspicious of Farrow, so the latter tries to frame him for Phillips' death. Following a series of killings, Farrow's guilt is exposed and he is killed. Hall and Adams, in love, return to Manila together.

X-RAY: As long as this entry stays wet, it is okay. There are some lush tropical back-grounds and some interesting shots of skin divers at work. When it comes ashore and gets down to plot, however, the film flounders badly. The result is a lot of talk and a little action, leading up to a climax in which all the proper people die. The color process used here is uneven, and acting, direction, and production only fair. Enthusiasts of the growing skin diving sport will find several scenes to their liking. All in all, its strictly for the lower half.

AD LINES: "First Murder Thriller Ever Filmed Underwater"; "Skin Divers In A Battle To The Death For A Million Dollar Emerald And A Priceless Woman."

WESTERN
73M.

Columbia
(CinemaScope)
(Eastman Color by Pathe)

ESTIMATE: Good Western.

CAST: Randolph Scott, Karen Steele, Pernell Roberts, James Best, Lee Van Cleef, James Coburn, Dyke Johnson, Boyd Steckman, Roy Jenson. Executive producer, Henry J. Brown; produced and directed by Budd Boetticher.

STORY: Randolph Scott, a former sheriff, goes after and captures killer James Best who has a good-sized reward on his head. Best agrees to accompany him, since not to do so would mean his immediate death. He knows his brother, Lee Van Cleef, will come to the rescue. They arrive at a stage way station to find outlaws Pernell Roberts and James Coburn waiting while a worried Karen Steele, wife of the station manager, awaits the return of her husband who has been out looking for some strayed horses. A few Apaches turn up to ask that Steele be turned over to them. When refused, they go off after a war party which attacks and is beaten off. Her husband's horse turns up riderless, and all are sure that he has been killed by the Indians. Scott is particularly slow in getting Best to town, hoping that Van Cleef will show up soon for the showdown. It turns out that Roberts is hoping to take Best away from Scott because an amnesty goes with his capture, and Roberts hopes to settle down to a life of ranching. The reason Scott is waiting for Van Cleef is to avenge the death of his wife at Van Cleef's hands many years ago. At the climax, Scott kills Van Cleef and turns Best over to Roberts.

X-RAY: Action, suspense, and thrills are to be found here in goodly quantities, and as usual Randolph Scott comes through with another reliable performance. The story is interesting, performances are okay, and direction and production are good. Pernell Roberts is a newcomer who shows promise. It should do okay as part of the program. The screenplay is by Burt Kennedy.

AD LINES: "He Had To Take His Prisoner Past Hostile Apaches And Murderous Outlaws And The Result Is A Fast-Moving Western"; "A Thrilling Saga Of The West."

First Man Into Space (915)

MELODRAMA

MGM

ESTIMATE: Okay science fiction for the program.

CAST: Marshall Thompson, Marla Landi, Robert Ayres, Bill Nagy, Carl Jaffe, Bill Edwards, Roger Delgade. Produced by John Croydon and Charles F. Vetter, Jr.; directed by Robert Day.

STORY: When Navy test pilot Bill Edwards tests the newest rocket plane, it almost carries him into space as he disobeys his older brother, Commander Marshall Thompson. The ship crashes, but Edwards manages to bail out to safety. Instead of reporting in, he goes to see his girl friend, Marla Landi, first. He is given treatment and is declared ready when a newer model is ready for testing. This time, he completely disregards orders and pilots the craft far out into space. He exhausts his fuel supply and can't guide the ship anymore. As a shower of meteorite dust engulfs him, he ejects the nose section. The next day, a section of the plane is found on a lonely farm covered with a strange coating that is impervious to analysis. There is no sign of Edwards. Soon after, animals and humans are slaughtered and some of the blood is drained from the corpses, which are also coated with some of the strange crust. Thompson concludes his brother must be responsible. Police bullets don't affect him, and Edwards, horribly disfigured, returns to the base and the experimental lab for help from Dr. Carl Jaffe. He is able to gasp out his story before he dies.

X-RAY: Interest is well-enough maintained in this science fiction entry, particularly when the experimental flights are taking place or when the result of the trip into space makes itself felt. The cast is okay, as are the direction and production, and the entry should do alright as part of the program. A medium amount of suspense and some action sequences are also of value. The screenplay is by John C. Cooper and Lance Z. Hargreaves.

CAST: Deborah Kerr, Yul Brynner, Jason Robards, Jr., Robert Morley, E. G. Marshall, Anne Jackson, Ronny Howard, Flip Mark, Kurt Kasznar, David Kossoff, Gerard Cury, Marie Daems. Produced and directed by Anatole Litvak.

STORY: A group of travelers are stranded in Budapest in November, 1956, at the end of the unsuccessful revolt in Hungary. Among the group is an American oil engineer, E. G. Marshall, his pregnant wife, Anne Jackson, and their two youngsters; British TV correspondent Robert Morley; English noblewoman Dorothy Kerr; and a mysterious gentleman she is obviously attached to, Jason Robards, Jr. The latter, though he holds a British passport, is of unknown origin. The Soviet Air Force takes over the airfield and the group is permitted to start for Vienna by bus. The various party members sense that should Robards' real identity emerge it would peril them all. At the frontier, they are stopped by a Russian roadblock commanded by Major Yul Brynner, who says he will have to get further clearance for them. They are put up at an inn run by Kurt Kasznar. A duel of wits between Brynner and the group is complicated by his attraction for Kerr. As the situation becomes warm, Kerr and Robards try to escape. They are caught. Duty forces Brynner to turn the matter over to his superiors, and all are ordered to return to Budapest. The others prevail upon Kerr to go to Brynner and they find the mutual attraction difficult to resist. Brynner gets them all up before the hour of return and escorts them to the border, letting all of them go. Preparing to face the consequences, Brynner is killed by bullets from freedom fighters in ambush as the party reaches freedom.

X-RAY: An exciting adventure loaded with danger, excitement, suspense, and some action, to which has been added some unusual romance, is this entry which has been well-made in and around Austria. The on-the-scene filming has added considerably to the stature of the entry, and use of Technicolor is another valuable asset. The scenes and situations are tense and dramatic as well as intriguing, made all the more exciting by competent performances by the entire cast. Brynner adds the proper zest, atmosphere, and attitude to his excellent portrayal of a Russian officer. The story holds interest on high throughout, grasping audience attention until the very end. Direction and production are superior. Audience reaction and word-of-mouth should be highly favorable and should aid in the returns if the film is given enough time to make its presence felt. The screenplay is by George Tabori.

TIPS ON BIDDING: Higher rates.

ESTIMATE: Off-beat, interesting drama.

CAST: Julie London, John Drew Barrymore, Nat "King" Cole, Anna Kashfi, Dean Jones, Agnes Moorehead, Cathy Crosby, Ray Anthony, Jackie Coogan, Charles Chaplin, Jr., Billy Daniels, James Edwards, Arthur Shields, Edward Andrews, Robert Warwick, Marguerite Belafonte, Bobi Byrnes. Produced by Albert Zugsmith; directed by Hugo Haas.

STORY: A rock crashing through the front window of a home occupied by Julie London and her husband, John Drew Barrymore, son of a wealthy San Francisco family, causes her to call him at work. He races home to find teen agers destroying the property and insulting London. The police break up the fight and take the principals to the station house, where London is questioned about inciting the incident. During the questioning, she recalls how she and Barrymore first met. He and his brother, Dean Jones, came to Mexico to do some fishing with her father, Arthur Shields, where London and Barrymore fell in love. When she realizes he is serious, she warns him that she is one-quarter colored on her mother's side, but Barrymore brushes this off. Their marriage attracts attention in the San Francisco papers, and his mother, Agnes Moorehead, welcomes her to the family until headlines reveal her colored ancestry. They are deprived of living accommodations until he buys a house, and when their neighbors learn her identity, there is further trouble. The pressure from Moorehead and the others temporarily breaks Barrymore, who is put under the care of a doctor. Moorehead starts annulment proceedings. The allegation is that Barrymore was unaware of her colored blood. London fights with the aid of Negro lawyer James Edwards. They are reunited and emerge together, determined to find happiness somehow, somewhere.

X-RAY: Daring and off-beat in theme is this entry that can be classified as unusual, to say the least. The tale of a good looking girl who is part Negro marrying into a prominent white family is modern and can appeal to adults seeking the different and the interesting. Of course, the reception and reaction will be better north of the Mason-Dixon line than below it if experience is any guide. The story develops at a good pace with some of the language and situations quite frank, and it is bolstered by strong performances and good direction and production. Two songs are heard, "Night of the Quarter Moon" and "To Whom It May Concern," sung by Nat "King" Cole. The screenplay is by Frank Davis and Franklyn Coen.

TIPS ON BIDDING: Depends on individual situations.

ESTIMATE: Excellent programmer.

CAST: Steven Marlo, Tom Selden, Luana Patten, Joan Granville, Ed Nelson, Dan Sheridan, Jim Chandler. Produced by Andrew J. Fenady; directed by Irvin Kershner.

STORY: Teen-age sweethearts Tom Selden and Luana Patten decide to elope to Mexico. Steven Marlo, insane itinerant oil field worker, who has killed his boss, latches on to them when they run out of gas and forces them to take him with them. On the way, he murders a blonde who resents his attentions at a gas station. Once in Mexico, Marlo tries to force his attentions on Patten, while holding Selden at bay with a switch blade knife. He is finally bested and stabbed with his own knife by Selden. Selden and Patten put him back in the car and head for the border, where they are met by police officers. Crazy by fear, pain, and hate, Marlo grabs the wheel, crashes the car into the side of a warehouse, and dies.

X-RAY: This brilliant study in terror unreels as suspenseful, actionful melodrama that should do nicely, despite its lack of names, on any program. In addition to outstanding performances by the three leads and good support from the others, there is definite know-how in both production and direction and excellent black and white photography. The musical accompaniment is also most potent. The story by Gordon Hunt and Al Burton, with screenplay by the producer, is not pleasant, but it surely is dynamic and exciting. It's an outstanding example of quality on a modest budget.

ESTIMATE: Adult programmer.

CAST: Bill Williams, Leslie Bradley, Nora Hayden, Nick Dennis, Lyn Thomas. Produced by Bernard Glaser; directed by Edward Bernds. An Associated Producers Production.

STORY: Bill Williams and Leslie Bradley are partners in an Alaskan trucking firm. They quarrel over expenses and losses. Williams has fallen for Nora Hayden, restaurant cashier. Bradley's wife, Lyn Thomas, shows up, makes a play for Williams, and since they were lovers before she threw him over for Bradley, they resume their affair. Bradley learns of this, and Thomas shoots him and forces a mechanic to help her get away in a truck. Williams speeds after them knowing they will crash due to a landslide and hoping to prevent an accident. The truck bearing Thomas skids down an embankment carrying her to her death. Williams and Hayden are reunited.

X-RAY: This trucking meller has a timely locale, Alaska, but other than that offers nothing that is new. There is plenty of action, but the story is rather sordid and not suitable for children. It is lower half program fare with routine performances, production and direction. The story is by the director.

STORY: In 1924, two 18-year-old students, Bradford Dillman and Dean Stockwell, both abnormally intelligent and sons of wealthy parents, are constantly together, with Stockwell subservient to Dillman. They consider themselves vastly superior to society and plan to pull off a perfect crime for a thrill. Also in their college class is Martin Milner, who is a cub reporter, and Diane Varsi. When the body of a kidnapped boy is found, Milner deduces that a pair of glasses found near the body belongs to the killer. The glasses are traced to Stockwell, who admits he might have been there studying birds.

He has to bring in Dillman to help prove his alibi. Eventually, they confess. Their parents hire outstanding criminal lawyer Orson Welles, who deems it futile to try the case before a jury and pleads his clients guilty before a judge. An impassioned plea convinces the judge to sentence the pair to life imprisonment instead of death.

X-RAY: An uncommonly good dramatic presentation is this entry that is strongly reminiscent of the famous true-to-life case that took place in the early '20's in Chicago. The film treads delicately where needed yet forcefully enough to satisfy audiences. Interest is maintained throughout, with the fine performances of the entire cast assisting. Orson Welles, Dean Stockwell, and Bradford Dillman are particularly outstanding. Direction and production are of high calibre. Because of the dramatic content and story ramifications, the entry is best suited for adult viewing. There should be quite a bit of word-of-mouth selling. The screenplay is by Richard Murphy, based on the novel by Meyer Levin.

ESTIMATE: Mediocre meller for duallers.

CAST: Steve McQueen, David Clarke, Crahan Denton, Molly McCarthy, James Dukas. Produced by Charles Guggenheim; directed by Guggenheim and John Stix.

STORY: Four men plan to hold up the Southwest Bank in St. Louis. There is dissension among them immediately, spurred by the relationship between Steve McQueen, youngest of the band, and Molly McCarthy, sister of another gang member, who tries to prevent the crime. McCarthy is killed for her interference, and the well-planned robbery goes off on schedule. Police arrive before the gang can get out of the bank. In a pitched battle, one is killed, another commits suicide, McQueen is wounded and captured, and the fourth escapes but is later captured.

X RAY: This ineptly-made meller has little to recommend it. Based on a true event, it fails to hold interest and is quite talky. Acting, direction, and production are in the same category, and even the action sequences during the robbery do not generate real excitement. It's strictly for the duallers, and the unsavory relationships hinted at between some of the characters make it unsuitable fare for the younger set. Screenplay is by Richard Heffron.

"Miss Pigtales" Contest

THEATRE: Spreckels,

ADDRESS: San Diego, Cal.

MANAGER: Robert S. Strauss

The highlight of our campaign on "Kathy O" was our holding in cooperation with The Independent, local newspaper of a 'Miss Pigtales' contest open to all young ladies between the ages of six and 12 years of age.

A giant panda doll, an introduction to movie starlet Patty McCormack, star of the film, and an appearance on television were the prizes. The panda was a gift from Universal International Pictures. There were also prizes for the second and third winners.

The newspaper printed coupons which had to be filled out and accompanied by a snap shot of contestant, with her hair done up in pigtales, of course. She also had to state in 25 words or less why she wanted the giant panda doll.

Eight finalists were chosen in a preliminary screening of over 200 entrants. Every runner up in the contest received passes to see the film.

Newspaper, radio and TV publicity on the stunt was extensive.

In addition, three weeks preceding the opening the picture was screened to an invited audience of teachers, editors of school and daily newspapers, PTA members, disc jockeys, etc. The principal's bulletin of the board of education carried an announcement of this event, which reached every teacher in the city.

The film was also previewed during a regular performance two weeks prior to opening.

Dot Records of the title song were distributed to all local disc jockeys, and 50 Dot records were given free to the first patrons attending the regular Saturday matinee performance.

NUMBER 46

The Circus Angle Helps

THEATRE: Majestic

ADDRESS: Owingsville, Ky.

MANAGER: Jim Denton

Circus pictures have always done well here, so I decided to sell "Merry Andrew" as strictly a circus picture.

I had a circus boxoffice front made and this was put up two weeks in advance of playdate, along with multi-colored plastic banners around and under the marquee. The boxoffice front played down the title and Danny Kaye, but played up the fact that the story was about a clown. This front created a great amount of interest.

Then I went to the director of the local high school band and made a deal with him. In return for a benefit show for the school band in which the band sold tickets on a 50/50 deal some of the band members would help bally the picture. Six of them rode a truck which I rented and played circus music as it toured the town. The truck carried banners plugging the picture and was out all Saturday afternoon. In addition, 12 members of the band appeared in front of the theatre opening night of the show and gave a half hour concert. This was a traffic stopping stunt and sure stimulated business.

It was no trouble to find a local character to portray a clown. I didn't have access to a clown costume so I improvised the best I could and I also served as makeup man. He appeared on the truck with the school band and also paraded the streets giving out handbills. He also appeared at the radio station and was interviewed by a disc jockey. That was a good plug and was gratis.

In my newspaper and radio advertising I again played up the circus angle for all it was worth. I used part of a mat from another circus picture along with a couple of regular "Merry Andrew" cuts. Instead of using the stock radio spots we made up a tape with a background of circus music along with the "ringmaster" announcing the clowns. It was quite effective.

As a result of this promotion, I proved to myself that I have to SELL the picture. The film played midweek to very good business.

Attendance, Concession Boost Goal Of NSS Business Building Program

NEW YORK—An expanded program by National Screen Service to cooperate with exhibitors in building boxoffice revenues was revealed last week by Burton E. Robbins, vice-president in charge of sales.

Robbins said that the entire National Screen sales organization has been receiving intensive briefings for several months on new methods of working with exhibitors to stimulate theatre returns by increasing the volume of boxoffice admissions; boosting food and refreshment sales, and encouraging special promotions to create additional audience interest.

Robbins emphasized that National Screen is arming its salesmen for this boxoffice building campaign with an entire new array of promotional tools tailored to the needs of both indoor and drive-in theatres.

Typical of the new material available from National Screen is a wide selection of full-color promotional trailers for drive-ins. In part, these include a fully animated "Welcome Back" trailer for Spring drive-in openings; four new color intermission trailers designed to lure patrons out of their cars and into concession stands; and "Add-A-Clip" refreshment trailers that enable exhibitors to show giant, tempting full-color blow-ups of their particular refreshment and food specialties—anything from soft drinks to hot Bar B-Q sandwiches—on the drive-in screen during intermissions.

Robbins also made known plans for the large-scale use of a brand-new promotional approach which has been used very effectively throughout the Commonwealth Circuit in Kansas City. It features a special trailer-header entitled "Season's Prevue." Especially created in Eastman Color, this trailer utilizes full orchestra fan-fare music combined with lively animated effects. It is designed for use in combination with a list of trailerettes plugging coming attractions far ahead.

In addition, National Screen will provide many new special-promotion trailers for 1959, in both color and black and white. Outstanding among these are a special "spook" trailer, for plugging "Friday the 13th," or other special horror shows, and a live "Easter Greetings" trailer.

For both indoor and outdoor theatres, National Screen has available a varied selection of color presentation headers and daters for smooth, effective showmanship in introducing attractions. These can be custom-designed to fit the character of a particular theatre.

Robbins said that expanded facilities for producing "Merchants' Advertising Intermission Clock" trailers will also be reported by Ashe to the convention. Approximately 225 striking backgrounds are available for the efficient and economical production of motion picture screen advertising for local merchants.

Robbins also announced major plans for the expansion of the National Screen Service Custom Trailer Division, in response to a steadily increasing volume of orders for special trailers. "We realize that in these changing times, exhibitors are particularly anxious to entrench their theatres in community life," he said.

He pointed out that an exhibitor is taking a big step in the right direction.

Many local promotions, contests, celebrations, etc., sponsored by civic groups, can be promoted in cooperation with local theatres, he asserted, and advertised on theatre screens with the aid of custom-made trailers which are available through National Screen quickly and economically.

By tying in with locally sponsored celebrations, contests, etc., new vistas of additional business are a certainty at small cost to the exhibitor, Robbins stated. He added that these local organizations generally are most willing to underwrite the low cost of a special custom trailer in exchange for reaching the theatre audience.

To obtain a special trailer, custom-made for a local promotion, it is only necessary to provide copy to any branch office of National Screen.

Robbins concluded by saying: "In addition to selling entertainment, the motion picture theatre today, more than ever, must serve the community in fostering civic projects."

"Miss Big Beat" Contest

THEATRE: Harber,
ADDRESS: Oklahoma City, Okla.
MANAGER: Farris Shanbour

Here is a stunt that paid off handsomely for us; and one that can be used in connection with any rock 'n' roll picture.

First we tied up with our local record distributor and through them arranged for the personal appearance of some real gone rock 'n' roll recording artists at a special midnight preview showing of our rock 'n' roll film. We upped our admission to 90 cents for this show only, sold tickets in advance, advertised it big through the usual media for three weeks in advance to great results. Decca Records placed 500 cards 8x14 inches on all juke boxes in the city.

Later, during the regular engagement of the film we staged a "Miss Big Beat Of Oklahoma City" contest in which over 200 girls were entered. A local photo studio took photos of contestants at no charge to us as they anticipated receiving extra customers from the promotion. All photos were posted in the lobby two weeks in advance.

The audience judged the winners and picked six girls by their applause. We promoted a $150 hi-fi for the first prize from Columbia Records; a $100 wardrobe from the Fashion dress shop as second prize; albums of Decca Records and passes good for three months as prizes for the runners-up. All the prizes were displayed in the Criterion Record Shop four weeks in advance. The Fashion apparel shop put in a complete full window tying up with the contest.

The contest had complete coverage by KWTU including a film shown later on their TV news broadcast.

A local rock 'n' roll band furnished the background music for the "Miss Big Beat" vocalists.

Radio promotion of the contest was extensive with disc jockeys lending full cooperation and giving us many free plugs as they spun their recordings.

We used the contest and the preview stage show in connection with our showing of U-I's "The Big Beat"; but it should be readily adaptable for any rock 'n' roll feature.

Old Fashioned Showmanship Sells New Fashioned House

THEATRE: State,

This campaign sold two important items—the grand opening of the remodeled State kerchief deals, we noticed in the past that when the ladies see a sad show, invariably they have forgotten their hankies, or carry such flimsy ones that they might just as well have none. So on opening night we purchased some man-sized Kleenex and while standing beside the doorman with a sober expression on our faces, we offered them a Kleenex as they came in, telling them it was a very sad show and if they hadn't come with at least two hankies they might just need a Kleenex or two. Some just laughed, thinking it a joke and not taking any; others said they wouldn't need any; but the majority took us at our word and took the proffered paper hankies.

At the end of each performance the ladies who hadn't accepted any told me they should have taken my advice; and the ones who had taken some thanked me sincerely while wiping away the tears. This was good publicity for the people we had in line ups for the second show.

I had thought of advertising this in advance on my radio program and in the newspaper; but decided against it thinking it would spoil the effect; and am very glad I didn't because by noon of the second day news of Congratulatory ads sold the reopening, the new appointments as well as the movie, and at the same time the sponsor of the ad received more benefit than usual out of this type ad. Five by the same showman published in any one year will receive a SILVER Achievement Citation. And, should any showman ever accomplish ten in the same year, a GOLD Achievement Citation will be awarded. No weekly or monthly prizes will accompany such citations.

At each year's end, all such published achievements will be submitted to the "COMMITTEE OF 100" theatre circuit executives for their individual study and their personal choice of the BEST FIVE. A minimum of

will be awarded to the five "SHOWMEN-OF-THE-YEAR" so selected. Alert showmen, interested in the international distinction to be gained from such awards, will recognize that an advantage lies in winning repeated individual published achievements. Address all submissions and photographs to: GEORGE F. NONAMAKER, Feature Editor, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, 246-48 N. Clarion Street, Philadelphia 7, Penna.

DO IT YOURSELF!

This is a runner-up entry in last year's MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR'S SHOWMANSHIP SWEEPSTAKES in which the publication paid out $5,000 in awards.

These entries were judged as outstanding by a panel of experienced theatremen. They can be readily adapted on a "do it yourself" basis by you for your theatre. If you didn't save them originally—do so now!

BANK DAYS

Submitted by W. E. Danelz
Border, Elmore, Minn.

280 seats • 50 cents top admission
Small town and rural patronage.

Out here in this little town of 1,200 population theatremen W. E. Danelz came up with an idea worked with the local merchants to stimulate business in the theatre on Saturday nights and bring people into the town to trade.

The theatre, in conjunction with 40 merchants, run a deal on Saturday nights very similar to the old theatre "Bank Night." People go to any of the town merchants or the theatre and register ONCE on cards printed up for the purpose. The number they receive and all the other numbers are placed in a barrel and the name corresponding to the number is placed in 41 sealed envelopes. These envelopes are distributed to each of the participating business places right after supper Saturday night. At nine o'clock Saturday night the fire siren blows and each merchant announces the name in his business place. If the person whose name is announced is in any one of these 41 business places he, or she, wins the weekly prize.

The stores all display a paper poster in their windows reading: "This store is a member of Elmore Bank Days 9 p.m. $50.00. Register Now at any of the participating business places. Registrants must be 16 years of age or over to be eligible. One registration is good for the entire drawing. To win, you must be present in any one of the participating business places displaying this poster, at 9.00 p.m. every Saturday. Winners will be announced in all the member business places." These window sheets measure 8½ inches x 11 inches and are printed black on yellow paper. Space for the write-in of the amount in crayon is left blank.

ioned State Theatre. Now Showing. "The Vikings."

A Scandinavian attired miss delivered a king sized invitation to the Mayor in his office at City Hall.

Danelz says "We started out with a $35 jackpot, and $10 was added each week until somebody won."

"Instead of using real money for the prize, we use "Elmore Lucky Bucks," which can be traded out dollar for dollar in any of the participating business places. With all types of businesses represented in Elmore, the winner can buy anything from movie tickets to dental work. There is a time limit set on the validity of this bogus money, usually two months ahead, so the winner has at least a couple of months in which to spend his winnings. In this way, the money is spent at home and not in some other town.

"I have made a deal with the banker so that when this money comes back to the merchants, they just deposit it in the bank along with their regular deposit, and when the bank gets a hundred bucks or so, it goes to the paymaster of the Bank Night committee and gets a check for the amount of Lucky Bucks he has taken in. This makes it easy for the merchants, when the money comes into him it is just like regular cash.

"Each of the merchants pays $6.00 per month to be in on this gimmick, and we pay a lady in town $10 per month to file the registration slips, distribute the sealed envelopes and posters each week.

"Since we started this last fall, we in the theatre have had three winners and it has increased our Saturday night business about 20 per cent. People seem to feel that the theatre is a good place to be at nine o'clock to wait for the announcing of the winner.

"We started this deal to be run three months before Christmas to urge holiday shoppers to trade in Elmore and to help the theatre during the slack holiday season, and all the merchants were so enthusiastic about it we kept it going after the first of the year. To date it looks like it will run on indefinitely."

The day before opening we arranged with radio station KSOO to insert a special tag line regarding our opening in their mid-day news bulletin, which is distributed on every

COLUMBIA has effected a tieup with Rose Marie Reid which will result in a national promotion for "Gidget" and the swimsuit company's junior line. Keynoting the campaign will be a double-truck full color ad in the April issue of Seventeen with Sandra Dee, star of the film, shown in Rose Marie Reid junior swimsuits, in each case photographed with James Darron, one of her co-stars in the picture. Reprints of the ads will form the basis of window and counter displays for thousands of retail outlets across the country. In addition, the ad will be converted into a mailing piece to be used by department stores, with Rose Marie Reid figuring on it reaching several million homes. The swimsuit company and Columbia will also cooperate on local level promotions keyed to the introduction of the line in stores and first run playdates of "Gidget."

NATIONAL SCREEN SERVICE has come up with another business building promotion as part of its expanded 1959 program. This is an all-color bargain package, consisting of a live-action trailer that features a wild flock of rabbits and chicks, and two huge display posters which is being offered to exhibitors for 75% of what it would cost to buy the three items separately. The moral? Watch the bunny bring the money at Easter-time.

MGM in an international TV promotion on "The Journey" is distributing 300 prints of a five-minute trailer that has unusual global appeal because of the international cast of the film and the Austrian locale of the subject. Partly narrated by Yul Brynner and dubbed in French, German and Italian, it will have superimposed titles in 18 languages.

UNITED ARTISTS has set with Pocket Books, Inc., a major promotion on "Pork Chop Hill", based on General S. L. A. Marshall's best-selling novel of the same title. Full credits for the UA release are given on the books' covers. As part of the cross-promotional effort, Pocket Books is distributing large-sized rack cards to its dealers in advance of key regional bookings.

counter, table and booth of all the important eating establishments throughout Sioux Falls. This included the Elks Club and other private clubs.

Window displays were placed in travel agencies, book shops, hobby shops, toy stores, and a fur store. All cabs and busses carried special bumper strips. Sidewalk stencils were used. Posting included 24-sheets and a special double sized banner was hung from the top of the theatre to the top of the canopy.

A special die cut card was made to fit the spokes of a bicycle wheel and these were placed on bicycles of all Argus Leader Newsboys and children in attendance at recreation centers. The kids were given free passes for displaying the cards on their bikes.

To exploit United Artists' "The Last Mile" at the Palace, Milwaukee, this large float was made up to depict a prison.

The city's Scandinavian population was contacted and the Erickson Norwegian Band playing folk songs were included in our opening night ceremonies. A group of women from the Norse Hall, dressed in Scandinavian costumes, presented a song and dance fest during the noon activities. KELO Radio interviewed these people in the lobby and portions of the ceremony were broadcast. The evening ceremonies featured a Norse Glee Club who appeared in front of the theatre. A typical Viking King and Queen (theatre aides) were presented with the Queen presented with an orchid corsage.

Working with television station KELO-TV we spotted a Norse ship model contest at no cost to the theatre. Four radio stations also lent their fullest cooperation, representing hundreds of dollars of free time and publicity.

A special double truck was placed in the Sioux Shopping News with our usual advertising dollar incorporated in the co-op ad. Through this medium we received 15,500 house to house distribution the day before the grand opening for a very nominal fee. General newspaper publicity was extensive.

As a result of the efforts we put forth and the great improvements that these efforts brought about the Argus Leader honored us with the distinction of being appointed "Citizen of the Week."

success, especially when she brushes off the wolfish attentions of agent Robert Alda. Moore also has her problems when she finds her daughter trying to pass as white. Turner eventually gets a tryout for a play by Dan O'Herlihy, and she is a hit, after which stardom is a natural step. When Gavin proposes marriage, she turns him down in favor of a career. With fame and fortune, happiness is still an elusive thing. Moore, happy as Turner's housekeeper, still has problems with a grown-up Susan Kohner, who more than ever poses as a white girl. Turner's daughter, Sandra Dee, goes through an exclusive finishing school and feels neglected because her mother's acting assignments keep them separated. Gavin, now a successful advertising executive, and Turner meet again, but her career still comes first. Kohner runs away to establish herself as a white girl in a chorus line. Moore becomes ill. Turner becomes convinced that she and Gavin should wed, which hurts Dee, who has fallen for Gavin. Moore makes a final trip to see Kohner, after which she comes home to die. A repentant Kohner shows up at the funeral sorry about having hurt her mother, and the event brings the others close together.

X-RAY: A powerful drama that proves a real emotional experience is to be found here. Adults, particularly women, will be deeply touched as the problems of the characters unfold. Parents will feel compassion for their counterparts on screen as well as for the youngsters and their situations. The story is an absorbing one. The presentation is enhanced by colorful sets and surroundings as well as by the costumes of the characters, all of which are effectively transferred to the screen by Eastman Color. The cast is outstanding. Direction is very good as is the production as a whole. Mahalia Jackson, noted gospel singer, is seen at the conclusion singing "Trouble of the World." Other tunes to be heard are "Imitation of Life" and "Empty Arms." The screenplay is by Eleanor Griffin and Allan Scott, based on the novel by Fannie Hurst. This story was first brought to the screen a quarter of a century ago. While it has been modernized a bit, it remains the same effective, heart-warming drama.

TIP ON BIDDING: Higher rates.

AD LINES: "The Thrilling Drama All Adults Are Talking About"; "The Picture That's An Emotional Experience."

ESTIMATE: Super western is highly entertaining.

STORY: Sheriff John Wayne finds himself in a touchy situation after he arrests Claude Akins for murder. The latter's brother, John Russell, powerful rancher, bottles up entrances to the town and is determined to get his brother out before a U.S. Marshal can arrive. He hires professional gunmen to try and get Akins out. Assisting Wayne is old crippled Walter Brennan and Dean Martin, former deputy, who was handy with a gun before he took to drink. One of the passengers forced to stop over is Angie Dickinson, who spends quite a bit of time gambling. A wagon train carrying explosives, headed by Ward Bond, and guarded by Ricky Nelson, a youth fast with two guns, arrives and remains in town. Bond is shot in the back by some of Russell's men when he offers Wayne aid, and the killer is taken care of by Martin. Wayne wonders about a hand-bill out on Dickinson, who explains she was married to a gambler and didn't know he cheated until he was caught and shot. She helps Wayne get some needed rest by standing guard all night, and they seem to be falling in love. Several other attempts by Russell are thwarted, with Martin proving he can stay away from whiskey and still has some ability with a gun. Nelson, too, sides with Wayne after saving his life. Russell captures Martin and offers to trade him for Akins. The showdown has Wayne and his men outsmarting Russell. Wayne and Dickinson can now discuss a future together.

X-RAY: Lots of thrills, good action sequences, humor, some unorthodox romance, and drama, as well as a bit of exploitable music with Dean Martin and Ricky Nelson put this in the better western category. The cast is good not only in name value but in performance as well, and some of the action is rough, tough and exciting. Results should be impressive from a boxoffice viewpoint. The story could have been tightened with a bit of judicious editing which would have resulted in still a better film. The settings and Technicolor are fine. One thing the long running time does is to properly set the characters and situations so that audiences can get into the proper receptive mood and stay there. The screenplay is by Jules Furthman and Leigh Brackett, based on a short story by B. H. McCampbell.

TIPS ON BIDDING: Higher rates.

Warners
(WarnerScope)
(Technicolor)

ESTIMATE: Lengthy submarine yarn of average interest.

CAST: James Garner, Edmond O'Brien, Andra Martin, Alan Hale, Carleton Carpenter, Frank Gifford, William Leslie, Richard Bakalyan, Erward Byrnes, Sean Garrison, Henry Kulky. Produced by Aubrey Schenck; directed by Gordon Douglas.

STORY: James Garner, Navy Lieutenant, has his romance with Andra Martin interrupted by secret orders asking him to report to Pearl Harbor during World War II. There he learns that Martin was in Naval Intelligence investigating him to determine his fitness for a vital mission. He is ordered aboard a sub commanded by Edmond O'Brien, who operates strictly by the book, the latter policy having contributed to the death of a crew member in the opinion of others aboard. Garner's job is to sneak ashore on a Jap-controlled island which radios orders to Japanese shipping. Friction develops between Garner and O'Brien, with the latter reluctant to risk sub and men to bring Garner in close. The boat survives an air attack, but some damage is suffered which is repaired by Garner under water. It also survives an attack by a Jap destroyer, which it sinks. O'Brien surprises Garner by taking him in close but gives him little time to complete his mission. Undercover of an explosive fire, he is able to photograph the needed code and return to the boat as O'Brien, short of oxygen, is about to leave, having waited past the allotted time. They return to Pearl Harbor to a hero's welcome, and Garner finds Martin waiting.

X-RAY: This is the type of yarn that used to hit the screen some years ago. It is overlong and overdone, and some of the story tends to stretch the imagination quite a bit although there are some scenes adequate in suspense and action. Performances are average, as are direction and production. If it were trimmed a bit, it might make up better as part of the show. Garner a prominent TV personality, might be an additional drawing card. The screenplay is by Richard Landau based on the novel by Robb White.

TIP ON BIDDING: Fair program rates.

AD LINES: "A Sub Story Loaded With Suspense And Action"; "His Mission Meant Death For All If One Move Was A Wrong One."

ESTIMATE: Lower half science fiction entry.

CAST: Forrest Tucker, Gaby Andre, Martin Benson, Wyndham Goldie, Alec Mango, Hugh Latimer, Geoffrey Chater, Patricia Sinclair. Produced by George Maynard; directed by Gilbert Gunn.

STORY: Alec Mango, sinister scientist, hires as a computer operator French Gaby Andre, with whom his assistant, Forrest Tucker, promptly falls in love. There is a difference of opinion between government officials over the value of Mango's work, which changes metals in conjunction with magnetic fields. Mango's experiments get out of control and strange things begin happening in the village. There are "maniac murders" and rumors of unidentified flying objects, to say nothing of radar disturbances, etc. Mysterious stranger Martin Benson appears on the scene. He seems to understand everything that is going on and warns Tucker that Mango has ruptured the magnetic field of the earth, causing dangerous atmospheric disturbances and that quick-breeding insects may grow to gigantic size. By this time, Mango is completely mad and refuses to stop his experiments. Giant insects attack Andre, who is rescued in the nick of time. Soldiers kill the giant insects as Benson, after a conference with officials, orders a hovering space ship to destroy Mango's laboratory. After this, Benson boards the space craft and returns to his own planet, while Andre falls into Tucker's arms.

X-RAY: This science fiction hokus pokus is not only complicated and decidedly talky, but some thick English accents make it even harder to follow. The only action takes place in the last several reels when the giant sized insects get going. Some clever photographic tricks in this portion of the film save it for whatever it is worth. Acting is only average, but production, direction, and photography are satisfactory. The original story is by Rene Ray, adapted by Paul Ryder.

STORY: Scientist Forrest Tucker meets Jennifer Payne and Janet Munro, sisters and a mind reading act in vaudeville, while en route to visit doctor Warren Mitchell at his observatory high in the Swiss alps. Munro claims she knows of gruesome catastrophes met by recent mountain climbers. Tucker and Mitchell believe that the cause of everything is a radioactive cloud overhanging the mountain, and Tucker also believes that Munro is receiving telepathic messages from whatever is concealed in the cloud. After another mountain climber is killed, guide Andrew Faulds returns to the inn dazed. When he sees Munro, he attacks her, but he is captured by Tucker and others and locked up. He strangles the inn keeper and again tries to attack Munro, but is shot by Tucker. When the dead man's flesh dissolves, Tucker realizes he has been under a hypnotic spell of the creature of the cloud. The cloud finally breaks up and moves on the hotel

ALEX HARRISON
GENERAL SALES MANAGER

Dear Friends:

Once again I have agreed to serve as Industry Chairman for the Brotherhood Week campaign on behalf of the amusement division for the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

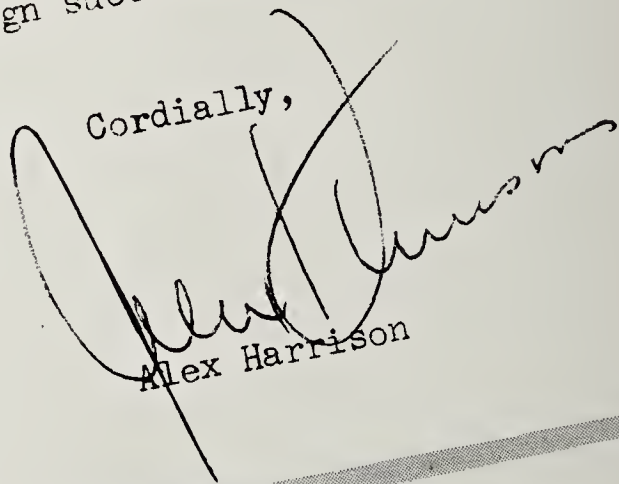

Obviously, this is a no one-man job. However, it is fortunate that Mr. Edward L. Hyman has agreed to lend his assistance to this effort in the capacity of National Exhibitor Chairman.

Both of us are dedicated to a record-shattering campaign for the year 1959, but WE NEED YOUR HELP!

Distributors and exhibitors everywhere know exactly what should be done to make this year's campaign a successful one. Nevertheless, we do not want to take any chances. Therefore, we are appealing to every member of the motion picture industry to make a personal effort on behalf of National Brotherhood Week. We in the motion picture industry have a greater stake in the brotherhood of man than any other industry in the world.

Please accept on behalf of Mr. Hyman and myself our advance thanks and appreciation for a smashing campaign success starting Feb. 18th.

Cordially,

Alex Harrison

VOLUME 61 • NO. 15

FEBRUARY 18, 1959

THE FIVE "SHOWMEN-OF-THE-YEAR"

BACK IN THE ISSUE of Feb 12, 1958, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR introduced the first separately bound, punched for saving in a ring binder, and cumulatively indexed for ready reference EXPLOITATION department. In the 11 months between then and the end of 1958, showmen in many lands submitted over 2,000 individual accomplishments for the initial "shake-down" judging by our editors, headed by feature editor George Nonamaker, out of which 186 survived, were edited and were published.

One year ago, we promised that: "At the year's end, all published stunts or campaigns will be submitted to a special 'COMMITTEE OF 100,' carefully chosen from leading theatre circuit executives around the world, and from their votes will be chosen the first five 'SHOWMEN-OF-THE-YEAR'" who would divide a $1,000 cash prize posted by this publication.

At a later date, Norman Wasser of the Pepsi-Cola Company added five of their handsome Pepsi Cooler chests as a showmanship "bonus."

So, one day recently, we selected at random the names of 120 top executives of circuits of 10-or-more theatres and asked them to peruse the 186 entries and vote their first five choices of the BEST. To their credit, in less than one week we had 109 volunteers. Their names will be announced later.

But the judging is taking place, and we expect to list the winners in the last issue of February. We believe that the quick acceptance by top circuit men indicates that they have been watching and reading these submissions as published, and that they may have already concluded who the smart managers are. On the success of such smart promotional efforts rests the success of many a theatre.

Here is a special invitation to all theatre managers.

Once again, starting with the first issue of this January, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR initiated another $1,000 prize contest. We hope to announce more additional prizes as the year goes on. Each published effort will receive a handsome ACHIEVEMENT CITATION. And, once again, the five winners will be crowned "SHOWMEN-OF-THE-YEAR."

So when you see the pictures of the five 1958 winners on the front covers of five consecutive issues of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR . . . don't envy the success of such hard-working guys. Be one of them a year from now!

A $22,812,500 STRAW... AIN'T HAY!

THAT PITTSBURGH clearance experiment makes us worry, and we do hope that those responsible for it are long-headed enough to see the whole potential before doing irreparable damage to the entire industry structure.

Splitting cities or areas into zones, and assigning to such zones fewer prints and more clearances than formerly, may result in scarcities and competitions that will produce higher film rentals, but in today's market it will also put an inexorable squeeze on all following runs. For the past decade it has been those following runs, existing on two-day and split week dates of many-more-but-older pictures, that have felt the pinch of fewer and fewer first-class playable features. Because of this pinch they have been forced to play many an unprofitable picture and to pay the same or even higher relative prices than the same pictures commanded in the earlier and more profitable first-runs. And we now know that between 5,000 and 6,000 of such following runs have failed.

Today, many more are marginal and barely holding their economic heads above water, so any lengthening of clearances or any other lessening in value without a compensating lessening in price, will close them up in wholesale lots.

This is the kind of situation that we sometimes wonder whether the supposedly clever distribution executives really think out.

Ten years ago, this industry was richer not only in millions-of-admissions-per-week but in number-of-points-of-sale-per-million-patrons. Each of those points-of-sale served some particular type of clientele, paid the salaries of some locally influential theatre employees, and paid revenue of some sort back to the distributor and through him to the producer for every picture played.

Let's suppose that all 5,000 of those points-of-sale that have been closed were of the last-run and cheapest possible film rental variety. Let's suppose that they all paid only the irreducible minimum film rental of $12.50 per day. But they operated 365 days per year. So let's multiply $12.50 per day, times 365 days per year, times 5,000 theatres. You'll find it comes to $22,812,500! And that's enough to pay for an entire year's production schedule for all but the biggest studios.

Now! What will happen if this fritzing around with bidding zones and clearances, that may add another $100,000 to a big picture's national gross, results in being "the straw that breaks the camel's back" and puts another 5,000 subsequent run theatres out of business?

Can this industry's producers stand another $22,812,500 annual revenue loss? On top of the one they have already taken?

We most sincerely doubt it!

In order to be an Opinion Maker—you've got to have Opinions!

Letters . . .

UNSOLICITED • The letters from readers which appear on this page are not solicited. MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR does not suggest questions to readers in order to provide a flow of letters.

From FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.

Enclosed find an editorial from The Fayetteville Observer, that is North Carolina's oldest (1817) and one of its best read newspapers. Although not intended to help theatre business, it still serves to bring into focus and to call the public's attention to the great myth of TV entertainment.

What a wonderful editorial it could have been if the sentence had been added: "GET MORE OUT OF LIFE . . . GO OUT TO THE MOVIES!"

RICHARD McKINNEY, Manager
Fox Twin Drive-In Theatres

EDITOR'S NOTE: The editorial in question is being reproduced elsewhere on this page for the edification and for the amusement of our more literate readers. It's the kind of writing we would like to have written. So it's easy to understand why this newspaper is among "the best read."

From LANCASTER, O.

We are constantly bothered by patrons regarding Legion of Decency ratings on certain pictures. Might it be possible for MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR to publish a list of the pictures that are now being shown on TV that were originally condemned or found objectionable? This would help somewhat to offset criticism of theatres.

T. M. ALFRED, President
Hocking Theatre Co.
Lyric Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: It is safe to say that ALL features distributed by this industry prior to 1948 are now available for showing on TV, and many more recent ones besides. So to publish a complete list of the "C" (Condemned) and "B" (Objectionable in Part) features since the start of the Legion of Decency in February, 1936, to date, would be a pretty voluminous chore. However, the National Legion of Decency, 453 Madison Avenue, New York 22, N.Y., has prepared a 250 page booklet indexing their classifications up to November, 1955, and has prepared smaller annual booklets since then. They may still have supplies available.

And we can assure you that you will now find "FOREVER AMBER," "FRENCH LINE," and many a less publicized "B" and "C" on "The Late Show."

From SELLERSVILLE, PA.

The attached TV program was mailed to everyone in this locality. It looks like a better release schedule than we have.

BERNARD HAINES
Selvil Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Columbia Broadcasting Company station's schedule of old movies for 27 days (Jan. 5 thru Jan. 31, 1959) showed two different features per day, such as "WAKE ISLAND" with Robert Preston, Brian Donlevy, and William Bendix; "GOING MY WAY" with Bing Crosby; "STATE OF THE UNION" with Spencer Tracy, Katherine Hepburn, and Van Johnson, "THIS GUN FOR HIRE" with Alan Ladd and Veronica Lake; "RED RIVER" with John Wayne and Montgomery Clift; etc. The other 49 pictures starred such names as Bob Hope, Claudette Colbert, Ray Milland, Brian Aherne, Jean Simmons, Robert Mitchum, Henry Fonda, Dorothy McGuire, Ann Blyth, Rex Harrison, Dana Andrews, Linda Darnell, Donald O'Connor, Robert Ryan, Gary Cooper, Frank Sinatra, Jane Russell, Randolph Scott, Joel McCrea, Alec Guinness, Gregory Peck, Louis Jourdan, Gene Tierney, Victor Mature, Robert Stack, Farley Granger, Shelley Winters, and a lot of others. Y'know! Maybe he's got something! Any distributor with that kind of star power would be shouting to the skies and announcing 60 per cent "floors."

CRITIC EWALD: CALLS SPADES SPADES

Probably the strongest opinions that appear in The Observer spring from the typewriter of William Ewald, television critic for the United Press, whose column appears six days a week in this newspaper.

Mr. Ewald, when he doesn't like a program, says so, and he has an extremely caustic way of saying it.

A prime example was in his Tuesday column, when he reviewed the Bell Telephone Company program, saying, "The . . . company distributes nice telephones but abysmal TV science shows. Obviously, the firm is long on technology but short on art."

He further went on to say of the program, which was called "The Alphabet Conspiracy," that "the whole product was a hodgepodge, a careless olio of jabber, chatter, prattle, gabble and clack." The master of ceremonies, he said, "delivered his lines as if he were delivering a funeral oration over a dead cat."

In the same column, writing about another show, Mr. Ewald wrote that "Jane Russell got off to a nice start Monday night for worst actress of the year honors . . ."

As will be noted from these examples, Mr. Ewald can be more poison-penned than most when he dislikes what he sees on television.

But the fact remains that we never get a complaint about Mr. Ewald's criticisms and we do get yells from readers when his column doesn't appear for some reason or other.

Truth to tell, television generally isn't measuring up in entertainment and many of the programs are just as bad as Mr. Ewald says they are.

Look at the top ten programs which the polls say are the most popular in the nation, and you find one comedy show, one of those giveaway gimmick things, and eight westerns.

Now this may be a reflection of the state of culture in the United States, but we have our doubts. What else, after all, is a person going to watch on TV these days if he doesn't watch a western? You can switch channels and almost not lose one hoofbeat or a single gunshot, and the plots are so similar that you won't lose anything there, either.

Television came along a few years ago with a new method of entering the living rooms of the nation and bringing entertainment, knowledge and education into those living rooms.

Some of the things it has done have been extremely worthwhile.

But it is failing its potential with the sort of tripe that makes up 80 per cent of the programs it is offering the public, and until it corrects this it will not achieve the status that it should.

Personally, we'll string along with Mr. Ewald, even if we think him a bit too violent at times.

(Reprinted from the Editorial Page of THE FAYETTEVILLE (N.C.) OBSERVER dated Thursday, January 29, 1959)

From CHICAGO, ILL.

The field of Spanish language motion pictures has expanded tremendously in the U.S.A. in recent years. Hundreds of theatres showing this kind of product are now being served by our offices in New York, Denver, Chicago, San Antonio, and Los Angeles. May we suggest that more attention should be given in MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR to such pictures, to their distributors, and to the theatres showing them?

LOUIS B. HESS, Manager
Clasa-Mohme, Inc.

EDITOR'S NOTE: In this, as in most things, a good trade paper is governed by the service needs of its subscribers. One isolated suggestion is not enough. But should a sizeable number request an expansion of our current attention to foreign product (even now greater than that given by any other trade paper) it will certainly receive our close study.

From WAYLAND, N. Y.

We subscribe only to MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR. Not for economic reasons, but because we believe it carries the news, all of the news, plus the reviews and booking data that are necessary to our business.

JAMES L. RUSSELL, Manager Legion Theatre

Fabian Urges COMPO Support

NEW YORK—S. H. Fabian, in behalf of the ACE executive committee, has sent a letter to all ACE area co-chairmen, urging them to enlist exhibitor support for the COMPO dues drive, which opened this week (Feb. 16).

Although COMPO has been given responsibility for 11 projects which had been included in both the ACE and COMPO programs, there has been no change in COMPO's annual dues. National Screen Service has distributed to all exhibitors a pamphlet, outlining the COMPO program and dues schedule, and, in accordance with annual custom, distributor salesmen will participate in the dues collection.

Col.'s Takiff Retires

NEW YORK—The retirement of Harry J. Takiff, vice-president and director of Columbia Pictures Realty Corporation, was announced with reluctance this week by Abe Schneider, president of Columbia Pictures Corporation.

Takiff served for 21 years as assistant to the late Jack Cohn, executive vice-president of Columbia, and for the past three years in his present official capacity. He will continue as consultant to the company. His permanent address in the future will be on the west coast.

BROADWAY GROSSES

Openings Feature Fair Week

NEW YORK—Two openings led the Broadway first-run parade as adverse weather conditions over the weekend rendered business only fair.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"THE INN OF THE SIXTH HAPPINESS" (20th-Fox). Paramount ($39,435)—The 10th and last week registered $20,000.

"SOME CAME RUNNING" (MGM). Radio City Music Hall ($147,610) — Thursday through Sunday accounted for $86,000, with the fourth and last week reported as $120,000. Stage show.

"THE HANGING TREE" (Warners). Roxy ($55,405)—Wednesday through Sunday accounted for $45,000, with the first week reported as $52,000. Stage show.

"NEVER STEAL ANYTHING SMALL" (U-I). Capitol ($33,350)—The opening week tally was $30,000.

"ANNA LUCASTA" (UA). Victoria ($22,900)—The fifth and last week reached $11,000.

"SEPARATE TABLES" (UA). Astor ($25,630)—The ninth week held well at $20,000.

"BELL, BOOK AND CANDLE" (Columbia). Odeon expected the eighth week to reach $9,700.

"A NIGHT TO REMEMBER" (Rank). Criterion reported the ninth and last week as $12,300.

"RALLY 'ROUND THE FLAG, BOYS" (20th-Fox). RKO Palace stated that the eighth week would reach $12,000.

UA Launches 40th Anniversary Session

LOS ANGELES—United Artists this week opened its 40th annual sales convention here, designed to map distribution of the finest concentration of product in its history. With James R. Velde, general sales manager, presiding, William J. Heineman, vice-president in charge of distribution, highlighted the company's dramatic growth and detailed the anniversary year release schedule representing a minimum of 29 "blockbusters" and a production investment of more than $65,000,000. He stressed the fact that UA viewed the industry's future with confidence and regarded theatrical films still as the top entertainment medium.

Arnold M. Picker, vice-president in charge of foreign distribution, reported that foreign grosses for the first nine weeks of 1959 are running 20 per cent ahead of the previous year, thanks to the company's policy of "global thinking." He made a strong pitch for expanded international promotion backed by personal appearance tours by stars. Picker also presented strong arguments favoring American participation in foreign film festivals.

Vice-president Max E. Youngstein revealed a 25 per cent increase in UA global promotion personnel and budget over the past year and at the same time blasted as "disgraceful" ad-publicity personnel firings now taking place in the industry. He challenged statements by companies claiming to increase their promotion expenditures at the same time they are reducing their staffs.

"Announcements about appropriations for higher expenditures mean nothing unless the company has the required manpower to create ideas and then go out and implement them," Youngstein declared, adding that all films must be aggressively pre-sold. UA, he noted, is spending more than $9,000,000 this year for its ad-publicity-exploitation programs.

ACE Prepares Many-Sided Campaign

Joint Committee Remains As Anti-Toll-TV Leader; "New Look" For Theatres Sought For Added Glamour

NEW YORK—At the end of a two day session last week, the executive committee of the American Congress of Exhibitors and the members of the six standing committees announced the following action:

1—The whole problem of fighting Toll-TV was delegated to the Joint Toll-TV committee, which has been engaged in this activity since 1954. This committee will inaugurate a grass roots campaign covering the entire country with the assistance of the ACE area chairmen to win the approval of Congress for the banning of Toll-TV.

The meeting was greatly encouraged by the report of two developments: (A) The spontaneous support for anti-Toll-TV in Congress. (B) In four cities which were menaced by local installation of Toll-TV, namely Los Angeles, San Francisco, Houston, and Galveston, the overwhelming public support resulted in defeating the Toll-TV adherents.

2—A committee was appointed to visit Washington, D.C., for clarification of the points set forth in the industry-government report previously adopted at the organizational meeting, as follows:

(b) Changes in the Consent Decree relating to Production-Distribution and Exhibition by former affiliated circuits.

(c) Pooling arrangements.

In connection with pools, a request was made that exhibitors forward to the committee pertinent information relating to any particular locality where it would be helpful to independent exhibitors if such arrangements were to be permitted.

Members of the committee going to Washington are as follows: Horace Adams, president, National Allied; George Kerasotes, president, TOA; Emanuel Frisch, past president of MMPTA; and Sumner Redstone, attorney and New England exhibitor.

In connection with the various points of the program of his committee, Adams requested the local area chairmen, within the next two weeks, to send in any factual material relating thereto.

The Small Business Administration has already granted one of the objectives of ACE, namely that drive-in theatres are eligible for loans as well as the conventional four-wall theatre. The committee will shortly visit officials of SBA in an attempt to expand the scope of Government financial aid to motion picture theatres. In this connection, if any exhibitors have information relating to their negotiations with local representatives of the SBA, it is requested that this data be sent to the committee, so that clarification, if necessary, can be obtained on a national level.

3—Ways and means are under study to raise money for production, to further the general interest of the industry and for administrative expenses. A committee consisting of William Forman and Bob O'Donnell was appointed to explore the possibilities of producing a series of shorts to promote industry welfare and glorify motion picture entertainment.

Skiatron Baseball Pay-TV Questioned By Congress

WASHINGTON—Spurred by the announcement of Skiatron that it plans to begin pay televising of West Coast baseball games this Spring, Senator William M. Langer, North Dakota Republican, author of a bill to forbid coinbox programming, asked the Federal Communications Commission to review again the question whether it has jurisdiction over cable TV.

Skiatron's plan for selling coverage of the Los Angeles and San Francisco league games, a move questioned in both cities, contemplates cable transmission piping programs into homes by special wires.

The House bill to prohibit commercial pay TV until Congress enacts an enabling law covers both airwaves and utility line programs. Early hearings have been promised. It was said that the Skiatron plan has not been presented "formally" at a meeting of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee members.

TOA Takes Own Tip; Buys Industry Stock

NEW YORK—George G. Kerasotes, president, Theatre Owners of America, revealed last fortnight that the organization has acquired stock in all of the major film companies as evidence of its faith in the future of the industry.

The purchase was made by TOA with its own funds in a move unprecedented among exhibitor organizations.

The amount of stock purchased was not disclosed, but Kerasotes said it was "sufficient to demonstrate to the film companies that TOA has faith in their future, and now has a personal stake in helping them to be successful."

The acquisition was made after a special poll of every member of the board of directors and executive committee of TOA to make certain that the move would have their full approval.

Kerasotes in a recent address urged that every theatre owner buy $1,000 worth of stock in the film companies for every theatre he operates, not only as a means of helping the film companies but to help insure his own future.

Para. Promotional Sessions

NEW YORK—Paramount began a series of special promotional meetings on current and forthcoming product here last fortnight with others to follow at Chicago, Dallas, and Hollywood.

Jerry Pickman, vice-president and director of advertising, publicity and exploitation, and Martin S. Davis, assistant director, conducted the New York meeting, which included Paramount's New York, Canadian, New England and Middle Atlantic promotional staffs.

Davis went to Chicago to hold meetings there with the company's midwestern promotional setup, and then to Dallas for similar parleys. He will then go to Hollywood for studio meetings with Herb Steinberg, studio publicity manager, and his staff and other western promotional representatives of the company.

AA's Flinn, Col. Bound, Replaced By Abrahams

NEW YORK—Steve Broidy, president of Allied Artists Pictures Corp., announced the appointment of Sanford "Sand" Abrahams to the post of national advertising and publicity director for the company.

Abrahams will succeed John C. Flinn, who leaves to join Columbia Pictures Corp. in an executive capacity on March 6. Flinn takes the post of studio publicity director, succeeding Al Horwitz.

Prior to his association with Allied Artists, where Abrahams has been assistant national advertising and publicity director for the past nine years, he headed up the Warner Bros. studio trailer dept., as well as advertising on the west coast. A former New Yorker, his east coast experience includes a term as advertising and publicity director of the New York state zone of the Warner Theatre circuit. Before that, he handled advertising for the Warner Broadway theatres and in the Warner Bros. home office.

"Defiant Ones" Honored

NEW YORK—The names of 34 award winners selected from all divisions of the Media of Mass Communications "for outstanding contributions to the cause of brotherhood" were announced last week by the National Conference of Christians and Jews at the New York Brotherhood Week luncheon held at the Hotel Astor.

The awards were offered only for work done in 1958, according to Taylor Mills, director of public relations of the Motion Picture Association of America, who has served since 1954 as chairman of the Media Awards Committee.

The winners, which include the current motion picture hit, "The Defiant Ones," received the National Brotherhood Award, the highest recognition conferred in the media field by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

The winning motion picture, starring Sidney Poitier and Tony Curtis, was produced by Stanley Kramer and released by United Artists. The film was cited for its "powerful story showing how intense hatred between a Negro and a white man chained together, develops into respect and understanding."

Pappas Joins Fox Board

NEW YORK—Thomas A. Pappas of Boston has been elected to the 20th-Fox Film Corporation's board of directors, it is announced by Spyros P. Skouras, president.

Pappas' election to the board now brings the membership to 11.

A noted New England financier and industrialist, Pappas is president of the C. Pappas Company, Inc., importers and exporters.

AB—PT Declares Dividends

NEW YORK—Leonard H. Goldenson, president of American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, Inc., announced last week that the board of directors declared the first quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share on the outstanding common stock and 25 cents per share on the outstanding preferred stock of the corporation, payable March 14 to holders of record on Feb. 20.

Loew's Good Stock Buy, Analysis Shows

NEW YORK—A New York Stock Exchange firm, Herzfeld and Stern, has brought out through its research department an analysis of Loew's, Inc. At present levels it is recommending the purchase of the stock as an "attractive speculation."

It feels the company is in a strong position because of financial condition, current earnings, future prospects, increasing diversification which will be enhanced by the proposed separation of theatre and production, the composition and investment of the board of directors, and the tremendous disparity between market and book value of certain assets.

H & F point out first quarter earnings of 49 cents as against last year's loss of 24 cents; cash holdings of $19.6 million compared to $15.4 million; debt reduction over 12 months was $7.9 million, while working capital increased $5 million.

The impending split is favorable market-wise. Among the assets undervalued on the balance sheet are station WMGM, carried at $223,000, but worth $6 million, and pre-1948 and pre-1956 product altogether written off, with a sales potential of $85 million. It is also noted that income from other than theatres and production was $6.4 million during the last year. H & F mention too, MGM holds oil-bearing property.

Turning to actual business, H & F list as current big money-makers "Some Came Running," "Gigi," and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." It predicts "Ben Hur," slated for fall release, has the potential of "Ten Commandments."

Finally, it calls attention to the conversion of two large studios into four smaller ones, enabling a hike in already successful TV production.

Doob Joins "Ben Hur" Staff

NEW YORK—Plans for a fall premiere of MGM's "Ben Hur" are moving ahead following the recent studio visit by President Joseph R. Vogel. Director William Wyler checks into the Culver City studio the first week in March to begin, with Sol C. Siegel, vice-president in charge of production, and the studio staff, the editing of the tremendous volume of footage shot on the $15,000,000 production.

At the same time, Oscar A. Doob, former Loew's Theatres ad-publicity head, and more recently handling special assignments in the MGM publicity department, will return to the company to work on the special campaign for the "Ben Hur" launching. He and Dan Terrell, MGM eastern publicity manager, will go to California March 2 for meetings with Howard Strickling, MGM ad-publicity director, and Morgan Hudgins, who has returned after handling publicity in Rome during production, and who continues to be assigned to the picture.

Phila. Variety Honors Durante

PHILADELPHIA—Variety Club Tent 13 last week held a most successful luncheon at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in honor of Jimmy Durante's 66th birthday.

The comedian was presented with a plaque proclaiming him "Clown Prince Of Mirth" by first assistant chief barker and co-chairman of the affair Jack Drucker.

Profits from the affair, which was attended by over 300, were earmarked for the camp for handicapped children.

N.Y. Theatre Licensing Measure Opposed By Exhibs As Censorship

MGM To Release 17 Through September

NEW YORK—John P. Byrne, general sales manager, announced last fortnight that MGM would release 17 pictures between this month and September. The actual scheduling this far ahead is one of the results of the long-range production policy developed at the MGM studios under the guidance of Sol C. Siegel, vice-president in charge of production, with Ben Thau, studio administrator, and the executive committee.

To be released this month are "Night Of The Quarter Moon," "The Journey," and "First Man Into Space."

In March, MGM will release "The Mating Game," with Debbie Reynolds, Tony Randall, and Paul Douglas, and "Nowhere To Go," with George Nader.

April will see the release of "Green Mansions," with Audrey Hepburn, Anthony Perkins, and Lee J. Cobb, and "Ask Any Girl," with David Niven, Shirley MacLaine, and Gig Young.

"The World, The Flesh and The Devil," starring Harry Belafonte, Inger Stevens, and Mel Ferrer, and "Watusi," starring George Montgomery and Taina Elg, are scheduled for May.

The June releases will be "Count Your Blessings," with Deborah Kerr, Rossano Brazzi, and Maurice Chevalier, and "The Big Operator," with Mickey Rooney.

In July, MGM will release Alfred Hitchcock's "North By Northwest," with Cary Grant, Eva Marie Saint, and James Mason, and "The Beat Generation," with Steve Cochran, Mamie Van Doren, Ray Danton, Fay Spain, Maggie Hayes, Jackie Coogan, and Louis Armstrong and his All-Stars.

"Tarzan, The Ape Man," new Tarzan adventure with Denny Miller, former UCLA basketball star, as the new Tarzan, and "For The First Time," Mario Lanza's new musical in Technirama and Technicolor, are the August offerings.

Scheduled for September are "The Scapegoat," with Alec Guinness and Bette Davis, and "The Angry Hills," with Robert Mitchum.

ALBANY—The joint Legislative Committee on "Offensive and Obscene" Material reported last fortnight the submitting of a bill to license exhibitors as one of three measures introduced into the State Legislature.

Such licensing would add force to a second committee proposal to ban "obscene" and "misleading" film advertising.

The third bill would extend present legal definitions of immorality and incitement-to-crime to the proposed film advertising measure.

All three bills would give the Motion Picture Division of the State Education Department more control over theatrical films and their advertising.

Public testimony on the proposed bills will be received at an Albany hearing the committee will hold on Feb. 26 in the Hotel Roosevelt at which time the committee will also consider bills already submitted to classify motion pictures. The licensing of television programs also will be studied.

The major committee proposal is a bill requiring exhibitors to obtain licenses to operate motion picture theatres in the state from the Motion Picture Division. Licenses would be issued for a "small fee" upon application to the division's director. They would be subject to suspension for showing of any film without a license or permit now required by law, and suspension upon arrest and conviction of an exhibitor for displaying, or offering for display and advertising any poster, banner, or advertising material which "violates standards" established by the second proposed bill. The license would also be lost upon a third arrest and conviction of an exhibitor for displaying or offering the above defined advertising.

Immediate opposition was voiced by exhibitor executives who promised immediate action against the legislation, terming it "censorship." Those voicing this opinion were Max A. Cohen, chairman of the board and first vice-president, Independent Theatre Owners Association of New York; S. H. Fabian, president, Stanley Warner Corporation, and treasurer, Theatre Owners of America; Emanuel Frisch, former president and board chairman, Metropolitan Motion Picture Theatres Association, and treasurer of Randforce Amusement Corporation; and Ernest Emerling, Loew's Theatres advertising executive.

MGM Ups Bebachick

NEW YORK—Ben Bebachick has been named branch manager at MGM's Boston exchange, it was announced by John P. Byrne, general sales manager.

Bebchick moves up from his position as assistant branch manager to succeed the late Ben Rosenwald.

Joining the company in 1927, Bebachick has been a salesman since 1937. In 1949, he became assistant branch manager, the position held until this appointment.

Dana Heads Rank Branch

NEW YORK—The appointment of Frank Dana to the post of Buffalo branch manager to replace Bert Freese, resigned, was announced by Foster Blake, general sales manager of Rank Film Distributors of America, Inc.

Dana has been with United Artists in Buffalo.

TOA Unit Leaders To Map Campaigns On Pay-TV, Military Theatres, Etc.

NEW YORK—Presidents and secretaries of the 24 state and regional units of Theatre Owners of America have been invited by national president George G. Kerasotes to join with him at a special luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D.C., on March 2, to map a program of action of national and state problems, TOA's headquarters announced last week.

Kerasotes has asked the unit heads to meet for a round table conference with the officers and staff of TOA to discuss mutual problems, and effect closer liaison among units and with the national office.

The luncheon and conference will be held during a free period in the schedule of the mid-winter board of directors and executive committee meeting which will run March 1-3, at the Mayflower Hotel. Topping the agenda will be discussions on means of strengthening the exchange area committees for the American Congress of Exhibitors, and TOA's national campaigns to ban pay-TV by Congressional legislation, to have military post theatres play films after neighboring commercial theatres, and guard against extension of any national minimum wage legislation to the theatre industry.

From the state and regional units are expected to come proposals to coordinate and exchange information on local censorship, minimum wage, daylight saving time, and local admission taxation.

Kerasotes said invitations had gone to the following presidents:

Richard M. Kennedy, Alabama Theatres Association; J. Fred Brown, Independent Theatre Owners of Arkansas; Lloyd Royal, Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee; Irving Levin, Northern California Theatre Association; Sam L. Irving, Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina; Pat McGee, Colorado Association of Theatre Owners; George H. Wilkinson, Jr., Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Connecticut; Arnold Haynes, Motion Picture Exhibitors of Florida.

Also, J. H. Thompson, Motion Picture Theatre Owners and Operators of Georgia; Russell Lamb, United Theatre Owners of Illinois; M. B. Smith, Kansas-Missouri Theatre Association; Martin J. Mullin, Allied Theatres of New England; Eddie Clark, Missouri-Illinois Theatre Owners; Sam L. Gillette, Mountain States Theatres Association; Clarence Golder, Montana Theatre Association.

Also, R. R. Livingston, Nebraska Theatre Association; Maury Miller, New Jersey Chapter of TOA; Ed Kidwell, New Mexico Theatre Association; Al Forman, Oregon Theatre Owners Association; Edward M. Fay, Theatre Owners of Rhode Island; Robert Hosse, Tennessee Theatre Owners Association; Joseph Strauss, Theatre Owners Association of Quebec; A. Julian Brylawski, Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Metropolitan D.C.; and Armand Marion, Jr., Theatre Owners of Washington, Northern Idaho, and Alaska.

GROUP INSURANCE PLAN EFFECTIVE MARCH 1

NEW YORK—Theatre Owners of America's Group Life Insurance program, offering coverage to members and their employees ranging from $5,000 to $20,000, will become

Kerasotes Hails Fox Move To Revive Stereo Sound

NEW YORK—The decision of 20th-Fox Film Corporation to again make prints available with stereophonic sound was hailed last week by George G. Kerasotes, president of Theatre Owners of America, as a "forward step for our industry."

In a letter to Spyros P. Skouras, 20th-Fox president, Kerasotes offered "the co-operation of our organization in any way possible to make exhibitors aware of the availability of stereophonic prints."

Loew's Managerial Changes

NEW YORK—Eugene Picker, executive vice-president of Loew's Theatres announces the following managerial changes in the metropolitan area:

J. Clyde Fuller, manager, Loew's State, on Broadway, has been transferred to Loew's Triboro, Astoria. Louis Falk, manager, Loew's Triboro, has been transferred to Loew's Premier. William Klenert, manager, Loew's Premier, moves to Loew's 175th Street, while Allan Isaacs, manager, Loew's 175th Street, has been transferred to Loew's Olympia. Harold McMahon, manager, Loew's Olympia, has been assigned as relief manager.

effective on March 1, it was announced last week by George G. Kerasotes, president.

Attainment of the necessary number of insured persons this week has enabled TOA to notify the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston to place the plan into operation, Kerasotes said. The initial group of TOA member applicants have been advised by telegram of the starting date.

Kerasotes said the plan would be kept open for a limited time to permit additional members to join. Thereafter, new applications will be accepted only on policy anniversary dates.

The unique program is believed to be the first of its kind available through a trade association to the exhibition portion of the industry. The plan offers two options: one wherein all salaried employees of members may be covered, the other in which only key management and supervisory personnel may be insured.

The Group Life Insurance program is the result of several years of work by a special TOA Committee, headed by Kerasotes, who at the time the plan was first conceived was an assistant president of TOA. The program will be administered by the Theatre Owners of America Group Life Insurance Trust, at TOA's New York headquarters, 1501 Broadway.

Under the program, TOA members will be able to obtain the coverage without medical examination. Coverage is as follows:

Salaried employees earning $2,500 to $5,000, $5,000 in insurance; earning $5,000 to $10,000, $7,500 in insurance; earning $10,000 to $15,000, $10,000 in insurance; earning $15,000 but less than $20,000, $15,000 in insurance; earning $20,000 and over, or an individual owner, partner, or active corporate officer, regardless of salary, $20,000.

Exhib Chairmen Join Brotherhood Drive

NEW YORK—National exhibitor chairman Edward L. Hyman last week announced his appointments of area exhibitor chairmen and co-chairmen for Brotherhood Week.

They include the following:

Albany: Elias Schlinger, Fabian Theatres; Boston: Martin J. Mullin, New England Theatres, and Edward M. Fay, Providence, R. I.; Buffalo: Arthur Krolick, Buffalo Paramount, and William Dipson, Dipson Theatres, Batavia, N. Y.; Charlotte: Ernest G. Stellings, Stewart-Everett Theatres; Chicago: David B. Wallerstein, Balaban & Katz, and Jack Kirsch, Allied Theatre Owners of Illinois; Cincinnati: James W. McDonald, Theatre Owners Corporation; Cleveland: Sam Schultz, Schultz Circuit; Dallas: Kyle Rorex, COMPO of Texas; Denver: Robert W. Selig, Fox Intermountain Amusement; Des Moines and Omaha: Woodrow R. Praught and A. Don Allen, Tri-States Theatres; Jacksonville: Sidney Myers, Wometco Theatres, Miami, Fla.; Los Angeles: William Thedford, Fox West Coast Agency, and Jerry Zigmond, California.

Also, Memphis: Jack D. Braunagle, United States, North Little Rock, Ark.; Milwaukee: Ben Marcus, Marcus Theatres; Minneapolis: Charles Winchell, Minnesota Amusement Corp.; New Haven: Harry F. Shaw, Loew's Poli Theatres; New York: Harold Rinzler, Randforce Amusement Corp., and Sol Schwartz RKO Theatres; Oklahoma City: Norman T. Prager, Criterion Theatre, and Paul Townsend, Stanley-Warner Management Corp.; Philadelphia: William Goldman, Goldman Theatres; Pittsburgh: M. A. Silver, Stanley Warner Management; Portland (Ore.): Al Forman, Forman Brothers, and M. M. Mesher; St. Louis: Tommy James, Missouri-Illinois TOA; Salt Lake City: John Krier, Fox Intermountain Theatres; San Francisco: Joseph Blumenfeld, Blumenfeld Theatres; Seattle: Oscar Nyberg, Evergreen Theatres, and William Connor, John Hamrick Theatres; and Washington: Julian Brylawski, and Sam Bendheim, Jr., Neighborhood Theatres Circuit, Richmond, Va.

Flexible Policy Set For Brotherhood Dates

A flexible policy for territorial observance of Brotherhood Week is revealed in a joint statement issued by national amusement industry chairman Alex Harrison and national exhibitor chairman Edward L. Hyman.

In this precedent-setting move, Brotherhood Week observances this year will be held during a period that will be determined by area exhibitor and distributor chairmen.

The decision results from suggestions by many area exhibitor and distributor chairmen who believe that, if more time were provided for local Brotherhood Week campaigning, new records for theatre collections and donations from other local-level sources would accrue.

Harrison and Hyman, suggest that local Brotherhood Week by the motion picture industry forces be held any time up to the May 2-4 week-end.

Kelly Rejoins Universal

NEW YORK—The appointment of William D. Kelly, former Universal branch manager in Atlanta, to the post of sales manager in Kansas City to replace Morris Relder, who has resigned, was announced by Henry H. Martin, general sales manager of Universal.

Columbus Parking Bill Ready For Legislature

COLUMBUS, O.—City of Columbus would be empowered to lease an area beneath the State House yard, in the center of the downtown theatre district, for an underground garage under provisions of a bill readied for introduction in the Ohio House of Representatives. The bill is expected to be introduced by Rep. Kline L. Roberts, Rep., Columbus.

Recently, the Ohio Supreme Court nullified the state law which authorized the Underground Parking Commission to erect a multi-million dollar garage on the State House site. The law was declared unconstitutional because it lacked uniform application throughout the state.

The Roberts bill may contain a provision which would allow city and county governments to lease state-owned property for similar purposes. This is expected to comply with the recent Supreme Court decision.

Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner said he would give the Legislature until the end of the session (this summer) to act on the bill.

COMPO Asks For Financial Support From Every Exhibitor In America

Tri-States Contract Sets "One Man In Booth" Policy

DES MOINES—New projectionists' contracts have been negotiated by Tri-States Theatres for its various theatre operations which will virtually eliminate the two-man shift from theatre booths in that part of the midwest, it has been learned.

Although the effective starting dates vary from city to city, contracts providing for one-man service have been ratified for Tri-States theatres in Kansas City, Omaha, Des Moines, Davenport, Rock Island, and Sioux City.

The two-man shift in the booth has been a long-time controversial issue, projectionists maintaining that it was a necessity for deluxe operations, while managements have claimed it was merely wasteful.

NEW YORK—A strong appeal for every exhibitor in the country to contribute to the support of COMPO is now on its way to 17,000 exhibitors from the COMPO Governing Committee, Ben Marcus, Abe Montague and Sam Pinanski.

Distributed through National Screen exchanges, the letter is accompanied by a folder setting forth COMPO's greatly enlarged program and a report by Pat McGee that COMPO's successful tax campaigns since 1954 will have added nearly a billion dollars to the industry's income by the end of this year.

The triumvirate's letter, addressed to "The Exhibitors of America," follows:

"COMPO has been charged with the responsibility of executing the most comprehensive program in its history. Details of this program are set forth in the enclosed pamphlet.

"This program has been approved by all the organizations represented in COMPO. It also should be emphasized that among its projects are several originally conceived by the American Congress of Exhibitors, but which ACE officials have asked COMPO to handle.

"If COMPO is to perform this gigantic task it obviously must have the financial support of every exhibitor in the country. We urge you, therefore, to make a contribution to COMPO at the rates listed in the pamphlet. You can do this either through a film company salesman, who will call on you shortly, or through your local exhibitor organization. As in the past, your contribution will be matched, dollar for dollar, by the distributing companies.

"In view of its past record and the great responsibility that has been placed upon COMPO we believe we are justified in expecting a contribution covering every theatre in America. Anything short of that not only will endanger this program; it probably would make it forever impossible for this industry to undertake any comprehensive co-operative effort aimed at putting the industry back on its feet again.

"For the sake of your own business we urge you to pay your COMPO dues."

New Variety Tent Charity

DES MOINES—The local Variety Club will undertake sponsorship of aid to victims of cystic fibrosis, a little-known but usually fatal disease occurring among children, it was voted at a luncheon meeting of the group.

The club will immediately establish a fund to be known as the Variety Children's Fund for Cystic Fibrosis, and will offer assistance to afflicted children of the Des Moines area whose families are unable financially to provide adequate care and drugs.

Members of the ladies' auxiliary of Variety were guests of the club to hear of the proposed new charity project, and Mrs. Don West, head of the women's group, volunteered the support of her organization in underwriting the purchase of several machines used in the treatment of the disease.

WB In Stock Buy

NEW YORK—Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., announces it has purchased 160,000 shares of its common stock from the Winfield Baird Foundation and the David, Josephine and Winfield Baird Foundation.

The NEW YORK Scene

By Mel Konecny

A MATTER OF CENSORSHIP: The Motion Picture Association of America last week sent out a fact sheet on censorship and its evils to the press throughout the country as well as to key exhibitors for specific use in their immediate areas.

Censorship is defined as prior restraint to control by law what people may see, hear, or read, and should not be confused with post restraint, which allows for the proper protection against the lewd, the indecent, and the obscene.

Only four states censor films, Maryland, Virginia, New York, and Kansas, and the censorship laws in the latter two are presently under attack. The question is asked why should these states be different from the other forty-five? Only a few American cities have censorship, including Memphis, Atlanta, and Chicago.

Back in 1952, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled unanimously that the motion picture is entitled to the same guarantee of freedom as other media of the press, and it has backed this up by ruling against every film case of censorship brought before it since. The only exception might be on the grounds of "obscenity."

The public is twice protected against "obscenity" by the Production Code and by state laws in every state. It is estimated between 90 and 95 per cent of American audiences see only pictures produced under the Code.

Censorship tends to have the rights of the many usurped and in effect turns them over to the few, and it undermines democracy by ultimately endangering all freedoms, the fact sheet says.

Censors have undertaken to extend their authority by classifying pictures for adults only as an alleged means of curbing juvenile delinquency. This is for the birds according to psychiatrists who claim no one medium of communication can be held responsible.

Books, magazines, and TV programs are not submitted to a censor prior to release to the public, so why should films be so subjected? Films seek no special favors. They ask only the same treatment as companions in communication.

Parents are primarily responsible for children's selections of books, newspapers, films, radio, and TV programs, which is as it should be. This personal responsibility should not be relegated to others.

THERE'S A FILM IN YOUR FUTURE: Just recently we've seen a number of pictures which offer much promise and entertainment. These few words are just a reminder to watch for them, and if you agree with us, fine. If not, we'll shoot ourselves.

Allied Artists has a fast-moving and absorbing hit in its story of "Al Capone." An audience roared itself hoarse the other night at a sneak of a funny MGM comedy called "The Mating Game," while drama lovers went for an off-beat type of entry called "The Journey," also MGM, which stars Yul Brynner and Deborah Kerr. Paramount has a wonderful drama in "The Black Orchid," a misleading title. People will want to see this once the word gets around.

20th Century-Fox's bid for attention is a compelling one in "Compulsion," which has a lot of "want-to-see" going for it if what we've heard is any criterion. United Artists has a rip-roaring, burlesque-type winner in "Some Like It Hot," its comedy of prohibition days starring Marilyn Monroe and Tony Curtis, and a sneak preview audience had a great time with some of the dialogue being drowned in laughter. For those who like their films heart-touching and heart-warming, we recommend U-I's "Imitation of Life," with Lana Turner, which will have men and women tearfully impressed. A fill of action is offered in Warners' "Rio Bravo," a super-western with John Wayne, Dean Martin, and Ricky Nelson.

from Columbia!

LONDON Observations

by Jock MacGregor

WHAT A TONIC it is to have lunch with Jim Carreras even though he is currently on a diet which precludes alcohol to get into training for his forthcoming visit to the states. He literally exudes enthusiasm for the industry. His success story is well known, Jim is not one to sit back. He goes from strength to strength.

His forthcoming trip will be unique. In these days when so many moan about the dire state of things, this independent will arrive in New York with not a single picture but a whole line-up of product to deliver to major distributors. This universal provider, who has proved with such offerings as "Curse of Frankenstein," "Horror of Dracula," and "Camp on Blood Island" that British pictures with British scripts and British casts can be international hits, will be handing to UA, "Hound of the Baskervilles" and "10 Seconds To Hell"; Columbia, "Yesterday's Enemy"; and Paramount "The Man Who Cheated Death"; and will show U-I the rushes of "The Mummy."

THE FILM INDUSTRY has been spotlighted during the week in the very best possible manner. Following hard on the glittering Royal Film Performance which gained nothing but kudos for everyone, the opening of the Columbia with "Gigi" garnered a terrific press. Though a cold stopped me attending, the radio at home kept me in touch with numerous references to the occasion as the hit numbers were played. It must have been a truly wonderful show, and I am so very glad to hear that Mike Frankovich was well enough to leave his sick bed to attend.

Incidentally, the demand for "Gigi" seats is only rivalled by that for "My Fair Lady," and bookings now run into the early summer. Road shows are really taking on here. "Around the World" is nearing its second year and I have lost count of how long "South Pacific" has been running. Discriminating patrons, tired of the pushing and shoving of the continuous show welcome the chance of booking and seeing a movie in comfort.

BACK FROM HOLLYWOOD and feeling that there is nothing wrong with the future is Irving Allen of Warwick. With "Bandit of Dhobi," starring Victor Mature, and "Idol on Parade," with William Bendix, awaiting premieres, shooting is about to start on "Adamson of Africa." Starring Robert Taylor with the British discoveries, Anthony Newley and Anne Aubrey, it will be directed by Richard Thorpe. It will be shot in Technirama. . . . Doing a first rate job for the independent British and American producers in the Italian market are Globe Films of Rome. For the last two years, they have been responsible for 22 per cent of all the monies grossed by British films in Italy. . . . Those who thought extended runs in the provinces could never be, should note that "South Pacific" celebrated its 39th Saturday at the Gaumont, Manchester by taking more money at the box office than on any previous Saturday during its run. . . . Thanks to the untiring efforts of Sydney Lewis, general manager Bill Cartlidge is able to announce that Associated British Cinemas are now in a position of having permission to open everyone of their theatres on Sundays. In 12 years, he has fought 151 campaigns. Final victory came recently with an overwhelming vote in favor of Sunday cinemas at Penzance in the West Country.

4—Three additional topics were added to the agenda of the proposed meeting with heads of production and distribution, as follows:

- (a) 16mm films
- (b) Production of more film in color
- (c) Request for more stereophonic sound with prints and increased publicity concerning such prints.

Adams reported that preliminary discussions had been initiated.

5—Under Industry Research, ACE is seeking a "new look" in motion picture presentation in both picture and sound, to enhance the glamour of motion picture theatres.

Hazard Reeves, who created CinemaScope sound, outlined a research program to attain this objective. He will serve on the committee and offered the facilities of his company to the committee.

Max Cohen, chairman of the Committee on Research, declared that the phrase "stereosound" had been grossly misused, so that its original meaning had become obscure. Cohen announced that the committee is anxious to find a new name or a descriptive phrase for the multi-channelled process for reproducing sound in theatres. Such a name would be copyrighted and reserved exclusively for theatre use.

6—Since the executive committee feels that it is vitally important for every theatre owner in America to be identified as a member of ACE, it has authorized a Certificate of Membership which will be issued to every exhibitor becoming a member of ACE. All constituent organizations and area chairmen will cooperate in distribution of applications and certificates.

7—Forman reported that the problem of post-1948 films was under continuing study.

George Kerasotes, chairman of the Toll-TV committee, reported that all the members of his committee will become members of the Joint Committee on Toll-TV.

Michael Edelstein, divisional manager, RKO Theatres, recently presented Academy Award star Joan Crawford with the first pair of reserved seats for the New York Palace showing of 20th-Fox's "The Diary Of Anne Frank." In private life, Miss Crawford is the wife of Alfred N. Steele, chairman of the board of Pepsi-Cola Company.

AB-PT Promotes Plitt To Head Film Unit

NEW YORK—Leonard H. Goldenson, president of American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, Inc., last week announced the appointment of Henry G. Plitt as president of ABC Films, Inc., an AB-PT subsidiary.

The appointment of Plitt, who for the past four years has been president of Paramount Gulf Theatres, also an AB-PT subsidiary, is effective immediately.

"The film syndication field is rapidly expanding, throughout the word as well as in the United States," Goldenson pointed out, "and under Plitt's leadership, ABC Films plans to get an increasing share of these expanding markets."

Plitt joined United Paramount Theatres, with which the American Broadcasting Company merged in 1953 to form AB-PT, in 1946 as district manager in Ohio, West Virginia, and Kentucky, where he started his programming activities by putting on stage shows for the district's theatres. In 1949, he was moved to New Orleans and promoted to division manager of the then Paramount-Richards (now Paramount Gulf) Theatres. Two years later, he was made vice-president of the Gulf chain, and on Dec. 31, 1955, was promoted to president. He is chairman of the committee for the development of new screen personalities for the Theatre Owners of America and chairman of the Academy Awards committee for the TOA.

Loew's-ABC Vending Awards

NEW YORK—Leonard Pollack, director of purchasing and concessions for Loew's Theatres, and Melvin L. Gold, sales manager of the newly formed exploitation novelties division of the ABC Vending Corporation, announce eight winners in the "tom thumb" candy stand decoration contest held at Loew's intown and out of town theatres.

The following managers will each receive a $25 award:

Danny Cohen, Loew's Kings Theatre, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Harold Graff, Loew's Orpheum, Manhattan; Lennie Edwards, Loew's "35," Keyport, N.J.; and Joe Beck, Loew's Gates, Brooklyn.

Out of town winners are Walter Kessler, Columbus; Frank Henson, St. Louis, Kermit Allum, Evansville, and Sam Gilman, Syracuse.

NTA Promotes Burns

NEW YORK—Vernon Burns, who heads the NTA office in London, has been named vice-president of NTA International, Inc., Harold Goldman, president of NTA International, announced last week.

Burns will supervise all NTA International's European operations, including feature and syndicated film sales, production, and theatrical and non-theatrical sales.

Lider Heads N.E. Unit

BOSTON—The annual meeting and election of officers for 1959 of Independent Exhibitors, Inc., and Drive-In Theatre Association of New England was held last week.

President Edward W. Lider gave a comprehensive report on ACE at the buffet luncheon session.

The following officers were elected: Lider, president; Julian Rifkin, first vice-president; Edwin Fedeli, second vice-president; Henry Gaudet, secretary; Melvin Safner, treasurer; and Nathan Yamins and Lider, national delegates. Carl Goldman was reappointed executive secretary.

ALBANY

Marked changes in the drive-in picture hereabouts are taking shape for the 1959 season. One of them saw the sale by the Lamont interests of Riverview, at Rotterdam (outside Schenectady) to Fabian Theatres. This was followed by the retirement of general manager Robert Lamont from the organization founded by his late, older brother, Harry, and his affiliation with Alan V. Iselin's Tri City Drive-In Theatres. Another Lamont drive-in, the Sunset, Kingston, was expected to be purchased by Walter Reade, Jr. At least one more ozoner, which had been operated by partners, is slated for new ownership in the spring. This is not a Lamont unit. . . . The Albany Variety Club's Camp Thacher fund will be the beneficiary of the premiere which the Times-Union is to sponsor of "South Pacific" in Todd-AO at the Ritz on Feb. 19. Stanley Warner has turned over the 1125-seat house for the occasion. The film will play the Ritz on a 10-performances a week basis. The house has closed for installation of the Todd-AO process. Al Swett, SW district manager and Strand house manager, will move to the Ritz for the engagement, with his assistant, Bill Gobel, taking over at the Strand. Marie Bartley, Strand cashier, switches to the Ritz as treasurer.

ATLANTA

Lamar Kirks, formerly with MGM, has resigned. . . . James Reynolds, Union Point, Ga., has leased his Madison, Madison, Ga., to Henry Lanham. . . . A cyclone which swept through Fayette, Ala., demolished the screen tower of the Dixieland Drive-In. . . . Mrs. Barbara Chupp is the new receptionist at Martin Theatres. . . . Tom Luck, Exhibitor Service Company, is back at his office following an illness. . . . Ann Morgan, Theatres Service, is back at work following surgery at a local hospital. . . . Charlie Crute, Lyric Amusement Company, Huntsville, Ala., is going to install a new air conditioning system in his Lyric, Huntsville, Ala. . . . Tom Brett, Sr., whose son operates the Arcade, Sandersville, Ga., died at his home.

BOSTON

Cinema Lodge of B'nai B'rith held a testimonial luncheon in honor of Jimmy Durante at the Hotel Bradford with proceeds benefiting the Jimmy Fund. . . . The Drive-In Theatre Association of New England held its fifth annual day-long meeting and luncheon at the Hotel Bradford on Feb. 17. Julian Rifkin was chairman. Open discussions were held from the floor. . . . Harry Browning has been brought in as temporary general manager of the new Fenway by operators Lloyd Clark and Winthrop Knox, Jr. He will remain in that spot until the reopening of the Medford Twin Drive-In. He has appointed Bill Barker as house manager and John Cox, Jr., as assistant. . . . Al Daytz, Daytz Theatres, has taken a lease on the State, Bridgton, Maine, from owner Mrs. Alberta Millette. He will start operating soon.

BUFFALO

One of the highlights of the promotion campaign on "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker," current at the Paramount was a search conducted for Buffalo's largest family by Jack Eno of radio station WEBR. A $50 U.S. Savings Bond went to the winning family, the members of which were driven to the opening in old time autos, similar to those featured in the film. There also was a special invitation screening for teen-agers, for which Warren Michael Kelly, station WGR, acted as host. Phil Engel, 20th-Fox exploitation force, was in town assisting manager Edward Miller on the advance campaign. . . . Arthur Krolick, district manager, Buffalo and Rochester, American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, has been appointed Buffalo exchange area exhibitor chairman of this year's industry participation in Brotherhood Week fund raising for the National Conference of Christians and Jews. William Dipson, head, Dipson Circuit, has been named co-exhibitor chairman. . . . Robert Boasberg, prominent Buffalo attorney, and brother of Charlie, Warners national sales manager, was one of the successful candidates for director of the Greater Buffalo Advertising Club. . . . George Mason and Rita Inda, Century, with an assist from Dave Kane, Columbia exploiter, got some excellent TV plugs for "Bell, Book and Candle" when they tied in with the WKBW-TV show "For the Ladies," of which Doris Jones is the hostess. It was a "Kim Novak Look-Alike Contest," and Mrs. Pat Spector won a week-end trip to New York City. . . . The State Lottery Control Commission will hold a session in Buffalo's City Hall on Feb. 9 to explain the bingo licensing law and procedures of the commission.

CHARLOTTE

North Drive-In, Greensboro, N. C., has obtained a permit to rebuild at a cost of $11,000 a screen destroyed by fire recently. . . . Steps to prevent adults from molesting young children during matinee hours at downtown theatres have been taken by Charlotte movie house operators in cooperation with city officials. The plans were mapped at a conference after the City Council received several complaints from parents. Theatre managers gave assurance that precautions have been taken to prevent recurrence of such incidents. These include better lighting and assignment of a person to patrol the aisles. It also was urged that children be instructed to report any incident immediately to the manager, usher, or ticket seller. It also was recommended that children should be permitted to remain for one show only. It was pointed out that mothers often use movie houses for baby sitting purposes, leaving their youngsters for several hours.

CHICAGO

For the 10th consecutive year Jack Kirsch, president, Allied Theatres of Illinois, was appointed by the Chicago Council, Boy Scouts of America, to head the 1959 campaign in the amusement and theatre division of the drive. . . . The new round screen process, Cinetarium, has appointed William Rebane as American representative. He will work from offices just opened locally. The process will be presented at the Chicago Trade Fair in July. It is the invention of a German scientist and is reported to have done well in Paris. . . . Everett Olson is now heading the publicity department at the Paramount exchange. . . . Mrs. David Wallerstein, wife of the B & K president, received a citation from the Lower North Center Boys Club for her untiring work for the group. . . . J. Grossman was named Roosevelt co-manager. . . . Lou Philon's Liberty, Michigan City, Ind., was destroyed with other buildings in a half million dollar fire. . . . Donald D. Walden was named B & K insurance division manager succeeding William Holden, resigned. . . . The Hebron, Hebron, Ill., reopened. . . . Herb Con, manager, and Ann Smalley, chief inspectress, Paramount exchange, received inscribed watches for 25 years of service. . . . The Lincoln, Homewood, Ill., has been renovated throughout. . . . B &

K is installing Todd-AO at the Valencia, Evanston, Ill. . . . Unanimous endorsement of ACE was given by a meeting of area theatre owners called by James Coston, Jack Kirsch, and Dave Wallerstein, Chicago area exhibitor co-chairmen of ACE.

It was erroneously reported recently that Jack Springer, former Jackson Park manager, was named by Smith Corporation to supervise its 66 Drive-In and the Ridge, Griffith, Ind.

CINCINNATI

Considerable local interest has been aroused by an eight-week "Silent Film Festival" in the Evening College, University of Cincinnati. The rare old masterpieces, furnished by Audio Film Center, Chicago, trace the history of silent films from its two-reeler days 50 years ago to the 1920's. . . . The Golden Age Movie Club, composed of persons 60 or older, now has more than 5,000 members here. Sponsored by the Post and Times-Star, it provides lower admissions for oldsters at four downtown movie houses. . . . Robert Laws, president, and other officers of IATSE, Local F-37, were reelected. . . . Harold Moore, Charleston, W. Va., exhibitor, is now booking and buying for the Gauley, Gauley Bridge, W. Va., and Frank Weitzel, local independent, is booking and buying for Starlight Drive-In, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. . . . Reopened recently were the Gallagher, Gallagher, W. Va., and the Pioneer, Glenville, W. Va.

CLEVELAND

"South Pacific" holds the run record here. . . . The Variety Club testimonial to outgoing chief barker David Rosenthal, UA branch manager, and installation of new officers headed by chief barker Jim Levitt, Buena Vista branch manager, has been postponed until March 2. . . . Cloverleaf Drive-In suffered flood damage when water rose to the top of speaker posts. . . . The State, Barnesville, Ohio, closed, leaving the town without a movie theatre. . . . Variety Club Auxiliary members attended a farewell luncheon in honor of Mrs. Fay Weiss, former president, who is leaving to join her husband, Sam, now in Cincinnati. . . . A group of Variety Club members and their wives have formed a dancing class and take lessons once weekly. . . . Condolences to Dolores Smith, secretary to Universal branch manager Norman Weitzman, upon the death of her mother. . . . The ACE story was told to area exhibitors at a meeting held in the 20th-Fox screening room. . . . The Jewel and the Norwood, both old-timers, ceased operation. . . . The Diana, Rittman, Ohio, and the Pauling, Pauling, Ohio, also closed. . . . Local F-Five, IATSE, met and reelected all officers for a two year term. . . . It's practically set that Warners and Universal will move from their separate present buildings into the Film Building, which they occupied some 20 or more years ago.

DALLAS

Fellow employees of the 20th Century-Fox southwestern district headquarters turned out at the Variety Club to pay tribute to W. S. (Sebe) Miller on his last day of service with the company. Miller, sales manager for the district office here, has been with 20th Century-Fox for 41 years, all in Dallas. The fellow workers presented Miller with a fishing rod and reel. Also at the luncheon were Miller's wife and son, W. S. Miller, Jr., who is in the film business as assistant branch manager here for Walt Disney Productions. . . . Eric A. Johnston, will be the speaker for the May 13 anniversary luncheon at the Dallas Chapter of the Women of the Motion Picture Industry. . . . The Delta Phi Epsilon Alumnae Association's annual movie benefit for Dallas Services for Blind Children will be held at the Coronet. The first two performances of "Two Loves Had I," the life story of the composer, Puccini, will be at 8 and 10 p.m. . . . Phil Lowe, president of the National Association of Concessionaires, was to conduct a forum on "Food Is Your Fortune" at the Texas Drive In Theatre Owners Association convention at the Hotel Adolphus on Feb. 16 through 18. . . . Hollywood Pictures Corp., headed by B. R. and Gordon McLendon, completed its first feature length film, "The Killer Shrews," after two weeks shooting at Lake Dallas, with final shots made in the United National studios here.

The picture will be readied for a June release, with a local premiere possible. Budgeted at $300,000, it is the first of two features coproduced by McLendon and Ken Curtis, who is also seen in the picture, with Ray Kellogg, director, and Ben Chapman, production manager. . . . Alfred Sack, operator, Coronet, which is observing its 10th anniversary as an art house here, will admit free the first 10 patrons reaching the Coronet any day during the 60 day period ending Feb. 23. Hulda Ailvernail is manager of the Coronet.

DES MOINES

Leo Wolcott of Eldora, Iowa, veteran exhibitor and board chairman of Iowa-Nebraska Allied, is recovering from a series of heart attacks and is expected to leave the hospital shortly. . . . Frank Zanotti, booker for Universal at Des Moines, is the proud father of a new son, Francis Joseph. . . . The Cooper Foundation theatres announced they will close indefinitely the Broadway, Council Bluffs, Iowa. . . . A. H. Blank, head of Tri-States Theatres, and Mrs. Blank have left on a three-month tour which will take them to Africa and other foreign points. . . . The Paramount, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is bringing back its "mighty Wurlitzer" with special shows on Sunday. The house is equipped with one of the largest organs in the country.

DETROIT

Jean Kennedy, who for the past five years has directed advertising and publicity for the Fox, was given a farewell luncheon at the Hotel Statler. Tendering the luncheon were the newspaper and radio film reviewers and commentators, and her associates at the Fox. She transfers to New York City where she will become part of Talent Associates, headed by David Susskind. Managing director Robert Bothwell has made no announcement concerning her successor. . . . Michigan Allied has undertaken to reduce shipping costs in Detroit by sending members a form to be filled out, authorizing it to consolidate shipments of film, advertising materials, trailers and packages on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays, and Sundays. This results from an agreement now in effect with Film Truck Service, Inc. of a minimum of $1 per shipment. It marks peaceful co-existence between truckers and exhibitors after a year of petitions for higher hauling rates, public hearings, and negotiation. Allied has advised out-state operators to restrict movement of advertising material, packages and trailers to those days on which it is receiving film. . . . The unit has also distributed to all its members the "Summary of Charges Against the Department of Justice Made by the Independent Motion Picture Theatre Owners." This was issued by National Allied, which states that for those wanting to know details of matters listed in the "Summary," it is willing to mail them free the booklet, "What the Motion Picture Theatres Mean and What You Can Do to Save Them."

HOUSTON

Poll tax receipts were worth their weight in tickets to the Metropolitan and to the showing of "Bell, Book and Candle." Free admission was offered to any woman showing a poll tax receipt at the boxoffice. The offer was good during the matinee and was withdrawn at 5 p.m. The special offer was made by the Interstate Theatre Circuit to stimulate interest in the payment of poll taxes. . . . The Bellaire, operated by Gen. Victor A. Barraco, will observe its 10th anniversary on April 16. Plans are underway for the big celebration. . . . "If we have to pay adult prices, we should be able to see adult movies." This logic was propounded at the Community Youth Assembly at the University of Houston. It came close on the heels of Mayor Lewis Cutrer's announced desire to censor movies and literature for teen agers through his Youth Citizenship Committee. The youth assembly proposed teen age movie prices, a proposal that came out of a workshop discussion on "What should our community do about delinquent youth." Cutrer said neither he nor his commission have anything in mind like censorship laws. He explained that censorship would be an advisory measure, the establishment of a board that would merely recommend against movies and literature found to be really objectionable. Two representatives from each high school will be asked to serve on a subcommittee of the Youth Citizenship Committee. The panel that made the movie recommendations was composed of 14 students chosen from a cross section of participating teen agers, in the Community Youth Assembly.

JACKSONVILLE

Jim Carey at Loew's Normandy Twin Outdoorer switched back to a first-run policy with the double bill of "Sins of Lola Montes" and "Women of Wongo," and Mike Meiselman did the same at the Town and Country with an exploitation drive for the opening of "Never Love a Stranger." . . . Thomas P. Tidwell, 20th-Fox branch manager; Tommy Tucker, TV and radio headliner; Franklin Frady, San Marco projectionist; and Byron Adams, UA branch manager, begun a series of personal calls to the offices of TV and radio stations to inform airways personnel of the benefits and purposes of the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital in preparation for the next hospital drive. . . . Nearly 4,000 women viewed free showings of films prepared by the American Cancer Society at the Edgewood, Capitol, San Marco, Town and Country, Five Points, Beach and Negro-patronage Strand theatres. Teams of local doctors were on hand at each theatre to answer questions from the audience. . . . As another instance of public service by local exhibitors, local theatre screens gave a week of free screen advertising to the United Cerebral Palsy Telethon being conducted over a period of 16 hours in the auditorium of the Hotel George Washington on Feb. 14.

MIAMI, FLA, NEWS—Daniel Shull is manager, Davie Blvd. Drive-In, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. . . . Andrew Malanos is assistant manager, Gateway, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., replacing Bill Mix, resigned. . . . Mike Rosenkranz, manager, Cameo, Miami Beach, Fla., enjoyed a one-week vacation as first prize winner of Wometco's "Dollars For Christmas" contest. Mike's theatre had the youngster who sold the most Wometco Thrif-Tik-It Books during the contest, which ended Christmas Eve. Wometco is continuing the Thrif-Tik-It Book sales throughout the year, giving a commission to the youngsters who sell the books. . . . Mrs. Mitchell Wolfson, wife of the circuit co-owner, was chairman of the benefit premiere of "Inn of the Sixth Happiness" at the Carib, Miami Beach, Fla. Proceeds went to The Queen's Fund for Greek Orphans, Inc., sponsored by Queen Frederika of Greece.

Tutrovansum, Tutwiler, Miss., is operating again after a brief shutdown, and 65 Drive-In, Conway, Ark., is on week-end operation. . . . Ouachita, Mount Ida, Ark., is closed, as is the James, Cotton Plant, Ark. . . . Joiner, Joiner, Ark., closed. . . . Skylark Drive-In,

Frank H. Ricketson, Jr., former general manager, National Theatres, Inc., is among 15 leading citizens named by President Eisenhower to the board of trustees of the $25,000,000 national cultural center to be built in Washington, D.C.

Clarksdale, Miss., has closed until warm weather, as have Fulton Drive-In, Fulton, Ky., and West Point Drive-in, West Point, Miss. . . . Charles R. Bonner advises that he has closed Pines Movie, Pine Bluff, Ark., and L. N. Hynes has sold his theatre at Nettleton, Ark., to W. T. Vaughan. It has been reopened as the Vaughan. . . . Strand, Ripley, Tenn., which burned in late December, has not been rebuilt. . . . Predicts Edwin Howard, Press Scimitar amusements editor, "The big thing on the screen in 1959 will be the best-seller. Books have always been important to Hollywood, but never so important as now. To a producer, a best-selling book—whether fiction or non-fiction—is a pre-sold picture in the raw."

MINNEAPOLIS

Charles Rubenstein has closed his 600-seat neighborhood Dale, St. Paul, bringing to more than a dozen the number of theatres which have closed in the Twin Cities in the past two years. . . . Paul Mans bought the 450-seat Oxboro, suburban Oxboro, from Otto Kobs. Mans also is a partner in the Richfield, suburban Richfield. Kobs retains his Flying Cloud Drive-In. . . . Ev Olson is again handling the exploitation for Paramount, Minneapolis, headquartering in Chicago. At one time he was associated with the Minneapolis branch as exploiter before being transferred to Charlotte, N. C. . . . Work is progressing on the new drive-in at the intersection of Highways 36 and 61 north of St. Paul, which Chet Herringer is building. A spring opening is scheduled. . . . James Dam is the new owner, Bill's Theatre, Tyler, Minn. House formerly was operated by William Jensen. . . . Alvin Thompson and Donald Johnson are the new owners, State, LaCrosse, Wis., having purchased the house from Frank Lesmeister. A theatre in Dodgeville, Wis., will be operated by Lesmeister. . . . Kenneth Prouty, formerly of British Columbia, is the new assistant manager, Gopher. . . . The Strand, Preston, Minn., closed for the winter. . . . The Lake, Eden Valley, Minn., also closed. . . . New projection equipment was installed in the Avery, Garner, Iowa, according to C. E. Mosher, manager. . . . A fire, believed to have started in the "attic" of the house, destroyed the Wells, Wells, Minn., operated by Sid Heath. Theatre was unoccupied at the time. . . . Most loop theatres have hiked admissions to $1 from 90 cents following the removal of the federal tax. Fewer advance admissions for special pictures are expected in the future, however. . . . About $13,000 was netted from the two performances of the Beryozka dancers sponsored by the women's auxiliary of the Variety Club of the Northwest and the University of Minnesota. The proceeds will be used to buy oxygen units for the Variety Heart hospital on the university campus.

NEW HAVEN

The theatre had been previously operated by Tom Sandell and associates, also on lease from Rifkin. . . . Lockwood and Gordon's Candlelite-Pix Twin Drive-In, Bridgeport, Conn., has been reopened, following installation of in-car heaters, which are being provided on a free basis. . . . Eric Crawshaw has been reelected president of Local 439, IATSE, New London, Conn. Also serving are Leslie Nowell, vice-president; John S. Kane, financial secretary and treasurer; Benjamin H. Rose, recording secretary; Frederick C. Nowell, business agent; and trustees and executive board, Thomas Kenure and Anthony Osowski. . . . Mickey Daley, president, Daly Theatres Corporation, Hartford, has named William Ricks, who recently completed seven years of service as manager of U.S. Army base theatres in various locations, as manager of the 1800-seat subsequent-run Daly, Hartford. In addition, Ricks will supervise the Daly interests' recently-reopened Plainfield Cinema, Plainfield, Conn., a 500-seat first-run. Ricks succeeds Henry Gain, who has left the Daly organization. . . . Hartford Superior Court Judge Louis Shapiro has reserved decision in the $250,000 law suit by New Britain, Conn., theatre owners and operators against the city of New Britain, following a hearing in Hartford Superior Court. The suit, pending since mid-1958, was brought by the Connecticut Theatrical Corporation, Stanley Warner subsidiary, owner and operator of the Strand and Embassy; and Peter G. Perakos, owner, Palace, and lessee of George LeWitt's Arch St., on the contention that presence of policemen on duty in theatres is contrary to both federal and state laws. Judge Shapiro has ordered opposing counsel to file briefs by Feb. 11. . . . A proposed bill that might affect both drive-in and four-wall theatre attendance by teen-agers has been introduced into the Connecticut Legislature by Senator Clement L. Raiteri. The measure would ban teen-age drivers from Connecticut roads between midnight and six A.M.

NEW ORLEANS

Henry G. Plitt, president, Paramount Gulf Theatres, was honored in Jackson, Miss., by Local 589 IATSE at a buffet supper given by the union in the Hotel Heidelberg. He was given a gold lifetime honorary membership card, highest honor given by the IATSE.

Studio manager William Kanefsky had an article, "How (not) To Enjoy A Good Movie" in Tempos magazine. . . . Former industryite now a shut-in Burt Stanley, who is at the Charles Johnson Home, Royersford, Pa., would like to hear from some of his old friends. . . . Ellis Theatres got the permission of Wilmington, Delaware, authorities to install shields around street light in the vicinity of their Kerry Drive-In so that unwanted light will not shine in and yet will not interfere with the street lighting. . . . The Theatrical Square Club of Philadelphia Number 1127 has opened membership to include all of the affiliated trades and associations in the motion picture and entertainment industry. All Masons in good standing in their respective Blue Lodges are invited to join by contacting the secretary, David Weinstein, 1548 E. Passyunk Avenue, Philadelphia.

ST. LOUIS

The 600-car capacity St. Charles Drive-In has been taken over by the Jablonow-Komm Theatres, Overland, Mo., under a lease with St. Charles Drive-In Theatre Company, St. Charles, which opened the spot in July, 1951. For the past two seasons the drive-in had been operated under a lease by Herbert P. Hartstein, University City, Mo. . . . The Trojan, Troy, Mo., has been taken over by Louis H. Walton, Jr., and Francis G. Handlong, former employees of the theatre, under a deal closed with Lieutenant Governor Edward V. Long through his Long Theatre Company. . . . The local Longwood is to be converted into a bowling alley. . . . The Frisina, Taylorville, Ill., closed. . . . The Job, Pawnee, Ill., is being remodeled. . . . Fred Wehrenberg Theatres' South Twin Drive-In will reopen Feb. 27. . . . William E. Waring, Jr., will reopen the Ritz, Cobden, Ill., on Feb. 28 if assurance from the town of support is forthcoming; otherwise, the house will be dismantled, leaving the town without a theatre. . . . A bill to prohibit racial discrimination in public places, including theatres, was defeated by the St. Louis Board of Aldermen. . . . Many members of the Missouri-Illinois Theatre Owners attended the monthly meeting of MITO officers and directors at the Edwin Long Hotel, Rolla, Mo., on Feb. 10. . . . A young couple were held up and kidnapped from the parking lot of the Norside. Three attendants were also strong-armed and robbed. . . . The wife of Herb Washburn, manager, National Screen Service, returned home from St. Joseph's Hospital, Kirkwood, Mo., where she underwent surgery. . . . Maurice Schweitzer, Allied Artists manager, suffered serious injuries in a fall on the ice.

SALT LAKE CITY

William O'Brian is the new assistant manager at the Centre. . . . Dan Kostopulos, veteran local showman and benefactor of note to the region's underprivileged children for the past 30 years, announced the early reopening of the Broadway, which he recently repurchased. The house is being refurbished. . . . Three persons, including two firemen, were injured in a fire which broke out in the basement of the Star, Eureka, Utah, and wrecked the theatre. . . . Lou Sorensen, for many years manager at the Capitol, resigned and his place has been filled by Lynn Ott, formerly at the Studio and relief manager for Intermountain Theatres. . . . Howard Call and his family purchased the Capitol, Brigham City, Utah, from Otto Jorgensen.

SAN FRANCISCO

Charles Maestri, Lippert Theatres, has been elected president of the Catholic Entertainment Guild of Northern California. Other officers elected by the Catholic showmen are: James J. WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT PERCENTAGE BUYING?

JUST THE OTHER DAY, the owner of a small midwest circuit, who had attended the Allied Drive-In Convention in Pittsburgh, forwarded to us a possibly too-briefly-explained Sliding Scale Formula that he had received at that convention, and asked us to test it. We did. And we had to advise him that, unless he was content with approximations and odd "breakages," it wasn't an accurate scale.

But this brought to mind the complete survey that MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR had prepared and carried in its entirety back in November, 1955. We just wonder how many subscribers would like to see it re-edited and re-published as a current guide to profitable film buying?

When published originally, it was titled: "THE SLIDING SCALE METHOD . . . of arriving at A FAIR FILM PRICING FORMULA."

It was broken into seven different chapters headed:

1. CURRENT CONDITIONS . . . and the Need Which Exists for a NEW Film Pricing Formula.
2. ALLOWABLE OVERHEAD . . . What it is . . . and Why an AUDIT is Necessary.

3. PLAYING TIME UNITS . . . and Their Application to OVERHEAD and GROSS.
4. SLIDING SCALE . . . Its Theory, Objectives and Adaptability to Arbitration.
5. EXPLANATION AND CONSTRUCTION . . . of Three Different SLIDING SCALE Methods.
6. "ROBOT CHARTS" . . . that Any Theatreman Can Apply to His Particular Theatre.
7. OTHER PERCENTAGE FORMULAS . . . and Their Weaknesses as FIXED Instruments.

We sincerely believe, and hundreds of theatremen have told us, that this is the only careful analysis of percentage buying by someone who understands it, that has ever been prepared. We know, for example, that much that it teaches can be applied to judging the profit or loss on "flat buys" and on "straight percentage" deals, as well as to constructing "slides." And we're content to do the work of re-editing, if enough subscribers would find it of interest or use.

What do you say?

Just a postcard or a brief note will suffice.

CENSORSHIP ADVOCATES PLEASE NOTE:

THE ZEALOTS and do-gooders are so wild-eyed right now in their clamoring for movie censorship in many different states, that you may never be able to be heard over their wails and platitudes, but it is reassuring to learn that there is some scientific opinion to back our industry's belief that movies are not a major contributor to juvenile delinquency.

Dr. William C. Kvaraceus, director of the Juvenile Delinquency Project, National Education Association, Washington, D. C., told assembled educators at the 43rd annual convention of the National Association of Secondary School Principals at a luncheon meeting at the University of Pennsylvania on Feb. 9, that the shocking rise in juvenile delinquency across the country is traceable to "society." He then delineated eight "causes," with one of the principal ones: "A rash of uninformed opinions based on legend and folklore, with little or no facts to back up reasons for juvenile delinquency."

Not once, in his carefully prepared and authoritative analysis, does Dr. Kvaraceus even mention movies, except for a passing reference to: "Instead of exploiting the delinquency phenomenon as is done frequently via the printed page, the movie film, and the TV screen, we need to take a positive look and to offer a helping hand."

This is the sort of fact that should be put into the hands and the files of your state legislators, to offset some of the "rash of uninformed opinions based on legend and folklore," or based on nothing more tangible than a cop's desire to get off the spot, or a politician's desire to please some local clergymen or vociferous voters. Failing in this, we are going to have censorship laws passed that we will then need to fight in the courts.

It should be worth the effort!

THE VALUE OF ORGANIZATION

WE LIKE this recent observation published in the Service Bulletin of The Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio:

"If you are not a member of your local state (theatre owner) organization, you are doing yourself an injustice. If you are, talk to your fellow exhibitor and point out to him that organization is the best insurance available for your business. In no other way can you formulate plans and carry out projects that will represent your interests in legislative matters, in tax matters, and in various other things that can mean a great deal to you in the future of your business."

To this we say, "Amen!"

But we would like to point out the fact that there are numerous states and film distribution territories where no theatre owner organizations exist. In such places, the only alternative is to start one. And you owe it to yourself, and to other local men-of-good-will, to do just that.

Eventually, such groups might affiliate with Allied, with the T.O.A., or with one of the other sectional bodies. Or they might retain their rugged independence, and just have a working arrangement with one of the other bodies. But, in their very organization, they would pick up strength and representation, and would gain respect, that no single theatreman can acquire.

Otherwise, you "hang" alone!

From LONDON, ENGLAND

I think the efforts of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR to encourage exploitation are most praiseworthy indeed, and it has given me great satisfaction to observe the interest our Managers are taking in the possibility of obtaining recognition for their campaigns in your feature "EXPLOITATION" section.

D. J. GOODLATTE, Manager-Director,
Associated British Cinemas, Ltd.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While more than 100 important theatre circuit executives are now busy judging the FIVE BEST exploitation campaigns for 1958, a brand new 1959 contest is being recorded with each every-second-week edition of the separate EXPLOITATION supplement. Each of these contests will have its own $1000 in prizes — plus a handsome ACHIEVEMENT CITATION for the office wall of each manager who has a campaign published.

From SPRINGHILL, NOVA SCOTIA, CAN.

I am particularly interested in the recent accomplishment of the reported merger of the various exhibitor associations in the U.S.A. into the one strong American Congress of Exhibitors (A.C.E.), for the mutual benefit of all.

As president of the Maritime Motion Picture Exhibitors Association of the Maritime Provinces: Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland; and also as an executive officer of the Motion Picture Industry Council of Canada, I would like very much to be placed on the mailing list of your C.O.M.P.O., and on that of your A.C.E., so that I may receive copies of all bulletins, reports of annual meetings, etc.

Won't you carry this request to the attention of the proper authorities.

A. J. MASON, President,
Maritime M.P. Exhibitors Assn.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Done! And such an exchange of information between friendly neighbors should be helpful to all.

From BROOKLYN, N. Y.

During my recent illness, the pink REVIEWS sections from MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR were brought to me at the hospital, and somehow or other I seem to have lost pages 4541 to 4544 from the issue of Dec. 10, 1958.

Could you please duplicate this section so that my file will remain complete? I have every copy since April, 1955, when I took over this theatre, and I find them an invaluable reference. Thanks for a swell job!

AL KLEIN,
Eth-Lee Amusements, Inc.
Rogers Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: The particular section has been forwarded. We're happy you are again back on the job.

From STAYTON, ORE.

As a faithful weekly reader of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, I would like to add my bit on how to get this business back on its feet.

Enclosed find the Feb. 5 issue of our local newspaper, THE STAYTON MAIL, the feature front-page story in which is my having been chosen as Senior Citizen of the Year. This is our answer to the best way to promote the local theatre, and it brings lots of good publicity and good will to the theatre. We work hard at all civic and church functions, and our people reciprocate by staying with us in a social as well as in a business way. We definitely are here to stay, TV or no TV, if we have good clean pictures, good clean theatres, coupled with good friendly public relations.

I just thought I'd let your trade paper know how Stayton was doing.

M. VAN DRIESCHE, Owner
Star Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: To use the newspaper's words: "The letter of endorsement mentions (MR. VAN DRIESCHE's) activity in the various civic organizations and the fact that he has taken an active part in the Lions Club, the Chamber of Commerce, fire department, etc., and has worked continually for civic betterment." To have your local townsmen and theatre customers regard you so highly is an accomplishment indeed. Congratulations to a first-string showman.

SEE FOR YOURSELF!

From PHILADELPHIA, PA.

I think you may be interested in this little incident reported in one of our church papers regarding a pastor's embarrassment. It is clipped from the Rev. Fred B. Ackley's PARISH PAPER, published by Woodbury Union Church, Presby., Conimicut, R. I. Here it is:

"The parson owes the congregation an explanation, which, somewhat red-faced, he makes. The moving-picture 'MARK OF THE HAWK' was a marvelous picture, and almost everything I said about it was true. The one thing that was not true was that it would be around for awhile. The very day after I made an impassioned plea for people to see the picture it was replaced with another, so that people who trotted down to see 'MARK OF THE HAWK' found instead Brigitte Bardot in 'AND GOD CREATED WOMAN.' Our ever optimistic secretary said brightly the next day, 'Maybe they didn't remember the name of the picture you mentioned and, with a title like that, thought you were recommending the latter.'"

Pax Vobiscum!

JOHN CHARLES WYNN,
Presbyterian Life, A Journal of Protestant Christianity.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Just another example that "virtue is its own reward," but often it is not very rewarding at the boxoffice. It is our feeling that the local theatremen wasn't alert to the help he was getting from the neighborhood pulpit; or, as a businessman, he would have held "HAWK" another day.

From MOREHEAD CITY, N. C.

Do you have, or can you suggest where I may obtain, some really worthwhile information and data that could be used as newspaper editorials, newspaper stories of public interest, or other material that the general public would like to read about motion pictures, motion picture stars, the motion picture industry, etc?

I have been writing a column for our local newspaper and I am running out of material to write about. Any information you can give me will be appreciated.

ODIS J. MORROW, Manager
Morehead City Theatres

EDITOR'S NOTE: With an exception or two, the publicity departments of all eight national distributors, plus such individual companies as Disney, Goldwyn, N.T.A., Rank, D. C.A., etc., still service the newspaper columnists, feature editors, radio and TV columnists, etc., with current topical "hand-outs." You'll need to use your own judgment on what is, and what is not, of interest to your local readership; but such "hand-outs" will certainly provide plenty of source material. Want a list of names and addresses to write to?

From VALDOSTA, GA.

God grant me the serenity to accept those things I cannot change, the ability to change those that I can, and the wisdom to differentiate the two.

J. D. BROWN, Owner
Sky-Way Drive In Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: Hm-m-m! The way we heard it, it was credited to Alcoholics Anonymous and went: "God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, the courage to change those I can, and the wisdom to know the difference."

From WHEATON, MINN.

Please keep pounding away at the plight of the small town theatre. I like your trade journal fine. Especially the condensed reviews.

JAMES P. GOGGIN, Owner
Gopher Theatre

National Training Plan To Improve Projection

NEW YORK—Responses from the half-dozen organizations asked to participate with it in the formation of a nation-wide training program to improve motion picture projection, will result in that project having a top spot on the agenda of the mid-winter meetings of the board of directors and executive committee of Theatre Owners of America, at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D.C., on March 1-3, George G. Kerasotes, TOA president, announced last week.

Methods of securing exhibitor support for the program, so that it may be rapidly implemented, will be discussed at the meeting by TOA's theatre equipment committee, headed by John B. Schuyler of Butler, Wis.

Kerasotes declared he had been assured of cooperation in the development of the program by RCA Service Company, Altec Service Company, the Theatre Equipment Dealers Association, the Theatre Equipment and Supply Manufacturers Association, and the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Motion Picture Operators. Offers of cooperation had also come unsolicited from the Motion Picture Research Council and the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers.

Kerasotes issued the call for organization of a nation-wide training program to enable theatre owners, managers, and projectionists to recognize and correct sub-par projection, after the Motion Picture Research Council released a two-year study of 700 first and second run theatres in 100 U.S. cities, which found that 74 per cent of theatres visited had inferior projection due to mechanical misalignment of optical equipment.

Kerasotes said that Mr. Schuyler's committee felt that a program could be developed quickly and put into operation at minor or no cost to theatre owners, as soon as it could be determined that theatres would cooperate effectively with such a program.

Allied Artists recently held two special screenings of "Al Capone" in Washington, D. C. On the left are seen those who attended the showing for the entire House Judiciary Committee held at the Motion Picture Association with producers John Burrows and Leonard Ackerman and Allied Artists' Joseph Rivkin in attendance. On the right are seen William Lawrence, president, National Press Club, with Burrows, Ackerman and Rivkin at the screening held at the National Press Club.

Carr succeeds Henry G. Plitt, who was recently elevated to head A.B.C. Films, Inc.

Exhibs Must Relieve Film Shortage

NT Names Directors, Reelects J. B. Bertero

HOLLYWOOD—At the annual stockholders meeting of National Theatres, Inc., last fortnight, three new directors were named. They are Charles A. Barker, Jr., board chairman of Lockheed Aircraft Corporation and Pacific Finance Corporation; A. J. Gock, retired board chairman of the Bank of America and now member of that bank's executive committee; and Eugene V. Klein, board chairman of Auto Imports, Inc., president of Sports Cars, Inc., and one of NT's largest stockholders.

Two long time incumbents were eliminated. They are Elmer C. Rhoden and Alan May. All other board members were reelected.

Following the stockholder meeting, the newly elected board reelected John B. Bertero to the presidency, and elected B. Gerald Cantor to chairmanship of the board. The board also elected incumbent secretary T. H. Sword to vice-presidency in charge of Fox West Coast Theatres.

President Bertero stated that while weekly attendance in theatres had dropped, with neighborhood houses in a bad way, the big first-runs using big, successful pictures were doing handsomely and will do better as time goes on if producers maintain a sufficient supply of top-quality product.

He said NT will speed up its program of disposing of unprofitable theatres.

In referring to the Department of Justice's continuing restrictions, he said that NT will not produce any films under them.

Bertero told the stockholders the company's investment in WDAF and WDAF-TV, Kansas City, is paying a nice profit, and its investment in attractions at the Pacific Ocean Park is also yielding a profit. He voiced confidence in the future, both with respect to NT's own earnings and its earnings from diversification.

The offer of National Theatres to exchange its debentures and purchase of National Telefilm Associates is conditioned upon the acquisition of at least 51 per cent of all issued and issuable National Telefilm shares by March 16. NT has agreed to acquire 160,500 shares from Ely A. Landau, Telefilms board chairman; Oliver A. Unger, president; and Harold Goldman, executive vice-president.

National Telefilm shareholders will receive $11 principal amount of the $20,000,000 5½ per cent debentures offered by National Theatres, and a purchase warrant for one-quarter share of NT stock for each share of National Telefilm. For each outstanding warrant of National Telefilm, the holder will receive an exchange warrant for the purchase of $11 in debentures and a warrant for the purchase of one-quarter share of National Theatres common.

Censors Eye TV, Ads

ANNAPOLIS, MD.—At a bill hearing last fortnight C. Morton Goldstein, chairman, State Board Motion Picture Censors, suggested several amendments to the controversial movie censorship bill so that TV films and film advertising would be included in the measure.

Goldstein said that movies banned by the board could be shown, with legal impunity, on Maryland TV stations. He also noted complaints received on newspaper ads for movies.

Roach Takes Helm; Buys Guterma's Stock

NEW YORK—It was announced last fortnight that Hal Roach, Jr., has bought Alexander L. Guterma's stock in F. L. Jacobs Company, and has become board chairman and president of the automobile parts firm which controls television and movie subsidiaries.

Guterma at the same time surrendered to federal authorities on a warrant charging him with violating SEC regulations in the sale of Jacobs stock. He previously resigned "all his posts" in the Scranton Corporation, Mutual Broadcasting System, and Hal Roach Studios, all Jacobs Company subsidiaries.

Roach said he acted to protest his own "substantial stockholdings" as well as the interests of other stockholders and some 6,000 employees. He said that the "first order of business will be the issuance of a complete report to the stockholders, which will include the annual financial statement."

Roach promised a "broadening" of the boards of Jacobs and its subsidiaries shortly. The Jacobs' presidency is being held open, he said.

Charles Meacham, treasurer and secretary, Hal Roach Studios, was named a Jacobs Company director.

Roach is vice-president and director of Scranton Corporation, board chairman of MBS, and president of Hal Roach Studios.

Fox Handles AIP In Mexico

HOLLYWOOD — American International Pictures has consummated a deal with 20th-Fox for distribution of 10 of its features in Mexico, it is announced by James H. Nicholson and Samuel Z. Arkoff.

The AIP features to be released in Mexico by 20th-Fox are "Motorcycle Gang," "Sorority Girl," "I Was A Teenage Frankenstein," "Blood of Dracula," "Viking Women and the Sea Serpent," "Astounding She Monster," "Jet Attack," "Suicide Battalion," "Dragstrip Riot," and "The Cool and the Crazy."

William Reich, general manager of American International Export Corporation, represented the company in its negotiations with 20th-Fox. AIP is also negotiating with Fox for distribution representation in South Africa.

Kerasotes Tells Texas Drive-In Meet Impetus For Production Increase Won't Come From Hollywood

DALLAS—Whatever relief from the product shortage America's exhibitors obtain, they must do themselves, George G. Kerasotes, president of the Theatre Owners of America, told the convention of the Texas Drive-In Theatres Association last week at the Adolphus Hotel here.

Declaring that the pioneers of the movie industry, who went into production to insure film for their theatres, are disappearing, and that Hollywood since the divorce decrees has no theatres which it must keep supplied with films, Kerasotes told the drive-in convention that the impetus for more production must therefore come from exhibitors.

"The means for more production must come from the united efforts of all exhibitors," Kerasotes declared. "We must formulate plans to assist financially in the production of pictures. We must be prepared to purchase some of the post-48 films for reissue purposes. We must, if necessary, buy some of the foreign films and distribute them ourselves."

"Need I say more about the outstanding re-release grosses of such pictures as 'At War With The Army,' 'Streetcar Named Desire,' and 'Tom Sawyer.' Many of us, as drive-in operators, would like to have some of the pictures for re-release today that are going to television."

He declared that while the nation's population is growing, the frequent moviegoer—who sees pictures two or three times a month in theatres—has dropped 41-million or 47 per cent between 1946 and 1958. But he declared, interest in movies is higher today than ever before. "Everytime a patron sees a film in one of our theatres," he told the drive-in convention, "four are at home watching a film on television."

He said that television is burning up film and that soon the approximately 7,000 theatrical films now on TV release will be consumed. When this supply is gone, the theatre industry can anticipate a better future.

Kerasotes reiterated his suggestion that theatre men buy $1,000 worth of film company stock for every theatre they own, as a means of encouraging the film companies, to make their needs known to the film companies, and give the producers and distributors the direct benefit of their support and advice.

He also reviewed in detail the program of the American Congress of Exhibitors, urging exhibitor cooperation with ACE.

Inviting the Texas Drive-In Association to become affiliated with TOA, Kerasotes stressed that the progress to date in combatting Toll-TV, in seeking to force military post theatres to play pictures after commercial theatres, and the opening of Small Business Administration loans to drive-in theatres, were the results of programs initiated and conducted by TOA. "Through a national association," he told the Texas theatremen, "you could vastly broaden your effectiveness."

"TOA is growing stronger every year," he said. "There is a great need for TOA and a

ACE Seeks Ammunition From Field For Upcoming Talks With Distribs

NEW YORK—The American Congress of Exhibitors sought ammunition last week for its upcoming meetings with executives of distribution on a host of industry problems. Horace Adams, chairman, ACE committee on producer-exhibitor-distributor relations, called on all ACE area co-chairmen to provide detailed accounts of complaints against distribution on any one or more of the 15 points that the committee has been empowered to discuss with company executives.

Stating in his letter that the meetings would take place "soon—very soon," he stressed the need for specifics and called for factual reports of each complaint. As an example, he outlined the proper method of reporting a hypothetical complaint about "Price Fixing—Direct or Indirect," as outlined in Paragraph 9 of the committee's report.

The complainant should provide the name of the picture and the name and address of the theatre involved. How long after its previous run did the exhibitor play the picture? What is his normal run? How long did the picture play at the prior run? How much was the exhibitor compelled to charge as admission? What is his normal admission charge? What conversations were held with the film salesman or branch manager, aside from the language of the contract, that led exhibitor to sign for the picture affected?

Adams said it was factual reporting such as this that would aid his group in presenting to distribution executives possible violations of law. Adams added, "Please remember that this is the first time that united exhibition (through ACE) has been enabled to meet with the men whose decisions can affect the lives and livelihood of every one of us. We must be prepared with irrefutable facts—and you and other co-chairmen are the only ones who can supply us with these facts. Again I must impress upon you that the information we need is of vital importance, if you are to get relief from the practices that are strangling you."

Co-chairmen were asked to write, not later than March 1, 1959, to Irving Dollinger, Triangle Theatre Service, 234 West 44th Street, New York 36.

The approved agenda for the meeting with distribution includes the following subjects:

Marketing methods, including sales policies and terms; shortage of prints; modernization of clearance; clearances, runs, and availabilities; development of new stars; advertising; pre-release to armed forces; block selling; price fixing; competitive bidding; orderly release of pictures; arbitration systems; competition from 16 mm feature films; more films in color; and stereophonic sound prints.

Diana Dors Sues RKO

HOLLYWOOD—Diana Dors and Treasure Productions, of which she is president, filed suit last fortnight in Superior Court against RKO Radio Pictures seeking $1,275,000 on grounds of defamation and breach of contract.

Miss Dors asks $1,000,000 damages for defamation, and Treasure seeks $275,000 for breach of contract.

It is claimed that RKO made only one picture on a three-picture contract and then notified the plaintiff that the contract was being cancelled because she had been publicly disgraced.

What's In A Name? Not Too Much, Rules Judge

GLEN COVE, N. Y.—Supreme Court Justice Courtland A. Johnson last week refused to direct the Glen Cove to find a new name for itself.

The change was sought by the Skouras Circuit, which has the Cove and the closed Glen. Skouras claimed that the name of the Glen Cove, which opened recently, is confusing to moviegoers and would enable it to trade on the advertising and reputation of the Cove.

The Judge, however, ruled that the average moviegoer goes to see a particular picture and would be just as apt to take his trade elsewhere if he found himself misled. He stated there was no need for a temporary injunction since a quick trial can be had to determine whether there is any loss of patronage to the older theatre.

Eagle, SW Veteran, Announces Retirement

PITTSBURGH—Show business veteran Charles K. Eagle will retire this week (Feb. 28) after 23 years as manager, Stanley, here.

The announcement was made by Stanley Warner Theatres' tri-state zone manager M. A. Silver, who appointed Lawrence Knee, currently at the Colony, Cleveland, to replace Eagle at the circuit's flagship theatre.

"We will all miss Charlie Eagle, whose long and faithful career has been an inspiration to all of us in the Stanley Warner organization," said Silver.

Dean of Pittsburgh's downtown theatre managers, Eagle was at the helm of the Stanley during the years when it was one of the nation's leading stage presentation houses. In recent years the Stanley has been on a straight picture policy—and the final attraction during Eagle's regime set the all-time record for a long-run, "Auntie Mame," which went into a ninth week.

Eagle, a native of New York City, began his show business career with the Keith-Albee Circuit in that city. He was with the vaudeville circuit for 16 years; his first managerial post was at the Broadway, 41st and Broadway, and he also managed several other K. A. houses, including Proctor's 86th Street.

Before joining Warner Bros. Theatres (now Stanley Warner), he spent several seasons on the road as company manager for various touring shows. His initial Warner Theatre assignment was the Earle, Philadelphia. Subsequently, he was transferred to Washington, Pa., and the Enright, Pittsburgh, before his assignment to the Stanley.

After his retirement, Eagle will live in the mountains of Kentucky, birthplace of his wife, Swannie.

Stanley Warner executives and fellow managers, together with members of the Downtown Theatre Managers Association, are planning a testimonial luncheon.

Larry Knee, incoming Stanley manager, has managed a dozen or more Stanley Warner theatres since he joined the circuit in 1941, among them the Warner and Squirrel Hill, Pittsburgh, the State, Washington, Pa., and the Virginian, Charleston, W. Va.

N. E. Drive-In Meeting Attracts 150 Exhibs

BOSTON—The fifth annual drive-in convention brought out nearly 150 owners and managers to the Hotel Bradford where Julian Rifkin was the moderator. The convention was under the auspices of the Drive-In Theatre Association of New England, a unit of National Allied.

Carl Goldman, executive secretary of IENE, was the coordinator. There were discussions from the floor on business building, double features, admission prices, concessions, advertising, films, and equipment.

It was agreed that charging admission for children was improper as the practice would defeat the purpose of the family trade. But there was some agreement that admissions might be raised five cents in some situations, which would be five cents under the conventional prices, and in other cases to equal them.

On the point of which feature should be shown first there was some dissension. Edwin Fedeli said he used the main feature first on every evening except Saturdays and found it a successful system. Paul Kessler, Rifkin Theatres, said he tried the main feature first on Tuesdays and Thursdays but discovered that much good business was lost in the concession stand as the patrons left immediately at the close of the first feature. Norman Glassman said that with extra long films, with which shorts were used instead of another feature, the shorts went on first, and an artificial intermission was built into the main feature. Jack Dempsey of ATC and Theodore Fleisher of Interstate Theatres agreed with him and admitted they used the same methods.

Julian Rifkin warned that before the 1959 season is completed there will be more extended run engagements in drive-ins due to the popularity of some of the big blockbusters which have played extended runs in the first-run conventionals. "Why not play good sound pictures a week instead of a split week?" he suggested. "Isn't it better to play one strong film seven days, than four and pull it for an inferior piece of product?" Edward Lider said that he is in favor of trying it as the number of good pictures are becoming fewer and fewer, and it's merely good business to stretch a good picture a week.

U-I Reports Net Loss

NEW YORK — Universal Pictures Company, Inc., reports consolidated net loss for the year ended Nov. 1, 1958, of $1,220,340 after Federal income tax refund of $2,045,000, but before $799,715 of special write-off of studio overhead and story properties less federal income tax savings. After providing for dividends on preferred stock, such loss before special write-off amounted to $1.53 per share on 927,254 of common stock outstanding, excluding shares in treasury of company.

After the special write-off, the loss amounted to $2,020,055 equal to $2.39 per share of common stock outstanding.

For the preceding year ended Nov. 2, 1957, consolidated net earnings were $2,843,833 after provision of $3,000,000 for Federal taxes on income. After dividends on the preferred stock, these consolidated net earnings amounted to $2.83 per share on the 927,254 shares of common stock outstanding, excluding shares in the treasury of the company.

UA Production Pacts At All-Time High; $70 Million Budget For '60

LOS ANGELES—With United Artists independent production associations now at an all-time high, the company will invest between $65,000,000 and $70,000,000 for production in 1960, it was announced last week by vice-president Max E. Youngstein at the company's Fortieth Anniversary Sales Convention in Los Angeles.

The sales meeting, to map distribution for the greatest product lineup in UA's 40-year history, is being presided over by William J. Heineman, vice-president in charge of distribution, and James R. Velde, general sales manager.

"Our commitments with producers and star-producers now number almost 70," Youngstein told the convention delegates. "Our success in attracting the outstanding creative artists is a result of our proven ability to promote and to sell."

"Our goal for the coming year is to create new strength and new growth. We recognize no fixed limits to our potential. We're very confident and very excited about the program we've assembled for 1959. We expect to continue to attract production and performing talent in growing numbers."

Underscoring UA's newly-won primacy in the motion picture industry, Youngstein recalled that eight years ago when the new management group headed by president Arthur B. Krim and board chairman Robert S. Benjamin took over the reins, United Artists had not received a single new film from an independent producer in nine months.

"Today," he said, "our long-range production program encompasses projects through 1962. Properties on the schedule include many of the most sought-after books and plays. Films for UA are shooting on three continents."

As an illustration of UA's product strength in its Fortieth Anniversary Year, Youngstein listed 34 films that are now editing, shooting, and in active preparation.

Lewis Promises Fight Against Ad Censorship

With a record concentration of big films to merchandise during its anniversary year, United Artists does not intend to be hampered or intimidated by the new wave of "backstairs" censorship that is being directed against motion picture advertising.

The promise of uninhibited, un-self-conscious promotion was made by Roger H. Lewis, national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation.

Citing recent rejections by newspapers of motion picture ads, Lewis declared, "It's about time the industry stopped being sheepish and supine. It's time that we called for an end to the double standard—one unrealistically rigid measure for film promotion, another more lax and liberal standard for competing entertainment media."

Further documenting his charge of a double standard, Lewis told convention delegates that the very newspapers that turn down film ads splash their front pages with lurid stores and stills of sex and violence that would never even be considered for movie production or promotion.

Lewis pointed out that no responsible industry organization would exploit the vulgar and obscene to stimulate boxoffice action.

"What we are unwilling to submit to," he said, "is the capricious and discriminatory censoring of movie ads on the basis of arbitrary and false standards, and by people who have no authority or special aptitude to determine what the public may find agreeable or disagreeable."

"In virtually every other field," Lewis stated, "the advertiser is free to reach the consumer in his own way. The film industry alone is traditionally handcuffed and hounded by self-appointed arbiters of public taste."

"This year United Artists is putting into distribution the very finest lineup of big pictures in its 40-year history. This demands a promotion program that's free and more flexible than anything we've ever used before. We don't intend to let this 'backstairs' censorship cramp our style and our product potential. If necessary, we'll go to the courts to protect our right to reach the public in our own way."

Sales Divisions Realigned In United States, Canada

United Artists is realigning its domestic sales divisions to afford maximum selling impact for its product, it was announced by James R. Velde, general sales manager.

Under the new plan, the territorial United States and Canada will be divided into the following three major divisions: eastern and Canadian, central and southern, and western.

Milton E. Cohen, terminating his position as supervisor of sales for "Around the World in 80 Days," heads the newly-created eastern and Canadian division. Sidney Cooper, formerly central district manager, has been promoted to division manager of the newly-formed central and southern division. Al Fitter continues as western division manager.

Conforming with the new territorial realignment, William Marchese becomes eastern and Canadian division contract manager, and Phil Gettelson is appointed central and southern division contract manager. Arthur Reiman remains as western division contract manager.

John Hughes, formerly eastern and southern contract manager, is promoted to New York circuit contact in the new sales shifts.

Exchange areas falling under the supervision of the eastern and Canadian division, include Buffalo, Boston, New Haven, Philadelphia, and Cleveland, under eastern district manager Gene Tunick; Calgary, Montreal, St. John, Toronto, Vancouver, and Winnipeg under Canadian district manager Charles S. Chaplin.

Central and southern exchange areas and their district managers include Charlotte, Jacksonville, Atlanta, New Orleans, and Dallas, under southern district manager William Hames; Detroit, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Pittsburgh, and Washington, under newly-appointed central district manager James Hendel.

Branches and district managers under the supervision of the western division include Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, and Denver, under western district manager Ralph Clark; St. Louis, Omaha, Kansas City, Minneapolis, and Milwaukee, under midwest district manager F. J. Lee.

The New York exchange area falls under the direct supervision of the New York home office. The Chicago branch falls within the operations of the eastern and Canadian division headed by Cohen.

The second and concluding series of anniversary sales convention meetings were to take place at the Roney Plaza Hotel in Miami, Fla., with representatives of 19 U. S. and Canadian branches attending.

United Artists has set an anniversary sales drive, it was announced by Velde in Miami.

Joint Committee On Toll-TV Plans All-Out Battle To Outlaw Medium

NEW YORK—The Joint Committee on Toll-TV, asked by the American Congress of Exhibitors to take over the anti-pay-TV campaign initiated by the Theatre Owners of America, will meet in Washington on March 1 to organize and continue the campaign without interruption, it was announced last week.

Philip F. Harling, who with Trueman T. Rembusch is co-chairman of the Joint Committee, has issued a call to 18 exhibitor leaders representing all the trade associations associated with ACE to attend a supper conference at the Mayflower Hotel.

The Joint Committee will now be comprised of the original members, plus TOA's pay-TV committee and members of ACE's pay-TV committee who were not members of the original Joint Committee.

Harling, also chairman of TOA's committee, said the Joint Committee will take over TOA's current grass-roots campaign, in which exhibitors have been asked to enlist the support of civic groups, women's organizations, labor unions, veterans' posts, and other groups interested in banning by legislation all forms of pay-TV, cable as well as broadcast, as being contrary to the public interest. Congressional support of the bill introduced by Congressman Oren Harris of Arkansas, chairman of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, which would accomplish this, will be sought by the Joint Committee.

The Joint Committee will also review plans for financing the campaign, Harling said. Members of the new Joint Committee who have been invited to the Washington meeting, are Rembusch Franklin, Ind.; George G. Kerasotes, Springfield, Ill., president of TOA and chairman of ACE's toll-TV committee; E. LaMar Sarra, Jacksonville, of Florida State Theatres; Sumner M. Redstone, Boston, of Northeast Drive-In Theatres; Wilbur Snaper, New York City, of Snaper Theatres; Julius Gordon, Beaumont, Tex., of Jefferson Amusement Corporation; Solomon M. Strausberg, New York, of Interboro Circuit; Morton Sunshine, New York City; Ralph McClanahan, Irvine Theatre of Irvine, Ky.; James Arthur, Long Beach, Cal., of Arthur Theatres Corporation; Arnold Childhouse, San Francisco, Cal., of United California Theatres; Mitchell Wolfson, Miami, Fla., of Wometco Theatres; Albert M. Pickus, Stratford, Conn., of the Stratford Theatre; Julius F. Tuchler, Los Angeles, Cal., of Pacific Drive-In Theatres; William Namenson, New York City; Samuel Rosen, New York City, of Stanley Warner Corporation; and Edward Fabian, New York City, of Fabian Theatres.

Marcus Cohn, of Cohn and Marks, Washington law firm, who was retained by TOA's committee as counsel for the campaign, will also attend.

Miss Haeger Joins Filmack

CHICAGO—Phyllis Haeger, former director of public relations, Popcorn Institute, has been named director of the newly created Concession Promotion Department of Filmack Trailer Company, according to the announcement made by Filmack president Irving Mack.

Miss Haeger formerly headed the publicity and promotion activities of the Popcorn Institute, actively working with concessionaires and theatre owners.

Selznick Sues Loew's For Share In TV, 16mm

HOLLYWOOD—David O. Selznick last fortnight filed suit in Santa Monica Superior Court against Loew's, Inc., for an estimated $1,000,000, claiming that he owns a half-interest in a group of films that he believes will gross $2,000,000 via television and 16mm. showings.

The court is asked to impress a trust of one-half the current earnings of the pictures, estimated at $1,000,000, and to issue an order awarding the producer a half-interest in future profits.

Claims were made on the basis of asserted terms of contracts with regard to loan-out of performers by Vanguard Films, a Selznick Company liquidated by MGM over a six-year period.

The suit maintains that original contract prohibited reduction of Selznick-loaned performers' pictures to 16mm.

"Oscar" Night Ballyhoo Planned By Committees

NEW YORK—At a meeting last fortnight at the MPAA, promotional projects for the Academy Awards telecast were outlined by the New York Exhibitors' Committee.

Suggested were a newspaper contest based on "Oscar" winners; "Oscar" night proclamation by Mayor Robert F. Wagner; tie-in lines on the telecast in all exhibitor and distributor newspaper advertising; contacting school newspapers, teachers, etc.; tie-in announcements in churches; Gotham promotion on the closed circuit telecast NBC will hold about 10 days prior to awards night with local press in some 200 cities.

Preliminary plans for television, newspaper, distribution and theatre participation in the pre-Academy Awards show publicity also were drawn up at a meeting of the Philadelphia area members of the committee.

Those in attendance were Edward Emanuel, exhibitor chairman, and Mike Weiss of Paramount, Milton Young of Columbia, and Ed Gallner of MGM, co-chairmen.

Among the items of publicity discussed was one calling for an "Oscar" derby with television and a newspaper participating. Readers and viewers will be asked to pick the winners of eight categories, and those compiling the best records will receive prizes.

A second stunt will find newspaper critics and representatives from distribution, exhibition, and a trade paper participating in a round-table discussion on the merits of the various nominees.

Ohio Cities Repeal Tax

NEW YORK — COMPO's continuing survey of state and local admission taxes reveals that five more Ohio cities—Ashtabula, Kent, Sidney, Steubenville, and Wooster—have repealed their local three per cent admission taxes within the past year, Charles E. McCarthy, COMPO information director, reported last week. The number of Ohio communities imposing local admission taxes has dropped from 56 to approximately 40 in the last two years.

Academy Nominates Documentaries, Shorts

HOLLYWOOD—The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences shorts subjects branch, together with three members from each of the nine other branches, last fortnight announced the shorts nominations for "Oscar" awards.

In the cartoon class, the nominations are Warners' "Knighty Knight Bugs," Walt Disney's "Paul Bunyon," and Terrytoons-20th-Fox's "Sidney's Family Tree."

In the live action class are Disney's "Grand Canyon," Ian Ferguson's "Journey Into Spring," a British Transport Film, Cohay Production's "The Kiss," New Zealand Screen Board's "Snows Of Aorangi," and James A. Lebenthal's "T Is For Tumbleweed," a Continental Distributing release.

Nominations for the documentary awards were also announced. In the feature class, over three reels, are James Carr's "Antarctic Crossing," Worldwide Pictures; Robert Snyder's "The Hidden World," Small World Company; Nathan Zucker's "Psychiatric Nursing," Dynamic Films; and Walt Disney's "White Wilderness."

In the documentary short subjects class are "Journey Into Spring"; "The Living Stone," National Film Board of Canada; "Overture," United Nations Film Service; Walt Disney's "The AMA Girls"; and Hughes Aircraft's "Employees Only."

Films nominated in the Foreign Language Film Award class were "Arms and the Man," German; "La Venganza," Spanish; "My Uncle," French; "The Road A Year Long," Yugoslavian; and "The Usual Unidentified Thieves," Italian.

Col. Opens Studios To TV

HOLLYWOOD — Columbia Pictures last fortnight opened its studios and ranch, with all their facilities, to television film producers. Arthur Jacobson was named studio coordinator on all rental deals.

This makes available to TV film producers the 15 stages of the company's Gower Street studio, the five stages of its Sunset Studio, and the 36 acres of its Valley Ranch, with all standing sets, etc.

The offer to TV producers includes executive office space, all departmental services, wardrobe, makeup, editing, projection rooms, carpenter shop, laboratory, etc.

Cinerama Profit Holds

NEW YORK—In a report to stockholders last fortnight it was revealed that Cinerama Productions Corporation had a net profit of $354,351.45 in the year ended Oct. 31, 1958. This compares with net profit of $324,035.83 the year before.

Net income for the 1957-58 year was $493,414.42 as compared with $438,394.48 for 1956-57.

President Milo J. Sutliff reported that Stanley Warner Corporation has advised the CPC that it no longer will solely finance production of Cinerama pictures.

U-I Ups Thompson

HOLLYWOOD—Foster Thompson was appointed last fortnight as Universal production manager, succeeding George Golitzin, who resigned after 13 years to become an associate producer at the Walt Disney Studio.

Thompson, who joined U-I in 1946, will function under the supervision of Morris Weiner, U-I studio general manager.

ANATOLE LITVAK, producer-director of "The Journey," an MGM release starring Yul Brynner and Deborah Kerr, last week reported at a luncheon press conference at Sardi's the Russians had asked the Austrians to halt the making of the film on their side of the border. The request was ignored.

He claimed that people were amazed to see Americans make a picture with the Russians or at least some of them put in a sympathetic role. He opined that pictures should be entertaining, but at the same time, it doesn't hurt to get across a message. Even in pure entertainment, said he, you have to have a point of view, although many times it's best if you don't let the public know you are giving them a message at the same time.

Litvak is personally supervising the foreign versions of "The Journey," his first MGM release, as he considers these most important. Most foreign versions are dubbed "in a horrible way," and this can have a terrific impact on the larger pictures seen abroad. A lack of attention can ruin the presentation of a film in other parts of the world where there is resentment to a slipshod job. Careful attention thereto can even improve the receipts, said he.

"The Journey" was shot in 13 weeks in Austria where the studios and organization were not too good. It is no longer advisable to shoot a film abroad strictly for the sake of economy, but rather this should be done because it is necessary to develop the story fully. Regarding cost, he was able to make the film for two-thirds what it would have cost in Hollywood. Brynner was his partner, while MGM put up the money.

These days, opined he, the story is the prime asset of any film, and the greatest star of any venture. Incidentally, he doesn't think good talent is wrong in asking too much money to make films these days—it's just that producers are wrong in paying it. A share-the-profits-plan is a good idea if there are any profits to share. If you have to pay too much to a star, we'll soon be out of business. Litvak also thought that distributors are charging too much to distribute films.

Wither goest the industry? The future looks brighter than ever, said he, if we make the best possible pictures we can. The fewer the better, he added, with the emphasis on quality rather than quantity. TV is not doing too well these days which is encouraging. On the other hand, if pay-TV gets in we'll really be trouble, according to Litvak, who thought it will never be the same as seeing a film in a theatre. The production end will be in good shape when this happens, but even they will have trouble supplying pictures for TV consumption of a quality equal to theatre presentations.

Litvak plans on taking about eight months off to develop several properties he has so that the waiting time between future pictures will be reduced. His next may be "The Mad King," with Yul Brynner, for United Artists, and this could roll in 1960. He also has an old commitment to do one picture for 20th Century-Fox.

LONDON Observations

by Jock MacGregor

C. J. LATTA has revealed himself as a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." He admitted in his capacity as managing director of the Associated British Picture Corporation that he had the dual headache of trying to get people to go out to the cinema one night and stay home and watch television the next. He was speaking at an Elstree Studios celebration to mark the conversion of one of the four big sound stages into two smaller ones to meet modern requirements and the inauguration of the new dining suite.

Chairman Sir Philip Warter announced that they had had foresight in maintaining production so that their 400 theatres should not go short of product. Currently, they have five top features readying for release and one shooting. Eight important subjects will be shot over the next few months. First of these will be Hal E. Chester's production of "School For Scoundrels," based on Stephen Potter's well known works and featuring a top box-office cast. A 39 part "Flying Doctor" TV series is also being shot.

All the Associated British higher echelon were present, and what a friendly and hospitable crowd they are. Latta is now taking more and more interest in production, and Jack Goodlatte, head of the very successful ABC theatre operations, confirmed to me that he would work closely with the distribution set-up. Representing ABC-TV was its chief, Howard Thomas. Also well in evidence were most of the group's producers and directors. Missing through illness were Eric Fletcher, MP, and publicity chief David Jones.

FOLLOWING the London premiere of "Separate Tables," Harold Hecht threw a lavish supper party at the Society Restaurant. Though it must have the smallest dance floor in London—you certainly couldn't park even a British baby car on it—I found myself at one period jostling for space beside Lauren Bacall, David Niven, Jack Hawkins, Vivien Leigh, Stanley Donnen, Ann Todd, Leo Genn, Richard Greene, and Patricia Medina. It was a fitting climax to a great evening. . . . The Rank group is turning its attention to TV film production. Shooting has started on 39 half hour films in the "Calling Interpol" series which will star Charles Korvin and cost $1,400,000. Further series budgetted at $2,800,000 are planned for the summer by which time half the Pinewood stages will be devoted to TV activities.

great need for ACE, because our future is dependent entirely upon unity."

"I believe in the future of this business," he concluded. "I will fight through TOA. I will fight for it through ACE."

Drive-In Convention Proves Most Successful Affair

DALLAS—The Texas Drive-In Theatre Owners Association's seventh annual convention held at the Adolphus Hotel proved a most successful affair.

Tim Ferguson was toastmaster and program chairman. Eddie Joseph gave the keynote address and the president's report.

Featured speakers were Richard McKay, advertising-publicity director, American International Pictures; Melvin T. Munn, public relations director of Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Texas; and George G. Kerasotes, Theatre Owners of America head. Also, R. J. O'Donnell, vice-president general manager of Interstate Theatres and Texas State Senator Charles F. Herring.

The National Association of Concessionaires conducted a clinic with president Philip L. Lowe speaking on "Food Is Your Fortune"; Lee Koken, NAC board chairman, speaking on "New Ideas In Concessions and Vending"; and William E. Smith, of the Popcorn Institute, speaking on "Popcorn Merchandising Aids." A sandwich making clinic was held by Mary Kuhlman, American Institute of Baking while other speakers were Thomas J. Sullivan, NAC executive vice president; Augie J. Schmitt, Houston Popcorn and Supply Company; and Charles E. Daren, Charles E. Daren Company.

Drive-in panel discussion groups were led by Brandon Doak and Adrian Upchurch, on "Film Buying," and by Herald Goodman, on "Increasing Boxoffice by Promotion."

Joseph, president, Eddie Joseph Theatres, Austin, Tex., was given the first annual John H. Hardin award as "outstanding personality in the drive-in theatre industry." He has headed the TDITOA for three years.

A testimonial luncheon was held at the local Variety Club for general counsel Edwin Toblowsky, retiring chief barker, Tent 17.

Alexander Film Company hosted a cocktail party; Pepsi-Cola sponsored the banquet grand ball and floor show at the suburban Dallas Athletic Club; while Coca-Cola Company sponsored the closing presidential banquet.

Six resolutions were passed by the convention and called for increase in production; opposition to all forms of toll-TV; opposition to the release of post-1948 films to TV; improvement of relationship between exhibition, production, and distribution; recognition of the need for more film research; and a pledge to improve customer relationship.

Walter Armbruster, Universal, was named "branch manager of the year."

Tim Ferguson, Downs Drive-In, Grand Prairie, Tex., was named president succeeding Eddie Joseph. Also named were Skeet Noret, vice-president; Bob Davis, second vice-president; Wayne Long, third vice-president; A. J. Valentine, treasurer; and M. K. McDaniel, secretary.

UA Circuit Names Directors

NEW YORK—Leo G. Shaw and Lawrence Wren were elected last week to the board of directors of United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc., it was announced by George P. Skouras, president.

blaze was extinguished in a few minutes with only slight damage, and the program was resumed. . . . The Paramount, Kinston, N. C., was gutted by fire on the early morning of Feb. 8 with the loss estimated at $100,000. The blaze was discovered at 2:05 a.m., and apparently started from a short circuit in a generator room under the projection room. It spread quickly into the six-foot cockloft between the ceiling and the roof. Before the fire was extinguished, a portion of the roof and balcony had collapsed. W. T. Roberson, manager, said work of rebuilding the structure will begin immediately. Until the work is completed, Paramount will show its movies in the vacant Carolina building at Kinston. It was the second time that a movie house had burned on the same site, the old Grand, predecessor to the Paramount, having been destroyed by fire in the early 1930's. The building is owned by Mrs. Oscar Green. Heaviest damage was in the generator room, and the projection room also was destroyed.

CINCINNATI

Goodwill Industries, featuring its occupational workshop for mentally retarded, which is supported by Tent Three, Variety, was featured on a TV program sponsored by the American Medical Association Council on Industrial Health as its convention here. . . . CLEVELAND

Robert Martin, who has been in show business for the past 33 years and manager of Publix Theatres in Altoona, Pa., and for the past 11 years as manager, Shaker, suburban Shaker Heights, has tendered his resignation to the owners, Associated Theatres Circuit, effective March 1. Martin has made plans to go into another business for himself in Daytona, Fla. . . . Variety Club Tent 6, has definitely set March 9 as the date for the testimonial for outgoing chief barker David Rosenthal and installation of the new officers, headed by chief barker Jim Levitt. International president George Eby and international representative Ralph Pries have indicated they will attend the affair to be held in the Tudor Arms Hotel club rooms.

DALLAS

Hollywood Pictures Corporation started filming its second feature length film on Feb. 16, under a working title of "The Gila Monster." Budgeted at $300,000, Don Sullivan has the male lead, with no female lead set to date. Ken Curtis, a vice-president of the local based organization, will again have Ray Kellogg as director and Ben Chapman as production manager. Kellogg and Chapman are also vice-presidents of Hollywood Pictures, headed by Barton R. McLendon and his son, Gordon McLendon, who also own and operate Tri-State Theatres and several independent radio stations in Texas and Louisiana. The first film by Hollywood Pictures was completed on Jan. 30 and was titled "The Killer Shrews". . . . The Barkerettes, women's auxiliary of Detroit Variety held its first birthday party. . . . Visiting was Sam Seplowin, formerly branch manager for Republic here, and later in Chicago. He is now district manager for Essanjay Films, Inc., based in Chicago.

HOUSTON

Two men who were arrested last August for showing alleged indecent films in four Houston area theatres sued a Chicago film distributor for $150,000. Marvin Bell of Brady, Tex., lessee of the theatres, and Jesse A. Dodson, manager, claimed their contract with Modern Film Distributors guaranteed that the company would "clear" the films with any local censorship body. Dodson was arrested in Galena Park last Aug. 16 by a posse led by Justice of the Peace Dave Thompson and charged with displaying lewd and indecent movies. He was acquitted of the misdemeanor charge Dec. 8 in Judge Jimmie Duncan's county court at law. The petition filed said Bell was also arrested, although local court records showed no action against him. John O. Kain, attorney for Bell and Dodson, said the incident caused Bell to forfeit his leases on the Galena Park, Venus, and Grand, indoor theatres, and the Hi-Nabor Drive-In. . . . Art Katzen, publicist for the Interstate Theatre Circuit, was reported improved following an appendicitis operation. . . . Emanuel Newton, manager, Village, was back at work after several weeks of illness. . . . George Lee Marks, operator, Avalon, presented a second successful opera film festival, drawing a little better than it did last year despite some obstacles such as weather and mid-term exams at local schools.

(PURSUANT TO S. RES. 221, 85TH CONGRESS)

February 5, 1959

Mr. John H. Burrows
Mr. Leonard Ackerman
Allied Artists Pictures Corporation
4376 Sunset Drive
Hollywood 27, California

Dear Messrs. Burrows and Ackerman:

Last night through your courtesy I was privileged to see the AL CAPONE motion picture. You were most kind indeed to arrange this showing of it for the convenience and enlightenment of the Senate Select Committee and its staff. We all greatly enjoyed it.

I was forcefully impressed with its penetrating and powerful portrayal of an era of gangsterism and crime in our nation's history that should never be permitted to recur. This picture should be shown throughout the land. Every citizen of this country should have the opportunity to see it. In my judgment it will have a potent influence for the maintenance of law and order and for the preservation of decent society in our country.

Sincerely yours,

John L. McClellan
Chairman

MINNEAPOLIS

Ted Mann, Twin Cities exhibitor, and George Granstrom, who operates several St. Paul neighborhood houses, will take over operation of the 800-seat Strand in the St. Paul loop on April 1. The two men bought the house from Axelrod and Metzger, St. Paul attorneys, who also operated the Tower, St. Paul, which will be razed. Mann also operates the Academy, World, Suburban World, and Westgate, in Minneapolis; World and Lyceum in St. Paul, several Twin Cities drive-ins; The Skyline Drive-In, Duluth; and owns various real estate in the Twin Cities. . . . John A. Branton, vice-president, Minnesota Amusement Company, and his family have returned from a 10-day trip to Los Angeles, Palm Springs and Las Vegas. . . . "Day of Triumph," a revival, broke all-time box office records for a single day's receipts on a Sunday in three of the four neighborhood theatres in which it played. In the fourth, it came close to the record set by "The Ten Commandments." Film played the Edina, Hollywood, Hopkins, and Richfield. . . . Wally Weber, shipper, Independent Film Service, is wearing a cast on his arm as he recuperates from an operation. . . . Edna Nyberg is the new branch manager's secretary, Columbia, replacing Kathy Falvey, resigned. . . . Bill Doebl, booker, 20th-Fox, was transferred to Omaha as booker. . . . Carol Richardson is the new branch manager's secretary, Paramount, replacing Lauramae McGuire, who left to study nursing.

NEW HAVEN

Parkway Theatres, Inc., of Massachusetts, new owner of the Lord's Indoor-Outdoor Theatre, Plainfield, Conn., has acquired 55 acres adjacent to the property as part of a long range expansion program designed to make the theatre the region's entertainment center. Towards this goal, the company intends to present outdoor and indoor acts, including circus entertainers, name bands and wrestling shows. Donat Blain has been retained as resident manager. Edward L. Lord of Norwich, Conn., sold the 1951-constructed facility for a reported $90,000. . . . Richard Cromwell has been named assistant manager, Stanley Warner Strand, Hartford, succeeding Robert Edwards, who has gone into a non-industry post. . . . The Feb. 10 Connecticut premiere of "South Pacific" at the Stanley Warner Strand, Hartford, benefitted local charities, through arrangements by theatre manager Jack Sanson. . . . Although no hearing date has been determined for State Senate Bill 44, relating to Connecticut motion picture advertising practices, chairmen of the state legislature's judiciary and governmental functions committee have received support for the measure from religious organizations. The bill would ban advertising containing pictures or accounts of methods of illicit sex, horror, terror, physical torture, or brutality; partly denuded figures posed or presented in a manner likely to provide or arouse lust or passion, or any exploitation of sex, lust or perversion for commercial gain. . . . Nicholas Zeo, Sr., new owner of Lord's Indoor-Outdoor Theatre, Plainfield, Conn., has changed theatre's name to Parkway Drive-In. Zeo's parent company is known as Parkway Theatres Corporation. . . . F. H. McGraw and Company, engineers and constructors, has elected New York financier Philip A. Roth, a director of Lowe's, Inc., to its board of directors. . . . The Pike Drive-In, Newington, Conn., has been sold for a high bid of $85,000 at a public auction in Hartford Superior Court. The foreclosure action was brought by the First National Bank of Boston against the Turnpike Theatre Corporation. Purchaser is Theodore Poland, Swampscott, Mass., owner of Sudbury Footwear Inc., Boston shoe manufacturer. The acquisition marks his first venture into exhibition. Poland intends to re-open the theatre.

The problem of the PAINTED GRASS

How to photograph grass in December so that it had June's tender green. That was the problem. That and—the producer hastily added—how to do it on a limited budget. How this problem was solved is a complete story in itself. Needless to say, it fell within the scope of the Eastman Technical Service for Motion Picture Film, an organization devoted to the service of the industry. Offices at strategic centers. Inquiries invited.

PORTLAND

Exhibitors, the press, radio, television, and civic leaders learned of the dangers of toll-TV at a special meeting at the Hotel Benson called by Albert Forman, president, Theater Owners Association of Oregon, an affiliate of Theater Owners of America. More than 150 attended the meeting which included a showing of a special TOA film, produced as a public service. Forman urged a public campaign that would flood Senators, Congressmen, and the Federal Communications Commission with letters of protest.

ST. LOUIS

Theatres and drive-ins of St. Louis and St. Louis County came through the recent tornado with comparatively little damage. The Brentwood, Brentwood, St. Louis County, and the Regal, St. Louis, suffered some minor damage. . . . The Laclede escaped with water damage when trunk sewers backed up, and the drive-in in Robinson, Ill., suffered some damage. . . . A number of theatre owners of Southern Illinois and Missouri visted the Rollamo, Rolla, Mo., and saw a demonstration of the process for one-camera and one-projector motion pictures that obtain an effect similar to that of Cinerama that has been perfected by Rowe E. Carney, Jr., Rolla, and Tom Smith, Ozark, Mo. The opinion was that the illusion of audience participation in the pictures was remarkable. After the screening, Bev Miller, Kansas City, Mo., told of plans for the Heart-Of-America Show-A-Rama to be staged March 24-25-26 in the New Hotel Muehlebach, Kansas City. Missouri-Illinois Theatre Owners will participate. Arthur L. Manheimer, midwest sales manager, National Screen Service, also spoke on the company's new institutional trailers in color and the "Add-A-Clip" refreshment trailers. . . . Some 8,000 men, women and children enjoyed free motion pictures at Loew's State, downtown deluxer, as guests of Down Town in St. Louis, Inc., as part of the "Lincoln Day In Downtown St. Louis" celebration. . . . A light smoke filled the theatre, bringing five fire trucks to the scene in the heart of the downtown business section. . . . John Santikos, manager, Olmos, had patrons register in the lobby for a three day free trip for two to Mexico City, courtesy of CMA Airlines and the Del Prado Hotel during the run of "Viva Zapata." . . . An installation crew was erecting a new outdoor sign for the Aztec as well as a new marquee. The old sign has been in use for some 30 years. . . . Theo Miller has closed the Gem, Quitman, Tex. The closing came as a surprise to the citizens of the town. The local paper in an editorial stated that it would be hard to imagine the town without a theatre. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Will Darden and their son, C. G. Darden, have purchased the Nu Vue, indoor, and the Antelope Drive-In, Abernathy, Tex. The new owners plan to reopen the Nu Vue.

SEATTLE

Favorite Films hosted a luncheon at the Rendezvous, and for the first time on Seattle Film Row all bookers from all theatre circuits were invited. John Cummins, branch manager, and L. C. Tomlinson, of the exchange, participated. Theatre circuit buyers and bookers attended from Fox-Evergreen, Hamrick, Sterling, United Theaters, and the Lathrop Circuit. Present from Evergreen were Frank Christy and Barbara Somes; from Hamrick, Clint Wineholt and Doug Forbes; from Sterling, Fred Danz, Jerry Vitus, Ron Crowe, and Saley Record; from United Theaters, Jim Bonholzer and Walter Thayer; and Mrs. Miriam Kinsey and Elizabeth Berg represented the Lathrop Circuit. Bud Saffle and Helen Reynolds attended from Saffles Theatre Service. Others on hand included Norris Hunt and Mary Fey, from B. F. Shearer; Frank Millspaugh and Howard McGhee, from Midstate; Keith Beckwith, from North Bend; and Art Gallofon from Concrete. Bob Cleveland represented the Alaska accounts. Brief speeches by John Cummins, Frank Christy, and Keith Beckwith highlighted the event. . . . Ed Walyer, Selah, has been inducted into the Air Force.

Seattle Tent 46, Variety Club, elected its officers for the coming year recently, with Lee Schulman, program director for King-TV, named chief barker. Other officers elected were Frank Christy, buyer and booker for Evergreen Theatres, as first assistant chief barker; B. C. Johnson, owner of North Coast Theatres, second assistant chief barker; Dick Colbert, Universal branch manager, property master; and C. B. Johnson, operator of an accounting service, dough guy.

The famous pink paper SAVEABLE SECTION in which Experienced Trade Analysts evaluate coming product

Published every second week, as a separately bound and easily saveable section of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, this exclusive 24 year old service is both numerically more complete, and informatively more candid, than any similar trade analysis. Cumulatively numbered by film seasons (September to September), it is recommended that readers consecutively save all REVIEWS sections in a permanent file. The last issue of each August will always contain a complete annual index to close the season. Combined, the every second week yellow paper SERVICEINDEX indexes to the past 12 months' product, and the alternating every second week pink paper REVIEWS, represent a unique informative service to theatremen. Please address all inquiries or suggestions about these two service features to the Editors of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, 246-48 N. Clarion St., Philadelphia 7, Penna.

SECTION TWO FEBRUARY 25, 1959
Vol. 61 No. 16

ALLIED ARTISTS

Al Capone

MELODRAMA
104M.

Allied Artists

ESTIMATES: Well-done crime entry.

CAST: Rod Steiger, Fay Spain, Murvyn Vye, James Gregory, Nehemiah Persoff, Lewis Charles, Joe De Santis, Martin Balsam, Louis Quinn, Raymond Bailey, Robert Gist, Peter Dane, Al Ruscio. Produced by John H. Burrows and Leonard J. Ackerman; directed by Richard Wilson.

STORY: Just as prohibition was to become law, Chicago saw the arrival of strong-arm mobster Al Capone from Brooklyn, played by Rod Steiger. From body-guard, bouncer-assistant to Nehemiah Persoff, he becomes a partner. Ruthlessness, ambition and shrewdness, as well as a willingness to get rid of enemies of friends, no matter how close, soon gives him control of a sizeable part of Chicago and its underworld. During one of these escapades, a waiter is killed. Honest police sergeant James Gregory can do little against phony alibis. Gang war makes living a feat but Steiger accomplishes it. Persoff is wounded and decides to get out of the rackets, turning it all over to Steiger. The latter is intrigued by the wife of the murdered waiter especially since she's not impressed by his money or threats. He has her witness a phony confession which she believes, and they become more than friends. He branches out, and his operations depend on getting the right people in high office. While down in Florida, he orders the infamous Valentine's Day massacre of the opposition. Another major killing is that of newspaperman Martin Balsam, who turned on Steiger and went to the opposition. This brings about front page headlines as well as a crackdown by federal investigators, who go after his income tax returns. Steiger is sentenced to prison where relations of those he ordered murdered beat him badly. Not long afterwards, he is taken seriously ill and dies, soon after being freed, of an incurable illness.

X-RAY: A dynamic and forceful presentation is this tale of one of America's most powerful underworld figures. It packs a wallop and can be sold for better returns with its interest-holding story, fine performances with that of Rod Steiger deserving of special tribute, and better direction and production. Steiger makes the screen image come alive with intrigue, ruthlessness, and criminal cunning and his capability is instrumental to a large degree in getting the entry across to the extent that it does. Audiences will be held absorbed, and the potential is present that can put this in the big hit category. The screenplay is by Malvin Wald and Henry Greenberg.

TIPS ON BIDDING: Higher bracket in many situations.

AD LINES: "The King Of The Underworld—His Rise And Fall"; "His Name Struck Terror In The Hearts Of All In Chicago"; "He Had The Power Of Life Or Death . . . No One Dared Stand In His Way."

Arson For Hire (5904)

MELODRAMA
68M

AA

ESTIMATE: Routine lower half filler.

CAST: Steve Brodie, Lyn Thomas, Tom Hubbard, Frank Scannell, Reed Howes, Wendy Wilde, Antony Carbone, John Merrick, Lari Laine, Lyn Osborn, Jason Johnson. Produced by William F. Broidy, associate producer, Erwin Yessin, directed by Thor Brooks.

STORY: Arson squad inspector Steve Brodie and his assistant, Tom Hubbard, are plagued with a series of incendiary fires which Brodie suspects is the work of a ring hired out to collect on insurance claims. The latest takes place in a warehouse inherited by actress Lyn Thomas from her father. She is contacted by crooked attorney Jason Johnson, who had the fire set by Frank Scannell, and ordered to hand over half the insurance money or else be blamed and framed for setting the fire. Scannell is blackmailed by Antony Carbone whom he has to kill to prevent his daughter from learning of his past. He commits suicide so that she can collect his insurance which would have been voided had he died at the hands of the state. Johnson tries to scare Thomas further as she meets Brodie, but is wounded by Brodie and hospitalized. At this point, Hubbard is revealed as the brains behind the arson operations, as he kills Johnson in the hospital. Brodie turns Hubbard over to the authorities.

X-RAY: The story, characterizations, direction, and production are more or less routine in this entry that is best suited as lower half filler. The only sequences offering some excitement are those showing fire fighters in action, and these are more or less limited. A few cast members really get carried away with their assignments. The screenplay is credited to Tom Hubbard and D. D. Beauchamp, based on a story by Louis Stevens.

AD LINES: "Crime's Deadliest Racket"; "Suspense To Set Your Nerves Afire!"

COLUMBIA

Gunmen From Laredo

WESTERN
89M

Columbia
(Columbia Color)

ESTIMATE: Mediocre western for the program.

CAST: Robert Knapp, Jana Davi, Walter Coy, Paul Birch, Don C. Harvey, Clarence Straight, Jerry Barclay, Ron Hayes, Charles Horvath, Jean Moorhead, X. Brands, Harry Antrim. Produced and directed by Wallace MacDonald.

STORY: Ex-gunfighter Robert Knapp and wife Jean Moorhead pass near Laredo on their way to ranch where they intend to settle. Old enemies Walter Coy and his brothers attack them and kill Moorhead. Knapp is framed on a murder charge by Coy and taken to a jail on the other side of the desert. Thirsting for vengeance, he escapes and starts the hazardous trek across the desert back to Laredo. He rescues Indian maid Jana Davi from a member of another Indian tribe who had captured her, and she agrees to lead him across the desert. They survive storms and other hardships. Word of his escape panics Coy and his family, and they prepare an ambush in Laredo. Knapp kills his tormentors in a climactic gun fight. An understanding marshal lets Knapp and Davi escape to Mexico.

X-RAY: This mediocre effort has little to recommend it to any but the most avid western fans. The uneven color tones provide little aid, and production and direction are similarly undistinguished. A cast of relative unknowns does about as well as could be expected, and the familiar story unfolds in pedestrian fashion, livened only by occasional action sequences. Screenplay is by Clark E. Reynolds.

TIP ON BIDDING: Lower program rates.

AD LINES: "Blinded by Sand And By Hate . . . Led By A Fiery Indian Girl Back To Laredo And The Woman-Killing Keefers"; "Most Desperate Vengeance Trail In Southwest History As The Texas Desert Flames With Violence."

MGM

The Mating Game

COMEDY
96M

MGM
(CinemaScope)
(Metrocolor)

ESTIMATE: Highly amusing.

CAST: Debbie Reynolds, Tony Randall, Paul Douglas, Fred Clark, Una Merkel, Philip Ober, Philip Coolidge, Charles Lane, Trevor Bardette, Bill Smith. Produced by Philip Barry, Jr.; directed by George Marshall.

STORY: When Paul Douglas surreptitiously borrows Philip Ober's prize boar for mating purposes, Ober blows his stack at his carefree neighbor and his family, consisting of wife Una Merkel, eldest daughter Debbie Reynolds, plus a varied assortment of boys and girls. Ober has tried to buy Douglas' property for years, being tired of the display of tradeable merchandise such as used cars, refrigerators, mowers, etc., next door. The property has been in the Douglas family for more than a hundred years and he refuses to sell. Ober turns to the income tax department for assistance, and supervisor Fred Clark discovers Douglas has never paid an income tax. Agent Tony Randall is assigned to the case, and he visits the Douglas place to find that he just trades things, keeping no records and having no cash. Meanwhile, Reynolds is impressed with him, and Douglas and Merkel go out of their way to make him feel at home. He has a wonderful time after imbibing a number of Douglas specially mixed cocktails. Reynolds uncovers an old paper dating back to the Civil War promising to pay for horses adopted by the government. Clark is incensed by some of Randall's answers via the phone and arrives to take over. He finds that Douglas owes the government $50,000, and he threatens to sell his property to Ober or at public auction if he can't pay. An angry Reynolds heads for Randall's office to get him to help her collect the old claim from the government. When he insists there are channels, she takes off for the Treasury Department on her own with Randall following. After some trickery, they make their claim felt while Douglas is about to sign a bill of sale to Ober. He is interrupted by the arrival of a helicopter bearing news that the government owes Douglas 14 millions. Douglas doesn't want the money, but Randall insists that an agreement be drawn whereby future tax payments due from Douglas be drawn from this money. Randall and Reynolds go into a clinch.

X-RAY: When this amusing comedy was "sneaked," the audience seemed to have a most enjoyable time with the lightweight story that moved fast and to the point and with the cast that played its roles broadly and as if it were having lots of fun. The proper pace was maintained by quality direction and good production, and the entry shaped up as one that would be appreciated by all types of audiences, particularly by families. Even when events take a turn towards the slapstick, it's still funny; and of course, the people and events were never meant to be taken seriously. Two songs are heard, "The Mating Game" sung by Debbie Reynolds, which could be a big attention-getter for the film, and "I've Got You Under My Skin." Photography in CinemaScope and color provides an assist. The screenplay is by William Roberts, based on the novel, "The Darling Buds of May," by H. E. Bates.

TIPS ON BIDDING: Higher bracket.

AD LINES: "When Proper Boy Meets Forward Girl . . . What A Game"; "Dad And Mom Play 'The Mating Game' For All Its Worth."

UA
(Mirisch)

ESTIMATE: A riot of fun and femmes.

CAST: Marilyn Monroe, Tony Curtis, Jack Lemmon, George Raft, Pat O'Brien, Joe E. Brown, Nehemiah Persoff, Jean Shawlee, Billy

Gray, George E. Stone, Dave Barry, Mike Mazurki, Harry Wilson, Beverly Wills, Barbara Drew, Edward G. Robinson, Jr. Produced and directed by Billy Wilder.

STORY: In Chicago in 1929 a speakeasy owned by George Raft is knocked over by federal agents headed by Pat O'Brien after a tip by George E. Stone. In retribution, Raft and associates machine-gun Stone and associates. The event is accidentally viewed by two unemployed musicians, Tony Curtis and Jack Lemmon. They realize their escape is a temporary thing unless they can put distance between themselves and the killers. They manage to land jobs in an all-girl band by posing as girls and head for Miami Beach. Enroute, they share sleeping accommodations with the other girls, including Marilyn Monroe, ukulele player and vocalist, whose job is saved by Jack Lemmon. In Florida, millionaire playboy Joe E. Brown falls for Lemmon and tries to lure "her" out to his yacht. Meanwhile, Curtis dresses in men's clothes and poses as a millionaire, making Monroe fall in love with him. Raft and his mob arrive for a crime convention. National crime boss Nehemiah Persoff orders their elimination because of the Stone massacre. Again, Curtis and Lemmon are witnesses and again they have to flee to avoid being killed. The end result is that Curtis confesses all to Monroe, and they go off, with Brown and Lemmon bound for his yacht and safety despite attempts by Lemmon to confess all.

X-RAY: A sneak preview audience roared and roared during the surprise presentation of this amusing farce. The people enjoyed the light, fast-moving, at times nonsensical yarn; they loved the female impersonations by Tony Curtis and Jack Lemmon; they appreciated the gorgeous Monroe named Marilyn and her ability to get across a comedy line or a song; they seemed to understand that the direction and production values were superior; they went for a look into the past when liquor was prohibited and jazz ran rampant; all-in-all, a great time was had by all. Once the word gets around, the film will probably make nothing but money. As one exhibitor opined, it's very close to some of the burlesque shows of some years back—but funny and well-done. The screenplay is by Billy Wilder and I.A.L. Diamond, suggested by a story by R. Thoeren and M. Logan.

TIPS ON BIDDING: Higher rates.

ESTIMATE: Entertaining, different import.

CAST: M. E. Clifton James, John Mills, Cecil Parker, Patrick Allen, Patrick Holt, Leslie Phillips, Michael Hordern, Marius Goring, Barbara Hicks, Duncan Lamont, Anthony Sagar, Max Butterfield, Michael Oliver, John Gale, Kenneth Warren, others. Produced by Maxwell Setton; directed by John Guillermin.

STORY: British Intelligence seeks a way to convince Germany that the second front will be launched from Africa rather than in Normandy. John Mills and Cecil Parker concoct a wild scheme involving obscure finance officer and former actor M. E. Clifton James, who bears an amazing resemblance to General Montgomery. Clifton, willing but panic-stricken, is schooled in all Montgomery's mannerisms. He and Mills are off to Africa for an intensive inspection tour of military units there. The ruse is successful as German forces make several attempts to kill James. Finally, the job is done, and James is hidden in a small villa, there to be kept incognito until the war is over. A German squad infiltrates, however, and captures him. In a daring rescue attempt, Mills and a fellow English officer foil the kidnap effort. Germany holds considerable troops in Africa, and the second front is a successful operation.

X-RAY: Gaining much in the way of tension and excitement from the knowledge that it is based on a true incident of the war, this shapes up as a highly entertaining yarn of intrigue and high level military operations. There is action as well, and some good comedy as the befuddled masquerader tours the outposts as England's top military leader. Performances are uniformly good, with James delightful as the bogus general, and Mills and Parker also turn in top jobs. Direction keeps things moving, and the film should do well where war and spy stuff is appreciated. It is a refreshing change from the typical English war feature. Screenplay is by Bryan Forbes.

A Premiere Just for the Small Fry

THEATRE: Fox Loyola

ADDRESS: Los Angeles, Cal.

MANAGER: Paul D. Flowers

It has long been our contention that the small fry wants and demands something above just average. They want something different. They want to be entertained and they want to feel important.

Consequently we recently held a "premiere" of the independent release, "Princess Cinderella" just for them.

We tried to have all of our publicity and exploitation aimed at them and we used their parents as our messenger carriers.

Our premiere itself consisted of the picture, a stage show with local celebrities and our contest of picking "Princess Cinderella" who received a wristwatch as prize.

In selling our show we utilized such stunts as having aides dress up as "Prince Charming" and "Princess Cinderella" and ride around the town in a pony cart bannered with signs and with a loud speaker; having the "Princess" arrive at the theatre in a helicopter; making appearances at department stores, markets, etc., and appearing on TV shows for children.

We had a juvenile accordion band in front of the theatre while the stage show featured a singing cowboy with his horse and a magician.

We handled the entire stunt in the same manner as we would have an adult premiere. We had advance sale hard-back tickets and disposed of about 900. The theatre seats 1000, so it just took 10 minutes to fill up. Over 800 boys and girls waited three and a half hours in line to see the second show that we had to run. And we sold over $500 in candy at the special matinee!

Special handbills were distributed at all local schools and large markets; press releases were planted in all metropolitan and local newspapers, radio and TV stations; invitations and complimentary tickets were sent to all Parent-Teachers Association chairmen; in return for appearances on their radio and TV programs and in their stores of the "in person personalities" we obtained wonderful co-op newspaper and air advertising from merchants; while the usual lobby displays and badges worn by the house staff plugged the event at the theatre.

The result was a $614.35 matinee!

Judges At Work

All entries in the 1958 EXPLOITATION "Showman-Of-The-Year" contest are now in the hands of the "Committee Of 100" theatre circuit executive judges for their selection of the best five, each of whom will receive MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR checks for $200, or a total of $1,000 in prizes as announced.

Approximately half of the judges have completed their task and returned their selections to the publication office. Just as soon as the rest of the selections are in, the results will be tabulated and announcement made of the winners.

As the old vaudeville performer said on a pay-day matinee, "We're getting close to the money!"

dren 10 cents on Lincoln's Birthday, one of "Downtown Syracuse Shopping Days."

The attendant publicity and newspaper plugging was terrific with photo coverage and write-ups galore in addition to a full page donated by the Herald-Journal and Herald-American in support of the retail merchants. This ad read: "Children's Movie Day. Mothers, where can you hire a baby sitter for 10 cents? Mothers can shop while the children go to the movies, etc."

Many mothers said they were delighted to take advantage of the kids' cartoon shows because the 10 cents admission charge was the best baby sitter bargain in the country.

Another recent stunt is a recording contest set for teenage singers. This is the national recording contest which may spin an unknown teenage singer to fame by Warners and Warner Brothers' Records in connection with "The Hanging Tree."

A trip to Hollywood and an audition are the prizes. To enter, singers must submit their tape or disc recording of the title song "The Hanging Tree" to radio station WFBL. Local

Co-op Window Cards

THEATRE: Crim

ADDRESS: Kilgore, Texas

MANAGER: W. G. Rike

We recently effected a most successful window card tie-up with Kilgore College. We found it both a good will builder and a business getter. Others may find it also helpful.

We contacted the college basketball coach and sold him on the idea of co-op cards featuring their big game plus copy of our current picture and playdates.

He not only agreed but offered help in distribution of the cards, which we paid for.

All merchants cooperated fully. In fact, we placed cards in spots that usually will not permit such advertising such as the public library, the college dorm, the college bulletin board, the high school, etc.

Both the coach and ourselves were well pleased with the results.

What a Bride (and groom) Should Be Contest

THEATRE: Central

ADDRESS: Reading, England

MANAGER: A. H. Holloway

Seven full window displays were obtained in connection with our exploitation of "Happy Is The Bride." They tied in electrical appliances; tools; Singer sewing machines; a florist; a department store; a men's shop; a cooperative store, etc. The tieups were relatively easy to obtain due to the adaptability of the line "Happy Is The Bride Who . . ."

But the stunt that paid off was a "What A Bride (and groom) Should Be" contest co-operatively sponsored by four merchants and the theatre and which offered a total value of 400 Pounds in prizes and included a display in our foyer two weeks before playdate that was most attractive in size, layout and composition. This had five main display parts, with the film title in foot high letters suspended in the air. On each end was a large six foot poster, carrying scene stills and film credits, whilst in the middle was a poster announcing the contest. Four of the parts were given over to a display of the various prizes to be won in the contest whilst the fifth was a display of leaflets describing each product on display. Some 10,000 of these leaflets were distributed together with 3,000 copies of "Wedding Express," a mock newspaper giving editorial matter and competition details.

ABC Vending Provides Sales Tips For Exploitation Novelty Items

NEW YORK—Melvin L. Gold, sales manager, exploitation novelties division, ABC Vending Corporation, recently compiled some suggestions for selling exploitation novelties in connection with various film releases—an important adjunct to concession sales.

All theatre personnel should wear arm bands, badges, or some other attractive article to call attention to the items on sale; the windows of the boxoffice should have displays of balloons, cutouts, masks, other items, with a sign indicating that these items are on sale in the lobby.

The concession stand and all points of vantage should bear displays of exploitation novelties. If a good display case is available for the outer lobby or even for the front of the theatre, it should be filled with the novelties and so displayed.

The novelties should NOT be sold at the candy stand. A separate counter or booth should be built in the lobby to accommodate a display of merchandise, and the display should be adequately manned by sales-wise people who will "pitch" the merchandise to the crowd as they enter and leave the theatre.

Where a booth is built against a wall . . . high up on the back wall, a large peg board displaying each novelty item with a price and name of item indicated, will be helpful so that when the crowds mill around the booth to buy the merchandise, they can see over the heads of the people in front of them to select the merchandise they want, rather than have to depend on getting to the counter itself to see the items. This will be helpful in preparing them with their selection, so that when they reach the salesman or saleslady at the counter they are ready to make their purchase.

Balloons should be blown-up and used to decorate the lobby wherever possible.

A record player can be used in the lobby to play the records available. A record player can most likely be promoted from a local music shop, if they are given credit. Surrounding the record player should be a good display of the various records you have for sale.

Another means of accomplishing this is

The prizes included 14 from Morphy Richards including an Astral spin dryer, Derwent heater, Super suction cleaner, chrome toaster, steam iron, chrome Atlantic iron, six Gloucester chimes, and two Lincoln chimes; 16 prizes of "Happymaid Houseware"; a Singer electric sewing machine; six Singer electric irons; and prizes from Wolf "Quartermaster" Workshop kit—46 prizes in all.

All a contestant had to do was number in order of importance the things a BRIDE and a GROOM should be as enumerated on an entry blank.

The things a bride should be were listed as: good natured, a good cook, tolerant, economical, fond of children, attractive, intelligent, interested in husband's work, unselfish, and methodical.

The things a groom should be were listed as: generous, in a steady job, well groomed, ambitious, attentive, even tempered, punctual, handsome, good mannered, and reliable.

By arrangement with the Reading Standard, a composite feature on the contest and the film with co-op ads was published beto utilize a tape recorder. The record can be on the tape recorder along with a description of it, its recording artists, and its price. All of the records can be recorded on a single roll of tape and could, undoubtedly, be repeated on that roll of tape several times. In this way you can obtain at least a full hour of recording on a single roll of tape, and the need for changing the tape is infrequent. When this procedure is used you can intersperse with the records a pitch for the sale of other novelties on sale at the novelties counter.

Where space and facilities do not permit the building of a large novelties counter or booth, means should be taken to provide a display for the sale of these items in the most heavily trafficked part of the lobby or foyer. This can be accomplished by purchasing a folding table about twice the size of an ordinary bridge table. A one-by-two strip can be fastened to the back legs of the table. The strip should run approximately 10 feet in height. A peg-board can then be purchased and suspended between the two pieces of one-by-two, as backboard for the display. Peg-board hooks are easily obtainable; and can be inserted in the peg-board and from these hooks you can hang a variety of your novelties. On the table itself you can build steps of corrugated board or thin lumber so that you stagger the items and then the surface of the table can be filled with the various novelty items as well. This provides an adequate sales counter for small lobbies where more sizeable and substantial counters cannot be built.

If you have a vacant store next to your theatre you can set up an additional novelties center on your merchandise. Obviously, this store would have the advantage of being able to sell to people who have not attended the theatre, thereby, increasing the number of potential sales and at the same time encouraging people to attend the theatre, if they were not already so minded. Bear in mind, however, that your most effective traffic is in the theatre itself, and such a store should be used merely to supplement or augment your theatre sales and not to replace your lobby display and sales counter.

fore playdate. In addition, we displayed in the theatre foyer a group of wedding photographs which had appeared in the newspaper during a three month period. A panel of judges chose the "Happiest Reading Bride" from these and the couple received cash prizes given by the management of the theatre and the newspaper and were guests of the management as the opening of the film.

In addition, all of the usual film advertising media were used to plug the film.

How to Make Friends and Influence Movie Patrons

THEATRE: Landsun

ADDRESS: Artesia, New Mexico

MANAGER: Ray Bartlett

I have been in show business here in Artesia for 35 years. Just 12,000 population; but a good town. During that time and continuing now I have found that it is not just the exploitation of pictures that keep the people coming to our theatres.

When you or I go into a restaurant we like to be met by a pleasant waitress with a big smile and a friendly greeting. We like to have our water glass and coffee cup filled. When we go into a filling station we like to have the attendant wash our windshield, pass the time of day, etc. Any little act of courtesy in any line of business—that's what we like.

When I was a kid and mama sent me to the grocery store for a loaf of bread, I sure liked the grocer to give me a penny's worth of cookies, or the butcher who gave me a weinie. They are the ones that got my business.

So, in the entire 35 years of show business I have always followed that policy. You'd be surprised at the amount of candy I give the kids and how the youngsters all call me 'Pop.'

At Christmas time we send out free family passes in the form of season's greeting cards to our regular customers, about 600 family passes this year. These are good at any show of their choice upon presentation at the boxoffice. Certainly that costs us a lot of money in loss at the boxoffice; but we are not here for just today, we are here for tomorrow also.

When our local children reach 12 years of age we hike their admission to the student price. To take the edge off that increase we send the 12 year old a pass for himself AND HIS PARENTS. That makes them both feel a little more like paying the extra admission.

When we have an extra long show we do not expect our matinee customers to pay their admission and then have to pay a 50 cent overtime parking fine. We give them a courtesy parking ticket valued at 10 cents which gives them two extra hours of parking time; plenty of time to see even "The

Showmanship Pledge For Drive-In Exhibs

DALLAS—A 10 point "Pledge for Drive-In Showmen," proposed by Jonas Rosenfield, Jr., executive in charge of advertising and publicity for Columbia Pictures was presented to the convention of the Texas Drive-In Owners Association last week.

The text of the pledge:

1. I pledge to know my audience. I will meet my customers face to face and know at first hand their entertainment requirements.
2. I pledge to direct my programming to my audience. I will not guess at what they want. I will find out.
3. I pledge to find the best means of reaching my audience. This requires continual experimentation in media and budget.
4. I pledge to be a salesman of entertainment, of service, of comfort, and of community welfare.
5. I pledge to make my theatre a community force.
6. I pledge to make myself a community force. There will be no worthwhile community cause too large or too small which cannot look to me for my cooperation.
7. I pledge to remember that Hot Dogs do not sell tickets. The entertainment on the screen will be supreme and my food and amusement concessions will be maintained at the highest level but in proper relation to the business of entertainment.
8. I pledge to avoid "quick buck" attractions. I am in business month after month and I want always to look every one of my customers in the eye after he sees the picture.
9. I pledge to keep young and up-to-date. There is no better invitation to failure than to run my business according to yesterday's rules.
10. I pledge, above all, to think, act and be a showman. I will always consider this designation the highest honor which can be paid to me.

Ten Commandments" without leaving to put more money in their meters or get fined.

These are just a few of the many courtesies we extend our citizens and customers; and while other theatres are hollering "wolf" we go right along building business in face of television, bowling alleys, baseball, etc., etc.

The whole point I want to make is simply this: If the theatre managers will DO UNTO OTHERS AS THEY WOULD LIKE TO BE DONE UNTO this business would be better than ever. Of course, I do not mean they should not exploit their pictures. They should do both.

In certain sections of this we had printed "Christmas also celebrated here during July and August. Great shows Santa Claus is bringing for your enjoyment." Then we listed six of the big coming features during those two months. It attracted the desired attention as a lobby display.

Walt Disney's "Peter Pan" did better business here recently as a reissue than it did when played originally in 1953. We tied up with the local Sunshine Laundry, who have a very large drive-in place with plenty of room to advertise. We gave them 25 passes to give out to their customers and they mentioned this in coop ads. We had two 40x60's

MODEL AND FASHION CONTEST

Submitted by John G. Corbett
Grove, Gloversville, N. Y.

1200 seats • 65 cents top admission
City and rural patronage.

Here at the Grove seven leading women's clothing stores agreed to sponsor this big civic project. They gave $100 in cash and prizes to winners.

To start it off a small ad ran in the want ad page of the local newspaper asking for girls interested in learning the art of fashion modeling; and over 40 answered by coming to the theatre. They were told they were going to be given the opportunity of being instructed at no charge and that the theatre would let them use the stage for four Saturday mornings of this purpose. For the advertising benefit, a local dancing teacher, a former New York City model, agreed to teach the girls. At the first class the 40 girls were told of the proposed model contest and all were interested in entering it. Application cards were filled out and their instructor told them of the interesting features of the coming contest.

Also, at no cost, a hair stylist; a cosmetics teacher, who advised on make-up; a florist, who decorated the stage weekly and awarded flowers to winners; a photographer, who took photos of the girls for display and newspaper use, were interested.

For three Thursday evenings the girls appeared on our stage and on a specially con-and two 22x28's on display around their location which were quite attractive. They also bought and paid for their own "Peter Pan" hats which they gave to children. We displayed one of their signs on the window of our theatre. Our signs also were seen in the laundry as people entered and left, so it gave us quite a lot of away from the theatre advertising.

As this is a large Catholic community, I always play any picture that appeals to this segment of the local population. When we played "The Miracle Of Marcelino," we constructed runway. Each carried a number and the audience voted for whom they thought was the most perfect model. At the end of the third week, 14 leading girls were selected and the seven sponsoring stores adopted two girls each. The stores dressed the girls in the latest fashions for the final contest to select "Gloversville's Most Perfect Model." The first week the girls wore sports clothes; the second week, dressy clothes; the third week, evening gowns; and the fourth week, clothing of the sponsoring store.

The show was advertised two weeks in advance of first show and for the entire four weeks by a special trailer used at all performances. Newspaper and radio came through with plenty of mention due to the interest in the local lassies involved. Heralds were distributed by the stores in mailing lists, on counters of their fashion departments, and were also distributed at the theatre and house to house. A 40x60 was used in front of the theatre each Thursday and a huge lobby display giving credits to the sponsors remained on display in the lobby for the four weeks.

We found that this contest pleased everyone. The girls, because they were learning to wear clothes and obtaining modeling experience; the merchants, because they were in need of good models; mothers and fathers, because the girls were given free instruction, especially in poise and proper walking; and, last, but not least, the contest meant much at the boxoffice, as friends and relatives of the contestants, clerks in the various stores and the public in general attended.

Go Carts Racing at Drive-in THEATRE: Chief Drive-In

ADDRESS: Austin, Texas

MANAGER: Glyn Morsbach

As a drive-in operator we are constantly searching for new sources of revenue. This is especially true for the daytime non-productive hours.

Here in Austin we saw a need and did something about it. Many of the Austin children were given mechanical carts for Christmas, namely "Go Carts," but with the dismal prospect of having no place to run them except on city streets, from which they are banned and forbidden to run, or on empty super-market parking lots whenever these could be found. There was a tremendous desire for these kids and their fathers to run these carts without endangering the kids' safety and the safety of spectators; but this running space was just not available.

Seeing this need we offered the Chief with its fine paving, tremendous area and other facilities to the "go cart" fans for their permanent home—a place where they could tune their carts during the week and have competitive races on Sunday afternoons.

The "go carts" vaguely resemble a stripped-down auto at first glance, but here the resemblance ends. Actually a go cart is a two-and-a-half to three horsepower motor

COMPANY ASSISTS

United Artists has set two major promotions for author Samuel Edward's book, "The Naked Maja," which is tied in with the release of the Titanus Films production of the same title. The McGraw-Hill Publishing Company is issuing a hard cover version of the romantic novel depicting the lives and love affair of the Spanish painter Goya and the Duchess of Alba portrayed in the film by Anthony Franciosa and Ava Gardner. In addition, Bantam Books will publish a pocket book of the novel. Both book promotions will include heavy dealer displays and intensive local level tie-ins and advance of key regional playdates. In conjunction with local playdates, McGraw-Hill dealers will work in close coordination with theatre owners in arranging displays and cross-promotions. The publishing company will also launch a series of trade ads designed to draw attention to the book and the UA release. The pocket book edition will carry full credits and the provocative portrait of the famous Goya painting. Rack cards and poster displays will be featured in major book stores and department stores throughout the country.

mounted on a steel frame, and equipped with steering wheel, brakes and a throttle. Rear wheels about 11 inches in diameter and front wheels, about 10 inches, suspend the bodies two inches above ground.

The following was the procedure used to institute another first for our drive-in and probably a "first" for a drive-in anywhere—the introduction of organized "Go Cart" racing to the City of Austin.

Glyn Morsbach, manager, Chief Drive-In, Austin, Tex., recently furnished a "Go Cart" racing track at his theatre where enthusiasts may engage in their sport during daytime non-productive hours. Not only a good will builder and attention getter, it paid off handsomely at the concession stand.

In as its permanent racing ground. Facilities of the drive-in were made available to members of the club only. For our "kickoff" race we charged 25 cents admission for everyone entering the drive-in and gave the entire proceeds to the March of Dimes. This totaled $273.00, an attendance of 1,092 people. We had close to 500 cars in the drive-in. Since the sport was so new and most people never heard of such a thing, station KTBC-TV cooperated fully by running spots and radio announcements the entire week before the races and the fact that the gate receipts would go to charity. Dan Love's "World Of Sports" program on TV ran filmed movies of the trial races held in advance and this acquainted the people with what to expect and the thrills to look forward to in seeing Go Cart racing at our drive-in.

The men and women of The March of Dimes also spread the word all week long and sold tickets in our boxoffice the day of the races. Go Carts were shown on live TV on "The Cactus Pryor Program."

Theatre ramps were swept clean of loose dirt and gravel by two large professional motorized sweepers free of charge. A race course was laid out between ramps by professional stripers and painted free of charge. The track measures 3/10 of a mile, running around three ramps. Firestone Tire stores donated 70 old tires to place over speaker posts to avoid injury to anyone accidentally hitting the posts. Checkered flags were donated by local racing fans and a sports car club. Trophies were promoted and awarded by local beauties. Judges and beauties were seated on a viewing stand which is permanently located on top of the concession stand. Master of ceremonies was "Cactus Pryor," of local radio-TV station. Ballyhoo flags donated by local market chain were used to help mark the course of the race and keep the spectators in line. Two private ambulances were on hand in case of an emergency. This is a good psychological feature even if we did not expect anything to happen to the racers. Crash helmets and goggles are required for safety and showmanship. A volunteer force of seven policemen assisted in controlling the crowd and supervising the event.

We are now making arrangements with contractors to repave corners of the track where ramps make racing a little too bumpy. This is to be done by donations and will not cost the theatre or the club anything.

The club now has its own organization with new members recruited each week and many interested in joining. Mothers and sisters are also interested in the races. At present only Class "A" carts are running, but several are building Class "C" and "B" carts which will be much faster. Class "A" run between 35 and 40 MPH. The average age of the "racers" is under 12 years.

Lovers of Paris

COMEDY-DRAMA
115M.

Continental
(French-made)
(English titles)

ESTIMATE: Amusing import.

CAST: General Philippe, Danielle Darrieux, Dany Carrel, Jacques Duby, Anouk Aimee, Jane Marken, Henri Vilbert, Claude Nollier. Produced by Robert and Raymond Hakim; directed by Julien Duvivier.

STORY: Gerard Philippe arrives in uninhabited Paris at the end of the 19th century determined to make a business conquest of the city. His quarters are in a fancy apartment house where he meets and conquers a number of women. He goes to work for Danielle Darrieux, who owns a fabric shop and who resists his charms, preferring to remain faithful to an aged husband. Fellow tenant Jane Marken seeks to marry off her daughter, Dany Carrel, but when she discovers Philippe's intentions are other than honorable, Marken discourages him. A marriage is arranged instead with Jacques Duby, a sickly young bachelor who is Darrieux's competitor. After the wedding, Carrel and Philippe have an affair. He leaves Darrieux to work for Duby when Darrieux ridicules his amorous advances, and many customers follow. When Darrieux's husband dies, she feels free to attract Philippe to return. One of her methods is to slyly intimate to Duby that Philippe and Carrel are having an affair. Duby discovers them together and hastily challenges Philippe to a duel. Philippe realizes the only way to get Darrieux and her business is to marry her, and she accepts his proposal.

X-RAY: Art and specialty house audiences, who appreciate humorous situations based on and dealing broadly with sex, should like this import which is loaded with both. This glimpse into the manners and morals of the latter part of the last century also contains charm, Gallic wit, and mischievous cuteness. The satire holds interest although a tightening of the running time would have improved the overall presentation. Cast, production, and direction are good. The screenplay is by Henri Jeanson based on Emile Zola's novel "Pot Bouill." This bears a Legion Of Decency Condemned Rating.

(Made in Finland) (English titles)

ESTIMATE: For art spots.

CAST: Anneli Sauli, Saulo Haarla, Janno Palo. Produced by Vinod Pathak; directed by Toivo Sarkka.

STORY: Peasant girl Anneli Sauli is a milkmaid on a large dairy farm. Giant foreman Janno Palo, who numbers many farm girls among his conquests, finds her a beautiful though reluctant target for his advances. Comes summer and artist Saulo Haarla, and he falls in love with Sauli. Their idyll is short lived as Palo threatens to break up the romance and kill Haarla. They defy him. However, as summer ends, Haarla must return to Paris and resume his studies. Sauli knows the romance is over. Palo now tries to force his attentions on her once more, but having experienced true love, she will not have anything to do with him. She has a book of sketches Haarla made of her and dreams of a happier future.

X-RAY: This simple love idyll unfolds in unhurried, old fashioned cinematic manner with photography of natural elements and farm scenery frequently denoting human passions. There is a nude bathing sequence tastefully done and other scenes that are enhanced by the beautiful and buxom leading lady. Definitely on the arty side, this has lovely pastoral photography by Kalle Peronposki and a "smaltzy" musical score by Harry Bergstrom.

ESTIMATE: Religious drama strictly for art and specialty houses.

CAST: Frances Descout, Jean Debucourt, Suzanne Flon, Catherine Fonteney, Jean Yonnel, Valentine Tessier. Produced by Andre Haguet; directed by George Bernier.

STORY: On the eve of World War I, Pope Pius X presents his petition which leads towards eventual canonization of Little Sister Therese of the Child-Jesus, who died in France at the Lisseux Convent in 1897. Frances Descout, one of five sisters, vows at the age of 14 that she would become a saint. At the age of 15, she is refused admission to the convent, so she appeals directly to the Pope and eventually is admitted. She faces and overcomes all hardships, giving of herself more than duty requires. Eventually, she is taken ill and dies, vowing to return and do good. She does reveal herself in what some term "a number of miracles" after which she is canonized Patroness of Missionaries by Pope Pius XI on May 17, 1925. Her prophecy is fulfilled.

X-RAY: Limited in scope and reception is this religious biographical drama which should be well received where the off-beat and the unusual are sought—in the art and specialty spots. Through "saintly" performances, the story of a young girl taken with religion is a believable one which could deeply interest those viewers who appreciate religion, its signs, and symbols. The scope of reception has been widened a bit since the dialogue has been dubbed into English, and a little tightening of the running time might have improved it still more. Church approval and support should be sought by exhibitors booking this subject. The screenplay is by H. Andre LeGrand and Andre Haguet, based on an idea by H. Dupuy-Mazuel.

AD LINES: "A Tale Of Inspiration"; "The Girl Who Wanted To Help"; "The Story Of A Woman With A Mission In Life."

The Mistress

DRAMA
102M

Edward Harrison
(Japanese-made)
(English titles)

ESTIMATE: Okay import for specialty spots.

CAST: Hideko Takamine, Hiroshi Akutagawa, Eijiro Tono, Jukichi Uno, Choko Iida, Eiza Tanaka, Kumeko Urabe. Produced by Yuji Hirao and Kenji Kuroiwa. Directed by Shiro Toyado.

STORY: Young and attractive Hideko Takamine is persuaded by a matchmaker to become the mistress of a money lender. She is installed in a nice house with a maid, and her existence is bearable until she falls in love with a passing student. Her suffering is intensified when she discovers her patron's true marital state as well as his occupation, which is held in little esteem by the rest of the population. Her student thinks it's hopeless to even get involved, and he leaves to study further in Germany. Fed up with her life, she runs away from her master.

X-RAY: The difference in locale, background, situation, and story enhances this import with a certain amount of quiet charm which art and specialty house audiences may find reasonably attractive. The cast gives a fairly good account of itself, and direction and production are alright. The screenplay is by Masashige Narusawa, based on a novel by Ogai Mori. Some of the customs and settings are unusual, therefore interesting.

AD LINES: "She Knew The Way To A Man's Heart"; "An Unusual Story About An Unusual Woman."

The Truth About Women

COMEDY DRAMA
100M

Continental
(Eastman Color)

ESTIMATE: Satire has names to help.

CAST: Laurence Harvey, Diane Cilento, Jackie Lane, Eva Gabor, Julie Harris, Mai Zetterling, Michael Denison, Derek Farr, Catherine Boyle, Elina Labourdette, Balbina, Thorley Walters, Wilfred Hyde White, Marius Goring, Roland Culver. Written, produced, and directed by Muriel and Sydney Box. A Lion International Films, Ltd., production.

STORY: Laurence Harvey reminisces to Derek Farr about his long career of handling women all over the world. In order, they were modernist Diane Cilento; exotic Turkish beauty Jackie Lane; cuckolding French wife Eva Gabor, who leads him from boudoir to dueling field; artist and English girl Julie Harris; and finally Prague nurse Mai Zetterling. From these experiences, Farr, who has been having an argument with his wife, Catherine Boyle, gets a new understanding of women.

X-RAY: This plush production with elaborate costuming of the various periods and countries is told in flashback fashion and unreels for all the world like a series of cliché-ridden epigrams. The episodes for the most part are a lot of sophisticated froth and while they hold the interest are quite talky. The all star cast sports quite a few names, and the performers acquit themselves in fashion far superior to the material. The Eastman Color is lovely and it is evident that considerable time and money were spent on the film. It is a pity that the producers and directors did not come up with something a little more original in story line, or is there nothing more original about women?

AD LINES: "A Big Wide, Wonderful Whirl Of Women — And A Man's Undoing"; "Sophisticated, Absorbing and Gay."

THREE REEL

CINEMASCOPE COLOR TRAVEL

GRAND CANYON. Buena Vista-Technicolor-CinemaScope. 26m. The Grand Canyon and all of its beauty have been captured by the CinemaScope cameras in Technicolor in a fine pictorial interpretation of Ferde Grofe's "Grand Canyon Suite," as conducted by Frederick Stark. The ever-changing moods of the Canyon as well as some scenes showing its wildlife inhabitants are caught. There is no narration or dialogue, with all of the sound completely musical. This subject would prove excellent for art and specialty houses where discriminating adults will really appreciate it. However, audiences of children may tend to grow impatient with the short. GOOD.

UNSOLICITED • The letters from readers which appear on this page are not solicited. MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR does not suggest questions to readers in order to provide a flow of letters.

From BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Let's get organized! In MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR's pink REVIEWS section last year you reviewed two Dominant releases, "CRAWLING TERROR" (July 9 issue) and "CREATURES FROM ANOTHER WORLD" (Sept. 5 issue). Then, in a later pink REVIEWS section you reviewed two D.C.A. releases "THE CRAWLING EYE" and "COSMIC MONSTERS" (Feb. 11 issue). You certainly must have learned by now that the first combo and the second combo are the same two pictures. It seems that D.C.A. got them from Dominant, and merely changed the titles. Also there appears to have been some editing for the running time on one is different. You may want to alert your readers so they won't find themselves booking the same combo twice.

Other than that, I have a collection of MPE reviews back to 1947, and I would be lost without it. Your action-slanted REVIEWS are the best guide I have ever found for booking wisely.

FRANK MORRIS
Sumner Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: You seem to be 100% right! With different running time, different titles, little known casts, new paper, and no reference to former titles in the press books, it is relatively impossible to catch such a stunt unless it happens that the same reviewer catches all four pictures. Some back checking indicates that the first combo never played at all in some territories, so those theatre-men needn't worry. But this shouldn't excuse a distributor for not telling his retailers about it, even if it was kept from the public. You will note that bold face corrections will be run in the future in our several indexes.

From BEAUMONT, TEX.

I consider it a privilege to be one of the COMMITTEE OF 100 theatre circuit JUDGES and thank you for extending me this invitation.

SAMUEL B. LANDRUM
Jefferson Amusement Company

EDITOR'S NOTE: The above note accompanied and amplified Mr. Landrum's post card Ballot No. 54, and is typical of the sincere enthusiasm that most circuit executives demonstrated, and of their willingness to work in the cause of exploitation and merchandising in theatres everywhere.

From CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Your editorial "A $22,812,500 STRAW . . . AIN'T HAY!" (Feb. 18 Issue) is so erroneous that for the first time in my life I am writing to a trade paper.

Minor misstatements and misleading information I have ignored, but this is ridiculous. Who ever told you there was an "irreducible minimum" film rental of $12.50 per day? Small town and suburban runs all over the country are getting, and have been getting, two and three day pictures for $12.50. So, what's the point?

W. G. CARMICHAEL, Branch Manager
Allied Artists Distributing Corp.

EDITOR'S NOTE: We're afraid you missed our "let's suppose." It is certainly probable that many theatres among the 5000 that closed were paying more than $12.50 per day. And it is certainly possible that the general average daily film rental for many of those 5000 theatres was $20 or more. But, let's take your proposed figure of two days for $12.50. That's still $11,406,250 each and every year. Believe us, even to your Philadelphia manager Max Gillis, that still "AIN'T HAY!"

SEE FOR YOURSELF!

From RADFORD, VA.

I've been in this business since 1943, but today I feel that I know less how to plan than ever before. Many folks seem to have suggestions, but I'm convinced that the answer goes deeper than many of us are aware. True, the print shortage is unbelievably bad, and the volume of production for the fellow who needs 200 good pictures a year is even worse. And the fact that many of the distributors are mentally writing off their small town customers presents an obstacle that most of us can't cope with.

Personally, I have no suggestions. Day by day I simply work a little harder, cut a corner here and there, and do more and more things myself. We still try exploitation, and we keep the theatre in its best possible condition. Our folks are interested in our theatre as an establishment and want it here for the too-few movies they really want to see, but they just don't get here often enough. Our economic picture here is far from rosy, for we've been in a distress area for several years, with our labor market top-heavy with too few working in too low paid jobs.

Oh well! As long as we stay in business I'll need MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR. I frankly don't know how I'd keep shop without my favorite pink REVIEWS and yellow cross-index. Keep up the good work!

R. A. CARPENTER, City Manager,
Radford and Hi-Way Drive-In Theatres

EDITOR'S NOTE: While Mr. Carpenter expresses himself better than most, this letter of his typifies literally scores of other letters, from other neighborhood subsequent run and small town theatres, that flow across our desk daily. When print and picture shortages and tougher and tougher distribution policies chase the Mr. Carpenters out of this business in wholesale lots, producers had better turn immediately to TV outlets, and let distributors start tending gas stations. For movie business, as we have known it over the past 50 years, will have died.

From ANNISTON, ALA.

I was delighted to note in the Feb. 18 issue that you are now entering in your Yellow SERVICESECTION the page numbers on which I can find reviews of reissued shorts in your pink REVIEWS section. MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR is the only source in which such information is available, and I am very grateful for your fine cooperation.

THOMAS G. COLEMAN
Coleman Theatres, Inc.

EDITOR'S NOTE: It was back in June, 1958, that Mr. Coleman initiated his campaign to have EXHIBITOR return the data on reissued shorts to our SERVICESECTION indexes. The others who found such data useful can thank Mr. Coleman for his alertness.

From OLGA, WASH.

Of all the trade papers, I think MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR is the best. I have looked them all over and have decided to continue with yours only. I would like to see more problems of western exhibitors, but I presume that they are the same everywhere.

With our short season, our biggest difficulty is getting films delivered at a cost less than the film rental. Last year we used air express, which worked out very well.

PALMER B. STEARNS, Owner
Orcos Drive-In Theatre

EDITOR'S NOTE: Bet that is a problem that many a theatre owner never thought about.

From LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Have just noticed in the Dec. 3 issue the plea by Wayne Walker for reprints of the pink REVIEWS sheets back to 1936. I fervently hope enough responses are forthcoming to convince you to reprint them. Suffice it to say that the pink sheets I have (back to Sept. 1948) are invaluable to this University of Southern California cinema major, and I wouldn't part with them even for an uncut print of "GREED."

SKIP SKALSKY

EDITOR'S NOTE: Its nice to be appreciated, and we can assure all comers that it isn't conviction so much as printing dollars that are important. Our files of all features and of all short subjects are complete.

HORACE ADAMS SAYS A MOUTHFUL

WE MUST ADMIRE the straight-forward lay-it-on-the-line approach of Horace Adams, in his capacity as chairman of the ACE Committee on Producer-Exhibitor-Distributor Relations. In his Feb. 18 bulletin to area co-chairmen, he has exhibited a clear-headedness, and an honest challenging to his fellow theatremen that is commendable.

After assuring them that the "long awaited meetings with executives of distribution are expected to take place soon—very soon!" he asks for "ammunition of the kind that we can present to these executives in an orderly manner" and "specific cases of specific instances of complaints against distribution."

Mr. Adams then illustrates: "For example, if you have a complaint about 'Price Fixing—Direct or Indirect,' we need definite information—FACTS! Tell us the name of the picture, the name and address of the theatre affected. How long after its previous run did you play the picture? What is your run, normally? How long did the picture play at the prior run? How much were you compelled to charge as admission? What is your normal admission charge? What conversations did you have with the film salesman or branch manager, aside from the language of your contract, that led you to sign for the pictures affected?"

"In short, tell us every bit of detailed information you have about the entire transaction that will aid us in presenting to the executives of distribution, a factual report of what could be violations of the law.

"The information you give us will be compiled with that of theatres in other sections of the country so that we may be armed with FACTS—not generalities—when we present our case for improvement and changes to the heads of distribution. Please remember that this is the first time that united exhibition (through ACE) has been enabled to meet with the men whose decisions can affect the lives and livelihoods of every one of us. We must be prepared with irrefutable FACTS."

Spoken like a statesman! And an honorable statesman, too!

No one can refute—or quarrel with—supported FACTS. Al Smith used to say: "Let's look at the record!" And that is still the best test in the book for honesty and sincerity.

If Mr. Adams and his cohorts will stick to "FACTS" we're pretty sure the "executives of distribution" won't feel that the coming meetings are either a waste of time—or a selfish effort for an "edge." In that direction lies peaceful industry co-existence.

AN OFF-BEAT AD APPROACH

THERE'S SOME off-beat advertising coming up that promises to be interesting, on or off the amusement page.

We happened to catch an advance look at the press book on Jerry Wald's production of William Faulkner's "THE SOUND AND THE FURY," and it looks as though Fox has come up with something pretty unusual, and heavy in sales punch. Yet it is so simple that you wonder why its use hasn't become more common.

Against the square finished background of an unretouched still, of some one dramatic scene from the picture, they have reversed out pertinent pungent dialogue in bold poster type, and it fairly screams. All of the credits, and incidental trivia about the supporting players, screen writers, etc., are down around the bottom, where they won't interfere with the interest in the still, or with the effectiveness of its punch line, so the very simplicity makes you look twice.

There are a couple in the 600 to 800 line category that should dominate any page. Even some of our dizzy, chicken-marked and no-text amusement pages. But it's on the fashion page, and on the TV-radio page where they'll really get in their licks. They pack a lot of "SOUND" and a lot of "FURY" for a modest investment!

A TRIBUTE TO THE "LITTLE PEOPLE"

CLIFF KNOLL, of the State Theatre, Sioux Falls, S. D., and one of the more alert managers of the Minnesota Amusement Circuit, has favored us with a photostat of a longhand letter he has received out-of-the-blue from one of his satisfied patrons. It's the kind of letter that makes you feel proud of our business, and of some of the "little people" who form our personal contact with our public. We want to share it with the dedicated showmen of America:

"Dear Sir:

"Mr. Albers and I would like to express our appreciation for the good shows we have enjoyed at the State the past few months. Also, may we express our gratitude for the friendliness, courtesy and kindness of the man who takes the tickets. He is so friendly, and enjoys people so much that we feel we have 'come home' when he greets us. We have known him to remind children to button their coats against the cold. To call attention to a dropped mitten. Or to kindly discourage some boy's dog from attending the show. We have heard him caution an elderly person about ice, and ask them if they enjoyed the show. We have also seen faces light up because of his friendliness.

"The lady that sells tickets is also pleasant and patient and constantly courteous. The ushers are quiet, courteous, and considerate. We have lived in Sioux Falls for 30 years, but we never enjoyed the theatre as much as we do now. In this busy age it is a joy seldom experienced to be made welcome in any public place. We actually leave your theatre with a desire to return soon.

"Please accept our sincere appreciation for your well-trained and pleasant personnel. All theatre people would be wise to follow this good example."

It is too bad that this industry has no "Oscars" for doormen, cashiers, and ushers like these. They contribute more heart, and more effort, than many of the high-priced orchid-draped talent that will "sashay" down the aisle of the Pantages theatre on April 6. And they aren't nearly as well paid.

NEW YORK—N. J. Blumberg, Preston Davie, Albert A. Carthwaite, John J. O'Connor, Milton R. Rackmil, Budd Rogers, Daniel M. Schaeffer, Harold I. Thorp, and Samuel H. Vallance will be nominated for re-election as the board of directors at the annual meeting of Universal stockholders on March 11.

BROADWAY GROSSES

"Beauty" Leads Holdover Session

NEW YORK—With all hold-over product, business in the Broadway first-runs last weekend was below average with the exception of the Criterion, where Disney's "Sleeping Beauty" was continuing at a merry pace.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"THE REMARKABLE MR. PENNY-PACKER" (20th-Fox). Paramount ($39,435)*—The second week was sure of $23,000.

"THE JOURNEY" (MGM). Radio City Music Hall ($147,610) — Thursday through Sunday hit $88,000 with the second week bound to hit $135,000. Stage show.

"THE HANGING TREE" (Warners). Roxy ($55,405)—Wednesday through Saturday was claimed at $34,000, with the third and last week sure of $38,000. Stage show.

"NEVER STEAL ANYTHING SMALL" (U-I). Capitol ($33,350)—The third and last week dropped to $18,000.

"THE LAST MILE" (UA). Victoria ($22,900)—The second week tallied $13,000.

"SEPARATE TABLES" (UA). Astor ($25,630)—The 11th week was reported at $19,000.

"BELL, BOOK AND CANDLE" (Col.) Odeon announced that the 10th and last week would reach $8,500.

"SLEEPING BEAUTY" (Disney - Buena Vista). Criterion was heading toward a $50,000 second week after a $60,000 opening session.

"RALLY 'ROUND THE FLAG BOYS" (20th-Fox). RKO Palace stated that the 10th week would reach $13,000.

F.L. Jacobs Restrained From Selling Assets

DETROIT—The Wayne County Circuit Court late last week temporarily restrained the F. L. Jacobs Company from selling any of its assets, in a suit filed by stockholders Victor H. Debacke and Edward P. Frohlich.

The move is one part of a suit seeking cash restitution from F. L. Jacobs officials for losses they allegedly caused the firm. Named as defendants are Alexander L. Guterma, former chairman, and Hal Roach, Jr., who replaced Guterma and took over the presidency as well as the board chairmanship recently.

The main charges of the suit are that defendants made certain loans and mortgages harmful to the stockholders and company, and the firm was late in paying employees; that the defendants are dissipating F. L. Jacobs Company assets and income and will continue to do so unless the court appoints a receiver; that the defendants used the assets and income for their own benefits and had a deficit of "earnings retained" of $370,246 up to July 21, 1957; and that the firm paid preferred dividends out of capital in violation of the underwriting agreement. The case was to be heard March 2.

William Heineman, left, vice-president in charge of distribution for United Artists, and Eugene Picker, executive vice-president, Loew's Theatres, are seen signing the contract for the New York premiere of UA's "Some Like It Hot" at the newly renovated Loew's State.

Kansas Censors Okay 'Laurent'

NEW YORK—A signal victory over the forces of arbitrary state censorship was won for the motion picture industry this week when the Kansas State Board of Motion Picture Review lifted its eight-month ban on the Trans-Lux release, "The Case of Dr. Laurent," according to company president Richard P. Brandt.

Obituaries

Joseph Conway, 61, former owner, Egyptian (now the Bala), Bala-Cynwyd, Pa., and operator of the Wayne Avenue Playhouse, Philadelphia, died last weekend after an illness in St. Joseph's Hospital. He was also connected with the distribution end of the business at one time. He is survived by his wife.

Sam Goldstone, former vice-president, Famous Pictures Exchange, died in his New York home after a long illness. He is survived by his wife, son, mother, a brother, and a sister.

Rex W. Kinne, exhibitor who operated and booked the Lyon and Lee Whitmore Lake theatres, passed away in South Lyon, Mich., where he lived. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, and a son.

Edward J. O'Keefe, 82, former vaudeville performer and theatre operator, died in Atlantic City, N. J. last fortnight. He managed the old City Square in Atlantic City from 1912 to 1920. He is survived by his wife and a daughter.

Eli M. Orowitz (Emo), 62, well known industry publicist and theatre manager in the Philadelphia area, died in Los Angeles last week. He was a pioneer in the fan publicity via radio field, and was at one time a departmental director of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR. He is survived by his wife, son, and daughter.

Jay T. Reed, 72, pioneer Hollywood producer, and second president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, died in San Diego, Cal., last night.

Heavy TOA Agenda For Mid-Winter Meet

WASHINGTON—More than 60 directors and executive committeemen of the Theatre Owners of America convened on March 1 for a three-day session here at the Mayflower Hotel for what president George G. Kerasotes said should be the most important mid-winter meeting in the organization's history.

Included on the heavy agenda are ACE, Department of Justice, Toll-TV, Army-Navy Pre-Release, film company stock purchasing, projectionist training, extended insurance coverage, ways and means of increasing product, the Russian-U. S. cultural film exchange, and Academy Award liaison.

President Kerasotes was to deliver his report to the board of directors and executive committee on the four months since TOA's annual convention in Miami. S. H. Fabian, TOA treasurer and first rotating chairman of ACE, was also to report.

Kerasotes said that he felt "that in the last four months TOA has achieved new stature in our industry." He said, "Our agenda will permit you to take time off to go to Capitol Hill to see your Congressmen and Senators and to entertain them at a cocktail party. Before, between and after this legislative approach, you have many things to consider. I urge your careful consideration to the following: guide us on how closely we should continue working with ACE; give new impetus to the grass-roots campaigns to outlaw pay-TV by legislation, and end the pre-release of films to military camps; tell us how far you want us to go in organizing projectionist training; let us know your reaction to the exchange area saturation advertising and release program; advise us how strongly we should push for standardized projection and new stereophonic sound; give us your reaction to the new program of travel insurance TOA could provide for you; help us chart a course that will continue the healthy growth of TOA; study the censorship problem and help us combat it; let us know if unfair 16mm competition is a problem for you so we may seek to move against such competition; assess for us proposed enlargement of our film company stock purchasing; and let us know if you find merit in the proposal to make it easier and cheaper for exhibitors to buy stock by massing their orders.

"I haven't mentioned some of the greatest problems facing us. How to get more pictures? What to do about easing the decrees? What progress is being made in preventing the sale of post-48 films to television? etc. because these vital questions will be included in the report on ACE that Si Fabian will give."

Henry G. Plitt, chairman, TOA's committee on new personality development and Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences Liaison, reported that his committee was able to get the Academy Awards Committee to move the awards telecast to Monday, April 6, so that it would offer the least possible interference with normal theatre operation.

Progress was also reported in the continuing effort to build up new faces for the screen, with exhibitor aid.

Use Of U.S. Film Figures Seen Aid To Foreign Pix

NEW YORK—George G. Kerasotes, president, TOA, disclosed last fortnight that a recommendation made by the ACE Committee on Ways and Means to Increase Motion Picture Production that foreign film makers employ the services of U.S. stars and directors to win their product greater acceptance in the American as well as the world market has been placed before producer, distributor, and exhibitor organizations throughout the world.

Many of the foreign groups, the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association of Great Britain and Ireland among them, have declared themselves sympathetic to the idea, it was said.

Lippert, Zabel Head New Theatre Venture

HOLLYWOOD—Edwin F. Zabel and Robert L. Lippert, Sr., have been elected president and secretary respectively by stockholders of Scott Radio Laboratories, Inc., an Illinois corporation known for its electronic products since 1927.

Zabel and Lippert were also elected to the board of directors of Scott, together with J. H. MacIntyre, motion picture and television producer; Bruce Fowler, motion picture theatre executive; and Sanford I. Drucker, vice-president and director of Bingham, Walter, and Hurry, Inc.

Zabel announced the company plans to propose a change of name to the stockholders to Electrovision Corporation. The purpose for this change, according to the new president, is in keeping with the program to emphasize activities in electronics, video, and the motion picture theatre fields. In this regard, 10 theatres with other property in the Southern California area formerly controlled by the Fanchon and Marco chain were recently acquired.

The acquired theatre circuit includes the Paramount, Hollywood, one of the film capital's premiere houses. The other theatres are Imperial and Ritz, Inglewood; Bay, Pacific Palisades; and Balboa, Baldwin, Manchester, Rio, Southside, and AAA, all located in Los Angeles.

"We are currently negotiating for additional theatre chains," Zabel noted. "In addition we are contemplating diversification into the electronics field as well as possible purchase of television stations, producing of telefilms and the building of movie houses in newly populated areas and shopping centers springing up throughout the country."

Number of Scott shares outstanding are 1,956,185 in the hands of approximately 2,000 stockholders. There are 3,000,000 shares authorized.

Lippert and Zabel feel definitely upbeat about the future of exhibition. The Lippert Circuit, comprising 47 Pacific Coast theatres after the Fanchon and Marco acquisition, is bullish concerning the future. Zabel expects to increase the operation to 100 houses.

Lippert claims that 1958 was the best year of profit for his circuit. Over the past 10 years the profit margin of the Lippert Theatres has been in excess of $500,000.

"Gigi," "Defiant Ones" Lead Way With 9 Nominations Each As Industry Prepares For Big Show On April 6

HOLLYWOOD—Academy Award nominations in the 31st annual "Oscar" derby as announced last week were MGM's "Gigi," United Artists' "The Defiant Ones," Warners' "Auntie Mame," MGM's "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof," and United Artists' "Separate Tables." "Gigi" and "The Defiant Ones" led the parade with nine nominations each, followed by "Separate Tables," with seven.

Vying for Best Actress honors are Susan Hayward for United Artists' "I Want To Live"; Deborah Kerr for United Artists' "Separate Tables"; Shirley MacLaine for MGM's "Some Came Running"; Rosalind Russell for Warners' "Auntie Mame"; and Elizabeth Taylor for MGM's "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof."

The five finalists in the Best Actor category are Tony Curtis for United Artists' "The Defiant Ones"; Paul Newman for MGM's "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof"; David Niven for United Artists' "Separate Tables"; Sidney Poitier for United Artists' "The Defiant Ones"; and Spencer Tracy for Warners' "The Old Man and The Sea."

Best Supporting Actress nominees are Peggy Cass in Warners' "Auntie Mame"; Wendy Hiller in United Artists' "Separate Tables"; Martha Hyer in MGM's "Some Came Running"; Maureen Stapleton in United Artists' "Lonelyhearts"; and Cara Williams in United Artists' "The Defiant Ones."

Best Supporting Actor nominees are Theodore Bikel in United Artists' "The Defiant Ones"; Lee J. Cobb in MGM's "The Brothers Karamazov"; Burl Ives in United Artists' "The Big Country"; Arthur Kennedy in MGM's "Some Came Running"; and Gig Young in Paramount's "Teacher's Pet."

Nominated for Best Directing were Richard Brooks for MGM's "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof"; Stanley Kramer for United Artists' "The Defiant Ones"; Vincente Minnelli for MGM's "Gigi"; Robert Wise for United Artists' "I Want To Live"; and Mark Robson for 20th-Fox's "The Inn Of The Sixth Happiness."

Nominated for the Best Song were "Almost In Your Arms" from Paramount's "Houseboat"; "A Certain Smile" from 20th-Fox's "A Certain Smile"; "Gigi" from MGM's "Gigi"; "To Love and Be Loved" from MGM's "Some Came Running"; and "A Very Precious Love" from Warners' "Marjorie Morningstar."

The winners will be announced at the 'Oscar' presentations April 6.

UA Predicts Biggest Year

MIAMI—William J. Heineman, United Artists vice-president in charge of distribution and James R. Velde, general sales manager, told the company's 40th anniversary sales convention here last fortnight that "this will be United Artists' biggest year."

Paying tribute to U.S. exhibitors, Heineman said it was their support and loyalty that helped make possible the $65,000,000 feature lineup UA will release in 1959.

It was estimated that UA would roll up an $82,000,000 world gross for 1958.

N.Y. Search For Obscenity Draws Sharp Industry Defense By White

NEW YORK—The Joint Committee studying the publication and dissemination of offensive and obscene material met here last week, and industry spokesmen were heard in opposition to proposed censorship measures regarding films and film advertising.

Gordon S. White, for the last 14 years director of the Advertising Code Administration, Motion Picture Association, said in connection with a bill which proposed to extend the scope of the New York Legislature Censor Board's authority to include newspaper or other advertising that "there are safeguards enough now."

"The majority of the newspaper ads are created in accord with the Advertising Code," he said, "and there are many other safeguards. The newspapers apply their own standards to advertising. And if these safeguards should ever fail, adequate laws apply."

"This same bill proposes a restriction against the showing of a 'scene or dialogue' purportedly but not actually in the motion picture advertised . . . This is a proposal which would lead to such complications as to make such a law probably impossible of enforcement . . . The Code says that advertising shall avoid misrepresentation and shall faithfully represent the picture. This is a fair and reasonable requirement . . .

"There is one other point in this bill to which I would like to refer. To the list of unacceptable characteristics in advertising is added the word disgusting. Disgusting to whom? . . . Can anybody think that courts which have found such words as "sacrilegious" and "immoral" too indefinite of meaning to be enforceable, would ever support the application of a ban on ads called simply disgusting."

Another bill would extend to advertising the amplified definitions of the word "immoral" and the phrase "tend to corrupt morals." The law now says these terms "shall denote a motion picture film or part thereof, the dominant purpose or effect of which is erotic or pornographic; or which portrays acts of sexual immorality, perversion, or lewdness, or which expressly or impliedly presents such acts as desirable, acceptable or proper patterns of behavior."

White said, "One cannot apply logically to a single picture . . . a single ad layout . . . a test which talks in terms of parts thereof or of dominant purpose or effect."

"My job requires me to review more ads than are likely to be reviewed by any other person in the industry. In my 14 years in this work I have never seen an ad layout which portrays perversion."

"I simply cannot understand how a static imprint of an ad could present any acts as desirable, acceptable or proper patterns of behavior."

"Assembly Int. 3249 sets up a threat of the suspension or revocation of the proposed theatre license for violation of the advertising rules set forth in Section 130."

"I know of no prosecution of any exhibitor in recent years for violation of Section 130 as it now stands. Would there be any likelihood of any more successful prosecution of exhibitors because of the addition of the word 'disgusting'?"

"And why is this threat necessary when Section 131 of the Education Law already makes violation of any of the other sections a misdemeanor? Can't you already—under the existing law—send any man to jail that you can convict of being responsible for an obscene ad?

Dore Schary, playwright-producer, was presented with a scroll by Alfred W. Schwalberg, first president, Cinema Lodge, B'nai B'rith, in tribute to his inter-group activities, at the recent Covenant breakfast of the Metropolitan Council of B'nai B'rith lodges at the Roosevelt Hotel, New York City.

"As for the classification bill—here is a possibility of real harm. There is no provision for enforcement of a ban against children attending films classified as unsuitable for such children. But there is a provision under which the Motion Picture Division could require exhibitors to advertise the classification."

"Now, there is a very widespread belief that to label a picture as for adults only simply tends to prove a special appeal to the youngsters. We frequently are in receipt of complaints from the public when a theatre advertises a picture for adults only. Those who criticize seem to feel that the exhibitor is actually doing something unfair and underhanded by making this appeal . . .

"Without enforcement to prevent children from attendance, I say that forcing exhibitors to advertise a picture as for adults only is requiring them to do something which has a real potential for real harm . . .

"I am advised that while we will always have violence in films, there has been an enormous reduction in brutality in the last year. Sadism has been reduced in Code Seal pictures to the point where it is no longer an important problem. There has been a great drop in the last six months in the number of films dealing with juvenile delinquency. There has been no increase in the portrayal of sexual relationships; and where they have appeared, they have always been dealt with in a moral frame of reference; and there has been no nudity."

"Nobody, to my knowledge, has ever claimed that no film should be made under the Code which could be considered unsuitable for children . . . There has been no 'undesirable liberality' in the application of the Code."

"We are proud of a Code that can take the sometimes shocking best seller books and stage hits of today, preserve the best of their art and entertainment qualities, eliminating what might be seriously offensive to our broader public, and turn out pictures that are great art and great entertainment—and that are reasonably acceptable to reasonable

Penna. Legislators Join Censor Parade

HARRISBURG—Minors would be prohibited from viewing films that might incite them to violence under a new movie censorship bill before the State Senate. The measure would permit the state to disapprove films considered objectionable. It was introduced by Sen. William J. Lane (D-Washington).

The Supreme Court and U.S. Supreme Court ruled several years ago that the commonwealth had no authority to censor movies after mandatory viewing. Sen. Lane said he thought the change in emphasis from blanket "approval" of movies to "disapproval" of objectionable films would make the law constitutional.

His proposal would make it unlawful to exhibit films to minors under 18 years of age if the film suggests that crime pays or that use of narcotics "is pleasant, profitable, desirable, harmless, or acceptable behavior."

Rep. Charles J. Mills (D-Westmoreland) has introduced a bill in the House of Representatives that would make it unlawful for theatre owners to sell more tickets than there are seats.

The Senate is considering a bill that would make Bingo a legal form of gambling provided profits were used for community, charity or religious activity. It was proposed by Sens. Fred B. Rooney (D-Northampton) and Thomas P. McCresh (D-Philadelphia). Similar legislation has been introduced in practically every Assembly since World War II without gaining approval. The measure stipulates:

"Any charitable, religious, patriotic or civic organization duly organized under the laws of this commonwealth, is hereby authorized to conduct the game of Bingo from time to time when the proceeds thereof are to be used exclusively for charitable, religious, patriotic, or civic purposes." However, no organization would be allowed to conduct Sunday Bingo games.

Cinerama Houses Set

NEW YORK—B. G. Kranze, vice president of Stanley Warner-Cinerama Corporation, returned from Europe recently and announced that he negotiated contracts in London and Paris for three additional Cinerama theatres, two in Asia and one in South America.

The Shaw circuit in Singapore will open the 1000 seat Sky, especially built for Cinerama, at the end of April. The Capitol, at Kuala Lumpur in the Malay Peninsula, will open later.

Sascha Goron, head of Condor Films, and Messrs. Martinez and Sa Pinto, leading Brazilian exhibitors, will build for Cinerama the 800 seat Commodoro, Sao Paulo, Brazil to open in May.

people. This is something that no censor board, but only a system of self regulation such as ours, can possibly do."

Margaret G. Twyman, director of Community Relations, MPAA, said: "These bills are based on two erroneous and false assumptions: that motion pictures can be classified accurately for audience suitability; and that motion pictures cause juvenile misbehavior or delinquency. It is also a false assumption that a law can in any way substitute for parental responsibility; and these proposals represent one further step toward a totalitarian state, one which is diametrically opposed to our heritage as a government."

N. Y. Exhibs Fight For Adjustment Of High Censorship License Fees

ALBANY—Detailed statements have been made apparently for the first time—to the State Budget Director and members of his staff, as well as to members of the Committee on Public Education in Senate and Assembly, of the effects on distributors, exhibitors, and the "business climate" in this state which the present schedule of film fee licenses exercises, and of the improvement to all three which would follow enactment of perennial legislation to modify the "censorship tax."

Entering the fight, the Commerce and Industry Association of New York, Inc., filed statements with Budget Director T. Norman Hurd, on the Marchi-Savarese bill, which increases the charge for licensing (by Motion Picture Division, State Education Department) of original films from three to four dollars per thousand feet, but decreases the rate for prints from two dollars per thousand feet to $4 for "each additional entire copy."

For the first time, effective date for the bill has been changed—from July 1 to April 1, next. This move, recommended by the Commerce and Industry Association, would make the shift coincide with the start of a new fiscal year. It presumably would meet the objection which caused Averell Harri-man, as Governor, to veto similar legislation in 1956 and 1957—i. e., a loss to the state of $270,000 to $300,000 for which the solons had voted no replacement. The annual Budget had been approved both years before Harri-man could act on the film fees proposal.

If the Marchi-Savarese Act were adopted by the Senate and Assembly Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller might sign it, without feeling the budget had been tipped out of balance.

Of course, no one knows at this time of financial stringency what the Chief Executive's attitude would be. However, the Commerce and Industry Association believes the Budget Division has been convinced of the bill's fairness to the film industry and to the business climate of the state.

The second of two letters sent to Hurd—Association representatives also conferred with him and members of the Budget staff—pointed out the advantages which enactment would have in three areas: at the exhibitor level, among independent producers and for major distributors.

A memorandum in support of reduction in the state's "excessively high motion picture censorship fees" began with the declaration: "In the face of an economy which has been rising on all other fronts, the motion picture industry is in desperate financial straits. This is true of all branches, including distribution.

"Since 1954, for example, there has been a steady decline in the domestic distribution revenue of the member companies of the Motion Picture Association of America, comprising all major distributors in the nation. Revenue in this period decreased about $70 million through 1957. There is no doubt this drop has been continued in 1958."

With one exception, the memorandum observed, the home offices of MPA members are located in New York City. The "one exception" has moved its principal offices to the west coast for economy reasons.

The memorandum asserted, "New York is also losing these firms via another route—

Prudential To Finance Expansion Of Cinerama

NEW YORK—Hazard E. Reeves, president, Cinerama, Inc., announced last fortnight "a far-reaching and unique financing arrangement" with Prudential Insurance Company of America, involving "multi-million dollar financing for a large expansion of Cinerama activities."

No details were available; but the Cinerama head also said that "substantial additional financing will also be made available from private sources for our expansion program."

L. Grant Leenhouts, vice-president in charge of production, stated that Cinerama, Inc. will up its rate of production to one feature every six months.

Reeves' Soundcraft Corporation now has definite control of Cinerama, Inc., holding 730,000 shares plus Reeves' personally owned 100,000 shares out of the 2,700,000 shares outstanding.

going out of business." It cited Republic and RKO Radio Pictures as examples.

Gross income of distribution companies realized from New York State film rentals has dropped "from 46 million dollars in 1954 to 36 million dollars in 1957 (the last year for which complete pictures are available). And regrettably, even more dramatic are the overall net income figures of these companies for 1958 fiscal periods as compared with 1954. They show a fantastic drop of 68 percent."

The Association's memorandum likewise cited the fact that "despite a rapidly increasing population," the average weekly attendance at film theatres declined, nation wide, from 90 million in 1946 to 49.2 millions in 1954, to 45 million in 1957. With the exception of approximately two months, "every remaining week in 1958 has registered attendance under the corresponding figure of 1957," according to the memorandum.

The number of theatres declined 24 percent between 1946 and 1957, and total payroll was reduced by at least $7 million annually as the result of the theatre closings."

"In line with this gloomy economic outlook, the MPA members (distributors) are in the midst of stringent economy moves," the memorandum continued.

"Extreme measures are necessary to improve the financial position of distributing companies (and the entire motion picture industry) not only for the industry concerned, but for its employees and the economy of the state as well."

New York, "alone among the states which still retain motion picture censorship boards, charges censorship fees far in excess of operating the censorship organization." In 1957-58, New York's Motion Picture Division collected censorship fees totaling $453,103, while the cost of operating the division during this period was approximately $125,000.

Thus the film industry, unlike any other medium of communication, paid a huge tax for the "privilege" of being censored, the memo stated.

A letter from the Association to Hurd argued that the present charge for prints

St. Louis, K. C. Exhibs Plan Joint Convention

KANSAS CITY — The Missouri-Illinois Theatre Owners, St. Louis, and the United Theatre Owners of the Heart of America, have joined together in the sponsorship of a three day meeting in Kansas City, March 24, 25, and 26. Kansas City staged a show last year titled "Show-A-Rama," a two day session, and the house was a sell out. This year the convention has been enlarged upon and some plans are being developed by a group of showmen from both Kansas City and St. Louis.

Since the show was so successful last year, it is being moved this year into the Muehlebach Hotel where most of the ball rooms and other special rooms have been taken over for the occasion. The equipment show will take place in the Grand Ball Room of the Muehlebach, and facilities for over 48 booths have been made available to equipment dealers?

The working side of the convention is being handled by Richard H. Orear, executive vice-president of Commonwealth Theatres. The convention is open to all who care to attend—and the committee has contacted many organizations and circuits for attendance. Basically, it is the desire of the officers to have showmen from the Great Plains area.

Registration fees for the three day session will be $15 for the exhibitor and $10 for the wife. Two luncheons and two cocktail parties will be covered with this fee in addition to a special breakfast for film distributors.

M.B. Smith, president, United Theatre Owners in Kansas City, revealed that Gordon McLendon will speak in a key session of the meeting. McLendon is president of the McLendon Corporation, Dallas, and founder of the Liberty Broadcasting System, second largest radio network in America. He'll make an address about the motion picture industry and the research he has accomplished in radio for the selling of motion pictures.

It is also known that one of the events of the year has been the showmanship activity taking place in Minneapolis under the guidance of Harry Greene, general manager of Welworth Theatres there. The development of the Better Business Building Forum there has been a successful plan for exhibitors, and Greene will appear in the final sessions of the convention with a speech covering the Minneapolis experience and what can be done with it in the future.

(the Association did not object to that levied for the licensing of originals) is excessive. It threatens the "saturation" pattern of booking and harms "marginal" theatres benefiting from saturation.

Four-wall theatres in the smaller communities and those showing subsequent-run pictures in the larger communities "are the greatest sufferers in the hard-pressed motion picture industry at the exhibitor level, the Association stated.

Experience has demonstrated that when these marginal houses discontinue operation, "a drastic, depressing economic effect is clamped on the entire surrounding area," with people put out of work, retail stores losing theatre-generated customer traffic, valuation dropping, and revenue being lost."

The excessive fee for the licensing of prints strike hardest at the independent producer "operating wholly within the state," but also hurts the "major distributors," the letter declared.

'Sleeping Beauty' Sales Policy Hit By Lider

BOSTON—Edward W. Lider, president, Independent Exhibitors, Inc., and Drive-In Theatre Association of New England, in a bulletin issued last fortnight took issue with Walt Disney on his "exclusive engagements" handling of "Sleeping Beauty" in 70mm equipped houses.

Said Lider, "Disney is where he is today because he has drawn from the mass market—he has reached the masses through a mass play-off on new pictures and reissues at low admission prices . . . But we cannot touch Disney now. We do not know when 35mm theatres will be able to play Sleeping Beauty. This film could have gone into the old loyal friends' theatres—those customers who helped make him—at regular admission prices, and should have done quite well. Perhaps he will do better in 70mm., perhaps worse. One sure thing—he has deserted his regular customers for the new ones; and at a time when we needed him the most. . . . How great it would have been to have opened in 450 or 600 theatres instead of 10 or 20 . . . And equally important, Disney has deserted and disappointed millions of his little fans in every town and village—the kids who have looked forward to seeing this picture in their local theatres as they have done many, many times before. Not all of these can afford 90 cents nor their parents $1.25 or $1.50. Most likely he will do well, but I am fairly certain of one thing—he's not going to play to the same people and kids who have made him rich and famous, and who have loved his former films. Has he let the public down by trying to erect a monument to himself? . . . The disappointed fans may very well resent the switch in policy of Disney, although the critics will flatter him."

AIP Sets Convention

HOLLYWOOD—American International Pictures will hold its first international convention in Las Vegas April 5 and 6, following the Variety Club convention to be held there, it is announced by James H. Nicholson and Samuel Z. Arkoff.

Nat Cohen of Anglo Amalgamated Film Distributors, which distributes AIP product in England and the United Kingdom; Jerry Solway of Canada; Henry Sandberg of Scandinavia; and representatives from Australia, France, Germany, Italy, and South America will attend, in addition to a full complement of United States branch managers.

Zomnir Heads UA Branch

NEW YORK—John A. Zomnir has been appointed United Artists branch manager in Pittsburgh, it was announced by James R. Velde, general sales manager. He replaces James Hendel, who has been promoted to central district manager.

Zomnir joined the company in 1952 as a salesman in Pittsburgh. He entered the industry as MGM office manager in Pittsburgh in 1943.

"Oscar" Budget Up

NEW YORK—A substantial but undisclosed increase in the amount MPAA financing of the Academy Awards simulcast over the combined NBC-TV and radio networks was made last fortnight by the board on request made by Academy President George Seaton.

Vogel Predicts Best Year In 10; Stockholders End Cumulative Vote

Improve TV Or Pay-TV, Senator Butler Warns

WASHINGTON—Senator John Marshall Butler, Republican, Maryland, who opposes toll television, warned recently that unless the quality of programs and advertising is greatly improved, commercial television will force pay TV's acceptance by the American people.

He said the Commerce Committee of which he is a member is determined to explore the deficiencies of TV as it exists today; and accused "Madison Avenue" of putting on programs that "aren't even second rate," with TV advertising "geared to know-nothings."

He added that he found it strange that commercial TV fights pay TV yet does things which could make coinbox programming inevitable.

Violence, Horror Hit As Delinquency Spur

PHILADELPHIA—The Rev. Patrick J. Sullivan, S.J., assistant executive secretary, National Legion of Decency, said last fortnight that Roman Catholic Bishops in the United States would soon inaugurate a program to combat "the cult of violence, horror and suggestiveness in television and the movies."

The Jesuit priest, former professor of dogmatic theology at Woodstock College, spoke at the annual Communion Breakfast of the St. Joseph's Prep Alumni Association in the auditorium of the school at 17th and Stiles Streets. Nearly 600 graduates attended.

Father Sullivan said there was a direct link between juvenile delinquency and the horror episodes now being shown on TV. He referred to television and movies as "image industries."

"What price can American society pay for the withering of conscience?" he said. "What will become of America if we lose the creative work of our artists?"

He said the impact of television is great on the public because statistics show that "television is watched by the average American 35 hours a week, and better than 51 per cent of the audience are under 21."

Father Sullivan suggested to the alumni that they support the Bishops' program in connection with radio and television when it is announced. "Nothing can be done to fulfill the desire of the Church in this media unless you bring the message to others in what the Church is attempting to do."

Lipton Heads Charity Drive

HOLLYWOOD—The appointment of David A. Lipton, vice-president of Universal, as chairman of the amusement division of the United Jewish Welfare Fund Campaign of 1959 was announced at a luncheon meeting of entertainment industry leaders at the Beverly Hills Hotel here.

Dr. Max William Bay, general chairman of the UJWF, made the announcement at the gathering which was called by the following: Samuel J. Briskin, Steve Brody, Phil Feldman, B. B. Kahane, Jack Karp, Sid Rogell, and Mendel Silberberg.

NEW YORK—Joseph R. Vogel, president of Loew's, Inc., told stockholders last week that the company expected to have consolidated net earnings of about 50 cents per share for this fiscal year's second period which ends March 12. Loew's earned a consolidated net profit of 49 cents per share for the first period. All in all, Vogel told stockholders, he anticipated that fiscal 1959 will be one of the best years in the past 10 for Loew's, Inc.

Vogel also reported that management plans to begin distribution of the new stock of Loew's, Inc., and Loew's Theaters, Inc., on March 12. The distribution will mark the completion of the division of the present company's assets into two new companies along lines approved by stockholders and the Federal Court.

The reports were made at a special meeting at which stockholders voted by overwhelming majority of 3,363,553 to 340,291 to eliminate cumulative voting and substitute direct voting for the election of directors.

Stockholders later elected a 15 man board of directors. The directors elected are Ellsworth C. Alvord, Omar N. Bradley, Bennett Cerf, Nathan Cumings, Ira Guilden, George L. Killion, J. Howard McGrath, Benjamin Melniker, Robert H. O'Brien, William A. Parker, Philip A. Roth, Charles H. Silver, John I. Snyder, Jr., John L. Sullivan, and Vogel.

The newly-elected board re-elected Killion as chairman.

Vogel, president, and other officers of the corporation were re-elected. The present executive committee of the board was renamed. Members are Guilden, O'Brien, Parker, Roth, Snyder, and Vogel.

Paper Revives "Movie Parade"

DENVER—The Denver Post last fortnight revived its "Movie Parade" project.

Robert W. Selig, chairman, Theatre Owners of America special committee for the project, said that a new proposal for establishment of "Movie Parade" for the exclusive use of the industry will be presented at the mid-winter meeting of the TOA board and executive committee slated to open at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington on March 1.

Selig, who heads Fox Intermountain Amusement Corporation, reported that the Denver Post is proceeding with plans to bring out "Movie Parade" which would be devoted entirely to the promotion of movies and would be available to every theatre in the nation at a negligible cost.

The project was presented to the TOA at its annual convention last October but was temporarily tabled by the newspaper with the explanation that it had found the national advertising market too "soft" to warrant execution of the project at that time.

Doll Quits "Porgy" Post

NEW YORK—Paul N. Lazarus, Jr., vice-president of Columbia Pictures, announced last week that Bill Doll had resigned as head of the special world-wide advertising and publicity unit set up by the company to handle promotion for Samuel Goldwyn's production "Porgy and Bess." Lazarus said that the resignation came under amicable conditions.

The NEW YORK Scene

By Mel Konecoff

RETURN OF THE DIRECTOR: William Wyler, director of "Ben Hur," returned here last week after spending close to a year in Italy. He opined that he should be finished editing and scoring so that the film could be released in October. Following this, he expects to take the longest vacation possible with not a thought of making another picture until late next year. Who knows, he might even go to Rome just to sightsee, something that was not possible during the picture's making.

He had nothing but praise for the production facilities at Cinecitta, the Italian studio, and he had no complaints about anything connected with the production. He did admit that it would have "cost a helluva lot more" if it were made in Hollywood, possibly half again as much, and the last production figure estimated was close to 15 millions. He thought that the film was a bargain at that in view of the 12 to 13 million spent on "The Ten Commandments."

Asked to comment on the high money demands of stars, writers, directors, etc., he noted that anyone is entitled to what he can get, and if they get it there must be a reason. He did think that the star demands which are the highest are exorbitant, and he thought that they have been out of touch with the public, still being of the opinion that because they are stars in a film is a guarantee of its success. Not so, sez he. The proper creative talent behind a film is a greater guarantee of its success. The public just does not follow the stars anymore.

In contrast, he noted that in Europe a competent picturemaker gets the backing he needs because of his reliable reputation regardless of who is starred. He thought the bankers and others in the industry would do better to bank on the creative end of a film rather than on the personalities before the cameras. Said he, people like George Stevens, Billy Wilder, Alfred Hitchcock, and others should be adequate enough insurance to picture backers.

Wyler criticised American exhibitors who are in the main responsible for the situation with stars, since they buy their films after asking who is in it. The same cannot be said for their European counterparts.

FANTASY DEPARTMENT: Can you picture Mister Magoo as a lamp dealer in the Arabian Nights period? Can you visualize his jerky nephew as an Arabian Prince? Steve Bosustow, head of UPA Pictures, did, and with the backing of Columbia Pictures he has turned out a feature length cartoon called "Magoo's Arabian Nights." The film is expected to run about 80 minutes, is in Technicolor, and will be ready for Christmas of this year, coming in for about two millions.

At a press luncheon the other day, advertising and publicity executive Jonas Rosenfeld revealed that an extensive promotion campaign was in the works on the cartoon, which includes Bosustow turning out his own TV commercials, setting up licensing agreements with manufacturers of toys, books, records, novelties, etc. in time for the Christmas trade.

Bosustow claimed it took 10 years to sell the feature idea. Now that the plunge has been made with Columbia backing, the future has limitless possibilities. Musicals, mysteries, etc. can be made in the animation medium so that adult appeal can be built into an attraction as well as the ever-present youngster appeal. Other factors in favor of the move are less casting troubles, lower expenses regarding star talent, etc. Disadvantages include length of time it takes to turn out a cartoon feature and a reluctance of backers to tie-up money over a three or four year period without returns.

There is still a place in the market for shorts, he believed, which also serve as a fine spot to try out and to develop characters ala Magoo. Audiences want shorts, and exhibitors are beginning to find them most useful in rounding out the program when they have lengthy single features to play, reported Bosustow. He is seriously considering making longer shorts among the approximate dozen he will turn out this year.

It takes about two to three years to turn out an animated feature; however, if the demand is great, this time can be reduced. 1962 should see his next, "Robin Hood Magoo," ready for theatre screens. Others in the planning stage are "Jellyroll Morton—The Story of Jazz" and a biblical tale, "The Story of Ruth."

THE METROPOLITAN SCENE: UA's "Some Like It Hot" reopens the rebuilt Loew's State. What a sight—Marilyn Monroe bending down to cut the ribbon . . . UA has joined the fight against jaywalking by posting 500 colored posters keyed to the theme, "Cross at the green not in between . . . Don't make the next mile . . . The Last Mile." Wonder what they could be plugging? . . . "Compulsion" follows "South Pacific" into the Rivoli. Reserved seats? They don't know yet . . . Bantam Books plugging 14 top films in their book promotions between now and Easter . . . "Inn of the Sixth Happiness" was the third film to play ten weeks in the history of the Paramount . . . A children's coloring book featuring scenes from Paramount's "The Buccaneer" has been put out by the Saalfield Publishing Company of Akron. It is getting a big play tying in with theatre dates . . . With an announcement due any day as to who is to distribute the United Nations film, "Power Among Men," in Eastmancolor, it is being unveiled this week at an invitational showing at the Museum of Modern Art. We saw this at United Nations headquarters the other day and it's a fascinating documentary . . . Joe Levine makes his invite to his "Hercules Exploitation Luncheon" at the Waldorf Astoria on March 20 in the Main Ballroom most emphatic via an imitation bomb. It should be an explosive affair.

Clearance Rule Appealed

WASHINGTON—The Orbo Theatre Corporation, operator, Villa, Rockville, Md., has gone to the Supreme Court in an effort to set aside an Appeals Court decision which upheld a 21-day clearance in favor of Washington first-runs.

Mendelsohn Leaves U-I-TV

NEW YORK—Alfred L. Mendelsohn, assistant sales manager of Universal Pictures television division, will join Elliot, Unger and Elliot, producer of television filmed commercials, on or about March 1 as general sales manager.

Ohio Gov. DiSalle Hits All Movie Censorship

COLUMBUS, O.—Even if the Ohio Legislature approves a movie censorship bill, it appears that such proposals face a veto by Gov. Michael V. DiSalle. The governor, in a press conference at the Press Club of Ohio, indicated that he is opposed to censorship "as a matter of principle."

"It would be difficult to write a censorship law under rules laid down by the Ohio Supreme Court," said the chief executive. "To set up someone to try to act as a censor, to say what a person should see, could be something very well violative of the First Amendment of the Constitution."

Gov. DiSalle said he believes there should be "strong laws" against pornographic literature, which could include movies. "That could be the best way to handle objectionable films," he said.

The governor's statement came on the day that a second censorship bill was introduced in the Ohio Legislature. Its authors, Sen. Thomas O'Shaughnessy, Democrat, Columbus, and Rep. Paul Lynch, Democrat, Columbus, seek to set up a classification system for films. The classifications, "adult" and "family," would be determined by a board of eight members set up by the state.

The O'Shaughnessy-Lynch Bill would prohibit persons under 21 from attending "adult" movies. Policing of the classification regulations would be a function of theatre owners and managers, much as bar owners are now held liable for selling liquor to minors.

Earlier, Sen. Robert Shaw, Republican, Columbus, introduced a censorship bill which redefines "obscenity" and sets up a board of five members to rule on questionable films.

Columbus Paper Backs "Limited" Censorship Bill

COLUMBUS, O.—It's "problematical" how far Sen. Robert F. Shaw's bill to revive film censorship on a limited scale in Ohio will get in the state legislature, said the Columbus Dispatch editorially. The newspaper, which has supported censorship, said the legislation might meet opposition from "a hostile U.S. Supreme Court."

"Nevertheless, Sen. Shaw's proposed law, aimed specifically at obscenity in movies, is a step worth taking," said the Dispatch. "It defines obscenity precisely and poses a direct challenge to the reasons for which the Supreme Court knocked down Ohio's long-standing moderate and effective film review statute and for which it has invalidated almost every similar state law on which it has ruled."

"A censorship program such as the Shaw bill provides could go a long way toward barring some of the more blatantly objectionable films now being shown. It should and doubtless will have the support of many thousands of Ohioans who are concerned and alarmed by the flood of dubious film fare which has washed over Ohio's screens since the destruction of the state's film review program and the virtual breakdown of self-censorship by the film industry."

"Some day even the determinedly 'liberal' U. S. Supreme Court will be forced to recognize public opinion and the damage done by its rulings on the legality of film review by the individual states. Enactment of the Shaw bill might be a move toward this much-to-be-desired goal."

The Shaw bill is the first censorship proposal to be introduced in the current session of the legislature.

Pepsi-Cola Sponsors Exhib "Oscar" Contest

NEW YORK—Pepsi-Cola Company is co-operating with the Motion Picture Association of America advertising and publicity directors committee in the promotion of the upcoming industry-sponsored television and radio broadcast of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences annual "Oscar" awards on April 6, through a $2,000 exploitation contest for theatre managers, it was announced recently by Norman Wasser, manager of theatre sales.

Pepsi-Cola Company will donate the following prizes:

First prize: A free round-trip to Hollywood from the home city for two. The winner can take the trip anytime up to the 1960 "Oscar" presentation. If the winner chooses to go to Hollywood during the 1960 "Oscar" presentation time he will be an honored guest at all awards activities.

The first prize winner has the option of taking $1,000 in cash in lieu of the Hollywood trip.

Second prize: $500 in cash.

Third prize: $100 in cash.

Fourth prize: $100 in cash.

Six prizes of $50 each.

The ceremonies, which will emanate from Hollywood, will be seen and heard in the United States starting at 10:30 p.m. on Monday night, April 6, over the NBC Television and Radio Networks, and in Canada over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Television Network.

The contest is open to any theatre owner or manager. Each entry is to consist of a recapitulation of local efforts to promote a greater viewing audience for the telecast, complete with all details, photographs, samples of promotion literature, etc.

These details are to be submitted to the Academy Awards Campaign Contest, c/o M.P.A.A., 28 West 44 Street, New York, postmarked no later than May 1, 1959. Judges will be the advertising and publicity director committee of the Motion Picture Association. The decision of the judges will be final.

In the event that a group of owners or managers pool their efforts, they must decide among themselves the division of the awards as prizes will be given only to one theatre entry.

Sponsorship of the Academy Awards contest is another in a continuing series of promotions by Pepsi-Cola, in conjunction with the nation's motion picture theatre owners and managers.

Levy Raps Ad Ban

HARTFORD, Conn.—Atty. Herman M. Levy, TOA general counsel, and MPTO (Motion Picture Theatre Owners) of Connecticut executive secretary, appearing at Feb. 19 afternoon public hearing held by State Legislative Judiciary Committee, characterized proposed legislation that would ban objectionable motion picture advertising "as strangulating and unconstitutional legislation."

The measure in question is State Senate Bill 44, introduced by Democratic Senator Mario Orefice.

A delegation of parent-teacher units and church-affiliated groups appeared in support of the bill.

Levy, representing the Connecticut film industry, maintained that "there is no question" there are laws on the state's books today to handle this problem.

LONDON Observations

by Jock MacGregor

IN HONORING the Associated British Cinemas champion manager at a London lunch, director and general manager William Cartlidge said: "J. D. Mackrell of the Haymarket, Newcastle, has set a standard of management of which he can be justly proud, and his success in being judged champion manager for 1958 is the culmination of consistent effort on his part over the years."

"Apart from his marked ability in all the other aspects of his job, he is a manager who fully realizes that first and foremost a cinema must impart a welcoming atmosphere of friendliness and efficiency in all aspects and, by dint of infusing the right spirit into his staff, he causes just such a state of affairs to exist at his theatre."

"There is very definite evidence that more and more of our managers are becoming increasingly conscious that the cinema with an atmosphere which attracts is the one that the public is inclined to visit even when it is presenting a film which is not 100 per cent box office, and for this reason, judging the 1958 contest has been harder than ever. Mr. Mackrell received stern competition, especially from L. G. Lamm of the Regal, Harrow Road, London, a district winner."

Other district winners honored were J. A. Solkhon (Regal, Kingston); S. Luton (Carlton, Upton Park, London); L. Grou (Regal, Woolwich, London); G. Williams (Regent, Chatham); F. R. Vere (Carlton, Boscombe); A. Quilter (Ritz, Penzance); M. E. Ward (Olympia, Newport); R. D. Bowen (Ritz, Oxford); J. Hare (Regal, Yarmouth); A. E. Griffith (Carlton, Nottingham); J. G. Power (Orient, Birmingham); T. Whittaker (Savoy, Wolverhampton); R. J. Parsons (Apollo, Manchester); D. Baker (Regal, Chester); C. D. Parkin (Ritz, Wigan); R. H. Romaine (Ritz, Leeds); A. Dale (Rex, Riddrie, Scotland); J. L. Laing (Regal, Aberdeen, Scotland); and A. W. Seddon (Ritz, Belfast, N. Ireland).

LORD ARCHIBALD, in welcoming some 300 leading personalities from all sides of the industry at a Savoy Hotel lunch to honor Sir Alec Guinness on his knighthood, said the only absentees among the top stars and executives were either ill, working at the studios, or out of the country. The toast was proposed by Arthur Watkins, for the British Film Producers Association; your observer, for the critics' Circle; John Junor, editor of the Sunday Express; Janette Scott, for actresses; Sam Spiegel, for Hollywood; and Kenneth More, for actors. Sir Alec opened his reply by confessing to being "sloshed"—an inspired device to cover his obvious embarrassment at the gathering. No British show business personality has ever received a knighthood in so short a career. It is only 12 years since he made his screen debut. . . . There is no more bucked distributor around town than Monty Morton. Wherever you look there are big queues for United Artists releases. This is giving publicist Joe Pole plenty to do—and this, he assures me, is only the beginning. If everything goes according to plan, this certainly looks like United Artists' year. . . . George Minter was an admirable host when Nadja Tallier, not to be confused with Nadine Tillier, arrived to star in his production of "Rough and the smooth," which Robert Siodmak is directing. . . . Another glamorous arrival from the continent is Mylene Demongeot who is here for Rank's "Upstairs and Downstairs." Betty E. Box is producing, with Ralph Thomas directing. . . . The Variety Club Annual Dinner and Ball raised a record $40,000. The brochure was the best ever and raised $22,400, a lot of dough at British advertising rates.

"Oscar" Race Revived

DALLAS—Kyle Rorex, executive director, Texas COMPO, announced last fortnight that at the insistence of exhibitors the popular Oscar Race campaign used successfully in theatres all over the country in 1955 and 1956 will be revived.

The Oscar Race is a copyrighted campaign created by Texas COMPO to permit theatre patrons to participate in the Academy Awards on the local level by attempting to select from the Academy nominations the winner in each of six categories.

The campaign is designed to allow patrons the fun of guessing the winners via entry blanks used as ballots. To be a prize winner a contestant must correctly check each Academy Award winner in the six categories.

A package to sell the campaign including a trailer is available to exhibitors everywhere at the production cost price of $11.75 from Texas COMPO, 2013-A Young Street, Dallas, on or before March 14.

Pappas Joins Fox Exec Unit

NEW YORK—Thomas A. Pappas, newly elected member of the 20th Fox board, has been named by president Spyros P. Skouras to the executive committee of the board.

"Showcases" Only For "Diary"

NEW YORK—Only showcase engagements for George Stevens' "The Diary of Anne Frank" will be accepted, it is announced by Alex Harrison, 20th-Fox general sales manager, in a statement of sales policy for the CinemaScope attraction.

The policy will refuse engagements of the attraction to theatres unless they allow at least three months prior to the film's opening date for advance promotion; each theatre will have to be equipped with reserved seat—"hard-ticket" box-office facilities; and each theatre will have to have the highest quality stereophonic sound equipment.

Rotary Names Exhibs

EVANSTON, ILL.—Two theatre owners have been named officers of Rotary International, world-wide service club organization.

J. Rodger Mendenhall, Mendenhall Theatre Company, Boise, Idaho, is a member of the Rotary Foundation Fellowships Committee for 1957-59. Glen W. Peacock, owner, Isis, Calgary, Alberta, Canada, is a member of the executive committee of the board of directors of Rotary International for 1958-59.

ALBANY

Support of COMPO for its achievements on behalf of "all segments in the motion picture industry" was urged by Edward R. Susse, MGM branch manager and distributor chairman, and others at a meeting in the 20th-Fox screening room to organize the annual campaign for the collection of dues. Elias Schlenger, distributor chairman and Fabian division manager, and other branch chiefs and salesmen were in attendance. . . . Ernie Stautner, who combines two diverse types of activity, tackle for the Pittsburgh Steelers in the National Professional Football League and co-ownership in the Saratoga Drive-In, between Saranac Lake and Lake Placid, was principal speaker at a Father and Son Communion breakfast of St. Clare's Roman Catholic Church, Colonie. . . . Two long-time inspectresses, Sophie Minton, MGM, and Mrs. Ann Hasbrouck, until recently at Columbia, have applied for pensions under the new IATSE plan. Both are members of Local B-43.

ATLANTA

Paulette Goddard was the highlight of a Gloria Swanson fashion show at a local department store. . . . Mary Livingston and Jack Benny were visitors on their way to Miami Beach, Fla., where they will appear at the Hotel Fountainebleau. . . . The Martin and Thompson Ocilla, Ocilla, Ga., was destroyed by fire. . . . A gunman robbed the Fox boxoffice of $570.

BOSTON

Ben Bebbick's telephone at the Metro office was ringing crazily for three days following the official announcement that he had been promoted to resident manager for the New England territory, replacing the late Benn H Rosenwald. . . . "Garden of Eden," which the Massachusetts Supreme Court decided was not obscene and therefore could play in theatres in the Commonwealth, broke all attendance and house records at the 1400-seat Center Theatre, Boston, an E. M. Loew theatre. . . . The Indian film "Pather Panchali," distributed in New England through Mel Davis Films, had a benefit opening at the Exeter Street for the Boston University Scholarship Fund at $5 per ticket. . . . Sam Richmond, general manager, Sack Theatres, is off to the West Coast to visit the studios and see rushes from some uncompleted films. He is staying at the Beverly Hills Hotel. . . . Joseph Levine announced at the Drive-In Theatre Association of New England that on March 20 he is throwing a huge luncheon at the Waldorf Astoria, New York, to announce the kickoff of the advertising campaign of his latest import "Hercules." He said, "By July 1, when this film is ready to be shown in 600 theatres simultaneously, over one and a half million dollars will be spent on its promotion. And remember that that means that there must be 600 color prints ready to be used at the same time for the largest number of color prints in this country." . . . Al Bevan, formerly buyer and booker, American Theatres Corporation, has joined Drive-In Theatre Associates of New England, Inc., under Lon Hacking, president, and is buying and booking film and reviewing all films at the trade screenings for the company. . . . Lloyd Bridgham, circuit owner, brought with him to the drive-in convention in Boston his son-in-law Fred Clark, who got his start in the business as an usher at the Uptown, Dover, N. H. He is now a district manager for the Bridgham circuit.

NEW HAMPSHIRE NEWS—Action on a resolution calling for denunciation of Russian films has been postponed in the House of Representatives following charges that the majority was trying to steam-roller defeat of the bill. . . . Paul Hatch assumed ownership and management of the Pineland and Memorial in Center Ossipee and Wolfeboro. The theatres were formerly operated by the late Ansel N. Sanborn. . . . Closing its doors in Hillsboro with future plans unannounced is the Capitol. . . . Ioka, Hampton, held special late after-school matinees for "Tonka". . . . New Hampshire Catholic War Veterans, convening in Manchester, passed a resolution calling on Congress to cancel the showing of Soviet-made films in commercial motion pictures theatres. The CWV termed the State Department cultural exchange "clever, subtle Red Russian propaganda". . . . Latchis, Keene, has given the city two plots of land northwest and south of the theatre in return for $27,911 and a plot of land projecting into the southwest corner of the Latchis property. . . . Fire starting in a short-circuited exhaust fan drove 800 patrons from the Strand, Manchester, but there was no panic. Loss was estimated at $400.

BUFFALO

The curtain's going up on the Broadway Theatre League of Buffalo. The directors of the League have voted to file articles of incorporation through their counsel, Stanley Falk, to sign a contract with Basil's Lafayette for a series of three or four performance engagements. . . . Children who attend the Rehabilitation Center of the Children's Hospital were guests of manager George A. Mason, Century, at the preview presentation of "Sleeping Beauty," the night before the regular opening. . . . When Cara Williams was in town the other day to help promote "Don't Steal Anything Small," manager George H. Mackenna of Basil's Lafayette got some splendid publicity through a tie-up with Sattler's, where Mackenna arranged to have the star appear. A trip to Florida was offered to the person who made the best snapshot of Cara while she was in the store. The store used large ad spaces on the tie-up. . . . Clint LaFlamme, manager and steward at Tent 7, Variety Club of Buffalo, is celebrating his 24th year of service with the club. . . . Frank Dana, a former member of the Buffalo United Artists sales staff, is the new manager of the local branch of Rank Film Distributors of America. Dana succeeds Bert Freese, who resigned. . . . Russell Tripi, formerly a shipper at the National Screen, Clark Film, and RKO offices, is now employed in the mailing department of the Buffalo Board of Education. Tripi at one time was an exhibitor, having operated the Casino.

Sharon Carhart and Jane Kinsman are two newcomers in the local distributing end of the industry in Buffalo. Both have just joined up with the booking department at the Paramount exchange. . . . Leon Weston now is covering the Rochester and Syracuse territories as a member of the sales staff of the Buffalo office of United Artists. . . . Mayor Herbert Fitch of Penn Yan, N.Y., cut the ribbon at the reopening ceremonies in the Elmwood. The house had been closed by fire that swept the balcony section New Year's Eve. Also attending the ceremonies were Lou Hart, Schine zone manager; C. V. Mitchell, manager, Elmwood; Jerry Fowler, Geneva group manager; and John Sczerla, homeoffice manager, Schine Circuit, Gloversville, N.Y. An audience of 1,000 attended the reopening.

CHARLOTTE

Theater ushers would be exempt from a proposed $1 an hour minimum wage law proposed in a bill introduced in the North Carolina State Legislature Feb. 20. . . . Charlie Lewis, manager, Center, Durham, N. C., presented the annual Center trophies to the players on the Duke University and Durham High School football teams who were voted the most valuable by their fellow players. . . . The Joint Finance Committee of the North Carolina Legislature was told Feb. 18 that there are many inconsistencies resulting from exemptions to the state's sales tax law, including the taxing of pop corn when it is sold in theatres but not when it is sold in dime stores. The statement was made by State Revenue Commissioner James S. Currie. . . . Herman Gillis, formerly manager, Imperial, Asheville, N. C., has been named manager, National, Greensboro, N. C., succeeding John Bateman, who has become manager, Winston, Winston-Salem, N. C. . . . Hal H. (Gus) Jordan, operator, Center View Drive-In, Dunn, N. C., also has taken over the operation of the Pineville Road Drive-In, Charlotte, being associated with H. B. Meiselman of Charlotte in the latter enterprise. He has been identified with the motion picture and film industries in the Carolinas for years, being a salesman for the Charlotte branch of Warner Brothers for a long period and later serving as manager of Allied Artists' Charlotte office.

CHICAGO

A $250,000 remodeling operation for the Regal was announced by South Parkway Building Corporation, which takes over management of the house upon expiration of the current lease Feb. 28. The 3,000 seat theatre, a showplace on the south side since 1928, will remain open during the remodeling. George L. Brandt, managing director, announced that Si Griever will have charge of film buying, and Charles Hogan will secure live talent for stage show presentations. . . . E. Runkle was named Anta manager, Shelbyville, Ill. . . . Ben Lowrie, Columbia district manager, became a grandfather. . . . Frisina Amusement Company has remodeled the Job, Pawnee, Ill., for an early opening. . . . Walter C. Vance, 51, Elm projectionist who had been ill for six months, died. . . . Leroy Kehrer bought the Georgetown Drive-In, Georgetown, Ill., for spring opening. . . . Arnold M. Johnson was elected president and Nat Leverone chairman of the board of Automatic Canteen Company, which is preparing to widen its hot food service in the theatres. . . . Lawrence Stewart was named Rhodes manager. . . . John Roberts was named Frolic manager. . . . N. S. Barger, pioneer theatre owner, recovered from an eye operation. . . . Alfred Morrow was appointed manager of the Automatic Candy Corporation. . . . George Hoffman was named B and K office manager succeeding Jimmy Shields, resigned. . . . The annual Valentine party of the Variety Club held in the clubrooms was a gala event. . . . Lester Stepner, manager, Evanston, was presented with a citation by the PTA in appreciation of his efforts in good citizenship and maintaining a wholesome atmosphere in his theatre; for presenting special programs for children; for the cleanliness and discipline in the theatre; and for his cooperation with parent and civic organizations in the community.

CINCINNATI

20th-Fox's comedy, "Rally Round the Flag, Boys," drew an enthusiastic audience to the suburban Valley for its area premiere, with all proceeds being donated to the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital, Saranac Lake, N. Y. The program included a concert by the Bentley Post American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, a display of flags symbolizing various American wars, and presentation of a new American flag with 49 stars to the Legion post by Brig. Gen. Carter Clark, retired. Also, Phil Fox, Columbia branch manager, area chairman, Will Rogers Memorial Hospital fund, spoke briefly. . . . With spring weather hoped for soon, numerous area drive-in operators have been in recently to complete their early season booking schedules. . . . "Spook" films were booked into all Chakeres Circuit houses for midnight screenings on Friday, March 13. . . . The former suburban Cheviot has been leased to a neighborhood merchants' group for a parking lot.

CLEVELAND

Adrian Awan, 20th-Fox publicity representative and area distributor Academy Awards promotion chairman, held a meeting of local distributors to explore ideas on how to broaden previous campaigns so as to reach a greater number of people. It was suggested that the annual Plain Dealer Sweepstakes Awards be extended to theatres in cooperation with the Plain Dealer. It was also suggested that the Texas Variety Auxiliary plan be adopted, with Auxiliary members conducting a telephone campaign urging people to listen to the awards TV broadcast. Frank Murphy, Loew theatre division manager, is exhibitor chairman. He has named as co-chairmen Joseph Alexander, RKO Theatre, Cincinnati, and Walter Kessler, manager, Loew's in Columbus. . . . Fremont, Findlay, and Ottawa were the only towns reportedly affected by the recent floods. In Findlay, the theatres owned by Walter Steuve were not flooded though half of the downtown area was reportedly under water. Fremont was closed to traffic for several days, while in Ottawa, the Hollywood and Rex reportedly had water in their basements.

DALLAS

The Dallas Chapter of Women of the Motion Picture Industry is sponsoring a luncheon for Sheila Graham in the Variety Club. Miss Graham will be visiting Dallas to talk about her recent autobiography, "Beloved Infidel," which is being turned into a motion picture with Jerry Wald as producer. . . . Woman viewers of Julie Benell on WFAA-TV who conducts a daily home economist show will hold a "Julie Benell Preview Party" at the Palace. The film, "Separate Tables," will be shown as a sneak preview. The showing is being made through Interstate Theatres and Julie Benell. . . . More than 800 persons outside the industry attended an invitational screening hosted by the local WOMPI chapter held at the Village of "Tempest." The local chapter has been conducting screenings of this type for more than a year as a step to stimulate interest in attending motion picture showings. . . . The old Capitol, long a theatrical landmark in the city is being torn down to make way for a parking lot. It was closed about a year ago after being the home of Spanish language films.

DES MOINES

The women's committee of the Variety Club had as guest speaker Dr. Ron Leshelt, staff physician at Raymond Blank Memorial Hospital. Dr. Leshelt explained to the ladies of Variety the diagnosis and treatment of cystic fibrosis, a children's disease for which there is no known cure. Dr. Leshelt was introduced by Woodrow Praught, chief barker of Variety Club Tent 15, and Dick Frank, chairman of the men's division, Cystic Fibrosis Committee. The Variety club has established a Variety Children's Fund for Cystic Fibrosis. This money is to be used for the purchase of several pieces of equipment used in the treatment of this disease and the purchase of drugs on doctor's prescription to assist those financially unable to provide for the treatment of this dread disease.

HOUSTON

The premiere showing of "Separate Tables" starring David Niven, Burt Lancaster, Deborah Kerr, and Rita Hayworth was held at Loew's State with a special tie-in with KTRK-TV which also staged a special stage show. The station's "Soundtrack" show, its regular morning studio party which is seen from 7 to 10 a.m., was telecast from the stage of Loew's State with the picture following. Howard Finch, host of the TV program, publicized a plan whereby the women viewers were able to obtain free tickets.

MEMPHIS

From NEW YORK, N.Y.

I certainly would be interested in your percentage buying formula as described in your Editorial in the February 25 issue of MOTION EXHIBITOR.

I think it would be a service to all exhibitors if you re-edit and re-publish it.

RAY E. SMITH
M. A. Shea Theatrical Ents.

From LAKE PLACID, N.Y.

Your volunteering to re-print the seven different chapters of "THE SLIDING SCALE METHOD . . . of arriving at A FAIR FILM PRICING FORMULA" is the most altruistic act that this industry has witnessed in many a moon. It can have more beneficial reaction than anything else a trade paper could have foreseen to offer.

May I suggest that you print it in the form of a savable supplement similar to the pink sheets, and that you charge a fee per copy. It will be the best investment that an exhibitor will ever make.

Please don't wait for our inarticulate brothers to write you. Hell is still paved with good intentions.

SEE FOR YOURSELF!

From NEW YORK, N.Y.

As it was so well put by MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR in its Feb. 4 editorial ("MERCHANDISERS . . . NOT JUST DISTRIBUTORS"), the time has arrived in the evolution of the motion picture industry when those organizations which prepare the finished picture for exhibition, and have the responsibility for bringing the film to the attention of the public, can more appropriately be called "merchandisers," than the traditional "distributors."

For much too long now too many people in our industry have been content to take heart in such badly battered bromides as: "There's nothing wrong with this business that a good picture won't cure." Well, let's stop kidding ourselves! All of us know of too many good pictures that in today's market were complete flops. But we also can easily remember many films which didn't excite anyone to ecstasies, yet proved to be highly profitable.

So it's about time that we change the glib phrase to: "There's nothing wrong that a well-merchandised picture won't cure."

Our saying it doesn't make it so, however. There is a great need for everyone in the business to recognize current facts. This means exhibition, too! It is no longer enough for film bookers and buyers to shop around for "good" pictures. What they must seek out are the pictures that have been merchandised in such a way that they will have a broad appeal.

In this situation, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR and the other trade papers face a great opportunity and challenge. No group in this business can prove so effective in bringing home to the industry the overwhelming importance of merchandising.

Might I suggest a beginning. Since the earliest days, the trade press reviews of motion pictures have concerned themselves with the content and probable audience appeal of the film itself. But, if we are right in our estimate of the importance of film merchandising, that is not nearly enough. Why not review, right along with the content of the film, the merchandising campaign which it is being accorded by the merchandising company? In order to facilitate this process, the merchandising company, at the time it would screen the film for the trade press, would also screen the theatre and television trailers, play the radio commercials, hand out copies of the advertising material (certainly as important as who did the costumes and pushed the properties), and outline the exploitation, publicity, and promotion which has already been accomplished and that which is planned. Then the reviewer can give his exhibitor subscribers some inkling as to whether this picture is going into release strictly on its probable merits as entertainment, or whether the company placing it into release is supporting it in such a way as to double or even triple its basic appeal.

If we are merchandisers, let us be judged as merchandisers.

ROBERT S. FERGUSON, Director of Advertising and Publicity
COLUMBIA PICTURES CORPORATION

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Ferguson makes his point! Pick the most talented star, director, writer, or producer, and you'll find in his record many a "strike-out". More often than not, the merchandising, the public awareness, and the resultant "want-to-see" is just as important, if not more important, to eventual success of the picture than its artistic qualities. Failure to appreciate this, and the turning over of their production property to some distributor who thinks only in terms of film cans and shipping clerks, rather than in terms of field exploitation publicity and ballyhoo, has caused many a sorry independent producer. Cheap is cheap, and, to use the old insurance slogan, "You get just what you pay for—maybe!"

Any time the "Merchandisers" decide to submit their merchandising efforts as well as their pictures, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR will review both.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE SHOWMEN-OF-THE-YEAR

EARLY LAST YEAR, when MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR posted $1,000 in prizes to be divided between the theatre men who developed and reported THE BEST FIVE exploitation stunts prior to Jan. 1, 1959, we didn't begin to vision the interest and enthusiasm that would result. In the intervening months, more than 2,000 individual submissions were received, from the U.S.A., from Canada, from the British Isles, and from other countries around the world.

Painstaking editorial work was necessary, in order to eliminate down to the 186 publishable ones, with available space applying a constant pressure on feature editor Nonamaker and his staff. The methods and individual achievement awards are described in greater detail elsewhere.

Suffice it to say that the 112 Theatre Circuit Executive Judges have now selected, from the 186 published campaigns, THE BEST FIVE listed in this issue. As a matter of fact, a tie resulted in THE BEST SIX. And, rather than split a prize that has already been so zealously contested, this publication has increased the Prize Money to $1,200, so that each of the six winners might get the same full $200 in cash.

To the six winners: Mr. Alger, Mr. Knoll, Mr. Smiley, Mr. Flowers, Mr. Adams, and Mr. Retzer, go our heartfelt applause and congratulations. Their promotional efforts were well conceived and well developed, and their selection as THE BEST meets with our complete approval. Mr. Adams of Kirkaldy, Scotland, is particularly welcomed because he has competed from afar, and has succeeded in an international competition in showmanship, supposedly an American art.

Some idea of the quality of the competition can be gained from the fact that the final Judges spread their votes over no less than 97 different campaigns; and from the fact that, out of 560 potential votes, only a few votes separated the winners from many among the 25 listed runners-up. Any one of many of these runners-up was a potential BEST right up to the final tallies.

So the 1958 Exploitation contest is history. But a brand new 1959 one is under way. Once again, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR is offering an Achievement Citation to every submission that is published in the every-second-week separate, saveable, and specially indexed EXPLOITATION section. And, at the year's end, $1,000 in Prize Money will be divided among THE BEST, plus Bonus Prizes, and plus industry recognition through Front Cover pictures, stories, etc.

To those who won this year, see if you are good enough to repeat. To those who didn't, don't envy the winners. Be a winner in 1959!

ANNOUNCING A NEW POLICY

SEVERAL RECENT FUNERALS of industry veterans have impressed us with the manner in which well intentioned, hard working, conscientious men may give 20, 30, or even 40 years of productive life to this industry, often without too much financial gain, and dying, may pass quietly away with little note, except the tears of a few close friends, and a three-line obit in the local and trade press. Effective with this issue, we intend to correct this lack of attention to our veterans, great and small.

Elsewhere in this issue is a notice that will be repeated at monthly intervals as a reminder to all.

If the relatives and/or associates of deceased industry veterans, who had contributed 20 or more years of their lives to this industry's pursuits, will service us with a recent black and white photograph and a brief biog, we will do our part to record their careers and to leave their "mark" on the industry's history. Three of our former personal friends and acquaintances appear in this issue. We hope their counterparts are few and far between. But, when such inevitabilities occur, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR will pay the industry's final respects.

If we don't have the space, we'll find it!

HOW CAN YOU ARGUE WITH SUCCESS?

THERE MAY BE many smarter distribution executives who disagree with the policies and methods of United Artists; but there should be few if any who can point to the same dramatic merchandising, or to the same bullish expansion in volume, in grosses, or in profits as United Artists over the past eight years. So when vice-presidents Youngstein, Picker, and Heineman told the World, at their recent west coast meeting, that their $12,000,000 jump in gross receipts in 1958, to a new high of $82,000,000, would be topped in 1959, and when they stated that their 40 pictures for 1959 would be backed by $9,000,000 worth of promotion, and by a new high "in the employment of persons engaged in promotional work on a world-wide scale," maybe some of the dissenting distribution executives ought to listen—and stop firing their own promotional help!

We don't say that the United Artists "mishpukah" is the smartest bunch of showmen "who ever came down the Pike." But we do say that they're a free-wheeling, hard driving, smart brand of "film men," who are in there merchandising every minute, with a "Devil take the hindmost" attitude. They aren't retrenching, but expanding. And the ball seems to keep bouncing their way.

Maybe some of the smarter distribution executives ought to take a good look at whatever it is they are doing. Or try to steal their signals. Or somethin'!

A quitter never wins, and a winner never quits!

Glen Alden, List Map Merger

NEW YORK—A merger of Glen Alden Corporation and List Industries Corporation has been approved by the boards of directors of both corporations, subject to shareholders' action, it was jointly announced last week.

Glen Alden Corporation would be the surviving corporation.

The merger is planned on the basis of five new Glen Alden shares for each four shares of present Glen Alden outstanding (one and one-quarter new Glen Alden shares for one share of present Glen Alden); and one new Glen Alden share for each present List Industries share outstanding.

Notices of shareholders' meetings of both corporations and accompanying data are being prepared and will be mailed as promptly as possible to shareholders of record on March 10.

Fox Studio Deal Near

HOLLYWOOD—The deal for the sale of 20th-Fox studio land on the west coast, which is expected to gain the company as much as $60,000,000, to a group headed by William Zeckendorf will not be ready for signing until the week of March 16, it was learned last week.

BROADWAY GROSSES

Pre-Holiday Slump Hits Hard

NEW YORK—Despite the advent of some new product, business on Broadway generally was feeling the usual pre-Easter slump last weekend, with the long-run "Separate Tables" holding up best.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"THE REMARKABLE MR. PENNYPACKER" (20th-Fox). Paramount ($39,435)*—The third week was heading toward $20,000.

"THE JOURNEY" (MGM). Radio City Music Hall ($147,610)*—Thursday through Sunday accounted for $78,000, with the third week bound to top $110,000. Stage show.

"UP PERISCOPE" (WB). Roxy ($55,405)*—Wednesday through Sunday claimed as $28,000, with the opening week expected to hit $33,000. Stage show.

"NIGHT OF THE QUARTER MOON" (MGM). Capitol ($33,350)*—Opening week anticipated at $31,000.

"LONELYHEARTS" (UA). Victoria ($22,900)*—Opening week expected to reach $15,000.

"SEPARATE TABLES" (UA). Astor ($25,630)*—The 12th week held up well with $21,000 announced.

"STRANGER IN MY ARMS" (U-I). Odeon reported $10,000 for the opening week.

"SLEEPING BEAUTY" (Disney-BV)—Criterion stated the third week would tally $39,000.

"RALLY ROUND THE FLAG BOYS" (20th-Fox). RKO Palace stated that the 11th week would reach $11,000.

Application Of Decree Data To TV Studied

NEW YORK—Assistant Attorney General Maurice Silverman furnished data to Federal District Court Judge Edmund L. Palmieri indicating that provisions of consent judgments entered in the Government's anti-trust action might apply in a number of instance, if it should be found that the Paramount case judgments are applicable to the defendants' activities in television.

Judge Palmieri is seeking to determine whether the consent judgments apply in the antitrust defendants' activities in the TV field which have developed since the decrees were entered. This is in connection with the purchase of National Telefilm Associates by National Theatres and the interest no longer held in an NTA subsidiary by 20th-Fox.

The Assistant Attorney General listed three major areas where TV activities might run afoul of the judgments: the licensing injunctions; provisions relating to the acquisition of theatres and leasing of theatres; and injunctions relating to the divorced companies going into the business from which they were divorced.

Of the eight licensing injunctions in the judgments, the Attorney General's office feels that two would be particularly applicable. One is the injunction against conditioning the licensing of a feature upon another; the other forbids licensing of a feature except on a theatre by theatre basis.

It is also conceivable, the Government feels, that licensing injunctions relating to clearances might be brought into play, especially those enjoining distributors from participating in a system of clearances, clearance between theatres not in substantial competition, or unreasonable clearances.

The provisions listed, Silverman's report said, are the ones which it is apparent might become applicable if Judge Palmieri finds that the decrees are applicable in defendants' TV activities.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt recently purchased the first tickets to 20th-Fox's "The Diary Of Anne Frank" opening at the RKO Palace, New York City, for the benefit of American Association for the United Nations.

Loew's Division Finalized

NEW YORK—Joseph R. Vogel, president of Loew's, Inc., and Leopold Friedman, president of Loew's Theatres, Inc., last week signed the final agreement for division of assets of Loew's, Inc., into two companies—Loew's, Inc. (MGM) and Loew's Theatres, Inc. The division will take place formally tomorrow (March 12).

The reorganization is in accordance with the plan approved by the stockholders and the Federal Court.

Under the agreement, Loew's, Inc., (MGM) continues to own and operate all motion picture production and distribution facilities, all television assets and activities, all the recording company's assets, its music company assets, and theatres owned in foreign countries with the exception of Canada.

All domestic and Canadian theatres plus the New York City radio station (WMGM) will be transferred to Loew's Theatres, Inc.

The most exciting and comprehensive EXPLOITATION contest in industry history ends its first year with a shower of cash as the world's top six SHOWMEN share $1,200.

By GEORGE F. NONAMAKER feature Editor

It was back in February, 1958, that MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR decided to do something to encourage the grass-roots selling of the industry's product and the motion picture theatre as an institution. We wanted to stimulate actual promotions as accomplished by experienced theatremen, to publish these and make them applicable with profit to other theatre situations.

Consequently, the EXPLOITATION section of the publication was created on an every second week basis. These sections were cumulatively numbered and indexed and, if properly saved, were intended to represent a veritable encyclopedia of knowledge in this special field.

With the first issue, a new "Showmen-Of-The-Year" Contest was announced. For each individual achievement, selected by the editorial board and published in EXPLOITATION, an Achievement Citation was issued; five by the same showman published in any one year entitled him to a Silver Citation; and should any showman ever accomplish 10 in the same year, a Gold Achievement Citation was to be awarded. At each year's end, all such published achievements were to be submitted to the "Committee Of 100" theatre circuit executives for their individual study and their personal choice of the best five and a minimum of $1,000 in prizes was to be awarded to the five "Showman-Of-The-Year" so selected.

Out of over 2,000 entries submitted, 186 were published, among which 95 were voted among the best five by the judges. For submitting five entries during the period of the contest, five showmen received their Silver Citations.

Of the 120 circuit executives requested to serve as judges of the contest, 112 accepted; they were furnished with bound volumes comprising 88 pages and including all of the 186 entries. Their task was not an easy one, but with the heartfelt thanks of the publication, they performed it promptly and well. A tabulation of their efforts showed four winners and a tie for a fifth. Rather than split the fifth prize, the publication voluntarily added $200 to the $1,000 in prizes, so there are actually six $200 winners this year instead of five.

Norman Wasser, Pepsi-Cola Company, agreed to furnish as a bonus prize to each winner a picnic chest known as Pepsi Cooler.

These carriers have a capacity of 37 eight-ounce bottles, or 32 12-ounce bottles; their dimensions are 22" x 13" x 13"; their weight, 15 pounds. They are insulated with one inch thermofiber glass wool; have an all aluminum liner; and a food tray measuring 11½" x 10½" x 2¼". They are finished in smooth aluminum with lineal design cover.

The winners, all of whom have been previously notified, will shortly receive their prizes.

Front cover pictures of the winners will appear in subsequent issues of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, thus giving these showmen international recognition and industry acclaim.

The international aspect of the contest is proven by the fact that one winner was from Scotland, while among the runners-up were three from England and one from Canada.

Although not a winning entry, the honor of submitting a campaign from the greatest distance goes to Humayun H. Baigmoamed, Palace Theatre, Karachi, Pakistan.

THE WINNING ENTRIES

The winning entries are reprinted for the benefit of other exhibitors who may wish to adapt them.

The one of Robert E. Alger, Peru Theatre, Peru, Ill., was concerned with how he arranged and sold his 50th anniversary in show business program.

"We recently found DCA's "The Golden Age Of Comedy" an excellent attraction to tie in with our 50th anniversary in show business.

To add to the nostalgia we arranged a real old time movie program. Before each show an organist played old-time music for about five minutes. As the lights dimmed, a man dressed in old style clothes, wearing a derby and sporting a mustache and carrying a glass of beer, walked to the piano in front of the stage. In a spotlight, he removed his overcoat, snapped his sleeve garters, sat down and with arm and hand flourishes prepared to play as he shuffled through some sheet music on the piano stand. Actually, the tape recorder was then turned on with player piano music. During the playing old fashioned stereopticon slides were shown on the screen. The atmosphere was truly of the silent days. While this went on two boys walked down the aisles loudly hawking "Hot popcorn". They actually sold all they had each time. When this bit concluded the regular coming attractions were shown. Anticipating a crowd, many of whom are not regular patrons, we used trailerettes on 10 top pictures coming soon. We had obtained several real old film relics gratis, one of which was a "Felix The Cat" cartoon and this was shown next, followed by "10 Nites In A Barroom", ancient feature, also obtained gratis. After this we announced we were looking for the oldest person in each audience. We took their names and sent them season passes. This was followed by the showing of "The Golden Age of Comedy" and then we started all over again.

On two nights we juggled the time schedule and put on 25 minutes of Barber Shop Quartet singing; another night we had community singing; and yet another night we staged a fashion show; but everything got into the show. These extra attractions cost us nothing.

WHAT SOME OF THE JUDGES THOUGHT

"I think the efforts of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR to encourage exploitation are most praiseworthy indeed, and it has given me great satisfaction to observe the interest our managers are taking in the possibility of obtaining recognition for their campaigns in your feature EXPLOITATION section."

As for advertising—local merchants went for a double truck (two page center spread) coop newspaper ad with the theatre ad occupying prominent center space surrounded by the merchant's copy. To stimulate traffic for the sale each merchant sold tickets for "The Golden Age" at five cents and 10 cents, the prices that were in effect at that time. The merchants took care of the price difference. Therefore, we actually had 18 extra boxoffices in town.

In addition, on the Wednesday before showing eight teaser ads measuring four column inches each were used in the newspaper. Each ad was devised on an old fashioned design using the copy: "Do you recall that 'Golden Age' It's coming again this weekend to Peru." The merchants bought seven of these.

On radio 16 spot announcements were used heralding the "Golden Age" and the golden anniversary of Alger Theatres.

Circus heralds featuring old time type were handed out the week prior to showing and window cards were placed in the windows of all participating merchants with copy reading "Special tickets on sale here."

A half hour radio interview at no cost to us was obtained on "The Coffee Club," a local morning program. This was devoted to the anniversary, the film, the sale of discount tickets, and the fact that all participating merchants were dressed in the fashion of 1908. At the time of this program photographs were taken and were later shown on the local television station during a newscast. The local radio station also devoted time to the fashion show, while the local newspaper carried front page news stories on the stunt. The paper also had an inside story on the anniversary. Merchants used radio spot announcements on their sales tying in with the "Golden Age" stunt. There must have been at least 25 of these.

At the theatre all employees were dressed three days in advance and during the engagement in gay nineties clothing. The canopy announced "The Golden Age Of Comedy And A Few Other Surprises." Slogans used were "We turn back the clock to the golden age of the derby, bustle and handlebar mustache"; and "Don't SEND the kids—Bring them and laugh with them."

As a result of all this we played to more people in three days than in a normal week. We received compliments on everything. The merchants had fine business and all were happy with the sale. We had people talking about movies again. It cost us about $90 for our share of everything; but everyone was well pleased. This feature is a natural for tie-ins with anniversaries such as ours."

GOLDEN AGE CLUB PARTY

Another was the entry of Cliff Knoll, State Theatre, Sioux Falls, S. D., which had to do with the good cheer party he arranged for the older people making up the membership of his Golden Age Movie Club in addition to others from convalescent homes, old peoples homes, etc.

"Christmas time is too often thought for only the children. We wanted to spread good cheer among the group that are usually forgotten. This group consists of the older people who make up our Golden Age Movie Club membership. With these people in mind, we decided to have a Golden Age Movie Club Christmas Party; and it was held five days before Christmas in the theatre.

Congratulations, Gentlemen! Yours is the stuff on which this industry has grown great!

One extra—due to a tie and a duplicate prize.

In addition to our Golden Age Movie Club members, all patients and retired personnel of six convalescent homes, old peoples homes, and the county poor farm, were invited to join us in our party. All Golden Age members were invited by letter and asked to bring a guest, so that they would have every opportunity to enjoy themselves at this party, held at 9.30 a. m.

Naturally, a project such as this takes additional help other than our theatre personnel. This was obtained through contacting the Gray Ladies of the local American Red Cross Chapter. More help was needed to transport the elderly people to and from the homes to the theatre. This was accomplished through arrangements with the Sioux Transit Bus Lines, taxis, private cars and an ambulance service which transported several wheel-chair patients. Some of these people hadn't been down town or in a theatre for years.

Prior to a special screening of MGM's "The Happy Road," the guests, numbering nearly 400, were served coffee, cookies and candy from a special holiday-decorated smorgasbord table. Knowing that many of these older people do not have anyone to pass their own personal Christmas cheer on to, we decided to go through our Golden Age Movie membership applicant cards and call upon 15 ladies and men who have a hobby of baking and cooking to make the cookies for the party. This held down the cost. The response from this request was heart warming and every individual called was "tickled pink" to be part of the party. The Red Cross furnished all the coffee, cream, sugar, etc. Five hundred bags of Christmas candy were promoted through the courtesy of the Shari Candy Company, Mankato, Minn.

Shortly before the movie started, I personally greeted the group from the stage and welcomed them. We searched out the oldest lady and oldest man in our audience. These two were brought to the stage and the lady, 91 years old, was presented with an orchid, promoted from a local florist; while the gentleman, 89, was presented a box of cigars promoted from a local druggist. After the presentation, these elders led the audience in a community sing accompanied by an organist.

Norman Wasser, Pepsi-Cola Company, furnished as a bonus prize to each winner of the 'Showmen-Of-The-Year' Contest one of these picnic coolers, Model 13-SHB. The size is 22" x 13" x 13"; the weight is 15 pounds; it is of all aluminum construction.

We accomplished two important things through the party. First, we signed up nearly 50 new members in our Golden Age Movie Club. Second, is the good-will.

Words can not describe the expression on these peoples' faces, nor adequately convey their obvious appreciation. We received many telephone calls from businessmen, radio station, television station, city fathers, and many unknowns complimenting us on the party. Several letters of appreciation were received, including one from the co-operating Red Cross chapter. Radio carried mention of the party in their newscasts; the Argus Leader carried a story; and radio station KELO brought their portable remote set and carried a 15-minute interview program from the lobby during the party, and the TV station used photographs of it on all of their daily newscasts.

The venture was so highly successful that we are going to have it as an annual affair. If you want to do your theatre a great deal of good and have the entire community's eyes focused upon you, this is one of the greatest things you can do."

KIDS' STAGE SHOW AND FUN CLUB

The judges, evidently mindful of the value of increasing business at kids' matinees, voted heavily for the efforts of D. Smiley, Del Paso Theatre, North Sacramento, Cal., who enlisted the aid of his doorman, who is also an animal trainer, in staging live stage shows for the entertainment of the small fry, and also built up what he calls the "Sammy Wammy" Fun Club to the point where it has over 1,800 members.

"This might be subtitled "How Easy It Is To Enhance Kiddie Matinees When Your Doorman Is An Animal Trainer", etc.

When our Sunday matinees dropped off, not only on children but on adults as well, we got an idea. Our Saturday kiddie matinees were wonderful; but we couldn't figure out where all the kiddies went on Sundays. Consequently we came up with a Fun Club for them on Sunday afternoons with features that would appeal to them and their parents as well. Incorporated were all the audience participation stunts we could think of plus some membership gimmicks which embraced "better behaviour" pledges, etc.

My doorman has a small kiddie circus consisting of a dog, sea lion, monkey and pony. I got together with him on the idea of making up as a clown and putting on a little stage show for the children. Our stage was very small to start with but when the special shows started to pay off we enlarged it. We did most of the remodeling ourselves on a "do it yourself" basis during hours when the theatre was not open to the public. In this way we did not miss a performance.

On the first Sunday we did over double business of previous Sundays. We started out with the Fun Club pledge and membership cards. Each carry a number, and a corresponding number is in our register. The pledge reads: "I pledge to be considerate of all, including brothers, sisters, mom and dad; always to be good and never bad. I'll always be guided by this rule, at home, at play or at school." When a member brings in a new member one of the small squares are punched out. When all nine spaces are punched, a member receives a free admission and a nice gift from the stage. The pledge is recited at each matinee by all members of the club. This went over big with parents, schools and the police department.

Cards of different colors were distributed in different sections of the community. White cards in one section, green cards in another, etc. This color coding was done so that we might ascertain from which section we were getting the most patronage. One thousand were put out in each section.

This snow-balled to the extent that we now have over 1800 members in the Club and we have added on the same program an "Amateur Talent Contest". We use 15 minutes for the kiddies and 30 minutes for the talent contest, paid for by a local car dealer.

The first Sunday we really circused things with balloons, grab bags, etc. and sold over 478 grab bags and two gross of balloons at 10 cents each.

When we enlarged the stage we put in regular foot lights, two additional mikes and amplifiers. I also promoted a piano from a local music store and a three speed automatic record changer.

We distributed 5,000 heralds 5½ inches by 6½ inches, reading: "Join Now. Del Paso Theatre's "Sammy Whammy Fun Club" be a charter member. Sign Fun Club register; get your membership card now! Members will take part in our big Sunday afternoon stage shows. See our big real live stage show in addition to our regular program. See "Neppi" the sea lion, "Happy", the clown, plus magic tricks and trained animals. Fun and entertainment for all ages."

A new 'Showman-Of-The-Year' contest is now current in the EXPLOITATION section for 1959. It was off and running with the first January issue with cash prizes again totaling $1,000. As the judges of the past contest so aptly put it, "May the best men win."

A lobby display was set up consisting of a sign, cut out of a clown head and several old fashioned school desks which I purchased, repainted and utilized. They worked out swell as "sign up" desks. Several other home made lobby displays helped sell the idea. All were inexpensive.

For street bally several clowns were out giving away candy suckers and handbills to parents with children. This built up a lot of good will and created favorable word of mouth.

Our local newspaper came through with plentiful publicity including cuts of our most cooperative doorman-clown-animal trainer.

Audience participation features included the give-away to lucky small fry of professional $25 roller skates promoted from a local dealer; a clown contest; an animal naming contest; a string chewing contest; a dance contest featuring a dance instructor from a local studio, who did his bit to entertain and interest the youngsters; cracker eating and balloon breaking contests; donut eating contest; a dress making contest for girls with boys as models, etc., etc.

The small fry club idea worked out so well that we decided to incorporate something for the teen-age group and the amateur show evolved. We use four acts of talent with trophies awarded winners and paid for by the sponsoring Ford dealer. This, we find, brings in many parents and friends of contestants and we have received many favorable comments.

In this manner we not only gained back the children and the teenagers; but many parents as well."

MORE KID STUFF

Paul D. Flowers, Fox Theatre, Venice, Cal., also came in a winner with his merchant-sponsored "Moviethon" for kids entry.

"In our never ending search for something new and exciting for the small fry we are by the very nature of our business faced with a predicament. We are in the movie business. We do not offer thousand dollar rides ala Disneyland. We sell motion pictures. And motion pictures are not new to kids. Many see them every week. For many they are a habit. But we feel that we can make going to the movies more than just a regular event. We feel that we can make it one of the exciting experiences of childhood.

Confident of this we introduced our first annual "Moviethon." It should be called "Funathon" for the kids.

We ran two complete shows a day, a top children's feature such as "Francis In The Navy," "The Glass Slipper," "This Island Earth," "The Brave One," and "The Kettles On Old MacDonalds Farm," plus cartoons for the first five days of summer vacation.

In addition, on the first day of the 'Moviethon' we conducted a talent show, the second day a pet show, the third day a hobby show, the fourth day a model building contest, and the last day a beauty contest. Also, on various days such personalities as the "Batman" and "Rocketman" made personal appearances. In addition at each show each boy and girl received a novelty gift of a balloon or a small toy. Also at each show there was a drawing for assorted door prizes donated by local merchants.

This full week of entertainment in the way of a "Moviethon" was given free to the small fry and was co-sponsored by six of the top civic minded merchants in the community.

TOA Board Studies Many Problems

Opposes All Pay-TV, Wage Law Extension; Favors Early Renewal Of Plans For Business Building

WASHINGTON—The midwinter combined session of the board of directors and the executive committee of the Theatre Owners of America was held last fortnight at the Mayflower Hotel.

Brylawski Asks United Front To Fight Wage Legislation

A. Julian Brylawski, chairman of its National Legislation Committee, called for a united industry front against pending minimum wage legislation, which he feels will include theatres for the first time. He said that Senate Bill 1046 appears to include the theatre industry within its definition of the "service establishments," while House Bills 449 and 450 and House Bill 317 seek the same general objectives, including raising the minimum wage from $1.00 to $1.25 per hour.

"We should have a large and active committee from all our units to start work immediately to secure the exemption of the movie industry from the new bills," Brylawski said. "I feel, however, that this is a problem for all exhibitors and that if it properly falls within the wider scope of the American Congress of Exhibitors or the Council of Motion Picture Organizations, the campaign should be undertaken by them."

He said that hearings could be anticipated later this month giving the industry very little time to organize.

Harling Lines Up Support For Anti-Pay-TV Effort

It was unanimously voted that TOA should continue its support of the Joint Committee on Toll-TV, which is now undertaking, on an industry basis, the campaign to outlaw through legislation all types of Pay-TV. In voting its support, TOA also endorsed the report by Philip F. Harling, chairman of TOA's Anti-Pay-TV Committee, which recommends that TOA give its full support to the Joint Committee; that it ask for contributions from members on the formula heretofore adopted, and in every way cooperate with the Joint Committee to carry out the purposes of the report unanimously adopted by ACE, and assumed by the Joint Committee.

New emphasis to the campaign was given with the reaffirmation by the Joint Committee on Toll-TV of support for the Harris Bill outlawing Pay-TV in all forms, and the pledge of complete exhibitor unity for the campaign.

This unity was manifest at a dinner meeting presided over by Harling and attended by representatives of all exhibitor organizations. He said that the $100,000 budget would cover retention of the necessary legal, engineering, economic, and public relations staff for the work that would be undertaken immediately to prepare for the hearings on the Harris Bill, which should be held within the next 30 days in Washington by the House Committee on Foreign and Interstate Commerce. Marcus Cohn, Washington attorney, has been retained by the Committee as its special counsel for the campaign.

Attending the dinner meeting were Wilbur

Grass Roots Drive Set On Minimum Wage Law

NEW YORK—A warning that passage of the Minimum Wage Bills now pending in Congress, which would for the first time include motion picture theatres, and establish a $1.25 per hour minimum rate, would close thousands of theatres, was sounded last week by George G. Kerasotes, president of Theatre Owners of America.

Kerasotes, quickly following up the directive of TOA's board and executive committee at their joint mid-winter meeting in Washington, announced formation of a Minimum Wage Committee to conduct a grass-roots campaign to Congress to specifically exempt theatres from the pending legislation.

Emphasizing that time was extremely short because hearings will begin later this month on some of the bills, Kerasotes invited all exhibitors, regardless of their affiliation, to join in the grass-roots campaign by writing to members of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare, and the House Committee on Education and Labor, where the bills now repose.

Snaper, Samuel Rosen, Ernest G. Stellings, Mark Chartrand, Herman M. Levy, Kerasotes, Irving Levin, Edward Fabian, Sumner Redstone, S. H. Fabian, O'Donnell, Albert M. Pickus, Joseph Alterman and Albert Floersheimer, Jr.

Immediate work of the Committee, Harling said, included solicitation of all exhibitors; organization of witnesses to appear at the Harris Bill hearings; approach to labor, veteran, women's, and other civic groups who have already contacted the Committee with requests to participate in the hearings to record their opposition to Pay-TV; and to solicit further Congressional support for the Harris Bill.

Stellings Reports Sufficient Funds For Radio B-B Plan

The desire for an early start this spring of the radio portion of the national Business Building Campaign was reaffirmed after a report was made by Ernest G. Stellings, chairman of TOA's board, that exhibition has raised sufficient money for the radio campaign.

Stellings said that exhibition has already raised $159,500 and the TOA's offer to put up an additional $5,000 if necessary still stood. He pointed out that the budget for the radio portion of the campaign was $300,000 so that if production and distribution matches exhibitors' money there will be sufficient funds for the radio campaign.

TOA Backs S. F. Festival; ACE Program Endorsed

Irving Levin, president, Northern California Theatre Owners Association, and chairman of the International Film Festival to be held in San Francisco Nov. 11-24, made a report and TOA again went on record as urging the industry to support the Festival.

TOA Approves New Travel Insurance Plan

WASHINGTON—George G. Kerasotes, president, announced that the Theatre Owners of America's Board of Directors and Executive Committee had voted to make a new program of accidental death and dismemberment insurance coverage for business and pleasure travel available to its members.

The program will enable TOA members to cover themselves, their families, and any of their employees, and employees' families with a minimum of $25,000 insurance per person for $25 per year, to a maximum of $100,000 a person for $100 annual premium. The insured will then be covered for 24 hours a day for a full year for death or injury resulting from an accident on any type of business or pleasure travel, on any conveyance, including any licensed plane.

Announcement of the new service came a day after TOA's new Group Life Insurance program for members became effective on March 1.

The group life insurance plan is underwritten by the John Hancock Mutual Life Company, Boston; the new travel insurance will be underwritten by the Peerless Insurance Company, Keene, N. H.

FCC Questions Toll-TV Ban

WASHINGTON—The Federal Communications Commission last fortnight told the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee that more study must be given the technical and legal aspects of questions raised in the pending Harris resolution against toll television, and that a report will be prepared for later submission to Congress.

A point of concern to FCC was said to be the expansiveness of the Harris resolution. The Commissioners called attention to the novel suggestion that cable or land line toll TV also be placed under prohibition, and they raised a constitutional question on that score. The Congressional committee was told jurisdiction has not been extended to any type of broadcasting except that which uses the airwaves.

The report will be referred to the committee technical staff which will work in conjunction with FCC. The Commission did not undertake new discussion of the merits of toll-TV. Further postponement of the FCC decision to begin licensing 30 days after the Congressional session ends, if not previously prohibited from doing so, was not requested.

Byrne, Klune New Loew's V-Ps

NEW YORK—John P. Byrne, MGM's general sales manager, and Raymond Klune, general manager of the MGM Studios, have been elected vice-presidents of Loew's, Inc. it was announced last week by president Joseph R. Vogel.

Byrne became general sales manager in December, 1957. Previously he had been assistant sales manager and prior to that was in charge of the eastern sales division. He joined MGM as a salesman in the Denver branch in 1925. Klune came to the MGM Studios in August, 1958. Before joining MGM he had served as production manager for 20th Century-Fox, David O. Selznick, and RKO.

Las Vegas V. C. Tent Ready For Convention

LAS VEGAS, NEV.—With the appointment of Ernest Cragin as general chairman and a committee of enthusiastic barkers to back him up, plans for the annual convention of Variety Clubs International in Las Vegas on March 31 promise one of the most colorful of Variety's annual conclaves.

Cragin, a charter member of the Las Vegas Tent and an acknowledged expert in staging of colorful hoopla, takes over the convention chairmanship reigns from Jacob Kozloff, who relinquished the post due to changed business demands, it is reported by Tent 39 chief barker Harry Farnow, host for Variety's big show.

Registration, which is expected to reach a record number of some 1,500 barkers from the United States, London, Dublin, Mexico City, and Canada, will begin on March 30 in the Hotel Thunderbird.

A colorful ceremony marking the grand opening of Las Vegas' multi-million-dollar convention hall will formally launch the Variety Conference. It is expected that many of showdom's most exciting names, both from Hollywood as well as those then appearing in Las Vegas, will provide interludes of entertainment for the conventioners and their wives.

Key committee chairmen serving with Cragin are: Ben Goffstein, Wilber Clark, John DeLuca, Gene Murphy, Bob Loden, Clifford Jones, Dave Messing, Tony DeCarlo, Norman Keller, Dave Eisenberg, Fred Soly, Charles Howell, Ivan Annenberg, Harry Farnow, Jerry Weiler, Harvey Diederich, Harry White, Antonio Morelli, Jack Doyle, Jack Schieff, Mrs. Averill Dalitz, and Mrs. Gen Atol.

International chief barker George Eby has forwarded to Cragin the recommendations of all newly elected chief barkers with whom he has conducted regional meetings.

Variety Club members and their friends who have not yet registered may do so by communicating with Variety Club Tent 39, P.O. Box 1449, Las Vegas.

RKO Circuit Earnings Up

NEW YORK—Albert A. List, chairman and president, List Industries Corporation, said last fortnight in the company's annual report that earnings of RKO Theatres improved during the second half of 1958 to the point that operating results for the year were better than in 1957.

He was enthusiastic about the future and said, "A circuit like ours with theatres well located, attractive, and carefully maintained can continue to be successfully operated."

List Industries, of which RKO Theatres, Inc., is a subsidiary, earned $3,277,765 after taxes on sales and operating revenues of $47,703,200 in the year ended Dec. 31, compared with a net of $1,540,461 on sales of $55,433,254 in 1957.

AA Opens Japan Offices

NEW YORK—Allied Artists International Corporation is opening its own distribution system in Japan, Norton V. Ritchey, president, announced last week. Five offices will be established in key cities of Japan. The new organization will be under the supervision of Fernando Rodriguez, general manager of Allied Artists of Japan, Inc. The new offices, to be located in the exchange cities of Tokyo, Osaka, Nagoya, Sappora, and Fukuoka, will be staffed with personnel drawn from the local industry sources.

Merits Of Classification System Debated In Ohio Censorship Fight

William J. Heineman, United Artists vice-president in charge of distribution, recently received the Brotherhood Week Motion Picture Award bestowed on Stanley Kramer's "The Defiant Ones" for its outstanding contribution to the cause of brotherhood from Cornelia Otis Skinner, national Brotherhood Week chairman of Community Organizations.

Fabian, Eastern Plan Shopping Plaza Theatre

NEWARK, N.J.—With negotiations nearly completed, a modern motion picture theatre will be constructed in the Garden State Shopping Plaza, Paramus, N.J. Sturgis E. Chadwick, vice-president of Garden State Plaza Corp., announced that Fabian Enterprises, Inc., and Eastern Management Corp., owners of the leading outdoor theatre circuit in New Jersey, would jointly build and operate the new theatre.

Edward L. Fabian, of Fabian Enterprises, and Sheldon Smerling, of Eastern Management, in describing the new theatre, stated that it would have 1200 luxury seats, and would be equipped with the latest and finest technological motion picture improvements. It would be capable of exhibiting motion pictures in the new Todd-AO and Cinema-Scope processes, together with full stereophonic sound. They stated that in addition to motion picture presentation, the theatre would be readily adaptable for live shows and community uses for meetings, graduations, and fashion shows. The theatre will contain a neo-classic skylight lounge where patrons can relax with refreshments and enjoy various cultural exhibits.

The architect for the new theatre will be Sidney Schenker of Paterson, N.J., and construction will begin immediately following the signing of the lease. The free parking facilities of the Plaza will be available for all theatre patrons.

King Bill Would Kill Tax

WASHINGTON—A bill to exempt motion picture theatre admissions completely from the federal admissions' tax was introduced last week by Representative King, California Democrat.

Since the House Ways and Means Committee has announced opposition to any tax cuts this year, the outlook for the bill was not very bright, but it is believed that King was introducing the bill chiefly as a precautionary measure, so that if some general excise tax-cutting drive developed later, a motion picture theatre tax cut bill would be on the record.

COLUMBUS, O.—Bill to classify films for "adult" and "family" patronage would do more harm than good, several Columbus theatremen said; the morals of youth are everybody's responsibility, said the sponsors of the latest bill to regulate film showings in Ohio.

Rep. Paul Lynch and Sen. Thomas O'Shaughnessy, both Democrats from Columbus, introduced a bill to set up the classification system. The classifications would be determined by an eight-member board in the Department of Education. No one under 18 would be admitted to "adult" films. Policing of the law would be up to theatre owners and managers.

"How can I know who has the mind or intelligence to see what pictures?" queried Louis Sher, president of the Art Theatre Guild, operators of the Bexley, Drexel, and World. "I'm not smart enough to tell when a person is not an adult. Some people are children at 45. Others are adults at 12." Theatremen queried by the Columbus Citizen said such a law would contribute to juvenile delinquency. Juveniles would seek "devious ways" to see these adult films, as "anything forbidden has more allure."

Movie operators said they are not the keepers of their neighbors' children. "It has been legally established that parents are responsible for their children, not the theatre owners," said Sher.

"Parents should be the censors for their own children, not an appointed group," said Milton Yassenoff, general manager, Academy Circuit.

"A family itself should determine whether it will see a motion picture," said Ed McGlone, RKO city manager.

"As an individual I hesitate to think that any other individual has the right to interfere with the privileges and freedoms that have been given to us by law," said Walter Kessler, manager, Loew's Ohio.

"I would like to ask," added Kessler, "how big is the committee that is going to regulate movies on television? Regulation of one form of movie entertainment as opposed to another would constitute some type of discrimination. Or what will they do about the movie censored for Ohio for showing to a limited theatre audience that will be shown five or 10 years from now on television without the benefit of censorship or regulation?"

On the subjects of TV movies, Sher asked: "What are they going to do about movies via TV? Are they going to have an adult room in the home? Are newspapers going to put out a special edition for children? The problem is not censorship. The problem is the interests of the parents in channeling children in the right direction. It is an individual matter."

Sen. O'Shaughnessy said: "This is not a ban-in-Boston deal. It is something that should be effective." Rep. Lynch added: "It is the practical solution for keeping young children out of the garbage pit. The classification system meets all constitutional requirements. It is not one that will ban the showing of any film in movie theatres," continued Lynch. "People who want garbage can go to the garbage pit to get it."

"Classifying films will keep young children out of the garbage pits. It doesn't eliminate the problem of obscene films. It just separates them into the heap where they belong. It

20th-Fox Release Schedule Includes At Least Two Blockbusters Monthly

NEW YORK—20th Century-Fox will release to domestic exhibitors a minimum of two "blockbusters" per month for the remainder of the year, it is announced by general sales manager Alex Harrison in revealing the company's CinemaScope feature attractions through September, 1959.

The announcement covered releases for the six-month period beginning April. The schedule includes 12 "blockbusters," in addition to picturizations of two Pulitzer Prize stage plays: George Stevens' "The Diary of Anne Frank," which will be presented as a road-show attraction with its world premiere scheduled for the RKO-Palace in New York on March 18, and the CinemaScope production of the Richard Rodgers-Oscar Hammerstein musical, "South Pacific." The latter is scheduled for national release in July.

The six-month's product is the costliest and most ambitious ever sponsored in any such period by 20th-Fox, Harrison pointed out.

Following are the six months' releases Harrison announced yesterday:

APRIL—"Warlock," with Richard Widmark, Henry Fonda, Anthony Quinn, Dorothy Malone, and Dolores Michaels, produced and directed by Edward Dmytryk. "Compulsion," with Orson Welles, Bradford Dillman, Dean Stockwell, Diane Varsi; Richard Zanuck, producer; Richard Fleischer, director; CinemaScope, black and white.

MAY—"Woman Obsessed," with Susan Hayward, Stephen Boyd, Theodore Bikel, Ken Scott, and Barbara Nichols; Sydney Boehm, producer; Henry Hathaway, director. "Say One For Me," with Bing Crosby, Debbie Reynolds, Robert Wagner, and Ray Walston; songs by Sammy Cahn and Jimmy Van Heusen; Frank Taslin, producer-director.

JUNE—"The Man Who Understood Women," with Henry Fonda, Leslie Caron, Cesare Danova, Myron McCormick, and Conrad Nagel; produced and directed by Nunnally Johnson. "Holiday For Lovers," with Jane Wyman, Clifton Webb, Paul Henreid, Gary Crosby, Jill St. John, Carol Lynley; David Weisbart, producer; Henry Levin, director.

JULY—"South Pacific." "Blue Denim" with Charles Brackett, producer; Philip Dunne, director. "The Love Maniac," with David Weisbart, producer; Raoul Walsh, director.

AUGUST—"Casino," with Richard Widmark; produced and directed by Dick Powell. "The Alaskans," with John Wayne and Robert Mitchum; co-produced by John Lee Mahin and Martin Rackin; Richard Fleischer, director.

SEPTEMBER—"The Blue Angel," co-starring May Britt and Curt Jurgens; Jack Cummings, producer. "The Best Of Everything," a Jerry Wald production; Jean Negulesco, director.

U-I Switches Ad Agencies

NEW YORK—Universal Pictures Company, Inc., has appointed Charles Schlaifer and Company, Inc., as its advertising agency replacing Cunningham and Walsh, Inc., which resigned the account, it was announced last week by David A. Lipton, Universal vice-president.

The new agency's first assignment will be in connection with Universal-International's forthcoming release of "Imitation of Life."

MPIC To Suspend Activity By July 1; May Resume Later

HOLLYWOOD—The Motion Picture Industry Council, created in 1949 as an all-Hollywood organization dedicated to the promotion of proper public relations of the motion picture industry on all fronts, will suspend its activities by July 1, it was announced last fortnight following a unanimous vote by the MPIC executive committee.

The corporate structure of the organization will be maintained so that activities may be resumed at any time the industry deems it necessary to reactivate the council.

Mich. Allied Blasts Non-Theatre Shows

DETROIT—A well-attended February meeting of Allied Theatres of Michigan was action-packed on the subject of pictures on release being played away from theatres. Schools, clubs, professional groups, and others have been showing pictures both on 35 and 16 mm, which is taking business away from regular outlets.

Distributors making such deals were lambasted, particularly because when theatres applied for this product on extra-curricular release, they were told "prints were not available" or have been taken out of service." Harder to locate is the source of the 16mm prints, many of which are bootleg.

Clive Waxman Independent Exhibitors of Grand Rapids, revealed in a letter a typical sore spot:

The Central High School in his city gives "noon-hour" movie shows for students, showing only part of a feature each performance and charging 10 cents admission. The current issue of the school paper lists the following attractions being shown students this month: "Abbott and Costello Meet Jekyll and Hyde," "Tammy and the Bachelor," "The Incredible Shrinking Man," "Coming Round the Mountain," "Abbott and Costello Meet Frankenstein," "Madonna of the Silver Moon," "Curucu, Beast of the Amazon," "Battle Hymn," and "Rocking Horse Winners."

Waxman wrote his service has tried in vain to obtain some of this product for theatres. Complaints have been made to the Superintendent of Schools and the Board of Education protesting unfair competition and stating such showings definitely hurt business. Waxman adds the situation, despite protests, is getting worse.

The meeting decided to investigate the sources of these prints used for telephone company employee gatherings and other private shows doing harm to the standard box offices.

It was with deep regret the resignation of B. L. Kilbride Jr. was accepted. He has long been an officer and was vice-president since April 1956. A luncheon in his honor will be held some time in March. No action was taken as to his successor. The appointment of William M. Wetsman as annual convention chairman was announced.

Reade Will Keynote Kansas City Meeting

KANSAS CITY—Beverly Miller, vice-president, United Theatre Owners of the Heart of America; former president, Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Missouri and Kansas; and operator of area drive-ins, announced last week the tentative program for the big UTO Show-A-Rama at the Hotel Muehlebach on March 24-25-26.

The first day's meeting will open with a luncheon to be keyed by Walter Reade, Jr., with TOA president George Kerasotes and Horace Adams, president, Allied States, and other speakers also scheduled to appear.

Edward Hyman has been invited to speak on orderly distribution, while other representatives will talk on Academy Awards plans and ACE.

Gordon McLendon will lead a showmanship session assisted by Bill Hendricks, M. B. Smith, and Harry Greene, Welworth Theatres, Minneapolis.

Equipment and concession clinics have been scheduled, and there will be a large equipment display in connection with Show-A-Rama.

Word has been received that many delegations from circuits will be in attendance from Oklahoma, Des Moines, and Omaha. Valuable draw-prizes include fully-paid round trip vacations to Las Vegas, gift bonds, etc.

Schwalberg Heads Lodge

NEW YORK—Alfred W. Schwalberg, founder and first president of Cinema Lodge B'nai B'rith, was unanimously elected president of the organization recently at a luncheon held at Toots Shor's Restaurant.

This year commemorates the 20th anniversary of Cinema Lodge. In tribute to Schwalberg, all of the past presidents have agreed to act as honorary chairmen for one year for each of the agencies that comprise the fabric of B'nai B'rith activities.

The principal speaker at Friday's elections was Dr. Lewis Webster Jones, president, National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Other officers elected for one year are treasurer, Jack Weissman; secretary, Abe Dickstein; vice-presidents, Irving R. Brown, Jack Hoffberg, Maurice B. Leschen, Milton Livingston, Joseph R. Margulies, David Picker, Sol Rissner, Norman Robbins, Nathan M. Rudich, and Leonard Rubin.

Chairmen of the nominating committee was Jack H. Levin, with Robert Shapiro and Martin Levine acting as co-chairman.

Exhib Loses Court Test

MINNEAPOLIS—District Judge Paul Jaroscak last fortnight denied an injunction which would have prevented Warners' from supplying "Auntie Mame" to seven 28-day houses here.

The suit was brought by Sol Fisher, Variety and Ritz, who asked that the film company be forced to furnish the film to his theatres or else be enjoined from distributing it elsewhere on the 28-day break.

Judge Jaroscak noted he could find no evidence of mutual obligation between Fisher and the distributor, and said, "It has not been shown that the plaintiff has the right to such a print." An injunction against distribution of the film to the seven theatres would harm the other houses without benefiting Fisher, the Judge found, after commenting that Fisher had admitted the other theatres were not in competition with his.

UA Earmarks "Cool" Million Dollars For Campaign On "Some Like It Hot"

NEW YORK—Roger H. Lewis, United Artists national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation, announced that the company is backing "Some Like It Hot" with a most comprehensive and thorough-going promotion campaign.

He estimated that the budget for the domestic promotional campaign would exceed $1,000,000, and would provide exhibitors with the incentive and enthusiasm to carry through the program on their own local levels.

Major elements of the campaign include heavy local level co-operative advertising; a special music cross promotion; public appearance tours; intensive national magazine and newspaper editorial promotion; television and radio spot announcements; book promotions; newspaper supplement ads; contests; and merchandising tie-ins.

"Advance word-of-mouth publicity and our tremendous pre-sell campaign have generated considerable excitement in the film," Lewis noted. "We anticipate the greatest exhibitor response and cooperation in connection with local level ad campaigns."

To give full promotional impact to the campaign, UA is also launching a special music campaign. The major cross promotion involves three UA LP albums. The music promotion includes heavy disk jockey plays and dealer promotions and displays.

As part of UA's increased global merchandising activity, overseas tours are being planned for producer-director Billy Wilder, who, with Jack Lemmon is scheduled to go to Europe on a press, radio and TV tour.

To date, cover stories and multi-page layouts on the film have appeared in all of the nation's leading newspaper supplements, reaching a total readership of over 100 million potential moviegoers.

Lewis also disclosed that a series of full-page, full-color ads have been prepared for pictorial review papers to coincide with the film's opening playdates in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Boston, Baltimore, Milwaukee, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, and Pittsburgh.

Other facets of the all-media promotion include special 10, 30, and 60 second TV trailers; press, radio, and TV interviews with Lemmon and Matty Malneck, composer and musical supervisor of the film; a major book promotion of the Billy Wilder-I.A.L. Diamond screenplay with the New American Library, giving full credits and production scenes; special preview showings aimed at opinion-making groups and organizations; and heavy merchandising tie-ups with major department stores, retail outlets, and service companies.

Summing up the many-faceted promotion, the UA ad-publicity-exploitation chief declared, "A picture of this obvious business potential merits the most intensive selling campaign we can bring to it. We are delivering the film to exhibitors with solid pre-selling behind it. If theatremen give it the fullest possible backing on their own, using their own resources and their own creative energy, we can anticipate the mutually profitable results of genuine exhibitor-distributor cooperation."

A phone has been installed in Marilyn Monroe's apartment, and she will call newsmen everywhere to plug the film.

Roger H. Lewis, UA national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation, is seen detailing the all-media promotion campaign, budgeted at over $1,000,000, on "Some Like It Hot."

14 Penna. Cities End Local Admission Tax

NEW YORK—Fourteen Pennsylvania cities have repealed their local admission taxes, ranging from five to 10 per cent, since COMPO started its continuing survey of state and local admission taxes a little more than two years ago, Charles E. McCarthy, COMPO information director, reported last week.

Seven of these cities—Hazleton, Lancaster, Philadelphia, Shamokin, Sunbury, Williamsport, and Wilkes Barre—dropped their taxes at the beginning of this year. The others—Bethlehem, Bradford, Butler, Connellsville, McKeesport, Nanticoke, and Pittston—had rescinded local admission taxes previously.

"This tax relief was obtained," McCarthy said, "through the persistent and concerted efforts of local exhibitors. In some cases, where theatre closures were threatened unless tax relief was granted, exhibitors were aided in their campaigns by local merchants who realized the importance of the theatres to their communities, not only as an entertainment medium but as a stimulus to other lines of business. I hope that exhibitors in other cities, who are still plagued with these discriminatory taxes, will be encouraged by the success of Pennsylvania exhibitors in pushing their campaigns for repeal. COMPO will lend assistance wherever necessary."

Record Week For WB In "Welcome, Jack" Drive

NEW YORK—An overwhelming tribute to president Jack L. Warner has been paid by the motion picture industry with a cooperative effort by exhibitors and the company's sales organization resulting in the biggest single week's business in Warner Bros. history during "Jack L. Warner Week," Feb. 22-28, highlight of the current "Welcome Back, Jack" sales drive.

Figures reveal a gross that exceeds by almost 15 per cent the company's previous all-time record established during the first week of August, 1946, when Warner Bros. celebrated the 20th anniversary of sound.

Theatre Assessment: City-County Hassle

READING, PA.—Differences in assessments for taxing purposes, higher for county purposes than the city levels, started a suit filed in Berks County Court by Luther H. Heist, attorney for Warner Bros., New York City, owners of the Warner Theatre, against the County of Berks.

Recently, Warners appealed the city assessment, $175,000 on a 100 per cent of market value, and were granted a reduction to $157,500, 100 per cent valuation as a single purpose property, theatre uses only. The Warner based the appeal on the claim that with a greatly reduced theatre income, the actual value of the realty had declined, and won a reduction on that plea.

The county tax assessment, however, is supposed to be on a 35 per cent of market value basis, and the Warner Theatre valuation, $80,500, would make the actual value, county basis, $230,000. This is far in excess, $72,500, of 35 per cent of the city tax assessment, which Warners claim should be $55,125, not $80,500.

The suit, which may not be tried for several months and may delay payment of 1959 taxes, reopens a longstanding issue between city and county, based on the apparent inequities resulting from a double standard of valuation of real estate for tax purposes.

Another issue, the refusal of various city authorities to eliminate or reduce for 1959 the 10 per cent amusements ticket tax, which has closed many theatres and may close others, may arise in the 1959 spring primary and the November elections, as some present city officials may lose the support of theatre interests in their drive for reelection.

UA Names Drive Winners

NEW YORK—United Artist's Chicago, Buffalo, and Minneapolis exchanges have won the company's "Salute to Arthur Krim" sales drive in their respective groups, it was announced last week by co-captains Robert S. Benjamin, chairman of the board, and William J. Heineman, vice-president in charge of distribution.

The winning branch managers are Harry Goldman, Chicago; Burton Topal, Buffalo; and Carl Olson, Minneapolis. Eastern district manager Gene Tunick led in the final district standings.

Placing second in their respective groups of equal grossing potential were Washington, Charlotte, and New Haven, followed by third place Los Angeles, Cleveland, and Milwaukee.

Buffalo ACE Meets

BUFFALO—With George H. Mackenna, general manager, Basil's Lafayette, and Andy Gibson, Dipson Circuit, co-chairmen, presiding, the Buffalo exchange area of the American Congress of Exhibitors met last week. Exhibitors were urged to write Senator Walter Mahoney and Senator Earl W. Brydges, Niagara Falls, and ask them to vote against an act to amend the education law in relation to licensing motion picture theatres.

All exhibitors in the Buffalo exchange area were urged to join the Congress and to send in their membership fees. It was decided to meet the first Monday of each month in the Variety Club.

Taylor Mills, who handles public relations for the Motion Picture Association was to visit Buffalo March 10 to rally support against several censorship measures.

Joint Midwest Meet Sets Exhib Objectives

DAVENPORT, IOWA—A joint meeting of representatives of virtually every indoor and outdoor theatre in the quad-cities area of Davenport, Rock Island, Moline, and East Moline was held at the Blackhawk Hotel recently for the purpose of preparing a united front to face industry problems and objectives.

Called at the instigation of Don Allen and Woodrow Praught of Tri-States Theatres, operators of several theatres in the quad-cities, the meeting had a two-fold purpose: a discussion of measures to be taken in opposition to daylight savings time, which issue appears to be pending this year in the various bordering Iowa-Illinois cities; and planning for a quad-cities business-building campaign on an area level, in which all indoor and drive-in theatres would join forces to make residents more theatre-conscious and appreciative of theatrical movies.

The business-building campaign will be patterned after a localized campaign recently launched by Tri-States, RKO Theatres, and local exhibitors in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, an effort which has drawn considerable midwest attention. A kit including a manual and various samples from the Cedar Rapids campaign was distributed to each exhibitor in attendance.

Plans are set for another meeting to crystallize launching of the campaign simultaneously in the four neighboring cities at an early date, with the cooperation of local chambers of commerce and retail groups.

In attendance at the meeting were Harry Weiss and Milt Trohler, RKO Theatres; Joe Jacobson, State, Davenport; Ernie Pannos and James Stopolous, Coronet, Davenport; George Carpentier, Strand, East Moline; Barney Brotman, Paradise, Moline; Walter Allen, Corral Drive-In; Sam Schlaes and John Koletis, Memri and Semri Drive-Ins; Mrs. Ray Krewer, Bel-air Drive-In; Tri-States managers William Haver, William Towey, and Gerald Miller; and Tri-States executives Allen Praught, and Don Knight.

Brooks Resigns SW Post

PHILADELPHIA—Frank J. Damis, vice-president and zone manager for Stanley Warner Theatres in the Philadelphia and Washington zones, last week announced the resignation of Bernard P. Brooks, assistant zone manager, effective March 20, to enter theatre exhibition for himself in northern New Jersey upon the acquisition of theatres in this area.

Brooks has been associated with Stanley Warner Theatres for the past three years. Prior to Stanley Warner, he was a member of the executive staff of Fabian Theatres and chief film buyer. Before joining the Fabian organization, he was general manager of Rosenblatt and Welt Theatres, New Jersey and Staten Island, and was also a member of Paramount Pictures sales force.

Doll Joins Embassy

NEW YORK—Joseph E. Levine, president, Embassy Pictures Corporation, announced last fortnight the appointment of Bill Doll as public relations vice-president. Doll, who recently resigned as head of the world-wide publicity unit of Samuel Goldwyn's "Porgy and Bess," and who spent 20 years as press chief with the late Mike Todd, will start to work at once on the "Hercules" campaign for Embassy.

Wilmington, Del., Exhibitors Face Threat Of Employee License Fees

Thomas E. Stephens, secretary to President Eisenhower, recently received an honorary membership card in Variety Club of Washington, Tent 11, at White House ceremonies. Seen left to right are Chief Barker Frank M. Boucher; Stephens; and Nathan D. Golden, "Heart" chairman, Variety Clubs.

Local Exhib-Distrib Relations Unit Formed

MILWAUKEE—At a meeting of Milwaukee exhibitors and circuit heads recently at the Schroeder Hotel in Milwaukee, a local "Exhibitor-Distributor Relations Committee" was formed. Ben Marcus was elected permanent chairman.

It was unanimously agreed that the first order of business to be undertaken by this committee with the distributors was the restoration of the orderly release of product to the Milwaukee subsequent run theatres. It was hoped that these meetings with the distributors would bring about a mutually satisfactory arrangement, whereby these subsequent run theatres could obtain a steady flow of product in accordance with established availabilities and still take into account the distributors' problems in this respect.

Broidy Sees AA Upturn

HOLLYWOOD—At a meeting of the executive committee of the board of directors of Allied Artists Pictures Corporation, Steve Broidy, president, announced that the operations of AA and wholly owned subsidiaries, for the 26 weeks ended Dec. 27, 1958, as shown by the books without audit, resulted in a net profit of $120,000, as compared with a net profit of $172,000 for the corresponding period in the previous year.

There weren't any provisions made in either year for federal income taxes because in each year the previous loss could be carried forward to offset the current profits.

The gross income for the last 26 week period in 1958 amounted to $7,431,772, as compared with $8,992,150 for the same period in the previous year.

At the meeting, the executive committee authorized payment of the quarterly dividend of 13¾ cents per share on the company's 5½ percent preferred stock, payable March 16 to stockholders of record March 3.

WILMINGTON, DEL.—By a 12-1 vote, City Council recently approved a new city-wide license fee ordinance under which exhibitors will be required to pay in addition to a base annual fee of $300, one dollar per month for every employee in excess of one, limiting employees to "any person employed at least 10 days per month in the operation" of the place of business. Approval of the ordinance by Mayor Eugene Lammot was anticipated at an early date. It will be retroactive to Jan. 1.

Exhibitors further faced a license fee of $5 per year for each coin operated machine located on the premises, whether for amusement or for purveying of cigarettes, cigars, merchandise of any character, soft drinks, ice cream, or any other kind of food or food products.

Another classification is for retailers of food, candy, cigars, cigarettes, ice cream, soft drinks, baked goods and other edible commodities, the sum of $50 per year for each store or place of business or vehicle from which such retail sales are made.

Eliminated from the ordinance was a provision requiring multiple licenses, but the ordinance is silent on whether only the principal occupation is to be licensed.

Repealed is the ordinance under which theatres with less than 750 seats have been paying a $300 city license fee and larger houses an additional 10 cents per seat.

Payments on the number of employees are to be made quarterly within 30 days after March 31, June 30, Sept. 30 and Dec. 31.

The new ordinance states that the license fees it imposes "shall be in addition to all other taxes imposed by any other provision of any and all other ordinances, resolutions or regulations" now in force in the city. At presstime, the Mayor had not acted on the proposed ordinance.

Dana Launches New Firm

NEW YORK—P. T. Dana, former eastern sales manager for Universal Pictures, who recently resigned after 28 years with the company, announces the organization of U.S. Films, Inc., a motion picture distributing company with exchanges in Pittsburgh, Washington, and Philadelphia to handle the product of Pacific National Pictures in the three territories as well as independent product.

Dana's franchise agreement with Pacific National calls for him to start operations in the territories before the end of March and involves initially "Date With Death" and "Hideous Sun Demon." As president of U.S. Films, Inc., Dana is negotiating to handle a select number of independent releases in the three territories and has already set two Brigitte Bardot films, "Girl in the Bikini" and "Naughty Girl"; a Gina Lollobrigida film, "Flesh and the Woman"; as well as "The Case of Dr. Laurent," "Girls, Inc.," "Lonely Set," and "Isle of Lavent."

ABC Ups Hede To V-P

NEW YORK—Henry Hede, administrative sales manager, ABC Television Network, has been elected a vice-president of the American Broadcasting Company by the board of American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, Inc., it was announced by William P. Mullen, ABC vice-president in charge of TV network sales.

The NEW YORK Scene

By Mel Konecuff

LAST WEEK one of this city's newspapers had an inquiring photographer put the following statement and question to five members of the public:

"Spokesmen for the movie industry are protesting bills in the State Legislature which would extend censorship of motion pictures. What do you think?"

The first answer came from a gentleman connected with the Police Athletic League, a youth group. He states, "Rather than censorship of motion pictures, I would prefer the legislature enacted a law which would prohibit teenagers from attending movies made particularly for adults. As of now, movies which are advertised for adults only tend to attract the teen-agers all the more."

(To us, he is advocating limited censorship and the British system of picture classification with enforcement at the point of admission, the theatre.)

Then came the answer of a female college student who stated, "I don't believe the protests are justified. The movie industry would take advantage of any move which would lift the censorship lid off their product. Censorship by religious groups would not be enough to stop them from going overboard."

(Evidently, she has never heard of the Production Code, or else she has no confidence in same nor in the industry's picturemakers.)

Number three, a male radio company employee, said: "Without censorship Hollywood would run wild. As it is, they are making movies which I would consider harmful for teenagers. As they direct the course of teen-age thinking, I believe censorship should be extended."

(Here is another believer in picture classification, who also hasn't heard of the Production Code or its method of granting a seal which permits picture playoff in 99 and 44/100ths of the nation's theatres.)

A housewife is number four with, "Censorship of our movies can be a mistake. I would much rather see the movie industry adopt a strict code of ethics, particularly in films directed at our youngsters. The films now being shown for adults seem to attract more teenagers than ever and something should be done to curb this situation."

(She too, is for limited censorship although she doesn't realize same. Also, she wants classification with regard to pictures and teen-agers.)

Number five is a male college student, who said, "I'm against censorship mainly because it interferes with true portrayals of life by the movie industry. A code of ethics aimed at not offending the majority of moviegoers would be a better solution than state censorship."

(He's against censorship per se, and he's also unaware of the Production Code and its operations.)

The foregoing is a minute sampling of public opinion to a specific request, and the replies would seem to indicate a need for better publicizing of the industry's own safeguards regarding production.

It would also indicate a most urgent program of action to disassociate the industry from the "fast buck" and other offending films.

The concern of a number of the interviewees is for the teenager, who evidently can no longer be controlled or guided by the parent in regard to entertainment tastes. If there is enough of this feeling on a widespread basis, it may bring on much pressure for the adoption of the British method of classifying pictures for general consumption or those suited for adult viewing only.

It's an interesting situation that compels thought as well as action by the industry "brains."

Incidentally, we wonder when any of the five questioned attended a movie last and which it was, or is their thinking based on newspaper stories, hearsay, imagination, gossip, etc. We're sorry once the subject was opened that the questioning didn't go a bit further. The results might have been enlightening.

COMMENT: Mike Hutner and his staff at Warners did a fine job promoting and publicizing "The Hanging Tree," with all the principals cooperating beautifully. We stated at the start that the title would work against the film's reception, and indications are that we were right, much to our regret.

SELLING: Roger Lewis, advertising and publicity director at UA, tells us a special phone is being installed in Marilyn Monroe's apartment which she will use to call newspaper people throughout the country to sell them on "Some Like It Hot." He also informs that there will be lots of local activity to give exhibitors a chance to pick up the ball and follow through. Monroe records via the UA subsidiary will play a big part in the operation. (For more details, see article elsewhere in this issue.) . . . General Nathaniel Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Alfred Gruenther, National Red Cross president, were principal speakers at yesterday's luncheon launching the industry's annual Red Cross campaign for 1959. Spyros P. Skouras, 20th-Fox president and chairman for the industry, presided.

AB-PT Buys Into Aussie TV

NEW YORK — American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, Inc., has purchased a minority interest in The News Limited of Australia, principal owner of television station NWS in Adelaide, it was announced jointly by Leonard H. Goldenson, AB-PT president, and K. R. Murdoch, publisher of The News Limited.

Castle Joins Columbia

HOLLYWOOD—William Castle and associates joined Columbia Pictures and will check into the studio on March 16, it was announced last fortnight by Samuel J. Briskin, Columbia vice-president in charge of West Coast operations.

Castle plans four independent productions in a two-year period.

First Goldwyn Award Won By Indian Film

HOLLYWOOD—The first Samuel Goldwyn International film award, presented annually to the best motion picture produced outside of the United States, has been won for 1958 by a film made in India, entitled "Two Eyes, Twelve Hands."

Presentation of the coveted award was made in person by Goldwyn last week to V. Shantaram, producer of the film, who flew from Bombay, India, to Hollywood to accept the award at the Annual Awards Banquet of the Hollywood Foreign Press Association at the Ambassador Hotel.

"Two Eyes, Twelve Hands," a story of a prison camp in modern India, was selected by the Hollywood Foreign Press Association as the best motion picture produced outside of the United States in 1958, and designated to be the recipient of the award.

In making the presentation to Shantaram, who produced, directed and starred in "Two Eyes, Twelve Hands," Goldwyn pointed out that, "There is no medium which does more on a 'People to People' basis than motion pictures."

"They are true ambassadors of good will bringing the innermost feelings of the people of their own countries to other people in all corners of the world."

Continuing, Goldwyn declared, "We, in America, pioneered in the motion picture industry—but the rest of the world has contributed tremendously to the stature of this great medium and to the art of motion picture making. That contribution should be fittingly recognized by all of us."

Md. Classification Bill Stopped

ANNAPOLIS, MD.—The Maryland State House Judiciary Committee last week defeated a film censorship classification bill by a 13 to 11 vote.

The measure would have permitted the state censor to classify certain films as being unfit for viewing by persons under 18.

Para. Promotes Cooper

HOLLYWOOD—Jack Cooper has been named assistant publicity manager at the Paramount Pictures Studio, under Herb Steinberg, studio publicity manager. Cooper had been handling press planting in Hollywood for Paramount.

Leonard Pollock, director of purchasing and concessions for Loew's Theatres, and Melvin L. Gold, sales manager of the newly formed exploitation novelties division of ABC Vending Corporation, are seen looking over entries in the recent "tom thumb" candy stand decoration contest held at Loew's New York City and out of town theatres.

HAMMER FILM PRODUCTIONS LTD • BRAY STUDIOS ENGLAND

LONDON Observations

by Jock MacGregor

AFTER THREE very lean months in the British studios when feature production technicians for once became envious of those working on TV quickies, the stages are beginning to come back to life. Out at the MGM British studios, Anthony Asquith is directing Olivia De Havilland and Dirk Bogarde in "Libel," and Robert Siodmak is making "The Rough and the Smooth" with William Bendix and Najda Tiller (I really must get this name straight) for George Minter. Set building is progressing on Ivan Foxwell's "A Touch of Larceny," with James Mason, Vera Miles, and George Sanders. Jules Buck is lining up "The Day They Robbed The Bank of England."

At the nearby ABPC lot, Frank Godwin is producing a British service comedy, "Girls in Arms," and across the way at National, John Nasht is completing "Long Distance," with Dawn Addams, after shooting exteriors in Germany. At Bray, Hammer Films have just completed "Yesterday's Enemy" for Columbia and are shooting "The Mummy," a remake of the Karloff shocker, for U-I.

Shepperton is busy with the new Boulting comedy, "I'm Alright Jack," which takes the mickey out of trade unions. This has been joined by C. R. Endfield's "Jet Stream." Due in shortly after completing exteriors in Africa is the Warwick Film's unit making "Adamson of Africa," with Robert Taylor. Richard Thorpe is directing.

Pinewood has two shooting, Herbert Wilcox's "Heart of a Man," with Frankie Vaughan, and Betty Box's "Upstairs and Downstairs," with the delectable Mylene Demongeot. Ready to go is Marcel Hellman's "Northwest Frontier," with Lauren Bacall and Kenneth More. Other pictures in advanced stages of preparedness are Walt Disney's "Kidnapped," Sir Carol Reed's "Our Man in Havana," with Alec Guinness, and Carl Foreman's "Guns of Navarone."

Another interesting project in the cutting rooms is Paul Czinner's "Royal Ballet," which was shot in four sessions at Covent Garden Opera House on similar lines to those used for the successful art house offering, "The Bolshoi Ballet." Three ballets are being featured, and Dame Margot Fontyne is making her screen debut.

SHOWMANSHIP boomerangs when it embarrasses as it did at the press show of "Around the World with Nothing On." While I do not think critics expected much from a movie with such a title, many were not amused to be handed at a March matinee programs by self conscious girls in bikinis. The young women then sat in the front row as targets for flash photographers. Many believe that press shows are business sessions which should be treated as such. Actually, the film almost lives down its title and treatment; its the least amateurish of the recent glut of nude subjects following the censor's easing on nudity. . . . Her Majesty, The Queen, accompanied by Princess Margaret, attended a special performance of "Gigi" at the new Columbia and were received by Mike Frankovich and Charles Goldsmith. Princess Margaret has now seen this winner, which is solidly booked till May, twice. . . . Euan Lloyd has been appointed special representative in Europe for Samuel Goldwyn's "Porgy and Bess." . . . Quote of the week: W. Cartlidge at the ABC Champion Managers lunch—"There's nothing wrong with the cinema that a good picture won't cure." Which is a truism that doesn't get us anywhere because although every one knocks themselves out trying to make box office winners, quite a proportion don't turn out that way. The result, all too often for some people, is apathy. Apathy sets in, in between the good pictures, and the pessimists would have you believe that the business is finished."

AA Prizes For "Macabre"

NEW YORK—Morey R. Goldstein, vice-president and general sales manager, Allied Artists, announced last fortnight that cash awards totaling $5,000 will be distributed to four AA branch managers for their performance on the William Castle-Robb White production, "Macabre." The prize checks will be distributed by producer Castle.

Top prize of $2000 goes to Nat Furst, New York branch manager; the second, third, and fourth were so nearly equal that the remaining $3,000 will be equally divided among them. Branch managers winning the $1,000 prizes are Nat Nathanson, Chicago; Nate Levin, Detroit; and M. J. E. McCarthy, Los Angeles.

County Loses Last Theatre

PAULDING, O.—Paulding county, agricultural area in northwestern Ohio, was left without a movie theatre with the closing of the 600-seat Paulding here.

Lacking of patronage forced Jack O'Connell, operator of the Paulding, to close his doors. Earlier, theatres in the towns of Scott, Payne, and Antwerp were shuttered.

S. F. Wins "Earth" Bow

NEW YORK—San Francisco has been selected to play the "host city" to the world premiere of a Hollywood motion picture in culmination of a spirited campaign which saw other major cities around the country vying for the distinction and such dignitaries participating in the competition as Gov. Edmund J. Brown and San Francisco's Mayor George Christopher.

The multi-million dollar movie, filmed in the Napa Valley of northern California near the Bay City, is Universal's "This Earth Is Mine," starring Rock Hudson, Jean Simmons, Dorothy McGuire and Claude Rains.

It is the story of a wine-producing dynasty from Alice Tisdale Hobart's best-selling novel. Because of its background, director Henry King filmed it almost entirely in the Napa Valley vineyard locale.

David A. Lipton, Universal vice-president, revealed the executive decision to hold the film's world premiere in San Francisco the last week in June.

Civic leaders in Chicago, Rock Hudson's home-town, and of Pittsburgh and Detroit also had urged Universal to world-premiere "This Earth Is Mine" in their respective bailiwicks.

MERITS OF CLASSIFICATION

answers all the constitutional problems regarding control of censorship. The only control the bill will exercise will be in labeling films."

"Each film will be reviewed from the standpoint of corruption of morals and labeled 'adult' if it falls into this category, to differentiate it from the 'family' film," said Lynch.

"The operators and managers are caught in a squeeze in being given such films to show, most likely in a package film deal. The classification system would help them," added Lynch. Both sponsors are convinced the bill would not contribute to juvenile delinquency.

"Certainly juveniles can say they are over 18 at the boxoffice just as they can to get a drink in a bar," said O'Shaughnessy. "What's to prevent them? But we're not worried about youngsters falsifying their ages to get to see films marked 'adult.' The law would, in effect, be a stopgap to juvenile delinquency. We are getting too many sex films and they are the lewdest form of sickness that we have. They are worse than a teenager going into a bar."

Both legislators have a personal interest in pushing the bill. O'Shaughnessy is the father of three children, two of them teenagers. A daughter is a novitiate nun. He is president of his school's PTA and says many parents have approached him on the subject of banning the showing of immoral films to children. Lynch is the father of three children, all subteens. Before his election to the Ohio Legislature, he was lobbyist for the Committee for Decent Entertainment in Ohio.

Lynch conceded that parents are responsible for the morals of their children. "But because parents have shirked that responsibility, we feel the bill is necessary," he concluded.

Decca Declares Dividend

NEW YORK—Directors of Decca Records, Inc., last week declared a regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share on the company's capital stock, payable March 30 to stockholders of record March 12.

Interboro Names Horwitz

NEW YORK—In an expansion of their field operations in publicity and promotion, the Interboro Circuit announced the appointment of Sam Horwitz as head of publicity, advertising, and exploitation.

Ted Richmond, producer, "Solomon and Sheba" for United Artists release, is seen addressing high-ranking American and Spanish commerce and movie officials at a Madrid luncheon celebrating the increased film production ties between the two countries.

SHOWMEN WIN

All the boy or girl had to do was to have mom or dad pick up his free tickets with no obligation from the merchants, all of whom were listed on large size circus handbills distributed in the area and in the lobby displays at the theatre. The tickets themselves were of a different color for each show and on their backs were listed the co-sponsors of the show.

The "Moviethon" was a complete and exciting success. In the five afternoons we played to over 8,500 well pleased youngsters and they ate over $1,500 worth of candy and popcorn. We also had six well satisfied co-sponsors. From their indications they would like to sponsor this great community event again.

Of course, we made over $600 profit, not counting the profit made on the sale of candy."

SCOT KIDS' EFFORT ALSO SCORES

Still another winner to catch the eyes of the judges was the Douglas G. Adams, Regal Theatre, Kirkcaldy, Scotland, and his efforts to sell the Scot kids through a variety of stunts.

"Selling the minors' matinees which I stage in common with most ABC Theatres on Saturday mornings through the powerful press is always a pleasant task; but when the publicity is received in the Sunday newspaper with the largest circulation in Scotland, the Sunday Post, and the most important weekly in these parts, the People's Journal, its value can be appreciated as exceptional.

It all began when I found some youngsters arguing hotly as to who was the quickest on the draw and I offered to stage a contest to find the best man. I never dreamed that no less than 50 fully armed youngsters would turn up to fight it out—all going to prove that spacemen may come but there is no lessening in the thrill of the old golden west.

It was a simple stunt, yet in press coverage it reached the highest circulation—way over one million copies sold—of any I have ever secured for a competition.

Another simple stunt which paid off in space was when I played "Abbott and Costello and Jack and The Beanstalk". Four weeks prior to playdate overprinted envelopes containing two beans were distributed at a matinee and the kids were encouraged to see how they would grow. The seedsman who supplied the beans judged the contest and provided a novel window display providing all the credits and plugs that I could have desired.

For "Jailhouse Rock" guitar playing contests were organized for the members of the Saturday morning Minors Matinees, who also saw the trailer during their regular performance. An area wide search was made for Presley fans, and the most genuine were invited to the opening night.

A confectioner provided an outstanding yet simple contest on this film. A large mound of rock-candy was built and on top banner style was placed full credits and playdate. Customers making a purchase were entitled to guess the weight of the 'rock.' The prize donated by the storekeeper was a long playing record.

The champion local skiffle group, The Black Panthers, played on the stage a number of evenings. Away from the theatre dance halls plugged the title song and theatre credits; and tieups for window displays were made with music stores, and teenage fashion shops featuring Elvis Presley style gent's wear."

In support of the opening of "The Last Hurrah" in Rome, Columbia's publicity force recently staged an Italian version of an American political parade.

ADVANCE CAMPAIGN WINS

The advance campaign of Robert Retzer, Solano Theatre, Fairfield, Cal., on U-I's "Once Upon A Horse" in which he held a horse hat show rounds out the list of winners.

"U-I's "Once Upon A Horse" gave me a chance to try something that I have always wanted to do—stage an ADVANCE campaign that would bring business BEFORE the picture opens. My "Horse Hat Show" brought the desired results. The stunt was set for a Saturday afternoon three months in advance of the picture's opening.

The Saddle Club, from nearby Travis Air Force Base, supplied around two dozen horses for our show which was held in downtown Fairfield right next to the theatre. The police department roped off the entire block for our use. Six special hats were provided by the Chamber of Commerce, who cooperated with us 100 per cent. The hats were the latest models, rain hat, whoameo, trotsadore, sputneighik, old Bardaby and saddelite. Six horses were decked out in the fancy bonnets, and lined up by two attractive girls. The late-comer to the show was a small donkey, who, by the way, stole the show. Prizes consisted of a 100 lb. bag of popcorn, bale of oats and bale of hay. Local "character" type judges were selected and one of them ate almost as much of the popcorn as the horses.

Universal International Newsreel was contacted and cooperated in covering the event since it was one of their pictures being plugged. The cameraman caught the true spirit of the stunt and brought out a big crowd to watch the activity.

The horse hat show was set to end just as our regular performance started; and the theatre sound truck was on hand to announce this fact. We picked up additional attendance from the crowd.

Later, when we had the news set at the theatre, we used additional newspaper space to advertise the newsreel only. On the strength of this quarter page newsreel ad—plus the word that had spread around town, the theatre played to capacity crowds, most of them wanting to see the local clip in the newsreel. Everyone who was in the reel wanted to see themselves, their relations and friends wanted to see them, and everyone else wanted to see the old home town in the newsreel.

Arrangements have been made to replay the newsreel when the feature, "Once Upon A Horse" is shown and we intend to have on our stage in person, Francis, the winner of the horse hat show. We feel that this small town stunt has done the thing that, maybe, could be done in other situations, stage an advance campaign that brings business before as well as during the run."

Buffalo Variety Fetes Basil, Pioneer Exhib

BUFFALO—The 130 persons in the Variety Club of Buffalo recently had seen it happen over and over, some of them for more than 30 years: In time of need, Constantine J. Basil always is on hand.

It never has been too inconvenient, too wintry, or too wet for him to help somebody.

The SRO sign was up on this occasion as fellow members of Tent 7 honored Basil, president, Basil Enterprises, Inc., owners of the Lafayette and eight community theatres in Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

Kind deeds, however quietly done, leave a golden afterglow.

A Variety Club associate, Ruth Rappaport, office manager, Warners, was thinking of this when she summed up the feeling for Mr. Basil and his wife, Mary.

"You are indelibly inscribed in my memory book. I hope you both live 100 years. And I hope I live 100 years less one day. I wouldn't want to be left when you are gone."

It was not a time for long speeches. The people called on by the chairman, Albert E. Anscombe, used carefully-chosen words. Marvin Jacobs, chairman of the club's Heart Committee, said "nobody works harder or helps more" than Mr. Basil.

William J. Dipson, Batavia, head of the Dipson Circuit, chief barker V. Spender Balser, and George H. Mackenna, manager, Lafayette, added tributes to "a generous friend and a fine gentleman."

The formal part of the evening was a citation presented by the Very Rev. John E. Pallas, Pastor of the Annunciation Hellenic Orthodox church.

It mentioned Basil's "great perseverance, earnestness and untiring effort" in behalf of the club.

passed a resolution endorsing ACE and urging all exhibitors lend it support.

Robert J. O'Donnell reported that his Army-Navy pre-release committee had held a productive meeting at the Pentagon with Army and Navy officials to further explore means of having military theatres play pictures after commercial theatres.

Harling, who is also chairman of TOA's Small Business Administration committee, stated that TOA would now seek to have SBA liberalize its loan requirements.

President George G. Kerasotes also delivered his report, details of which may be found in last week's MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR.

TOA passed a resolution of sympathy on the death of M. A. Lightman, Sr., Memphis, Tenn., former TOA executive.

The President's Committee to Aid the Physically Handicapped presented a special award to TOA vice-president Brylawski.

Presidents and secretaries of TOA's state units met for luncheon with president George G. Kerasotes to effect closer liaison between state units and national TOA.

TOA delegates visited their Congressmen and Senators to discuss pay-TV, minimum wage legislation, and Army-Navy pre-release; and later the TOA was host to these legislators at a reception at the Mayflower.

It was announced that the 1959 TOA convention will be held at the Sherman Hotel in Chicago on Nov. 8-12 inclusive, and that a trade show will be held in conjunction with the National Association of Concessionaires.

NOTICE TO THE INDUSTRY

MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR has decided that too little attention has been paid to the deaths of industry veterans, who have given entire lives to the operation of this industry's theatres, and to the industry's film distribution system. The tears of a few close friends, and a three-line obit notice in the local and trade press, do not seem to adequately record either a lifetime of effort, or the "mark" that many of them have left on this industry of ours.

THEREFORE: If the relatives and/or associates of deceased veterans, who had 20 or more years of their lives devoted to such industry pursuits, will service us with a recent black-and-white photo, and with a brief bio, we will try to find space in an early issue for its use. Through this method, both their career and their accomplishments will be entered in the industry's recorded history.

ALBANY

Alan V. Iselin relighted Auto-Vision, East Greenbush, with Bernz-o-Matic car heaters. It marked the second outdoor theatre at which Iselin (son-in-law of Neil Hellman, Philadelphia drive-in operator) had instituted a winter policy. The first was Turnpike, at Westmere, near Albany, which installed heaters last fall. Robert Lamont, who recently affiliated with Iselin's Tri-City Drive-Ins as assistant general manager, directs Auto-Vision. . . . Attendees at premiere of "South Pacific" in Todd-AO at Ritz included Martin Sweeney, assistant sales chief for Magna; Harry Feinstein, Stanley Warner zone manager, New Haven; James Totman, Feinstein's executive assistant; Gio Gagliardi, chief sound engineer for SW; Cy O'Toole and Lou Green, SW zone sound engineers. Alfred G. Swett, SW district manager and Strand manager, directed the operating end of bow-in, with Theodore Moisides, Ritz manager. . . . Jerry Laverty, who had been in charge of concessions at Jericho Drive-In, Glenmont, with Mrs. Laverty, was upped to supervisor for Tri-State Automatic Candy Corporation. Tom Barry, recently Clark Service manager and now staffer for Albany Theatre Supply Company, will double as stand manager at Jericho next season, according to Tri-State branch manager Ralph Morrow.

ATLANTA

Charles Simpson, vice-president, Capital Releasing Company, is back at his office after a stay at a local hospital. . . . R. J. Barnes, president, ABC Theatrical Enterprises, checked in at his office from Florida. . . . Frank Folger, sales representative for Paramount, resigned. . . . Industry veteran Bill Andrews has formed Southern Independent Theatres, a buying and booking agency. . . . After many years with MGM, Lamar Kirk resigned as head booker to take a position outside the industry. . . . P. J. Henn, theatre owner in Georgia and North Carolina, was passing the cigars due to a baby boy arriving at his house. . . . The Fairburn, Fairburn, Ga., closed for some time, has been reopened by the Kiwanis Club with H. C. Trimble as manager. . . . A Federal Jury decided that there had been no conspiracy by movie distributors against the Palmetto, Palmetto, Ga. William Green had brought suit in U.S. District Court charging conspiracy and asking $500,000 damages. Defendants were Lam Amusement Company, Rome, Ga., East Point Amusement Company, East Point, Ga., and eight distributors, one of which, Columbia, was dismissed from the action before the case was finished.

BOSTON

When the new Abington Drive-In, Abington, Mass., opens on or about May 1, the buying and booking will be handled by Joseph G. Cohen for the owners, headed by Anthony Fiore. Joe O'Neill is the manager. . . . May 17 is the date set for the Great Heart Award banquet given annually by the Variety Club of New England to the man who has "done the greatest amount of good for the greatest number of people." This year, the recipient is Joe Cronin, former general manager of the Boston Red Sox and now president of the American League. He is co-chairman of the Jimmy Fund and a hard worker in behalf of the Children's Cancer Research Foundation. The dinner will be held in the main ballroom of the Hotel Statler-Hilton. . . . Sheila Graham, authoress of "Beloved Infidel," her own account of her friendship with the late F. Scott Fitzgerald, was in town to meet the press and book editors at a luncheon arranged by Phil Engel, 20th-Fox publicist. Jerry Wald will produce her screen version, 20th-Fox will distribute it, but the leading roles have not been selected as yet. Miss Graham would like to have Jean Simmons and Richard Basehart in the leading parts, but she would also be delighted if Fox chose Marilyn Monroe and William Holden.

NEW HAMPSHIRE NEWS—Peter Tegu, owner, Woodsville Tegu, is recuperating from a compound fracture suffered when he slipped as he was about to enter his car. He was put in a cast up to his hip. . . . John Vari, co-owner and manager, Hampton Playhouse, plays the part of the condemned man in "The Last Mile," his first film role. . . . Walter Heath, manager, Capitol, hopes to reopen in Hillsboro this summer. At present he is employed in a mill. He gave lack of patronage and cost of heating the theater as reasons for closing. . . . Strand, Dover, found that if people will stay home to watch old pictures on television, they will also go to a theatre for an ancient attraction. "Uncle Tom's Cabin," produced in 1926, was given a three-day rerun.

BUFFALO

Elmer F. Lux, well known in Buffalo exhibition and distribution for a quarter of a century, former Buffalo council president, and now contract sales manager of Morrison Steel Products, Inc., has been appointed vice-chairman of the Frontier Chapter, American Ordinance Association. The chapter is composed of about 15 corporations of the Buffalo-Niagara area and nearly 350 individual citizens dedicated to scientific and industrial preparedness for defense. . . . The Women's League of Tent 7, Variety Club of Buffalo, staged their annual Fashion Show. The models were Nedra Gray, Janet Serfustino, Joanne Reuter, Audrey Wagner, Dorothy Schwartz, Dorothy Shanahan, Barbara Quinlivan, Alta Balser, Julie Paepke, and Helen Stoye. IN MEMORIAM

JOSEPH CONWAY, 61, industry veteran in the Philadelphia territory, where he was well liked by all who knew him, passed away recently in St. Joseph's Hospital after a lingering illness. Conway was for many years owner and operator of the Egyptian, Bala-Cynwyd, Pa., until he sold the house to Stanley-Warner. This theatre is now under Ellis Theatres direction and is known as the Bala. Later, Conway was connected with the distribution end of the business as salesman for Eagle Lion and PRC. He was also active in affairs of exhibitor organizations. In later years, he ran the Wayne Avenue Playhouse with a successful art house policy. A circus fan and admirer of trained animals, Conway's greatest hobby was attending the tanbark performances of the smaller circuses. He was particularly friendly with Hunt Brothers, operators of one of the few area circuses, who winter quartered in New Jersey. Conway's unsolicited little known charities to industryites in need of both financial aid and work, were never publicized and went unsung. He was also a projectionist way back when and literally grew up in the business. He is survived by his wife and son.

Grand, Westfield; Palace, Olean; and Seneca, Salamanca. . . . John Stacey was the winner of the "Hanging Tree" recording contest staged by the Paramount and Bob Wells of WEBR, in which teenagers were asked to give their version of "The Hanging Tree" song, which has been recorded by Marty Robbins for Columbia records.

The Palace, Rochester, reports happy returns to date on its Golden Age Club which extends special reduced admission rates to senior citizens on a membership plan. About 2,500 members are now enrolled, according to manager Frank Lindcamp. Membership,

CINCINNATI

Realart pictures of Cincinnati was awarded second place in American-International's Halloween Shipment Drive, held Oct. 31 to Nov. 6, 1958. This is the third consecutive drive in which this exchange has been a winner. Mrs. Birdie Goldberg is franchise holder of the company, now in its 44th year of film distribution, and oldest independent exchange in U.S. Selma Blachschleger and Jay M. Goldberg are co-managers. . . . James McDonald, general manager, Theatre Owners Corp. of Cincinnati, has bought assets and name of the company. McDonald, who had been with the company since it was founded in 1946, has renamed the firm TOC Booking Agency and will continue to book and buy for theatre owners in the Cincinnati area. . . . Mrs. John Davis, ledger clerk, and William Otto, shipper, Paramount, collected donations of clothes and money along Film Row for distressed coal mining area near Harlan, Key. . . . A sudden decision last week by Dr. Frank Neuffer, dean, Evening College, University of Cincinnati, to cancel the showing of the 1915 classic, "The Birth of a Nation," in its eight-week "Silent Film Festival," caused such storm of protests from those attending and from local newspapers, that the dean's decision was quickly reversed, and the film has been rescheduled for April 9.

ELI M. OROWITZ, 62, who died last fortnight, was a well known publicist and theatre manager who pioneered in the fan publicity via radio field as the original movie commentator over WIP. He was widely known as "EMO." At one time a departmental editor of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, he was also a field publicist for Paramount Pictures, a national publicist for RKO Theatres, and handled publicity for them when "Roxy" Rothafel leased the Erlanger, Philadelphia. For years he was a manager for the Savar Amusement Company, Camden, N. J., prior to going to the west coast several years ago, where he helped establish his son and daughter as television and film stars. He also managed a theatre in Los Angeles. In addition to his children, Michael Landon and Virginia King, he is survived by his wife.

1959 officers at a stag dinner held March 9. . . . The importance of background music to motion pictures was the theme of a talk before the members of the Motion Picture Council of Greater Cleveland by Dr. Conrad Rawski, Fine Arts Department, Cleveland Public Library. . . . Jack Armstrong, head of a large independent circuit, acquired two drive-ins, the Fremont Drive-In, Fremont, O., and the Springmill Drive-In, Mansfield, O. Both had been operated by Mosser Brothers. This brings the Armstrong circuit up to 19 active houses. . . . Ken Prickett, executive secretary of Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, was in town briefly and is already working on plans for the 1959 tri-state meet. . . . The Cleveland Newspaper Guild, through its executive board, approved a resolution reaffirming its opposition to governmental censorship of motion pictures prior to exhibition. . . . Following complaint by Louis Weitz, executive secretary, Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, that radio and TV stations often elaborate on bad weather reports by suggesting that people stay at home, all local stations have agreed henceforth to confine their announcements to authorized reports from the weather bureau and the Police Department.

DALLAS

If cartoons are the big thing for the kids, then Big Town, new shopping center which opened on East Dallas, allows the children to accompany their parents on a shopping spree without missing a thing. Big Town has a cartoon theatre called the "Giggle Box," which will offer hour and a half cartoon sessions for the small fry. Tickets are free, but parents must obtain them from any of the many Big Town merchants. Attendants on duty will see to it that no child leaves the theatre until his parents call for him. . . . Frank Nelson, Circus Drive-In and Grand, McCamey, Tex., has returned home from the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., where he underwent surgery. The theatres are being operated by his daughter and son-in-law. . . . Claude Ezell, president, Claude Ezell and Associates of Dallas, has purchased the Lone Star Drive-In here from James Riggs, and Joe Wood will be retained as manager. . . . Bob O'Donnell is proud of the newly equipped screening room at Empire Pictures, which he states is the newest and best CinemaScope screen on the market. . . . The fifth annual Academy Award Sweepstakes Contest will be sponsored again this year by the Dallas News with the Interstate, Rowley United, and Isley Theatres organizations. . . . R. J. O'Donnell, vice-president and general manager, Interstate Theatre Circuit, was the master of ceremonies for the Sheilah Graham luncheon at the Variety Club. The Dallas WOMPI chapter sponsored the event. . . . The Dallas Chapter of WOMPI's will again this year present its "Gabbie" Award to the member who calls and invites the largest number of people to view the Academy Awards telecast on April 6. The contest starts immediately and will close before the telecast begins.

DES MOINES

Representatives of all the theatres in the quad-city area including Davenport, Ia., and Rock Island, Moline, and East Moline, Ill., met at Davenport to discuss industry problems. Plans were made for opposing daylight saving time in the cities and for a business-building campaign. . . . The Paramount, Iowa, and State theatres, Cedar Rapids, Ia., have adopted Golden age clubs for men and women in the 60's and over. The members receive a reduced admission price and guest tickets on their birthdays and anniversaries. . . . The Roxie, Peterson, and the Colonial, Hamburg, Ia., have been closed due to poor business.

HOUSTON

Mateo Vela, operator, Maya, here, has sold the house and will devote his time to operating the Rey, Galveston, Tex. . . . James Garner, better known as "Maverick" to television fans, was here to promote his latest motion picture, "Up Periscope," and made three stage appearances at the Majestic. . . . George Lee Marks, manager, Avalon, is holding a "Request" week. All features shown were those requested by patrons. . . . Marks has announced that Frank Shirar has been added to the staff of the Avalon.

JACKSONVILLE

Good News

Announcements in recent weeks from a prominent American manufacturer and a leading supply house that 70/35mm equipment is being made available to theatres in this country are an encouraging sign that we can look forward to an early increase in the handful of theatres now equipped for this kind of film presentation.

The Century Projector Corporation, according to vice-president Larry Davee, is assembling 70mm equipment to be interchangeable with standard American-made equipment. This is the end result of many years' experimentation and research in design and production—an activity which, we might point out, manufacturers are constantly engaged in at great expense, without any guarantee of eventual profit.

At the same time, Cinematograph International, through its president, George Hornstein, has disclosed that it has been appointed sole U. S. distributor for the internationally known Cinemeccanica Victoria X 70/35mm All Purpose Projection and Sound Systems which enjoy an established reputation in Europe.

The public already has demonstrated its approval of 70mm presentation and stereophonic sound, and these companies are to be congratulated.

. . . And NTS Joins The Parade

As this page went to press late last week, a spokesman for the National Theatre Supply Company in New York revealed that NTS also plans to introduce 70mm projection equipment to the American market in the near future.

While the actual date of the unveiling was not specified and detailed information about the equipment was not available, it was said that both would be forthcoming shortly. Full details will be carried in an early issue of PHYSICAL THEATRE.

lated in their pioneering efforts to provide exhibitors with the means to supply more of that kind of entertainment. Unfortunately, most theatremen have been slow to get on the 70mm bandwagon, but the wisest will now back up Century and Cinematograph by acquiring and installing 70mm in every situation where feasible.

These developments are good news primarily because they mean that we are, at last, moving forward again instead of standing still. Two firms have taken the gamble on the common sense of the exhibitor to give the public what it wants. In general, manufacturers and distributors of equipment cannot be expected to offer a wide range of new devices for which there is only a very limited demand and in recent years the theatremen, taking a breather from the rapid developments of the earlier years of this decade, has shown little interest in moving further into the future.

We feel that all this is about to change and that exhibitors everywhere in this country, led by the most foresighted of their colleagues, will welcome the opportunity to start moving again.

THE MOST POWERFUL PROJECTION LAMP EVER MADE!

Utilizes a totally new and different technique in producing light. Projects 65,000 lumens; 70% more light than most 18-inch reflector lamps, 51% more light with 35 mm film and an f 1.7 lens. A 10 mm x 25" non-rotating Ultrex positive carbon is burned with a rotating 7/16" x 12" solid graphite negative at 140 to 160 amperes and 70 to 78 volts. The 21-inch cold type reflector, the largest ever used, is designed for all film widths. It is an integral part of the rear door. Exceptionally cool operation! Auxiliary reflectors and positive and negative carbon heads water cooled.

CONSTELLATION "170"

Burns 13.6 mm positive for either 35 mm or wide film projection systems. Light booster lens patterns the spot to the size and shape of the aperture, utilizes all useful light and eliminates shadowing by feed mechanism. System optical speed equivalent to f 1.5 when f 1.5/1.6 projection lenses and X-L projectors are used. Water-cooled carbon contacts. Rugged, quiet exhaust fan.

EXCELITE "135"

Burns 9, 10, 11 and 13.6 mm regular and 10 mm Hitex positive carbons for all 35 mm projection systems. 18" f 1.7 or 16 1/2" f 1.9 reflector.

Both the Constellation and Excelite feature:

- *Automatic maintenance of arc crater at EXACT focal point of the reflector without manual adjustment;
- *Full 20-inch carbon trim;
- *Each carbon driven by separate motor;
- *SINGLE adjustment controls the feeds of both carbons. Guesswork in matching the feeding rates eliminated;
- *Arc position adjustable without disturbing relative carbon positions or equilibrium of arc.

Equip your theatre with efficient projection lighting that is best for all presentation techniques and which provides bright pictures on screens 140 feet and wider.

A SUBSIDIARY OF GENERAL PRECISION EQUIPMENT CORPORATION

AN EXCELLENT EXAMPLE of a decorative panel of architectural terra cotta is located over the main entrance to the Civic Auditorium, Lakewood, Ohio.

Decorating With Ceramic Veneer

■ IN THE DESIGN and construction of theatres, certain major considerations are involved in material selection. Those materials which will be used for facing walls—both interior and exterior—must be durable and easily maintained even under severe usage. Ceramic veneer is widely used for such installations because of its permanent fired ceramic colors, its flexibility of shape and size, and its impervious, easily cleaned surface, as well as for its decorative qualities.

Modern Form of Terra Cotta

Ceramic veneer actually is a modern form of terra cotta, a material which has been used extensively as a structural architectural decoration since the days of Greece and Rome. Even in that period terra cotta, (the word is derived from the Italian and means "fired earth"), was produced with ceramic glazes as well as natural finishes. Modern architectural terra cotta or ceramic veneer is both machine-extruded and handmade (moulded or pressed). The machine-made product, shaped by extruding the plastic clay through dies, is what is often referred to as ceramic veneer. Both types, however, are classed as a custom-made product and are always manufactured, numbered, and shipped for a specific location in a specific job.

Two Types

Due to its extensive use on large plain areas, most of the facilities of the industry today are devoted to the manufacture of machine-made ceramic veneer. Throughout the country it is generally available in two forms, anchored type and adhesion type. Differing only in thickness and the manner by which they are attached to the backing, both are widely used.

Adhesion type ceramic veneer is commonly called "thin" ceramic veneer since the maximum overall thickness of the slab is not over 1¼ inches. The maximum face area of the individual slabs will not exceed 540 square inches, although maximum overall face dimensions may vary through different combinations such as 18 by 30 or 20 by 27 inches.

Adhesion type ceramic veneer requires no

PHYSICAL THEATRE

Vol. 14, No. 3 March 11, 1959

THE EFFECTIVE EXTERIOR USE of ceramic veneer is in this instance combined with special extruded shapes to achieve distinguished decoration.

CERAMIC VENEER may be used in a theatre auditorium with elegant decorative results. The material adds about one hour to the wall's fire rating.

ANCHORED TYPE CERAMIC VENEER is applied as illustrated above. Although not shown, additional methods of anchoring the pencil rods to the backing wall are possible and practical in theatres.

metal anchorage—instead being held in place by the adhesion of the mortar to the ceramic veneer body and the backing wall. The overall thickness from the face of the veneer unit to the face of the backing wall will normally be from $1\frac{3}{4}$ to two inches.

Extensive shearing tests which have been conducted on this type of veneer indicate that the shearing strengths developed by such a method of anchoring are far in excess of those required by building codes.

Anchored Type

Anchored type ceramic veneer is recommended where the designer desires a larger scale slab than that available in the adhesion type. Such slabs are available with ribs or scoring on the back and in thicknesses varying from two to $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Depending upon the slab thickness, the overall dimension from rough wall to finished veneer surface will vary from three to $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches in order to provide adequate grout space between the veneer and the backing. Anchor holes are provided in the bed edges of the slabs for the installation of the loose wire anchors, which, in turn, are fastened to pencil rods anchored to the backing. Once the wire anchoring is in place, the units are bonded to the wall by a reinforced grout core, keyed to the grooves on the back of the veneer units and also bonded to the masonry backing.

Hand Made Terra Cotta

In addition to the more common ceramic veneer, there is also another form of terra cotta. That is the hand made or open back type which is used for special shapes or to form a feature of ornamentation. Practically any feature in either base or high relief or even flat murals can readily be produced from an architect's sketch, or from models furnished by the designer.

Decorative Features

Decorative features of terra cotta, which may be composed of any combination of colors, would include such things as commercial name panels, seals and insignia, and many other uses. Illustrated is an exterior view of the auditorium in Lakewood, Ohio. As may be seen from the photograph, the feature of the facade of the building is in the form of a polychrome terra cotta panel. Over 17 feet high and 34 feet wide, it is partially in high relief. This is but one location at a theatre where a terra cotta feature panel of some type can be used. Such panels might also be used in a purely decorative motif setting the keynote in the lobby, flanking the proscenium, or in any other location indicated by the design of the building. In contemporary architecture where relatively large plain masses often occur, they may be made to act as a very effective foil to high-light decorative panels.

Installation

The actual installation of ceramic veneer is a fast, relatively simple operation.

Adhesion type requires no metal anchorage since it is held in place by the adhesion or bond of the mortar joint to the backing wall and to the ceramic unit. Its erection involves the following steps:

1. Both the wall surface and the back of the ceramic unit must be dampened.
2. Immediately before setting, both the wall surface and the back of the ceramic veneer should be given a brush coat of Portland cement and water.
3. One-half the thickness of the setting mortar should be spread on the back of the unit and one-half on the wall. Both should be screened to insure uniform thickness.
4. The unit should then be set in place. Sufficient mortar must be used to create a slight excess which will be forced out.

5. The unit should be carefully leveled and tapped to fill all voids.

6. Joints should be raked out and pointed later with a fine mortar.

7. The surface should then be washed down with clean water. It is a good practice, as installation of the ceramic veneer progresses, to remove excess mortar or grout on the surface of the units with a cloth or brush.

Anchored type ceramic veneer is installed in a somewhat different manner which involves the use of one-quarter inch vertical pencil rods held in place by eye bolts or loop dowel anchors, in turn are anchored to the backing wall. It is recommended that these vertical steel rods be spaced not more than one foot six inches horizontally and that the eye bolts or anchors which support the pencil rods be spaced not more than one foot apart on vertical centers.

1. The anchoring system should be installed. It may be the eyebolt or loop dowel method as shown or it may be a dovetail or strap anchor or any one of a number of patented systems currently available. It is obvious that some of these are better adapted to certain types of backing walls—for example the dovetail anchor would only be suitable for use in monolithic concrete. In the event that the ceramic veneer is being installed over old work, the eye bolt method is most often used. In this case the eye bolts are held in place by inserting rawl plugs or expansion shields into holes drilled into the existing work.

2. The ceramic veneer slabs should be set in place with the key webs on the back running in a vertical direction and should be secured by means of anchors inserted in holes usually located in the top of each piece. Temporary wooden wedges are often used to hold the unit at the correct distance from the backing wall.

3. When one complete course of ceramic units is in place and anchored, the grout should be poured into the space between the veneer and backing. As it is poured, it should be thoroughly puddled to remove air pockets.

4. As soon as the grout has set, wooden wedges should be removed.

5. Finally the joints should be raked and pointed and the wall washed down in the same manner as outlined for adhesion type ceramic veneer.

When decorative panels are to be installed, complete erection drawings and specifications will normally be furnished. The panels are anchored by means of non-corrosive metal wires and straps, and extremely heavy pieces are sometimes supported by structural sections such as angles or channels.

Physical Properties

Since theatre design is rigidly controlled by building codes, it becomes important to the designer to consider the physical properties of materials from a performance standpoint. Ceramic veneer will normally add about one hour to the fire rating of the backing wall. This will vary, of course, with the actual thickness of the material and the wall to which it is applied. Installed, adhesion type will weigh about 20 pounds per square foot and anchored type slightly more depending again upon the thickness of the completed job. Ceramic veneer together with its mortar backing have sufficient density to effect a certain amount of sound insulation. The sound transmission loss through two inches of ceramic veneer, for example, would be approximately 44 decibels. This means that any wall to which ceramic veneer is added

GULISTAN CARPET enjoys reputation for long life and economy at the Radio City Music Hall, New York. From 1933 to the time this picture was taken recently, sections in heavily trafficked areas had been replaced, but the overall carpet, thanks to its quality, installation, and maintenance, remains in excellent condition.

■ IT HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED by numerous field tests that carpeted floors cost less to maintain than those covered with other materials.

In just one cost analysis study of actual floor maintenance jobs by a national service organization, this fact was demonstrated repeatedly. This concern, Industrial Sanitation Counselors, Inc., added up the costs of maintaining floors for its clients, and came up with data favoring carpets whether traffic conditions are heavy, medium, or light.

Maintenance Cost Low

In this study, it was found that under heavy and adverse conditions of soil and congestion, the average cost of maintaining 1,000 square feet of carpeted floors for one year was $189, against $383 for 1,000 square feet of non-carpeted floors—50.7 per cent cheaper.

For medium traffic conditions, the average savings for an area of the same size were 40.3 per cent greater—$145 for carpet, $243 for non-carpet.

For areas where traffic and soil conditions were light, carpeted floors were, on the average, 42 per cent cheaper to maintain—$104 against $181.

These findings indicated that carpet's superior maintenance cost factor performance is the result of its tendency to maintain "appearance level" during use, retarding what is called the "daily drop" in appearance better than non-carpeted floors. This was attributed to two of carpet's inherent characteristics: 1) It tends to brush soil from shoes, confining tracking effect to a limited area; 2) The natural flexing action of carpet tends to keep soil high in the pile, where it can be removed easily by vacuum.

Since soil does not become ground into carpet surface to reduce appearance level, daily appearance drop is negligible. But even more important from the cost viewpoint is that effort required to restore carpet to its original state is less than for non-carpeted areas. The data was compiled on the basis of labor, materials, and cleaning equipment servicing, for both carpeted and uncarpeted floors.

Basis Of Cost Data

Labor costs were based on a $1.25 hourly wage; standard floor testing area was 1,000 square feet; labor time rates were based on time-motion studies of each maintenance operation; servicing costs were based on a five day week, or 260 servicings annually; and cost figures were based on areas being maintained at a minimum of 90 per cent of optimum level.

For non-carpeted areas, a floor buffing machine, extra scrubbing brush, extra steel wool pad, dust mops and replacement heads, dust mop treatment, dust pan, wet mops, mopping equipment, floor cleaner, floor wax or finish, and dewaxers were determined necessary.

For carpeted areas, vacuum cleaner, spotting kit, shampoo, and floor machine were sufficient to maintain the 90 per cent or more appearance level.

New Barrel Dispenser Has Barrels Of Sales Appeal

THE new Selmix Barrel Dispenser is proving itself to be a star merchandiser in theatre and other beverage outlets across the country. Available in red or white with colored stripes and easy to clean inside and out, it dispenses two ice cold quality drinks which are identified on the valve handles. The unit can be delivered with or without carbonator.

Features of the Selmix Barrel also include Selmix stainless steel gravity valves and syrup systems; two 2-gallon stainless steel syrup containers; continuous 10-12 six ounce drinks per minute at 40 degrees or less, with 80 degree incoming water; a cold plate 15 inches in diameter, containing 50 inches of one-quarter inch stainless steel tubing imbedded in cast aluminum plates; a water pre-cooling coil in barrels with a carbonator; construction of solid color co-polymer high impact styrene with stainless steel liner; and locked-in-place foam insulation.

Specifications of the Barrel are 36 inches high, 21 inches wide; it requires one square foot of counter space for legs (see schematic drawing). The Selmix Niagara Carbonator produces 75 gallons per hour; the ice capacity is 75 pounds. The water connection is SAE three-eighths inch male flare; CO₂ gas con-

PERSONNEL POINTERS

Too much stress cannot be laid on the importance of competent sales personnel at the theatre refreshment stand. You can spend a lot of money on the finest building, the finest equipment, the best point-of-purchase advertising of the very best merchandise, but the results will be negligible if sales personnel look and act glum, or are discourteous.

Five Checkpoints

1. Personal appearance is of paramount importance. Good grooming, clean fingernails and hands, clean uniform, and, in the case of a sales girl, restraint in the use of cosmetics, should be stressed.

2. A good smile, not flippant (or flirtatious), is a key to more sales. The saying, "If you smile, you can sell," has been proved right over and over. You can always hire a dullard. Why not try to find sales people who can smile, and to whom it comes naturally?

3. "Thank you," "May I help you?," "May I suggest," are the three most important phrases to be addressed to each customer.

4. The sales person must know the merchandise to be able instantly to suggest a similar item in lieu of one requested and not available. At the same time, the sales person must be alert to customer demand to inform you of your fast or slow sellers.

5. The last important ingredient is enthusiasm. Why can a certain person behind the counter, with the same merchandise and the same customers, sell twice as much as another? The answer is enthusiasm, a warm smile, a genuine desire to serve the customer.

Refreshment stand operators generally hold a weekly meeting with their personnel. Those who do not are making a mistake. Friday is a good day for these meetings to gear personnel for the weekend business. A detailed study and discussion of all merchandise and suggestions for improving service always should be part of these meetings.

Also, the operator should explain to personnel any new merchandise being featured and analyze its best selling points, discuss how it is made, and of what it is made.

The correct way to make change and to complete each sale are other important topics for review at each meeting. Proper instruction here means reduced shortages.

Discussion of sales quotas and campaigns should be kept simple to make sure everyone understands them. The program should be announced each week, and praise or commendation for goals already reached should be generous.

ATTENDING THE DEBUT of the new two-drink Selmix Coca-Cola Barrel in the Biltmore Hotel, New York, recently were Edward Avery, of R. K. O. Theatres; Leonard Pallack, Loew's Theatres; Charles Okun, Coca-Cola national representative; and Lee Koken, R. K. O. Theatres.

Preferred and Profitable... Pepsi-Cola's 292% gain in syrup sales since 1950 clearly shows that your customers recognize Pepsi quality and prefer this refreshment. Why not select the brand that has more to offer in both prestige and profits? Among those profiting by the big preference for Pepsi are: Interstate Circuit, Inc., Malco Theatres, Inc., Walter Reade Theatres, Inc., Skouras Theatres, Inc., Stanley Warner Management Corp., Crescent Amusement Co., and many other theatre owners. Get the facts and figures from National Accounts Department, Pepsi-Cola Company, 3 West 57th Street, New York 19, New York.

Two NAC Meetings Analyze Merchandising

Merchandising Stressed At Dallas Meeting

"YOU'LL have to improve your merchandising to increase your sales at concession counters" was the advice given by a panel of speakers at the 1959 Southwestern Regional Concessions Clinic last month at Hotel Adolphus in Dallas, sponsored by National Association of Concessionaires. NAC Director A. J. Schmitt served as conference chairman, assisted by Charles E. Darden. Held concurrently with the Seventh Annual Convention of the Texas Drive-in Theatre Owners Association, the one-day session attracted an attendance of 175 theatre owners.

Al Reynolds, general manager of the Claude Ezell circuit, was the lead-off speaker on the subject of popcorn. Stressing the importance of pushing popcorn and soft drinks, Reynolds recommended the two products as a "natural" tie-in because one complements the other. He also urged concession operators to serve popcorn hot to attract maximum sales, and indicated that he has found success in installing heat lamps over the bagged or boxed popcorn. Reynolds also emphasized the need of proper and well maintained popping equipment, proper measurements of popcorn, salt and oil, and top quality ingredients. The Ezell Circuit sells a 25 cent family size box to drive-in theatre patrons at the boxoffice and have found it to be a successful merchandising technique.

NAC executive vice-president Thomas J. Sullivan spoke on Popcorn Merchandising Aids. "Eye appeal is buy appeal," he stated; "if you want to increase your popcorn or any other concession item sales you have to use attractive and colorful point-of-sale material. Use the super-market sales technique and people will buy."

AT THE NAC LAS VEGAS MEETING, Charles Bourdelais of Coca-Cola, center, demonstrates a new Coke dispenser, which in this instance is mounted on a three beverage dispensing unit manufactured by Carbonic Dispenser, Inc. Looking on is NAC first vice-president Harold F. Chesler and executive vice-president Thomas S. Sullivan.

"How much quality should be put into a product?" was the question asked of the audience by Robert F. Amundsen, ATCO Food Company, Dallas. He reviewed the quality situation for three typical concession items: orange drink, barbecue, and hot dogs, indicating there are three quality grades available: supreme, medium, and average, and that often a supplier does not know which grade is most acceptable to concession buyers. Comments from those in attendance provided the answer that buyers want to buy the highest quality commensurate with the ability to offer it for a fair price. There were certain "going" or acceptable retail prices for all items and buyers have to purchase with this in mind to allow their proper mark-up for profit, it was said.

Mary Kuhlman, food economist, presented a "Sandwich-Making Clinic," using color slide films and demonstrations. "Offer your patrons variety in sandwiches outside hamburgers and hot dogs, and you'll increase your business," she recommended. "There are many sandwich types that concession operators can prepare that will be both attractive and profitable."

The clinic concluded with a Pitchman's Forum, moderated by Schmitt, in which all exhibiting suppliers in attendance were given an opportunity to display and talk about their products.

Las Vegas Meet Another Profit Producer

A record attendance at the Fifth Annual Western Regional Concessions Clinic sponsored by National Association of Concessionaires Feb. 9-11 in the Hotel Riviera, Las Vegas, again heard the advice, "Better Merchandising Equals More Profit." Three days of clinic discussion, under the direction of NAC first vice-president and meeting chairman Harold F. Chesler, provided adequate proof to leading concession merchandisers.

Summarizing the meeting, Chesler stated, "Anywhere people gather, whether at an amusement park, drive-in, conventional theatre, or other recreational operation, food and beverage can be sold if the seller offers quality products, fair prices and attractive point-of-sale merchandising techniques. Food and beverage can be your fortune."

NAC board chairman Lee Koken, chairmanned the opening session devoted to the development of "Crowd-Getting Ideas For Theatres," and explained, "Patrons can be motivated to attend theatres . . . but it takes plenty of hard work and hard-sell. The most important thing is to take the ideas developed by this meeting and put them to work in our respective operations."

"The outlook for popcorn is bright both from the standpoint of quality and adequate supplies," according to Rufus Harris, Blevins Popcorn Company, and Arthur Vogel, Vogel and Son Popcorn Company. Thomas Ramsey, Curtiss Candy Company, described "Operation Turnover," the new candy merchandising plan being developed to stimulate and increase the sales of candy. On the second day of the conference, Miss Una Wood, a food economist, presented a sandwich-making clinic designed to show concession operators how to vary menus and attract extra sales.

A highlight of the meeting was the Pitchman's Forum, during which allied supply members in attendance described the newest developments in products manufactured by their firms. The conference concluded with "Let's Talk Shop" moderated by Chairman Chesler,—an informal session for general discussion of problems, ideas and items pertaining to concession operation.

The opening meeting luncheon was hosted by the Coca-Cola Company. In attendance were Charles Bourdelais of Atlanta, and Harvey Westfall and Hal Gibson, Los Angeles.

A cocktail party was sponsored by the Pepsi-Cola Company for all registrants. On hand to welcome the guests were Norman Wasser, Edward Specht, and Howard Roberts. Each evening the group enjoyed a supper show at one of the famous Las Vegas hotels.

New Beverage Cups For Theatre Stands

A bright new movie design cup for cold drinks, left, printed in six color combinations which vary according to cup size, is now being made available by the Paper Container Division of Continental Can Company.

MOVIE CUP

The cup design features the industry slogan, "Get more out of Life . . . Go out to a movie!" Cup colors and ounce sizes are green and purple (7); orange and blue (7½); gold and blue (8); green and magenta (9); blue and brown (14); and orange and green (16).

With the exception of the 7¼-ounce size, a vending cup, all the movie design cups are styled for use in manual dispensing operations.

"Regent," right, a new line of plastic coated paper hot drink cups with a printed design also is now being made available by Continental Can.

The hot drink cups are available in five sizes—3½, six, eight, 10, and 12 ounces. Six and eight ounce cups are offered with or without handles. The new design, created by stylist Freda Diamond, is fashioned after the classic fleur-de-lis pattern and printed in tan and brown colors on a white background.

REGENT CUP

Continental's plastic coating process enables the plastic to be put on all around the lip of the cup and eliminates any impression of "paper taste" even when the beverage is put in very hot and allowed to stand for a long period, it is said. Plastic coating of a hot drink cup also keeps the drink hotter longer and is the closest thing to drinking from a china cup, Continental states.

New NAMA Exec

CHICAGO—The forthcoming retirement of Clinton S. Darling as executive director of the National Automatic Merchandising Association when he reaches the mandatory retirement age in 1960 and the appointment of Thomas B. Hungerford of St. Louis as his successor have been announced by William S. Fishman, association president.

To achieve an orderly transition of management, Hungerford will assume his new duties on August 1, 1959, and until August 1, 1960 he and Darling will jointly direct the staff and affairs of the Association, it was said.

Lacy-Dane Citation

CHICAGO—Frank R. Lacy, Jr., and Samuel Dane have announced that the Lacy-Dane Hot Chocolate Dispenser has been awarded the National Sanitation Foundation's Seal of Approval Listing.

Lacy-Dane points out that one of the plus factors of Lacy-Dane dispensers is the ease with which they may be thoroughly cleaned. There is no possibility of bacteria build-up or 'off' taste from any unsanitary condition, it is said.

Pepsi Easter Kit

Distribution of Pepsi-Cola Company's free holiday kit for Easter has been announced by Norman Wasser, manager of theatre sales. The Easter kit is one of four separate units mailed annually by Pepsi-Cola as a time-and-money saving assist for theatre owners everywhere. Other kits include Christmas, Memorial Day, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving and Halloween.

Pepsi-Cola holiday displays were first sent to the nation's theatres four years ago. Original shipments totaled less than 500. The increasing demand for the merchandising package has increased the distribution to several thousand.

Loew's Contest Winners

NEW YORK—Leonard Pollack, director of purchasing and concessions for Loew's Theatres, and Melvin L. Gold, sales manager of the newly formed exploitation novelties division of the ABC Vending Corporation, have announced eight winners in the "tom thumb" candy stand decoration contest held at Loew's intown and out of town theatres.

The following managers received a $25 award: Danny Cohen, Loew's Kings, Brooklyn; Harold Graff, Loew's Orpheum, Manhattan; Lennie Edwards, Loew's "35," Keyport, N.J.; and Joe Beck, Loew's Gates, Brooklyn.

Out of town winners were Walter Kessler, Columbus, Ohio; Frank Henson, St. Louis; Kermit Allum, Evansville, N.Y.; and Sam Gilman, Syracuse, N.Y.

The "tom thumb" candy stand contest marks the first time that the ABC Vending Corporation tied in directly with a motion picture. The "tom thumb" toys used in the candy stand decorations represented characters in the film, and theatres were able to put the toys to work to help exploit the picture.

Sweden Exec Honored

SEATTLE—The Bureau of Foreign Commerce has named Harvey F. Swenson, president of the Sweden Freezer Manufacturing Company, as a member of the U. S. Trade Mission to India from Feb. 14 to April 18.

Headed by a Bureau of Foreign Commerce official, the team is scheduled to tour principal cities in the Calcutta area and will consult and advise with local businessmen and Government officials, individually and in groups, on American methods of doing business.

NAC Eastern Regional Slated For Next Week

NEW YORK—The National Association of Concessionaires will hold an eastern regional meeting in the Park Sheraton Hotel here March 19, it has been announced by board chairman Lee Koken and president Philip L. Lowe. The last eastern regional was held in Boston two years ago.

Bert Nathan, NAC past president, will serve as chairman of the meeting, which will be an all-inclusive merchandising clinic. The morning session is slated for 9:30, followed by lunch at 12:30. The afternoon session is to start at two, to be followed by a cocktail party at six p.m.

Fast Drying Paint

Painting of theatre aisles, arm rests and backs of seats need no longer be scheduled for off-season periods, nor does it require roping off sections as is the common practice during painting operations in many theatres, auditoriums, and stadiums, it is said, as a result of the paint industry's newest research development: a new quick-dry enamel that dries hard in 15 minutes. This permits scheduling of paint jobs at virtually any time.

Developed by Consolidated Chemical and Paint Manufacturing Company, Inc., the special formula resin-base enamel is walk-on dry 15 minutes after painting, as compared with the six to 24-hour drying time required by other enamels. Named Jet-Dri, the new product is claimed to impart a tough, lustrous coat to wood, metal, and concrete surfaces, spreading evenly when applied by brush, spray and roller. Independent testing groups have confirmed the product's tough abrasion resistance properties and its ability to resist corrosion as well as alcohol, acid, and alkali stains. Jet-Dri requires no special solvents and can be thinned with ordinary mineral spirits.

In a recent theatre application, painting was scheduled from nine a.m. to 11 a.m., with the floor painted a section at a time during the week. The theatre opened its box office each day at 11:45 a.m., with seating permitted in newly painted areas. The theatre manager reported that the newly painted floor was perfectly dry when the box office opened. Patrons left no marks on the floor, nor was there any hint of tackiness. The manager was able to schedule painting for the two-hour period until the entire job was done without having to sacrifice any of the seating capacity, it was reported.

Non-toxic, Jet-Dri leaves no unpleasant odors and can be covered with a second coat, if required, as soon as the first coat is dry. The paint can be obtained in sizes of from one gallon to 50-gallon drums. It comes in 18 colors, including black, white, aluminum, and crystal clear.

A MAINTENANCE FOREMAN applies a coat of new, quick drying enamel to aisle floor in the Astoria, New York. Paint dried in less than one hour.

Sign Rotator

A completely new, low priced rotating assembly called "Roto-Mount" has been introduced that is designed to handle signs up to 45 square feet and can run continuously. In addition to providing a new economical means for the installation of new rotating signs, conversion of existing stationary signs can be accomplished rapidly through one simple weld, it is said.

Rugged durability is also a feature of the new Roto-Mount. It uses a one-quarter horse power motor with a heavy duty gear box and chain drive. The entire unit is contained in a heavy gauge metal box approximately 19 inches by 10 inches by 10 inches. Installation is fast and simple. Regular 110 volt system is all that is required.

16mm Sound Editors

S.O.S. Cinema Supply Corporation has announced a new line of 16mm double magnetic sound editors: the Magniola and the Deluxe Magniola. The combination — the S.O.S. Action Viewer teamed with Moviola — is said to be the standard of the profession. Magniola gives a sharp, brilliant picture synchronized with clear magnetic sound in a complete, compact unit for matching picture with magnetic sound track.

Magniola offers a bright three foot by four inch picture, built-in cue marker, frame and footage counters, two-gang synchronizer with magnetic soundhead, and amplifier and speaker unit.

Sound quality is achieved through the magnetic soundhead installed in the synchronizer. The amplifier and speaker unit can be located wherever it is convenient for the operator, it is said. The Deluxe Magniola for single system editing with magnetic soundtrack has two magnetic heads—one for single system and another for double system sound. The Magniola is also a laboratory test film inspection system which unveils minor flaws in films not ordinarily detected.

Dustless Cleaner

For more efficient, time saving, dustless sweeping, the chemically treated, disposable Masslinn Cloths are now available in a new industrial package, according to the manufacturers, Chicopee Mills, Inc.

The Masslinn Sweeping Tool and dust-absorbing cloth enables easy, dustless cleaning without oiling, dampening, or chemical sprays. The manufacturer states that the disposable cloth is a non-woven fabric impregnated with a special emulsion which absorbs and retains dust and dirt, leaving cleaned floors with a polished finish, without any slip hazard. The nonlinting cloth is said to give complete assurance against leaving of deposits, threads, fall-out or back-tracking.

The new industrial package is a white, glassene-lined bag containing 50 folded, 24 inch by 24 inch Masslinn Cleaning Cloths for easier handling and more efficient dispensing.

The Masslinn Sweeping tool, holding the disposable cloth has an all-direction swivel,

National Carbon Offers New "Suprex" 7mm Line

NEW YORK—A new positive projector carbon that gives more light and lasts up to 20 per cent longer than previous carbons in its ampere range is available from National Carbon Company.

An outgrowth of continuing research and development in projector carbon materials and processing techniques, the new "Suprex" 7mm positive carbon is designed for use in the 40- to 55-ampere range.

Operating satisfactorily over the entire current range, the improved 7mm positive carbon has a maximum rating five amperes higher than the previous 7mm carbon, providing more light for today's larger motion picture screens. Projectionists have the option of getting up to 20 per cent more light from the new carbon, or of operating it at approximately a 20 per cent slower burning rate than the previous 7mm carbon at its maximum current of 50 amperes.

National Carbon Exhibits At Texas Convention

DALLAS—Texans attending the three-day Texas Drive-In Theatre Convention in the Adolphus Hotel here last month had an opportunity to inspect the latest in motion picture equipment, including a complete line of projector carbons.

In Booth Seven, National Carbon Company, Division of Union Carbide Corporation, exhibited projector carbons designed to provide large quantities of light for today's outdoor theatre screens. The company's Projector Carbon Bulletin series was on display, and cards were available for those who had not already done so to sign up to get the publication regularly.

On hand to discuss screen lighting problems with theatre operators were W. T. Strother and J. W. Cosby.

CARPET

Selecting Carpet

The correct selection of carpet and its installation, as well as the proper maintenance, are the keys to long carpet life and the concomitant economy of this kind of floor covering. The integrity and guarantees of the manufacturer and/or supplier are the best assurance of quality within the price range that the theatre man selects, unless he wishes to make actual wearing tests.

Durability is not the only consideration in carpet selection. Beauty and adaptability to existing or projected decor if carpet does not, indeed, dictate decor, are others. All other factors being equal, however, the carpet with the higher pile generally is the best buy, in that it will wear longer in direct ratio to the difference in pile length. For instance, if the pile of Carpet A is twice as high as that of Carpet B, it is safe to assume the former will wear twice as long, although both have received identical maintenance and installation.

Density of Pile

The density of pile, on the other hand, is much more important to its wearing qualities than height. If other things being equal, one carpet has a pile twice as dense as another, that carpet will not wear twice as well: it will wear four times as well. If the pile is three times denser than another, it will outwear the thinner by nine to one, according to the U. S. Bureau of Standards. This government agency developed a formula that the wear index of carpet is equal to the height of the pile times the square of the pile density.

Quality of Wool

The foregoing formulas apply only when all other factors are equal. One of the other vital factors is wool quality, and for an accurate appraisal of this facet, the buyer relies again on the vendor's reputation and guarantees. Well over 200 different kinds of wool are used in carpet making, and many different kinds can be used in one carpet.

Woolens And Worsteds

The theatremen easily can check the difference between woolen and worsted pile, both used in carpet. Woolen yarn is thicker and has more twist, and because of this resists dirt better than the worsted and is less difficult to clean. On the other hand, worsted has its advantages: it yields less lint because the short fibres are combed out before it is spun, and it is often preferred for use where lint is objectionable or wear severe.

It is not necessary to determine the type of weave in an offered sample, because carpets are classified according to weave nature. Each of those most used in the theatres has its own advantages and drawbacks in terms of comfort and decoration, and the type of weave is not a good index of durability unless other factors such as pile, wool quality, and process of manufacturing are taken into account. Among many other details, the method used in dyeing the wool can be important: if a prolonged stay in boiling dye has been necessary to fix color, it is possible that the fibres have been weakened.

Thus, carpet selection involves a number of factors the buyer cannot readily judge by samples, and others that he can. But the installation and maintenance of carpet, equally important to its durability, he is able to control and to judge, if he trusts only reputable manufacturers and suppliers.

Kuwait Sheikh Gets Rush Equipment Order

Checking the cases of Gaumont-Kalee equipment before loading into the B. O. A. C. Britannia in the background are K. Elliott, resident engineer of the Kuwait Cinema Company; Fred Hunt, the G. B.-Kalee Division of Rank Precision Industries, Ltd.; the representative of Lep Transport; and E. A. Doman, G. B.-Kalee representative, Middle East.

LONDON—Gaumont-Kalee cinema equipment for the new palace of Sheikh Abdulla Mubarak Al Subah of Kuwait, complete with facilities for CinemaScope and stereophonic sound, was flown from London Airport recently within a week of being ordered from Kuwait.

K. Elliott, Resident Engineer of the Kuwait Cinema Company, flew to London immediately after consultation with the Sheikh. He was accompanied by E. A. Doman, G.B.-Kalee representative in the Middle East.

Working with technicians of the G.B.-Kalee Division of Rank Precision Industries, Ltd., they selected the equipment, had it specially packed for flying, and rushed it to the airport for delivery by the date that the sheikh was to move into a new home.

The order included a complete dual 35mm Gaumont-Kalee projection and sound equipment and a dual 16mm G.B.-Bell and Howell 609 arc equipment—both with facilities for all ratios up to CinemaScope; a magnascope screen frame and Harkness Screen.

Drew Eberson Receives Second Jamaica Commission

NEW YORK—Drew Eberson, architect, has been commissioned to design a 1,000 seat theatre and commercial building at Montego Bay, Jamaica, and a 500 car drive-in theatre at Kingston, Jamaica, it was reported last fortnight following his return from a trip to the island to inspect an 1,800 seat theatre he already has under construction at Kingston for Amalgamated Cinemas, Ltd. (PHYSICAL THEATRE, October 8, 1958).

The Kingston theatre, nearing completion, is equipped for Todd-AO. Seating is being furnished by Phil Furst Seating Company, New York, and the stage draperies, acoustical treatment, and similar work has been entrusted to Manhoff Studios, Long Island, N.Y.

New NTS District Head

Henry J. McKinney has been named eastern district supervisor of National Theatre Supply Company, it has been announced by W. J. Turnbull, president. He will continue to act as branch manager of the Boston office in addition to his new duties. The NTS eastern district includes Albany, Baltimore, Boston, Hamden, New York, and Philadelphia.

CERAMIC VENEER

will have an additional sound insulation quality. Such a feature may be important in insulating against a high exterior noise level where the theatre is to be located in a congested area.

Conclusion

In contemporary theatre design and decoration, there is an unlimited potential which may well capture the imagination of any architect who has such a project on his drawing board. Although terra cotta and ceramic veneer offer but one of a number of answers to such a design problem, they have been used to advantage in a number of theatres and auditoriums throughout the country. In the hands of a skilled designer, they become a tool through which he can find expression for his own conception of beauty without compromise. By combining plain—even stark—wall areas with colorful decorative panels, terra cotta and ceramic veneer can run the gamut from the most dignified design to the most whimsical with equal ease.

New Manley Packages Increase Popcorn Profits

KANSAS CITY—Manley, Inc., has introduced a 12½ pound package of the company's best hybrid popcorn, heat-sealed in polyethylene and shipped in 50 pound units containing four of the new packages.

A 12-month test in a circuit of 50 theatres using "wonder-pack" corn proved conclusively, Manley states, that polyethylene-packed corn increased pop-out from 12 to 16 boxes per pound, a 33 1/3 per cent increase in yield.

Processed bulk corn, Manley contends, has a potential of a minimum 1,600 one-and-one-half ounce boxes per 100 pounds of corn, if popped in a late model Manley machine. Because 50 and 100 pound bags of corn begin to lose moisture, many theatre stands average only 1,200 boxes per 100 pounds, or less, it is said.

The famous pink paper SAVEABLE SECTION in which Experienced Trade Analysts evaluate coming product

Published every second week, as a separately bound and easily saveable section of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, this exclusive 24 year old service is both numerically more complete, and informatively more candid, than any similar trade analysis. Cumulatively numbered by film seasons (September to September), it is recommended that readers consecutively save all REVIEWS sections in a permanent file. The last issue of each August will always contain a complete annual index to close the season.

Combined, the every second week yellow paper SERVICE SECTION indexes to the past 12 months' product, and the alternating every second week pink paper REVIEWS, represent a unique informative service to theatremen. Please address all inquiries or suggestions about these two service features to the Editors of MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, 246-48 N. Clarion St., Philadelphia 7, Penna.

Paratroop Command

DRAMA
83M

American International

ESTIMATE: Effective war programmer.

CAST: Richard Bakalyan, Ken Lynch, Jack Hogan, Jimmy Murphy, Jeffry Morris, Jim Beck, Carolyn Hughes, Patricia Huston, Paul Busch, Sid Lassick, Brad Trumball. A James H. Nicholson and Samuel Z. Arkoff Production; produced by Stanley Shpetner; story and screenplay by Shpetner; directed by William Witney.

STORY: During the invasion of Africa, paratrooper Richard Bakalyan accidentally kills one of his company who had donned a German uniform to carry out a patrol. Some of the men think Bakalyan acted intentionally because the other had called him a coward. Distrusted by the others in his unit, Bakalyan confesses to his commanding officer, Ken Lynch, that he has never been able to finish anything he ever started. He vows to succeed as a paratrooper at any cost. During the Sicilian campaign, he tries to acquit himself well, but his fellow soldiers don't give him a chance. At Salerno, his unit discovers a huge enemy buildup. To radio the vital information, it is necessary to get a generator across a road that is heavily mined. Bakalyan clears a path through the area by running across, exploding the mines. He is killed, but he has accomplished his mission.

X-RAY: This is an effective war film for the program and should please fans of this fare. While much of the story is familiar and some standard soldier types are employed, the story line is kept simple to good effect. Action sequences are well handled, and the cast is quite satisfactory. Bakalyan is an interesting performer, and the film sustains interest. Nothing pretentious here, but the producers have followed a proven formula well. The market exists, and it should buy this.

AD LINES: "Kids Living To The Deadly Thrill Of Jump And Kill"; "The Spectacle Of War And One Man's Struggle For Self-Respect."

ESTIMATE: Typical sub story for program.

CAST: John Bentley, Brett Halsey, Wayne Heffley, Steve Mitchell, Henry McCann, Frank Gerstle, Paul Maxwell, Jan Brooks, Mabel Rea, Leon Tyler, Nicky Blair, Hal Bogart, Frank Watkins, Marilyn Hanold, Dolores Domasin, Robin Priest, Scott Peters, Don Fenwick, Ted Fish, Vince Williams, Frank Ray, Alan Aric, Howard Hampton, Brian Wood. Executive producer, Lou Rusoff; a James Nicholson and Samuel Z. Arkoff Production; produced by Alex Gordon; directed by Spencer B. Bennet.

STORY: John Bentley is given command of the Seahawk, a submarine, though the previous captain and all the men think it should go to executive officer Paul Maxwell. The ship is given the assignment of finding a hidden Japanese task force preparing a huge offensive. Ordered to observe and obtain information and not to fight, Bentley is suspected of cowardice by the men. They follow a Japanese ship into the harbor, find the task force, and radio back the information. The sub lies on the bottom of the harbor while Allied forces launch an all-out attack, completely destroying the Japanese fleet. The sub starts home. On the way, it knocks off a stray Japanese carrier. The men know their skipper is a real man.

X-RAY: Made strictly according to formula, this entry holds up well enough to please devotees of war films, of which there are many, and should prove pleasant program material. The misunderstood officer, the coward, and some stock comic characters are included, and adept cutting into stock war shots keeps the action coming. Direction, production, and performances are adequate. As part of a war-slanted double bill, it's okay. Screenplay is by Rusoff and Owen Harris.

AD LINES: "Sliding Through Cold Murky Depths . . . The Secret Sub That Won A War"; "See Planes, Ships, And Subs In One Titanic Battle."

ESTIMATE: Familiar desert action programmer.

CAST: Victor Mature, Anne Aubrey, Anthony Newley, Norman Wooland, Dermot Walsh, Walter Gotell, Sean Kelly, Paul Stasino, Laurence Taylor, Dennis Shaw, Murray Kash, Maya Koumani. Produced by Irving Allen and Albert R. Broccoli; screenplay and direction by John Gilling.

STORY: Unrest among India's tribes is due to Thuggee raids, but the British forces, under Norman Wooland, mistakenly blame chieftain Victor Mature and his tribe. Falsely accused of murder, Mature's bitterness grows. The true bandits raid Mature's village, killing all women and children, including Mature's family, and leaving clues to point to the English. Mature swears vengeance and turns bandit. Through the efforts of Wooland's daughter, Anne Aubrey, and corporal Anthony Newley, Mature and Wooland realize they have been at each other's throats for no reason. They fight together when the Thuggees attack the fort. Mature dies, a hero.

X-RAY: This familiar desert opus is lifted out of a complete rut by appearing to laugh at itself occasionally, becoming almost a caricature of such films. This is all to the good, but not fully successful, and there are times when interest lags. A tremendous amount of footage is involved with hordes of horsemen riding one way on the screen, changing clothes, and then riding the other way. Acting is par for such films, with the exception of Anthony Newley, young British actor, who turns in a gem of a comedy performance, by far the brightest thing on the screen. CinemaScope and color are plus factors, and exhibitors who have had success with these desert westerns in the past should repeat with this one.

TIP ON BIDDING: Fair program rates.

ESTIMATE: For the lower half.

CAST: George Nader, Bernard Lee, Bessie Love, Maggie Smith, Geoffrey Keen, Andree Melly, Howard Marion Crawford, Arthur Howard, John Welch, Margaret McGrath, Harry Corbett, Harry Locke, Lilly Kann. A Michael Balcon production, directed by Seth Holt. An Ealing Film.

STORY: George Nader steals the valuable coin collection of widow Bessie Love, puts the fortune in cash in a bank vault, and gives himself up to the police, figuring he will receive a few years' sentence as a first offender and then come out and get the money. He gets a 10-year sentence, however, and with the assistance of his pal, Bernard Lee, makes good his escape. After he makes an unsuccessful attempt to get the money, he is double-crossed by Lee, who overpowers him and takes the vault key. Later, in an attempt to get the key back, Nader accidentally kills Lee. Now both an escaped prisoner and a murderer, other crooks refuse to help him, so Nader in desperation turns to a worldly-wise young woman he has met along the way. She is romantically attracted to him and decides to hide him out on her uncle's large farm in Wales. After they arrive there, Nader mistakenly believes she, too, has double crossed him. In another attempt to flee, he is shot and killed by a caretaker.

X-RAY: Although the acting is first rate and production and direction okay, this import concerns itself with so much detail that it becomes tedious. Also, there is little or no sympathy for any of the characters and hence a lessening of interest in what happens to them. The ending is also most unsatis-

ESTIMATE: Interesting entertainment.

CAST: Yul Brynner, Joanne Woodward, Margaret Leighton, Stuart Whitman, Ethel Waters, Jack Warden, Francoise Rosay, John Beal, Albert Dekker, Stephen Perry, William Gunn, Roy Glenn. Produced by Jerry Wald, directed by Martin Ritt.

STORY: Yul Brynner rules over a neglected southern mansion and inhabitants Jack Warden, an idiot son of the house; his always drunk wreck of a sensitive brother, John Beal; their complex and bored niece, Joanne Woodward, who is also the illegitimate daughter of Margaret Leighton. Also residing in the house is the hypochondriac mother of Brynner, Francoise Rosay, and all are served by Ethel Waters, faithful old family retainer. Woodward resents Brynner's orders and becomes involved with carnival worker Stuart Whitman. When Leighton returns to see her daughter, Brynner is at first reluctant to allow her back but finally agrees. Woodward expects a confidant and a defender as well as a mother, and is disappointed when Leighton lacks the courage to do battle with Brynner. The latter discovers the situation between Whitman and Woodward and shows him up for a weakling. Brynner tells her that money she took was really hers which he has been saving to give her a start in life and to allow her to emerge as someone he can be proud of.

X-RAY: Intriguing and interesting is this filmization of William Faulkner's novel of a southern family of varying means, degrees, and temperaments; yet it's also unsatisfactory because the story is vague and lacking at times, leaving viewers puzzled and unconvinced as to the validity of the dramatic content and how the pieces fit together. The ingredients are there, the cast does fine, the direction and production are commendable, yet somewhere along the line, either in the story construction or in the editing, things get out of line. It's a fascinating character and situation study that has much potential. The screenplay is by Irving Ravetch and Harriet Frank, Jr.

TIPS ON BIDDING: Higher bracket in some situations.

AD LINES: "They Hated Him, Yet They All Needed Him To Stay Alive"; "An Absorbing Tale Of A Most Unusual Southern Family."

ESTIMATE: Interesting program entry.

CAST: Audie Murphy, Joanne Dru, Gilbert Roland, Jim Backus, Sandra Dee, George Mitchell, Peter Breck, Strother Martin, Wesley Marie Tackitt, Betty Harford, Mel Leonard, Lillian Adams, Val Benedict. Produced by Sy Gomberg; directed by Jack Sher.

STORY: While taking a load of fur pelts to town for trading, Audie Murphy meets ill-kempt mountain girl, Sandra Dee, who is running away from home. They arrive on the Fourth of July and are awed by the "big city" excitement. Murphy sells the pelts and a storekeeper outfits the country bumpkins in city clothes. Sheriff Gilbert Roland has to rescue Murphy several times from those making him the butt of rough jokes. Roland has his eye on Dee, while Murphy is smitten by dancehall hostess Joanne Dru. Dee, acting on Murphy's advice, is being prepared for a debut as a dancehall girl when Murphy realizes the sort of place it is and goes to get her out. When he is tossed out, he gets his rifle. Although it is against his principles to kill, he kills Roland in a showdown gun battle. Ashamed of his actions, he bawls out the townspeople for living by the gun. He leaves with Dee.

X-RAY: Found here are action, drama, romance, and a story by Sy Gomberg that is somewhat different. It has to do with the introduction of a pair of innocents into what to them are the evils of a big city when the west was first being settled. Interest is well enough maintained, and performances are average, as are production and direction. It should make up okay as part of the program. CinemaScope and color are decided assets. A song, "Touch of Pink," is heard.

TIP ON BIDDING: Fair program rates.

ESTIMATE: Interesting drama about homeless youngsters.

CAST: Max Bygraves, Barbara Murray, Colin Peterson, Dana Wilson, Kathleen Harrison, Sean Barrett, Eleanor Summerfield, Mona Washbourne, Toke Townley. Produced by Dan Dalrymple; directed by Lewis Gilbert.

STORY: When the father of Dana Wilson and her two brothers murders their mother and is imprisoned, London Children's Welfare Officer Barbara Murray places them in an already overcrowded children's shelter. Meanwhile, she is instrumental in finding the mother of Sean Barrett, the eldest in the shelter, and she effects a reunion. She also tries to persuade small-time actress and habitual drunk Eleanor Summerfield to visit her son and to take him to live with her. In between, she becomes friendly with electrician Max Bygraves, who does some work at the shelter. He takes her and several of the youngsters on a picnic. Wilson gets into trouble at the shelter when the matron in charge and her nephew take a dislike to the child. Barrett and mother are reunited. Summerfield commits suicide rather than take her son back and Wilson runs away with him and her two brothers. They take along a gun they found and hide out in the woods until Bygraves and a searching party locate them. Bygraves and Murray decide to get married and adopt the homeless boy, as Wilson and her brothers go to a friendly foster home.

X-RAY: This tale of children left homeless either through design or circumstance is one that is both interesting and heart-touching at times. It's perhaps a commentary on the times, and as such, is certainly topical. Since it affects youngsters, its point of origin is relatively unimportant except perhaps for a few bits of dialogue. No one can misunderstand youngster reaction and disappointment at not being wanted or at being forgotten. The cast is good, with Max Bygraves and Barbara Murray fine as important adults in a children's world. Direction and production are impressive. The entry can play in art and specialty spots as well as in many regulation houses as a supporting feature on the program. A song, "You Gotta Have Rain," is heard. The screenplay is by Vernon Harris.

ESTIMATE: Good French entry.

CAST: Yves Montand, Yves Noel, Nicole Berger, Bernadette Lange, Gabrielle Fontan, Walter Chiari, Aldo Fabrizi, Georges Chamar. Produced by Sacha Gordine; executive producer, Claude Heymann; and directed by Luis Saslavsky.

STORY: May 1 is a holiday in Paris. It is also the day a new baby is due Bernadette Lange and her husband, Yves Montand. The latter has agreed to take their eight-year-old son, Yves Noel, away so the midwife can perform her task properly without prying. At the same time, he has promised to divulge the facts of life to the youngster. Lange's sister, Nicole Berger, planned to spend the day with sweetheart Walter Chiari at a celebration and to give herself to him to force mother Gabrielle Fontan to give her consent to their marriage. Enroute, Montand is lured to a gambling casino where he is permitted to win a few times. At that point, a police raid puts him in the police station until he can send Noel home for his identification papers. The latter is urged to keep his situation secret. The lad gets a lift from friendly truck driver Aldo Fabrizi and arrives home to find the birth in process. He learns the facts of life while assisting on various errands. His mother is taken to the hospital, and Berger is summoned home. The family is reunited at home where a baby girl is born. Berger and Chiari decide to wait, and marriage seems closer than before. Fabrizi and the midwife develop a romance.

X-RAY: A number of things take place on a single day in Paris to a French family, and they prove naturally entertaining and interesting. It's warm, funny at times, and drama-laden at others. The import should please art house and specialty audiences, one of which was well-taken when the film was reviewed. The Paris background adds to the flavor of the picture. The screenplay is by Luis Saslavsky and Claude Heymann, and there is a song based on the title.

ESTIMATE: Exploitable for art and language spots.

CAST: Paula Wessely, Paul Dahlke, Christian Wolff, Ingrid Stenn, Hans Nielson, Friedrich Joloff, Hilde Korber, Gunther Theil, Herbert Hubner, Siegfried Schurenberg, Otto Graf, Paul Esser, Hans Schumm. Produced by Helmuth Volmer; directed by Frank Winterstein.

STORY: Paula Wessely and her banker husband, Paul Dahlke, are worried over the homosexual tendencies of their son, Christian Wolff. Figuring that an affair with a woman may prove beneficial to her son, Wessely arranges this with her servant girl, Ingrid Stenn. Meanwhile, Dahlke instigates a police investigation of art dealer Friedrich Joloff, whose studio is a hangout for homosexuals. Through evidence obtained from homosexual Gunther Theil, close friend of Wolff, Joloff, in turn turns the police on Wessely, who is charged with procuring. Although she receives a six months jail sentence on this charge Wessely is happy, knowing she has saved her son, who is now happy and in love with Stenn.

X-RAY: This definitely adult film treats a heretofore hush-hush movie subject frankly, but with an element of good taste. The acting of the entire cast is excellent and some highly dramatic moments charged with emotional impact are accomplished through tasteful production and direction. That this can be sold along sensational lines is a foregone conclusion; and it will not disappoint seekers after this type of film although it is hardly of the art classification. Either the entire film is censorable due to its subject matter, or several passionate sequences should be toned down. The English titles are okay. The scenario is by Felix Lutzkendorf.

AD LINES: "Shines The Light Of Truth On 'The Third Sex'"; "A Provocative And Adult Film."

ESTIMATE: Confused drama of sexual aberrations.

CAST: Eva Henning, Birger Malmsten, Birgit Tengroth, Hasse Ekman. Directed by Ingmar Bergman.

STORY: A young and beautiful girl is mistress of a married man. When she tells him she is to have a child, he denies responsibility and returns to his wife. The girl has an abortion, with the doctors mutilating her to the extent that she will never be able to bear another child. She soon after marries, but her past catches up with her when she develops into a physical and mental wreck, especially upon discovering that her husband had a previous experience with a young woman who is still on his mind. This young woman is currently being psychoanalyzed, but flees the doctor who is trying more to seduce her than to rid her of distrust of other men. She escapes him and looks up an old girl friend, who is now a lesbian. After an experience, she makes good her escape. The illicit lovers resolve to make the best of their niches in society.

X-RAY: There is little or no art features attached to this opus dealing with at least four loosely connected episodes depicting the seamier side of sex and/or love. Told in flashback fashion, it is most confusing and hard to follow. The picture, of course, has exploitation possibilities, and despite its language barrier can be sold in spots where sexy stuff makes a buck. The acting is good, as are production and direction. It is indeed a sordid and shocking story pictured all too realistically; the moral of which never becomes clear. One unsavory bedroom sequence follows another in rapid succession. This is definitely for adults only, and in most cases, for exploitation spots alone.

(Eastman color)

ESTIMATE: Well-made opera for art and specialty spots.

CAST: Franca Duval, Franco Corelli, Afro Poli, Vito De Taranto, Antonio Sacchetti, Aldo Corelli, Ferdinand Alfieri. Directed by Carmine Gallone.

STORY: Political prisoner Antonio Sacchetti takes refuge in a church where artist Franco Corelli is completing a painting. Corelli holds the same political views as the escapee and agrees to help him flee from Afro-Poli, the cruel police chief. Not even the painter's sweetheart, Franca Duval, who plays Tosca, is aware of the scheme. The police discover evidence that the two men might be in a conspiracy. They arrest Corelli, charging he helped Sacchetti. Corelli refuses to talk despite torture, but the pressure is too great for Duval. She gives away the hiding place to save her lover further pain. Corelli is sentenced to death. Duval pleads for his life, and Poli agrees to fake an execution and then let them both go if she will submit to him. She agrees after the safe conduct has been written, but she kills him, after which she speeds to the prison only to find that a real execution has been ordered. Corelli is shot to death before her eyes. She jumps to her death before she can be apprehended.

X-RAY: A well-known and interesting Puccini opera has been given fine screen treatment here, and the result is one that should appeal to audiences seeking the better, the different, and the unusual in screen entertainment. The presentation has more breadth and scope than it could ever have on a limited stage and the use of medium shots and close-ups puts every viewer in a first-class seat. The use of CinemaScope and color further enhances the entry. Of course, its appeal is limited, still there would seem to be a large audience both curious about and anxious to see a work that heretofore could only be heard on radio or seen where opera is the vogue. What is seen should please. The cast is uniformly good, as are the direction and production. The singing of Tosca was dubbed in by Maria Caniglia.

AD LINES: "Puccini's Famous Opera 'Tosca' Can Now Be Seen On The Large Cinema-Scope Screen In Color"; "A Fabulous Adventure In Opera".

The Shaggy Dog

COMEDY
104M

Buena Vista

ESTIMATE: Highly amusing comedy-fantasy.

CAST: Fred MacMurray, Jean Hagen, Tommy Kirk, Annette Funicello, Tim Considine, Kevin Corcoran, Cecil Kellaway, Alexander Scourby, Roberta Shore, James Westerfield, Shaggy. Directed by Charles Barton, associate producer, Bill Walsh.

STORY: When Alexander Scourby, his attractive daughter, Roberta Shore, and their dog Shaggy move into the neighborhood, youngster Tommy Kirk is visibly impressed. Kirk makes a trip to the local museum and accidentally knocks over a tray of antique rings, one of which lands in his pants cuff. When he reads the Latin inscription, he mysteriously turns into a shaggy dog. He takes his younger brother, Kevin Corcoran, into his confidence while hiding from his mother, Jean Hagen, and father Fred MacMurray, a mailman, who hates dogs. He is admitted to the Scourby home, being mistaken for Shaggy, where he learns that Scourby is involved in a plot to steal vital atomic plans. He turns human again and attends the country club dance. The transformation takes place again, and again he winds up in the Scourby house where he learns more about the plot. He and Corcoran try to convince MacMurray. Kirk is promptly given a psychiatric examination. The spies catch him when he becomes a boy again and leave him bound as they make a break with the plans. Corcoran frees him and he turns into a dog again as he pursues the spies. He causes the capture of the spies, after which he turns back into a boy who dares not reveal his story. Shore's dog is named the hero.

X-RAY: Here is an amusing entry that should go over with family audiences generally. It has lots of comedy high spots if the lightweight and fantastic story is taken in the spirit in which it is presented. A "sneak preview" audience seemed to have an enjoyable time. There are added areas of interest, too, for the teeners, since the hero is of a similar age level and is faced with problems and situations regarding dating, girls, etc. The yarn moves at a good pace, aided by suitable performances and capable direction and production as well as by the Disney "name." The screenplay is by Bill Walsh and Lillie Hayward, suggested by "The Hound of Florence," by Felix Salten. There is also a rock-n-roll type tune based on the title.

TIPS ON BIDDING: Higher program rates or better in many situations.

AD LINES: "The Funniest Film Farce In Many A Moon"; "Fun For All The Family".
